AGUE AND FEVER.

FLETCHER'S
CELEBRATED IMPERIAL
AGUE AND FEVER OR TONIC PILLS.

THE proprietors of this invaluable remedy for Ague and Fever or Intermittent Fever, deem it unnecessary to enter into a long dissertation, relative to the disease for the radical cure of which, the remedy now offered stands unrivalled. The universal prevalence of the Ague and Fever, and Intermittent Fever, throughout most of the states of the Union, and the thousands who annually suffer from it, unhappily render it so well known, that to dilate on its symptoms or pathology, seems wholly unnecessary. It may, however, with propriety be observed, that the neglect to cure what is too often called "only the Ague and Fever;" often leads to diseases more fatal in their nature—among which may be classed, diseases of the Liver and enlargement of the Spleen, commonly called Ague Cake, which in too many cases proves fatal.

Thousands of certificates might be published in reference to the efficacy of the Pills now offered to the public, which the proprietors deem unnecessary to publish. Suffice it to say, they have never been known to fail in a single instance. ONE Box, when taken according to directions, is warranted to cure any case of Ague and Fever, or Intermittent Fever. The ingredients being PURELY VEGETABLE, and entirely free from any deleterious substance, they are confidently recommended as the safest, as well as the most efficacious article ever offered to the Public! The form in which these Pills are put up, (small tin boxes,) renders them more convenient than any other, as a man can carry them in his vest pocket without the slightest inconvenience.

"NE PLUS ULTRA" VEGETABLE COMPOUND

CATHARTIC AND DEOBSTRUENT PILLS.

These Pills, now for the first time offered to the Public, have been used in private practice upwards of Forty Years, by a celebrated Physician, formerly a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of London and Edinburg, and Licentiate of Dublin University.

The proprietors deem it unnecessary to enter into any lengthened discussion as to the merits of these Pills—neither will they say, that they "will cure all the ills that human flesh is heir to"—but they lay claim to one great fact, and that is this; they are the very best pills ever invented, not merely as a simple CATHARTIC, as their properties are various. They are a Compound Cathartic, and Deobstruent Pill. They cleanse the Stomach and Bowels without pain or griping; they act specifically upon the Liver and Kidneys, and as a Diuretic, they cause an increased discharge of Urine—restoring a healthful and proper action to the URINARY ORGANS. For monthly complaints, to which Females are liable, they will be found most efficacious in removing obstructions and restoring them to perfect health. It is perhaps needless to add, that if the STOMACH and BOWELS are kept in a proper state, no disease should be entertained in reference to the welfare of the body.

We need only say to those who have tried all other Pills, of whatever name, to give the "Ne Plus Ultra's," one trial, and we feel perfectly confident, that they will satisfy all that they are THE PILLS! unequalled as well as unapproachable!! JAMES WILLIAMSON, NAUTILUS (Mutual Life) INSURANCE COMPANY, 58 WALL STREET, NEW YORK.—After mature deliberation, the Trustees have become convinced, and the experience of old established companies fully warrant the conclusion, that the advantages of Life Insurance on the Mutual plan, may be extended and diffused with great convenience to a large class of contributors, and with equal security to all the assured, by requiring no greater amount of the premium to be paid in cash than the company will require to meet its engagements with promptitude and fidelity.

It has accordingly been determined that in all cases where the annual premium shall amount to $50, and 60 per cent thereof shall have been paid in cash, an approved note may be given for the remaining 40 per cent, payable twelve months after date, bearing six per cent interest. The interest to be paid annually, but the principal not to be called in unless the exigencies of the company require it, giving sixty days notice, and then only by assessments prorata to the extent that may be required to meet the engagements of the company.

It is confidently anticipated that a system, the operation of which is so fair and equitable, so well calculated to place the benefits and blessings of Life Insurance within the reach of all, and at the same time enable each contributor to share equally and fully not only in its beneficent security, but also in its profits of accumulation, will meet, as it is believed to deserve the favor and confidence of the public.

The particular advantages offered by this company are:

1. A guarantee capital.
2. An annual participation in the profits.
3. No individual responsibility beyond the amount of premium.
4. Those who insure for a less period than life, participate equally in the annual profits of the company.

The Nautilus company confines its business exclusively to insurance on Lives, and all Insurance appertaining to Life.

Col. H. Marshall's Official Report.

Camp at Agua Nueva, Mexico.
March 1, 1847.

SIR: In compliance with your order, I have the honor to state that the Kentucky cavalry, engaged in the battle of Buena Vista, on the 22d and 23d inst. amounted to two hundred and thirty-five men, as nearly as can be stated, and consisted of the companies of Captain Price, Heady, and Clay, as one squadon; the companies of Captans Milam and Pennington as another squadron; and the companies of Captain Shawhan and Beard, with a part of the company of the 1st Lieut. John Field—the three last being arranged as a battalion of mounted riflemen.

When the presence of the enemy was first announced, my regiment was ordered to take post along the base of the mountain which covered the left of our position; but while proceeding to execute the order, it was again commanded to turn into the plain, and march to the point occupied in person dy Brigadier General Wool. Having accomplished this purpose, you ordered me to detach the riflemen (dismounted) and sustained by one squadron of cavalry, and to take ground "to the front and left." The remaining squadron was in a few moments directed to support this movement.

To render the explanation of our movements more satisfactory, it may be well to state here, that the position of Buena Vista is in a vale between two ranges of mountains whose general direction is from south-east to north-west. The plain inclines from the south to the vale, which courses in a direction parallel to the mountains, and is intersected by numerous deep ravines worn by the torrents that, in rainy seasons, rush across its face. These ravines have precipitous and abrupt banks varying in height from three to forty feet. Their course across the plain is regular; so that the ground on which we were to take position consisted of a series of plains issuing on the left from the Sierra Madre and terminating on the right in the deep dell through which the road passes from Agua Nueva to Saltillo.—In length, they vary from three-quarters of a mile to a mile; in breadth from fifty to three hundred yards. Ground which, at a little distance, would seem entirely practicable for the operations of cavalry, will appear exactly the reverse on a more close examination.

Having the general direction to move my regiment "to the front and left," I proceeded to the base of a knoll, about one hundred feet in height, which forms the terminus of a spur from the Sierra, and commands the entire plain before mentioned. Here I halted the regiment, presuming, from the appearace of the ground on every side, that it would be a fit point on which to rest the left of our line, and, from its commanding position, that it would be seized by the enemy on the first opportunity. Fronting towards Agua Nueva, the ground on the right of the knoll presented a broader plain than any other in the immediate neighborhood. The rear of this knoll (or spur) was bounded by a broad deep ravine whose banks could be passed with ease by cavalry, while from the other face issued numerous ravines of great depth which, with winding courses, extended to the vale below, offering almost perfect protection to riflemen against cavalry, and the utmost facility of resistance by a small to a large force. Issuing from the same peak of the Sierra with the spur that terminated in the knoll before mentioned was another spur, which bore away to the valley in front of the knoll, and at an angle of about thirty degrees to the line which connected the knoll with the mountain. By crossing a deep valley, this ridge was accessible from the knoll; and, as the lines of these hills converged to the same point of the mountain, it was evident that the passage from one to the other became more easy the higher the point occupied by any force. The ridge of this second spur, commanding a view of the entire plain beyond, and of the entire army of the enemy, was, to my mind, palpably the correct line to be occupied by the light troops who were to defend our left flank. In truth, I was convinced (and so, at the time, repeatedly stated to those around me) that the enemy would never fight the battle until he succeeded in carrying this position.

After halting at the base of the knoll a few moments, I ordered the battalion of dismounted riflemen to take post on the front spur I have described, and there to resist every attempt to turn to our left, but when overpowered by superior numbers to retreat across the ridge connecting the knoll with the Sierra, and there to fight again; and should they be unable to hold that line, to rejoin the regiment by retreating along the rear face of the knoll. The squadrons of Captain Price and Milam were dismounted and held in concealment on the hill side of the ravine which bounded the rear of the knoll. A battalion of the Arkansas cavalry was formed on the plain, at about 300 yards to the rear of my position, while a battalion of Indiana riflemen took post under the command of Maj. Gorman, near my squadrons. In this position we awaited the enemy, who had already commenced deploying battalions to his right, (our left,) with the evident intent of carrying the points I occupied. His intention was made manifest from the fact that, from a battery in the valley, he commenced throwing shells at the riflemen who were near me, at the same time that his infantry approached. Captains Shawhan and Beard, and Lieut. Field promptly executed my orders, and were already in possession of the heights in front, when a staff officer communicated to me the apprehension of Brig. Gen. Wool that this advance corps might be cut off by the regiments of the enemy which were marching up the ravine beyond, and his wish that my men should be recalled. Reluctantly I yielded to the order, and sounded the recall; whereupon the rifle battalion rejoined the regiment. Scarcely had the riflemen returned, when Gen. Wool himself rode up and explained that his views had been misapprehended by the officer who communicated them, as it was his design merely to apprise me of the danger which threatened the advanced corps, yet to leave their position entirely to my discretion. At the same time he charged me with the command of the troops on the left flank. I attempted immediately to rectify the error by ordering a company from the Indiana battalion to resume a position on the front heights, while the three dismounted companies belonging to the Kentucky cavalry (who were much exhausted by their previous exercise) were ordered again to climb the hill, and to take post on the ridge connecting the knoll and mountain. The company of Indianians started, but they failed to perform the duty assigned to them, and, with deep regret, I observed the Mexican troops were, in a short time, in possession of the very heights my own men had a half hour previously so advantageously occupied. The firing immediately commenced. It was about thirty minutes past 3 p. m., on the 22d of February. The Mexican light troop appeared on the ridge, constantly taking additional ground to their right; so that Capt. Shawhan was ordered to extend rapidly to his left, with the view of outflanking them. At the same time, three companies of Gorman's battalion were ordered to take position on the knoll, with one of which the Kentucky battalion was subsequently reinforced. The Mexicans occupied a higher ridge than that on which my force was posted. They overshot their mark continually; for though the action continued until night, they killed no one, and wounded only seven. The loss of the enemy is not known, but is understood to have been large. The Mexican troops continued to extend to their right, until they had scaled the very summit of the Sierra Madre. Foreseeing that that they would extend to this point, I ordered Captains Milam and Pennington to dismount their companies, pass the gorge in the mountain, and, by scaling the mountain from the rear, to command the right flank of the enemy. Darkness prevented them from succeeding, though their object was so nearly attained that they came within the fire of the enemy who had reached the summit; and these would have been overcome, but for your order recalling all the troops to the plain for the night. When night closed, the enemy had succeeded in outflanking us, though as yet our position was not turned, and from the abruptness of the face of the mountain, it was hoped that his apparent success would yield no material advantage.

Throughout the evening, Captains Shawhan and Beard and Lieut. Field, acted with promptness and bravery, and their companies with coolness and skill. The same remark is applicable to the Indiana company which went to their assistance, led by a sergeant or subaltern, as well as I recollect. Major Gorman was with me during the evening, and his obedience to orders and general conduct deserved and receives approbatory mention. His men were not exposed, except on the knoll, and there, by the conformation of the ground, were to a great degree sheltered. They seemed, however, to be willing to engage the enemy whenever required.

During the night of the 22d the Kentucky cavalry and the 1d Indiana regiment maintained their position at the base of the knoll undisturbed by the enemy. At daylight on the 23d I was relieved of the command of the brigade by Brig. Gen. Lane, who will report its further operations.

As soon as it was light enough to see the enemy on the 23d, the rifle battalion, reinforced by the companies of Milam and Pennington, was ordered forward to renew the fight. They were ordered to dismount in the gorge and to ascend that slope of the mountain which descends to the broad ravine in rear of the knoll. This gave to the enemy the position which the rifle battalion occupied the preceding evening. This step was rendered necessary by the vast superiority of the enemy in numbers. The enemy was prompt to take whatever ground we yielded, and commenced to move his regiment along the face of the mountain until he had displayed twenty-five hundred infantry in our front. The fire became hot and incessant. The companies I had sent forward were assisted by Gorman's battalion of Indiana riflemen and four companies of Illinois riflemen under the command of Major Trail. Our men stood as firm as the rocks of the mountain. They were but a handful as compared with the enemy, but they yielded not an inch of ground for at least two hours, during which I was gratified to observe that they kept their front clear within rifle shot, though the enemy was enabled to turn their left flank, and a regiment or more pressed down the mountain to their right, with the view of cutting the whole off from our main body. I cannot too highly compliment this gallant band. They were under my eye the whole time, and their valor could not have been surpassed. Lieut. Col. Field was there and every where during the battle, equal entirely to his station, and rendered me the most essential assistance. He has mentioned in flattering terms the gallantry of several as conspicuous on this occasion, and it affords me infinite pleasure to add my own testimony to the general good conduct of the troops. The ammunition, done in the mountain, by our troops is admitted to have been tremendous. Persons who have since visited the scene represent the dead of the enemy left on this mountain-side, as from two hundred and fifty to three hundred—the number of wounded not known. Their loss was immense. We did not lose a man from the companies engaged because the enemy shot too high. I was closely observing the movements on the mountain, perceiving that matters were reaching extremes with my riflemen, when I observed that a regiment of Americans were retreating on my right; instantly I had the signal sounded to call my men from the mountain, and scout with Price's squadron and the four Arkansas cavalry companies until they issued from the ravine, and, mounted commenced to ascend the hill on the other side. Our line being pressed back, and the men retreating in apparent disorder, I proposed to Col. Yell to charge the Mexican line; and he readily assented; but before the enemy had taken position to enable us to execute our desire, the right of the Arkansas corps commenced retiring in order. Our whole force was then withdrawn to the other side of the ravine, and we found that we stood detached from the rest of the army.—The riflemen of the Kentucky cavalry had not yet joined the regiment, but, retiring before the enemy in order, was occasionally presenting a front to cover the retreat of the infantry. In this way they twice delivered a fire upon the body of the enemy, who were pressing in masses along the mountain side. After crossing three ravines in this way, the riflemen succeeded in joining the rest of the regiment, and at once, I ordered the cavalry to form for a charge upon the lancers of the enemy, who now moved forward along the base of the mountain, as if to engage the companies under my command. The lancers were protected by the infantry on the mountain side, whenever checked, would at once reform under cover of their fire; while the infantry, because of the conformation of the ground, could not be approached by our horses. The regiment of Kentucky cavalry and the four Arkansas companies met the lancers firmly, and the head of their column was pressed back.—We lost several valuable lives in this charge—not by the lancers, but by the musketry, which constantly fired upon my command. We were utterly unsustained by infantry, and powerless, of course, as against a force we could not reach—a force exceeding mine by at least six to one, and constantly reinforced by other infantry and cavalry—and, withal, in a position to us inaccessible.

At this point of time I could see no infantry belonging to your army, and the progress of the enemy seemed unresisted, if not resistless. If we had a line, it was palable that it had swung away from the mountains, and therefore it was deemed best to take a position which would draw the enemy into the place. Accordingly the cavalry moved off directly at right angles to our former course, and approached the Saltillo road, near the ranche, at Buena Vista. The infantry of the enemy at once descended to plain, and formed a line of battle parallel to the mountain's base. Their cavalry formed a column of squadrons to charge upon my regiment. We formed at once to receive them Col. Yell's companies being on my left. The enemy came down in most gallant style and beautiful order. They numbered from 1,200 to 1,500, and constituted the brgade of General Torrejon. Our force did not exceed 400. Our men were armed with rifles, or with carbine, pistol, and sabre, theirs with sabre or pistol, or with lances. I waited their approach until they had arrived within sixty yards of my line, when our men delivered their fire. Under its effect the head of their column wavered and for a moment checked its march, when the order was given to my command to charge upon them. Their column parted—some went right and some left. The men on our side pressed through them, pursued one part, and the melee became general.—The whole crowd was enveloped in a cloud of dust, and all order on both sides was for a few minutes lost. Mexicans and Kentuckians, and some of the Arkansas soldiers were together, and so continued until we had reached the valley in rear of the ranche. A large body of the Mexicans broke through the ranche, where they were fired upon as as they passed; and thence pursued by my men. they fled across the mountains opposite. As they ascended the mountains our artillery began to play on them. Among others who fell in this affair were Col. Yell, of Arkansas, and my adjutant, Edward M. Vaughn. Your army contains no braver spirits than these. Nor did the field of Buena Vista hold two more determined soldiers. Their bodies exhibit the fierceness of the shock and the noble daring with which it was met. Mr. Vaughn received twenty-four wounds, many of which were mortal. I draw no distinction between Colonel Yell's companies and my own. They stood shoulder to shoulder up to the moment of collision with the enemy, and behaved as handsomely as I could have desired. The fall of Colonel Yell, who passed to the left, (while I passed to the right,) parted the regiments. There were some of the soldiers from Arkansas who remained with me, and who formed with my own command shortly afterwards to sustain Bragg's battery, which was going then into action. It is sufficient commentary on this trasaction to observe, that with the change of their cavalry, the progress of the enemy ceased. I can scarcely distinguish between officers and men, where all were brave; but I may mention the gallantry of Capt. Price as conspicuous. Many performed acts of daring which have been reported to me in flattering terms, but which I may not extend this by reciting.

In our new position, after the Kentucky cavalry returned to the field of action, little was left for us to do but sustain the battery by our presence, and to cover it when it retired. This duty was performed under your own immediate observation. The advance of some infantry regiments induced you to order me to a new position, to cover their flank from another column of the enemy,s cavalry, but the character of the ground and progress of the battle offered no opportunity.

It was ascertained that the energies of our horses, by the action of the preceding sixty hours, had been completely exhausted; and about this time I received an order from Major General Taylor to repair to the position he occupied upon the field, there to dismount and to act, if necessary, on foot. We then marched to the firing on both sides and the battle closed.

In conclusion, I would remark, that, from the commencement to the close of this memorable action, my regiment was at no time 15 minutes out of the fire of the enemy, or out of the reach of his lances. If the part it has played has been serviceable to the country and I may measure contributed to produce the glorious result which has crowned our common toils, we shall feel fully recompensed for all we have suffered by a separation from our homes and families. I deplore the great loss the regiment has sustained; but the dead have left an example which endears their memory while patriotism has an admirer.

I respectfully submit the list of the killed and wounded of the Kentucky cavalry, and have the honor to be your very obedient servant. HUMPHREY MARSHALL.

Colonel of Kentucky Cavalry.

Seizure of Church Property.

The "Catholic Telegraph" of Cincinnati, on the 29th inst., discourses thus to the Washington Union and the administration: The Washington "Union."—This paper, the organ of the Administration and the mouth-piece of the office-holding democracy, suggests the seizure of the church property in Mexico! The following disreputable language is a part of the article to which we allude:

"It is not as a religious body, but as an engine of State, that the Catholics of Mexico look upon us with a hostile eye. It is for their own political purposes—to retain their vast possessions, which impoverish the nation—to sustain their own hierarchy, which lords it over the people—to preserve their power which weighs down the rest of the community into the slough of ignorance and slavery—that they are thus solicitous and active. It is a zeal for the mammon of unrighteousness—not for the welfare of souls—which inspires and animates the Catholics of Mexico."

A Catholic citizen of the United States who can read such language as this without emotion, must have a very rigid temper.—More than that, he can hardly find no small number of officers of the regular army, are members of the Catholic Church, and because they exposed their lives and most gallantly defended the national flag of their native or adopted country, the Washington Union seems to think, that they are ready to play the part of common robbers, and to lay sacrilegious hands on the altars before which they kneel in prayer. Let the Government give such an order! During the fierce conflict at Monterey, a statue of the Blessed Virgin which stood on the bridge leading to the city, attracted the eyes of the combatants. After the storming of the town, a party of volunteers who anticipated the sentiments of the Union, determined to take down the statue during the night and bring it to Cincinnati as a trophy! A certain company called the Montgomery Guards, under the direction of an officer named Kenealy, (General Urrea knows them) heard of the intended outrage, went privately to the scene and after a brief contest, marched the offending party to the guard house, without the statue! Let the administration give an order to plunder the churches, and they may find themselves in a like unpleasant condition, they may receive in return, more iron than gold. It does not follow that a man must be a thief or a scoundrel because he is a soldier.

The Catholic clergy in Mexico did their duty in resisting the North Americans.—Were a foreign enemy to land in the United States, every Catholic clergyman would oppose them; but according to the logic of the Union, the invaders would be justified in seizing on our church property, on our colleges and on the patrimony of orphans, on the income of hospitals, and all this with the sanction of religion! All to be accomplished and justified by pharisaical denunciations of the "mammon of unrighteousness" and "welfare of souls." Was it "the welfare of souls" that Mr. Polk had in view when he commenced the war, or was it "the mammon of unrighteousness."

But the Union is indignant with the Catholic clergy, because they keep the people in "the slough of ignorance and slavery." It rare sport to hear a Virginian rebuke any people for ignorance and slavery! It is a clear illustration of the outside morality of the times, to hear a man abuse the Catholic clergy for "lording it over the people" and keeping them in "ignorance and slavery," when moral teaching in his own household has been made notorious by an event, the like of which no records of any country can equal in atrocity.

There are various political papers which do not conceal their animosity for those who profess the Catholic Faith. In Boston the most infamous calumnies are published against us; in New York, the Editor of the Journal of Commerce may be said to monopolize the "cap and bells;" but when a paper acknowledged to be the Organ of the Administration, talks out so plainly, shows such unequivocal demonstration of striking a blow at the freedom of religious worship, no matter what denomination may be attacked, it is the duty of all to talk as loudly as the million of those in power, and to confine him within the limits of his duty. We Catholics do not forget what insults have been heaped upon us during the present administration.

We do not forget the article in the Union about the "tariff of prices for the pardon of sins;" we do not forget the placards upon the Post Office Department, at Washington announcing for sale, by one who held an office in that establishment, of a shameless work against our Church; we Catholics have submitted to much insult, but we think that the friends of the Administration had better spare us and spare themselves.—There may not be a bigot at every election, on their exclusive ticket, to throw the dark shadow of his name over more than half the land. We wish to keep religion clear of political excitement; to save it from contact with worldly-minded schemes, but we cannot do so unless we are permitted to enjoy our constitutional rights free from such vituperative and anti-republican language as that which the Union has published.

Since writing these remarks we have seen a number of the Union, in which is published a disclaimer, a recantation of the above sentiments, and a particular and reiterated asseveration, that the Editor alone was responsible and that no member of the Cabinet participated in his opinion! Then why was the abusive article published? If the Editor did not entertain opinion which he published, why in the name of sense, did he print them? Was it for the gratification of anti-catholic prejudice, or was it a feeler? Probably he wished to know how much dependence could be placed on the forbearance of Catholic citizens, and he has ascertained before this, that though they may have faith enough to endure martyrdom, they have not the remotest idea of submitting to political execution.

The I. O. O. F. of Portsmouth, Ohio, have made arrangements to celebrate the 5th inst., the Anniversary of their Society.

When David, king of Israel, became envious of Uriah, because of his beautiful wife Bathsheba, or Mr. Polk did of Gen. Taylor because of his growing popularity among the people—we learn from Samuel ii, xi chap. and xiv verse,—he wrote a letter to Joab, (then commanding his forces against the Syrians, as Winfield Scott did those of Mr. Polk against the Mexicans) which he sent by the hands of Uriah.

15. And he wrote in the letter saying: set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire ye from him that he may be smitten and die.

16. And it came to pass when Joab observed the City, that he assigned Uriah unto a place where he knew that valliant men were.

17. And the men of the city, (rabbah) went out and fought with Joab, and there fell some of the people of the servants of David, and Uriah—the Hittite died also.

But Mr. Polk not being a king, told Gen. Scott to take from Gen. Taylor his trained men, and thus left him in the land of an enemy, that he might suffer defeat, and the hearts of the people be turned away from him. Accordingly Santa Anna, learning that Zachary was thus weakened, rushed down upon him with 20,000 men, Zachary having but 4,500 men for the battle.

Unlike Uriah, Zachary died not, but being a valliant man, he slew the Mexicans with great slaughter, and the hearts of the people were exceedingly glad, and they said they would have Zachary to rule instead of Polk. Then the Polk waxed wroth, and his heart rejoiced not, because he saw the scepter was about to depart from his house. So mote it be.—Rough and Ready

NEW APPLICATION OF VAPOR OF ETHER.

Dr. Cazenova, head surgeon of the lunatic asylum at Pau, has tried the use of vapor of ether on a mad girl. This poor creature had been unable to obtain sleep for five months. She was made to inhale ether and her agitation soon ceased. After 5 inhalations she fell into a complete state of insensibility, which lasted twenty-five minutes, at the end of that time the torpor ceased, and no symptoms of disorder remained.—*Lon. THE following letters are presented with a view of more fully showing the opinions of Physicians in relation to the Medical value of Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry.

Dr. SWAYNE—Dear Sir: Having used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, in my practice, I was requested by your Agent, Dr. Crutcher, to express my opinion in writing, of its properties as a medical agent. I most cheerfully comply, as I feel by so doing, I will discharge a debt I owe to the community at large, and Physicians in particular. As much as I detest quack nostrums and patent nostrums, I was induced from the failure of the most potent expectorants, recommended in our materia medicus in some cases of diseased lungs, to try your preparation of Prunus Virginia or Wild Cherry.—It is sufficient to say that I was so much pleased with the result of that, and subsequent trials, that I now prescribe it in preference to all other remedies where an expectorant is indicated. In the much dreaded Pneumonia or Disease of the Lungs, in that alarming form in which it appears in Kentucky, I regard it as an invaluable remedy in the treatment of that disease. To all who know me I have said enough, but as this may be seen by persons out of the vicinity of Frankfort, I will briefly add, that I have been engaged in active practice of my profession for 12 years, and am a regular graduate of Transylvania, and this is the first Patent Medicine I ever thought enough of to express an opinion in writing. Frankfort, Ky. Jan. 7th, 1847.

The above certificate is from one of our Physicians living a few miles from here. He is doing a very good practice, and is considered a good physician, and stands fair; he is as he says a regular graduate. DR. WM. H. CRUTCHER.

Druggist and Apothecary.

☞Since the introduction of my article to the public, there have a number of unprincipled individuals got up nostrums, which they assert contain Wild Cherry, some are called "BALSAMS," "HYSTER COUGH," "SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, but TEAS," and even SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, but none is the original and the only genuine preparation ever introduced to the public, which can be proved by the public Records of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The only safeguard against imposition, is to see that my signature is on each bottle.

TRI-WEEKLY HERALD.

J. SPRIGG CHAMBERS, EDITOR.

Maysville, June 4, 1847.

THE ROUGH AND READY, is the title of a Whig Campaign paper for the Ninth Congressional district. It is edited in Flemingsburg and printed at the office of the Maysville Herald. Subscriptions received at this office.

ROCKWELL & Co.'s CIRCUS.—On Monday next, this splendid Equestrian corps, will be in this city. We are authorised to say that the most perfect order will be preserved throughout the performance, and comfortable seats provided for all who may attend. Some of our citizens, have witnessed the wonderful feats of Horsemanship, and displays of strength and activity by the company, in Cincinnati, during the past winter, and universally acknowledge their perfect satisfaction with the display they have witnessed.

☞ John Brosee, is a star Confectioner. He has recently been making some exceedingly tempting additions to his ordinary bill of fare. If any one doubts it, we would just advise them to go and see—and if they can resist his Ice-Cream, Strawberries, French Candies and hot Sponge Cake—why they have more philosophy than we have—thats all.

☞ Morris A. Hutchins, has a large and very general assortment of Lumber, at his old established yard, and is ready to fill almost any bill on accommodating terms.

The Shingles he advertises are unquestionably a superior article. We advise our friends at a distance as well as near Maysville, that if they want a permanent roof, send for Hutchins' best Shingles.

☞ Mr. Benton, in reply to a letter from the Chairman of a meeting of the citizens of Howard county Mo., who expressed their preference for him for the Presidency, writes a letter (which is published in the Fayette Democrat) plainly indicating his preference for Silas Wright. He refers to the fact that the Northern Democracy have given but one President to the Union in 50 years, and again denounces the formation of a Southern party as finally destructive of the Union. He exhorts the Democracy to look to the North for a candidate—a step required both for the good of the party and the good of the country at large.

☞ The New Orleans Picayune gives an interesting account of the departure of Gen. Jeff. Davis' regiment of Mississippi volunteers from the scene of their brilliant exploits, to their homes in Mississippi. Having marched to the front of Gen. Taylors tent and presented arms the General stepped forward and shook hands with Capt. Hooper (who was in command,) and then with much feeling addressed the remnant of this truly distinguished corps as follows:

"My friends, I part from you with great reluctance. You are about returning to your homes and your families covered with honors scarcely ever equalled. You have won honor for yourselves, your State and your country, and I can only express a sincere hope for your health and future happiness." He then shook hands with the officers, and as the regiment filed off, they gave three hearty cheers for the brave old General under whom they have won such green and unfading laurels. Col. Jefferson Davis is still here, but is rapidly recovering from the effects of his wound."

BLOOD MONEY.—A letter from Mexico, in the Journal of Commerce, says that General SCOTT has taken the guerrilla business in hand, "and by his order every murder that the Mexicans may commit takes $300 out of the nearest alcalde's pocket. Although this may be rather hard on the alcaldes, it will induce them to exert their influence, of which they possess 'some,' as a prevenive of the evil."

☞ Santa Anna is said to have had a battery of Artillery mounted, and has appointed Col. Aguado, to the command. His estimate of the value of this description of armament, is probably very high, as he doubtless bases it upon the services of our flying artillery, at Buena Vista.

☞ The Eagle of yesterday, estimates the probable dividend upon the stock of the Maysville and Lexington Turnpike road company, for the present year at 4 4-10 per cent,—a result attributable in a great degree to the judicious management of Capt. Donovan.

The dividend has been steadily on the increase for some years.

HORSES FOR THE ARMY.—The following is from the New Orleans Southerner of the 22d ult.:

There have been shipped from this port by the Quartermaster's department, since the first of January last, two thousand nine hundred and seven horses, destined for the use of the army in Mexico, besides a large number brought here by companies already mounted. Two thousand four hundred and ninty-six of the number shipped have been purchased in this city at an average cost of one hundred dollars each.

The following interesting as well as amusing letter, we find in the New Orleans Delta of the 25th ult:

Correspondence from Mexico.

The Volunteers Returning—Tom Corwin burnt in effigy—A Rogue drummed out of Camp—Gen. Taylor at Monterey —Col. Morgan's Appointment well received—Bustamente and Urrea—The Virginia Uniforms—Volunteer Oratory—Eloquent Speech.

BUENA VISTA, (near Saltillo,) April 29, 1847.

EDS. DELTA—No muster of the volunteers will take place to-morrow here, although musters have generally been made every two months. The reason assigned is, that there are no funds here to pay off all the troops—and further, that in a month the "one year men" will be disbanded.—The downward movement of the troops will commence in about two weeks; we hear that the 1st Ohio, stationed heretofore at Monterey, will leave the last of this week, but can place no confidence in the report.—A great many will doubtless remain with the army, but that "bounty of twelve dollars" will lose more than it makes. Is this a bounty? Rather small business for "the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled"—don't you think so?

By the way, the honorable Thomas Corwin was burnt in effigy by "a large and respectable convocation" of the boys, a few nights since, with very strong and unequivocal symptoms of disapprobation. A great many prayers, intended for the honorable Senator's benefit, were put up on the occasion. We are sorry to be compelled to remark, that their peculiar character is hit off in a popular little tract entitled "The Swearer's Prayer."

A poor fellow (appropos to Corwin) was drummed out of camp for stealing a horse. He belonged to the Arkansas regiment.—We know not how the scene looked to others, but for ourselves must say, that it was one of the hardest we ever looked at. The unfortunate man (let us think as gently as possible) was in rage and dirt, wounded and bareheaded, marched along the line of mockers, while the fifes shrieked out that ancient insult, that Musical tale of infamy and deep disgrace, the Rogue's March:"

"Poor old soldier," &c.

Gen. Taylor is still at Monterey. He issued congratulatory orders to this division of the army, on the receipt of the intelligence from Vera Cruz.

Col. Morgan, of the 2d Ohio, has received the appointment of Colonel of the 15th Infantry. A better selection could not possibly have been made. It is refreshing to meet with an item like this among the "doings at Washington." Good can come out of that Nazareth at the Capitol occasionally.

Reports of another battle near Jalapa, have reached us. As usual, rumor gives us the victory. The number of camp tales would be astonishing to the uninitiated.—According to them, the enemy have been advancing upon this point "times numberless." Gen. Wool even announced it once in an order. But no enemy "made good their appearance," as the phrase legal goes. Bustamente has been reported at Incarnation with the usual compliment—40,000 men.

The roads are safe below Monterey.—Gen Urrea has left in some disgust. Trains go up and down with escorts of from sixty to seventy. The Virginia regiment is at Camargo; they have, by all accounts, more clothing than any other regiment in these parts. Their coats are curiosities. Buttons to the number of seventy, give to the soldier a soldier comic appearance; it looks as if the old chain armor was revived again. They are a clever set of fellows, though somewhat discontented, as all soldiers are at first. Marching with blistered feet and heavy knapsack, eating what one can get with fingers, carrying one's clothes to the washerwoman's and washing them himself, and all that, will soon become natural and easy. Ah! "the elephant" has a great many more spectators than admirers.

It is amusing to hear the various tales of the late battle here. Groups may be seen gathered round some "individual" who retails, with astonishing fluency and gesticulation, what he saw and did in that memorable action. We passed a crowd where a fellow of this catalogue, with a felt hat which had seen its best days, a couple of pistols, (peculiarly ferocious looking weapons,) two pairs of breeches "rolled into one," and a simile of a shirt, was giving the audience his ideas, something after the following:

"Well, sirs, wherever the copper was richest and heaviest, there you'd see old Tay. It made me think of old Gallup's lard house—the bombs flew, and fell, and hissed, and died like as if they was 'rending' out the sky, and making candles by wholesale. It was about what I think h— would be on 'lection day for Pres'dent. Them there mountains, that looks so still now, was all on the wave with men and greasers, up to the top, and the bay'nets made 'em shine as if old Nick was up there"—the speaker looked up with a comic sort of reverence —"had been raining half eagles on 'em.—D——— me, if it wasn't one of them days. Old Tay. was one of 'em too. He was one of God's own b'hoys—he was! They could not kill him. He was out all the time, fit away without any grub, and when he come in he said he was hungry enough to eat a jackass and snap at the rider. Ain't any of you got any of the ardent!" ***.

The influence of the press over the unholy designs of ambitious rulers (says the Philadelphia Sun) has been most signally manifested by the recent recantations of the Government of its intention to conquer, dismember, and partition the Republic of Mexico. History presents few examples of the power exercised over Government by the liberty of the press, equal to this revocation of its long cherished scheme of the national subjugation of the domain of our sister Republic.

We agree with our contemporary that it is the proudest achievement of the Press for this many a day. Father RITCHIE in vain attempts to stem the torrent of popular will, as expressed through the independent press. It is irresistible.

☞ Amongst other signs of the times, in Mexico, worthy to be observed, we consider the address of the Catholic Clergy of San Luis Potosi, to the people of that department of the Mexican Republic, as one of the most important. It is the first time during the war that the priesthood, acting in their Clerical capacity, have stepped forward and made an appeal to the people, to come to the rescue of the Nation—of their religion. If, as we learn from the various letters written upon the subject by Americans in Mexico, the Catholic Clergy are all powerful in controling the people of that country, we do not hesitate to say that in less than four months from this time, neither Taylor or Scott would be safe outside of a fortification with less than twice their present force. The appeal is too long for publication in our paper to-day, but its tone and character will be understood by the following extracts, which are in keeping with the whole of this most earnest attempt to arouse the Nation to resistance. After offering their Holy office, as guardians of the Catholic Church, as a sufficient reason for their interference, they commence by charging the United States with an ambition to extend their dominion, by violence, rapine and blood, and thus, recite their wrongs.

You have already seen them, compatriots. In vain is the memory of the thousand and thousand assassinations committed at Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, Angostura, Vera Cruz, and Cerro Gordo—in vain have we seen multitudes of Mexicans wandering in the woods, and pursued like wild beasts, in their own country, robbed of their property and driven from their families—in vain do we recall the multitude of peaceable and honorable men, who have been insulted, seized, and beaten, in presence even of a fond daughter or idolized wife—in vain do we recollect the proud barbarity, the shameless cruelty, required to burn the village, to slay the simple rustic, the feeble woman and the innocent child, as we beheld at Agua Nueva, Hidalgo, and other towns at the North. But what can we hope from a horde of robbers, destitute of humanity—monsters who bid defiance to the laws of nature, when they even insult, rob, and contemn God in his holy temple? When a man enters on a career of vice and throws aside the reins of religion, the insensibility and obduracy of which he is capable can hardly be believed. What can we expect from these Vandals, vomited from hell to scourge the nations, when we know that they worship no God but gold, and aspire to no happiness but the gratification of their brutal passions? A wise writer of the last century has said that "man without any religion is a terrible animal, who appears only to enjoy his liberty in destroying and devouring." Such, in effect, appears to be the picture which Providence, with a high design, has deigned to present to us. Yes, compatriots! you have seen it; our religion, our country, our liberty, our lives, our families, our property; nothing—nothing is respected; and if they spare even our existence, it is merely for the purpose of turning it to profit in the unhappy condition of slavery. And, finally, they will endeavor, as we have already said, to blot our name from the catalogue of nations.

Fellow-citizens of Potosi! Can you behold with waking eyes, and without the blood freezing in your veins, a condition so humiliating, a fate so disastrous and frightful! Can your bold and valliant character behold without rage that the foot of a heretic adventurer should defile your magnificent temples, destroy your venerated images, and trample even upon your God, overthrowing your holy sacraments, and depriving the Christian soul of the sublime virtues and exalted enjoyments of the angels? Will you permit that a covetous and barbarous stranger should outrage that God who has visited and consoled you in your infirmities—who accompanies you in the horrible transition from life to the enjoyment of eternal beatitude? Will you consent, brave Potosinos! to have the holy rites of your church abolished, and the sign of your redemption extermninated? Finally, fellow-citizens, will you be insensible to the loss of your religion, your temples, and even to the sweet name of Christians? Yet all this will happen to you. Your families will hunger after the bread of the Word, and the eternal consolations which the adorable religion of Jesus can alone dispense, and there will be none who can furnish them. Your daughters and your wives will be seized in your sight and made victims to lascivious passions, even in the streets and public places. your tender sons will expire on the points of the swords and bayonets of the barbarous conquerors, directing towards you their last looks of fear and agony; and you, yourselves will be siezed and bound like brutish beasts to be conducted to a country, and wage men, filthy prostitutes, and wild beasts will come and enjoy the comforts and delicacies of your homes. Yes, fellow-citizens of Potosi, hear it! one hundred thousand times we tell you—hear it! this fearful calamity comes upon you—it arrives at your threshold! Yet in compliance with our high duty—attend, listen—we announce to you, you shall suffer all this misfortune, in all its weight, if you do not awaken from the profound sleep in which we behold you prostrate, and assists us in raising a force worthy of the sacred cause in which we are engaged, and the glory of your name.

SINGULAR AND DISTRESSING AFFAIR.—A highly respectable gentleman of this city, who transacted a mercantile business on the wharf, was drowned, and died, as was supposed, a short time since. Being a native of an adjoining city, his wife and friends desired to inter his remains there, and his body was accordingly placed in a coffin and conveyed to that city. When the coffin arrived, it was opened in order to transfer the remains to a more suitable one which had been prepared, for final interment. When the lid was removed, the body was found lying upon the face, which upon examination was bruised. A moisture was observed upon the skin, and on a close examination it was found that the vital spark had not as yet fled. All the restoratives that the best medical skill could devise, were used, and the man was actually revived and lived for two days afterwards, before the "spirit departed unto him that gave it." No doubt was entertained here of the decease, and the feelings of relatives and friends at such a discovery, cannot be for one moment imagined. We were at first disposed to doubt the truth of the affair, but we have been assured on the most indubitable authority that the melancholy facts are correct.

Baltimore Clipper.

A recent letter from Mexico, dated Jalapa, May 14th says:

Mr. Downe, sutler of the 2d Pennsylvania regiment, arrived here yesterday. It may be recollected that he had a large amount of money stolen from him at Vera Cruz by a Mexican a short time since, that he pursued the rascal to Cordova, and that he succeeded in recovering the most of his money. So far so good; but the worst of it has yet to be told. Mr. D. came out with the permission of the alcade and authorities of Vera Cruz in search of the robber of his money, found him, and succeeded, as is said above, in recovering the most of his treasure; but at this moment a worse robber got hold of him in the shape of Santa Anna.

Poor D. was cast into prison as a spy, all his money again taken from him, and the only way by which he could obtain his liberty was to acknowledge himself a spy in writing. This Santa Anna insisted upon, as an excuse for robbing him of his money; but, on the other hand, Downie insisted in putting a protest at the bottom of his confession, stating that all he had said above was false! Did ever one hear of such a rascally farce? The way in which Downie now speaks of Santa Anna is any thing but complimentary.

HERVEY LEECH.—This extraordinary individual, better known as Hervio Nano, as we stated last week, has shuffled off what mortal coil he in life possessed. The London Literary Gazette published an article in regard to his great strength. He could follow a horse at full speed on his hands and feet, and suddenly spring on its back like a monkey. He could jump ten feet in the air. His mode of fighting too, was most original; he used to spring in the air, and at the same instant deal the most terrible blow upon his unwary antagonist's head, so that he was a very formidable combatant. It is said that in his palmy days, while driving a cab, a clumsy carman drove against him, and, as usual, accused Hervio of being in fault; at which our hero sprang from his seat upon the back of the man, and gave him a most terrible thrashing. His feats of strength, in his monkey characters, are well known. He was not, like the majority of deformed individuals, a misanthrope. He did not think himself an object of pity and consideration. On the contrary, he considered himself an exceedingly proper man; was somewhat vain of his face—his conversational powers; was egotistical dandified; and ambitious. He sought to shine, and had no idea of hiding his light under a bushel.

"The return of the volunteers has compelled Gen. Scott to halt this side of or at Puebla. It appears to be believed at the War Department that he has no intention of moving from there for several weeks from the date of the last advices from his camp. It would be perfectly easy for him to enter the capital with his present force, but if he should do so he would be in the halls of the Montezumas" might be like that entertainment spoken of in our popular, unwritten Western ballad of 'Walk Jaw Bone,' to which you might be admitted for a bit, but where they asked three for coming out. In fewer words, Gen. Scott, with his present small army, could capture and occupy the city with much less difficulty than he would find in leaving it.

A story is told of a private of the 2d Illinois regiment, who in the late battle at Buena Vista, having heard the bullets whistle around his head about enough to satisfy him, took the first opportunity that offered, to bamos to town. After a day or two concluding the fight may safely be considered at an end, he ventured back to his company. Being nearly starved, he immediately went to his mess and commenced fumbling for something to eat. His messmates looked at him surprised—suggested that he was making himself very familiar—and wanted to know who he was. Surprised in turn, he told them his name, and that he was a messmate of theirs; but they had never heard of the name before—had never seen him. He ran to the Captain; but he, too, recollected no such man, but called the Orderly, who, however, was unanble to find his name on the roll. They finally persuaded the poor fellow that he must belong to some other 2d regiment!

Celebrated Vegetable Medicines.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF HEALTH.

An excellent medicine, prepared and sold only by me or my authorized agents. It is acknowledged to be peculiarly efficacious, in all inward wastings, loss of appetite, indigestion, depression of the spirits, trembling or shaking of the hands or limbs, shortness of the breath, consumptive habits; it thins the blood, eases the most violent pains of the head or stomach, and promotes gentle respiration. By the nobility and gentry, it is esteemed as being pleasant to the taste and smell, gently astringing the fibres of the stomach, and giving that proper tensity which a good digestion requires. Nothing can be more adapted to nourish the constitution, after a nocturnal debauch with wine and is highly esteemed for invigorating the nervous system and acting as a gentle restorative on debilitated constitutions, arising from billous complaints contracted in hot or cold climates. Those who have the care and education of females, or are of sedentary habits, should never be without the cordial balm of health, which removes diseases of the head, invigorates and improves the mind, and quickens the imagination. And it is recommended to the weak, the relaxed and debilitated as a speedy restorative; also in consumptions, spitings of blood, or loss of blood, pain in the breast and side, inward weakness or loss of flesh, also in dyspepsias. It is valuable in diseases attended with such symptoms as difficulty of breathing, sense of cold, as if water was poured on the patient. flying pains in the arms, limbs, back and belly, like the gravel; the pulse variable, sometimes slow, others quick, frequent sighing, and sometimes a sense of suffocation, as from a ball or lump, alternative fits of hunger, the stomach improperly digestion, eyes sunk in the head. The value of this medicine is daily demonstrated, in removing the most dangerous effects of nervous debility, and nothing has given it greater fame than its success on those complaints which take a deep root on the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind; it is also good for the whooping cough. I have never used this valuable medicine in my practice without success, in the diseases mentioned.—Price, $2,00 per Bottle.

THE ANTI-IMPEGINIS.

For the cure of the scurvy, scrofula, leprosy, weak eyes, bilious pleurisies, liver complaints, gleet, or in women, the whites or schirous, or bearing down in the womb, pieces of the throat, and all diseases originating from an impure state of the blood. These admirable drops strengthen the constitution, purify the blood, and promote the circulation of the fluids to affect which is evidently the work of time and perseverence in the use of medicines adapted to those salutary purposes. Disorders of the blood are generally many years in acquiring that strength which renders them almost insupportable; in these cases, it is found therefore be reasonably expected, that a single bottle of any medicine will operate like a charm, and change the whole system so long impregnated with corrupt matter; neither should patients be disheartened, if after taking one bottle they should find themselves, in their own apprehensions, rather worse; it is a predicament frequently caused by the moving of malignant matter, and is in fact a very favorable symptom. These drops are gradual, gentle, and almost imperceptible in their operation, sweetening the blood, stimulating it, and giving strength to the nerves, relaxing and invigorating both body and mind. To remove those hard schirrous and often indolent tumors that effect the glands of the neck, under the chin, arm pits, groins, hands, arms and wrists, the most obstinate symptoms of the king's evil, struma or scrofula, the whole materia medica has been tried with very little success, and the unhappy sufferer left to drag on a life of misery, but when the anti-impegin is would restore to health and vigor, if recourse was had to it, though reduced to crawl upon the crutches. The directions given with each bottle are plain, and its operation attended with little or no trouble, as no further precaution is necessary than such as is taken usually to prevent it. It is well established as a fact, an impure scrofulous taint will remain in the habit for years undiscovered, and will invade the noblest organs of the human frame before the patient can be aware of his danger. The anti-impegin strikes at the root, and not at the branches, and with peculiar advantage, affects the human body. It is a sure and speedy cure for violent coughs, or inflammations on the lungs or livers attended with spitting of blood, or violent pains in the side. Diets will be fresh, as chicken, squirrel, veal, lamb, soft pies, custards, puddings, soups, milk, tea, coffee, chocolate, rice and sago, and Iceland moss, which can be had at the drug shop, made into tea, or young mullen roots, not gone to seed, bruised fine and made into strong tea, beach or sycamore bark, an equal quantity of each, made into tea, or fresh water, powered and slippery elm, or the inside bark of yellow poplar, and wild cherry, an equal quantity of each, made into a tea, or ten of bruised rattle root. Either of these used in place of water.—Price $2,00 per Bottle.

Patent Specific,

A PREVENTATIVE AND A CURE FOR THE CHOLERA.

Prepared solely from vegetable matter.

The dose for a grown person will be one large tea-spoon-full. If the patient should be taken very violently, the dose may be enlarged to two tea-spoons-full, and repeated every ten, fifteen or twenty minutes, until the body becomes in a hot perspiration of heat. Immediately at the first attack, there will be bricks applied to the soles of the feet and knees, as warm as it can be well borne, and red onions roasted and immediately applied to the pit of the stomach and under the shoulders, as warm as they can well be borne, and sage, pennyroyal, peppermint, or spearmint teas—either of those drank frequently as warm as it can be borne, until the body becomes in a hot perspiration of heat and if the complaint should be very violent, and the patient far spent, there will be two ounces of red garden pepper stewed in Cogniac French Brandy or Alcohol by cutting it fine, and the stomach, breast and bowels will be frequently rubbed with the same. After the patient feels relief and the complaint abates, it will then be taken three or four times through the course of the day, until the stomach and body gains its usual strength. Children from three to nine months old may take one third or the half of a tea-spoon-full at a dose, and repeated in the same manner, or just as often as the child is able to bear it. From one to three years old, may be from one half to three parts of a ten-spoon-full given at a dose and repeated in the same manner. From three years old up to ten, the dose may be enlarged a little according to ages—children from three months to four years, the dose may be mixed with the same quantity of fresh water; the phial must be shook every time before taking. Besides the Cholera, this medicine is good for the phthisic, croup or bold hives, bad colds, hoarseness, spasms, cramps in the breast or stomach, chol ics, violent pleurisies, pains in the small of the back and weakness. The above medicine is made and sold by me only, or my authorized agents Price from $1 to $2 per bottle.

The Eloy.

This medicine is for the cure of consumptions, liver diseases, breast complaints, sunpains, pleurisy, ulcers on the legs, white swellings, or any other outward gatherings, quinsy, dyspepsia, tetter worm, swellings, violent headaches arising from the derangement of female diseases which are caused by colds, rheumatic or nervous diseases, gout, weak eyes, small worm or tape worm, ulcers of the throat or nose, violent pains of the limbs, scrofula, fungus, fits, bad cough or pain in the breast of long duration, inflammatory rheumatism, fevers, shaking agues, inflammations, mortification, inflammation of the lungs, palpitation of the heart and nervousness.

This medicine is a sure remedy for the deleterious effects of mercury or calomel, on systems broken down by the unskillful treatment of physicians. This medicine is free from juice of plants, and may be given to the youngest infants with safety, and repeated as above mentioned.

Price from $1 to $5,00 per Bottle, which will be sold only by me or my authorized agents.

It will also contain the usual amount of Literary and Miscellaneous matter to be found in papers of its class.

The subject of facilitiing intercourse between the City and surrounding country, so important to the prosperity of both, will receive such attention as may be necessary to place it properly before those most interested in the result.

We shall foster and encourage, by all the means in our power, the Manufacturing and Mechanical interest, from a conviction that no town or country can prosper greatly, whose citizens neglect to give to their surplus products all the value which reproductive industry can bestow, before making them the subject of her commerce.

So soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, we intend to publish, for the benefit of our Farmers, such information upon the subject of their noble pursuit, as experience and the application of the principles of science have developed, or may hereafter make known.

In short, we will aid, to the utmost of our power, by all legitimate means, in bringing into action the springs of prosperity, upon which the happiness of those most interested in our labors depends.

NEW SERIES OF THE Congressional Globe and Appendix.

CONGRESS, at its last session, through the Joint Library Committee of the two Houses, having authorized a large subscription for the Congressional Globe and Appendix, and the Senate, by resolution, having directed the mode of preparing the reports of its proceedings, and authorized the Secretary of the Senate to contract with the undersigned, stipulating that the reports, when written out, shall be subject to the revision of the speakers—the Congressional Globe and Appendix is now offered to the public, not only as an authentic, but as an official report of the proceedings of Congress, made under the eye, and published by authority of the body.

The undersigned originated the mode of journalizing the proceedings of Congress, which, thus adopted, is to be perfected with the aid and under the supervision of Congress. Their publication was the first and only one that gave each successive step in every measure in both branches of Congress; a brief of all the debates; every important vote, and an Appendix, including at full length all the revised speeches delivered during the session.

The work, as it is now to be conducted by them, will be found a most perfect political history. The senators from the States, and the representatives from every section of the Union, bring with them into Congress a knowledge of the feelings, sentiments, and interests of their constituencies. Public opinion and the public information, as it exists among those they represent, are embodied by them; and, in the crucible of Congress, the wisdom of our times is brought to the test, and is there concentrated, in directing the political movements of the entire country. The impulses thus given through Congress from every quarter, react upon the nation as a whole, and all its component parts are made to move in co-operation. The press cannot be more usefully employed than in condensing and again spreading abroad the intelligence of our free country, tending to such happy results by our almost miraculously adjusted State and National Institutions.

Having identified ourselves with the plan of advancing the usefulness of Congress by publishing full and impartial reports, and having a large mass of the Congressional Globe and Appendix, issued during the last twelve years, which would be impaired in value to us and utility to to the public if the work were discontinued, we have a double motive to prompt us to extend it through a new series. We are resolved, if possible, to give it permanence, and to hand it down to successors as a standard work, worthy of being maintained and improved. We shall enter upon our new undertaking without being distracted or burdened by any nauseous labors of the press; and, thus unencumbered, shall hope to make the new series a step in advance of the former in all points of execution. With a view to accomplish this, we shall be (one other exception) in attendance on Congress.

The reports will not be affected by our party bias. We believe every Congressman will bear witness that our reports are full and fair.

The Congressional Globe is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, and printed on superfine double royal paper, with small type, (brevier or nonpareil,) in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages. The speeches of the members in this first form are condensed, the full report of the prepared speeches being reserved for the Appendix. All resolutions, motions, and other proceedings are given in the form of the Journals, with the yeas and nays on every important question.

The Appendix is made up of the President's Annual Message, the Reports of the principal officers of the Government that accompany it, and all Speeches of members of Congress, written out or revised by themselves. It is printed in the same form as the Congressional Globe, and usually makes about the same number of pages during the session.

During the first month or six weeks of the session there is rarely more business done than will make two numbers a week—one of the Congressional Globe and one of the Appendix; but during the remainder of the session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore we calculate that the Congressional Globe and Appendix together will make near 1,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type, (brevier and nonpareil.) We furnish complete indexes to both at the end of a session.

We have on hand the Congressional Globe and Appendix for the last fifteen sessions of Congress, making together fifteen large royal quarto volumes, which we will sell, unbound, for $41; or bound, with Russia backs and corners, for $56. Those who want the back volumes should apply for them immediately, as they are in demand. Congress subscribed for 341 complete sets during the last two sessions. The proceedings of Congress for the last nine years cannot be procured from any other source, Gales & Seaton having stopped printing their Register of Debates in 1837.

We shall endeavor to print a sufficient number of surplus copies to supply all that may be miscarried or lost in the mails, but subscribers should be very particular to file their papers carefully, for fear that we should not be able to supply all the lost numbers.

TERMS:

For one copy of the Congressional Globe $1
For one copy of the Appendix 1
For six copies of either or part of both 5

The money may be remitted by mail at our risk. The safest and best way to remit it is, to pay the amount to the Postmaster where you reside, and take from him a receipt according to the following form:

POST OFFICE, ——, 184 .

"Received from A B ——dollars ——cents for the Globe, from which I have deducted one per cent, and charged myself, in my account with the General Post Office, with the balance. The postmaster of Washington City will pay that balance to Blair & Rives, or to their order on the back of this receipt. A B, P. M."

The rules of the General Post Office Department authorize such receipts to be given and paid here when the amount does not exceed 10 dollars. When it exceeds 10 dollars, it is best to remit as much as payable in bank notes, and the postmaster's receipt for the balance. The postmasters receipt should be sent directed to us, and not to the postmaster of this city, as some are in the habit of doing.

Proprietors of newspapers who publish this prospectus, and send us one copy of the paper containing it, marked around with a pen, to attract our attention to it, shall have their names put on our books for one copy of the Congressional Globe and Appendix during the session.

Our prices for these papers are so low that we cannot afford to credit them out; therefore no person need consume his time in writing for them unless he sends the money.

At the commencement of this session, expecting that the debates would be very useful and interesting, (and they have come up to our expectations,) we printed several thousand surplus copies of both the Congressional Globe and Appendix, for the purpose of supplying all persons who might subscribe during the session with complete copies of either or both. We will be able to furnish the back numbers to all who subscribe before the 4th of next March.
