The Ride to the Fair.

BY MOTTE HALL.

Let them talk of the bliss of a chariot,
With four prancing horses before,
With a liveried coachman to drive it,
And a lackey to open the door;
The soft yielding down of its cushions
May more and enjoyment afford,
But, for fun and for frolic, there's nothing
Like a rough, wholesome ride in the cart.

Many carries me back to that morning
When I first went to the fair of Kentucky,
How funny to see the fair driver,
When standing the creature by go.
With "Get up, sweet donkey, good fellow,
You'll carry us safely, I know."

Through the solemn old woods we slow wandered
Lin-ding with the sentiment trees,
And heard the low musical breathings
Of leaves played upon by the breeze;
We grew as we went the Lord's fit creed music,
A shade seemed to fall on the heart,
And we first became a sentimental,
While riding about in the cart.

Tom-my pulled cowslils in the hall-room,
Which gently sinks in its prize,
Where dwelt and cent-mpt, like twin-sisters,
Cathedrals, are seen and by size;
When the bobbin of silver and satin
Covers the deep rankling dart;
When bright eyes, like jewels, are flashing,
But no eye can see the grief-shaded heart.

Tell me not in the proud halls of fashion
That gayety only is found,
That the pulse's the measure of pleasure,
And love's bliss in the waltz's go round;
I would freely give up my enjoyment
The waltz or quadrille for a day,
For a bright, sunny heaven above me,
And a ride through the woods in a cart.

When they talk of the bliss of a chariot,
With four horses prancing before,
I will think of that quiet old donkey,
Whose pace, though so low, was so sure;
When they talk of the down-y silk cushions,
That cannot happiness seem to impart,
Remembrance will point to the morning
When we took a rough ride in the cart.

A Scene in the New York and Erie Railroad Office—Don't Judge by Appearances.

The New York Tribune of Saturday thus relates an incident that occurred in the office of the New York and Erie Railroad. It says.

"An old man enters the office—in age apparently verging on threescore. His clothes are of coarse texture, ventilated in some places, and rather dingy with dust, his head, with its long face, the lower part of which is ornamented with a grizzly gray beard, has an humble appearance, and his dull eyes have an imploring expression; he has a folded paper in his hand, and, advancing to the desk of the first clerk, he extends it.

"Clerk—Go away, sir; I haven't anything for you.

"Old Man—(Brightening up with a look of surprise)—But, sir—

"Clerk—No buts about it, sir; I tell you I have nothing for you. Go out.

"The old man, with a mingled look of surprise and indignation, passes on to the desk of another clerk and offers the paper.

"Clerk—Don't interrupt me, sir; get out of the office; I give nothing to beggars.

"The truth begins to reveal itself to the old man's understanding; his last word has all the pride the force of his youth; his face glows and his Ayse flash with indignation; he is about to retort sharply upon the man who called him a beggar, when a third party interferes, and directs him to the Cashier. No wonder the old man sends the papers. The Cashier unfolds them, and finds, instead of begging certificates, New York and Erie Railroad Income Bonds to the amount of ten thousand dollars! Cashier looks surprised; the old man demands his money—clerk No. 1 asks if he is an idiot—clerk No. 2 turns red, purple and yellow by turns—the old man receives the money, and makes a sway exit, muttering about counter-jumpers and boundary-lines.

"We see a Swedish Princess Among us" Office of Florence Journal (Mass.) has made a Bourbon case—in which the lately deceased keeper of Long Island Light plays the principal part, and is asserted to have been the son of Gustavus III, King of Sweden. We give the substantial facts of the statement of the Fireside:

"The story, as we get it—and we have no doubt of its substantial truth—is this: Twelve Capitain Spalding, who, as long known by our maritime folks as keeper of the Long Island Light in our harbor, on his death-bed, last summer, disclosed to his family that he was a natural son of Gustavus III, King of Sweden, and a younger brother of that remarkable knight-errant of a king, the late Gustavus IV. An unknown person, who had been seen at various times in regard him with great interest, and who was present at the time of his death, left in the next European steamer for Sweden. Within a short time, the only daughter of Capt. Boyd, a very intelligent and accomplished lady, now the wife of Abel T. Hayden, one of the pilots in our harbor, has been sent for from a high quarter in that country, and supplied with funds for the voyage, to be restored to the possession of property and titles belonging to her father, which were confiscated at his time, and his brother, Gustavus IV, was dethroned. Mr. Hayden and his wife, it is said, will take their departure for Sweden in a few days."

Important Law Suit among Pawnbrokers.

We understand that Barnum has commenced suit against Dr. Spalding for several thousand dollars damages, in consequence of the death of a giraffe on board the Finding Pocket, at New Orleans, some time since. Spalding, it seems, had hired the animal, with the privilege of buying; but in transferring it to the Plate notwithstanding every precaution was used to guard against all accidents or injury, he was accidentally drowned. Barnum claims the second it occurred in consequence of the negligence of Spalding, and the damages for the value, about $10,000. On the other hand, Spalding claims that every possible precaution and diligence were used, and as the animal was under the charge of the keeper appointed by Barnum, if there was any carelessness or negligence, it was through the carelessness of such keeper that the death of the animal occurred, and that Barnum is liable for the damage and loss, estimated at $20,000, suffered by Spalding. Both parties have the reputation of being rather shrewd in their way, and as both are well able to pay the lawyers we hope they will both obtain justice, and get the worth of the money they pay them.—Albany Argus.

A few days since a lady on Jamaica Pond, who is very expert on skates offered the privilege of a kiss to any one who could catch her. The chase was much more longer than she intended, for, when she darted off, dozens started in pursuit, and she was captured by a negro, who did not insist upon the forfeit.

A BOATSWAIN of the navy died at sea, and the surgeon of the ship testified that he was poisoned by eating fresh dolphin, which is known to be, in certain localities, or when in certain conditions, very poisonous. The widow applied for a pension, and the Secretary of the Navy he'd, that if fresh dolphin be a part of the regular ration of the navy, then, in that event, said boatswain did die of a disease contracted in the line of his duty, but if not, his widow has no claim.

THE IMPORTED SPANISH JACK,

MORO CASTLE,

IMPORTED into Kentucky in the Spring of 1853, by the Blue Grass County Importing Association, and decidedly the finest animal of his kind in America, is now in fine health and condition, and the season of his services offered for twelve months. He has made partial seasons only in the years '53 and '54, and has proven himself to be a sure foal getter, producing large, handsome and mares, never had a superior on this continent. His Jack colts from Jennets of his own blood that were imported with him, are greatly in advance of anything ever before seen by Kentucky breeders, and the introduction of this strain of mares cannot fail to mark an era in the breeding of this hitherto much neglected animal.

He will make his present season, which has commenced and will end November 1st, at the stable of H. W. Graves, ten miles from Paris on the road to Flat Rock, and will serve Jennets at Fifty Dollars to insure a living foal. He will also serve small Jennets under 13½ hands high, foal sire of native or common stock, at prices corresponding to their value as may be agreed upon by special contract. Grass grain, and grain fed at moderate prices. He will be shown in Paris at the March County Court, and in Mt. Sterling at the April County Court.

As an evidence of their sincerity in the belief, they now pledge themselves to sell at a price equal to market bill (wholesale or retail) without the addition of carriage; or any Philadelphia bill purchased within the last year, with the freight added, and cost of transportation, with the current rate of exchange added.

They invite the attention of country merchants, as well as of families, to their stock, and pledge themselves not to be undersold west of the mountains. They will warrant their goods and the packing, and hope, by strict attention to business, to receive their share of public patronage.

Maysville, Ky., Saturday Afternoon, February 24 1855

The Prisoners that escaped from the Jail in this place, on Thursday last, have all been apprehended except one, who is supposed to be now in Ohio. Two of them were apprehended by the Sheriff of Bracken, and the balance by the Sheriff of this county. The Sheriff of Bracken, we learn, had his prisoners in his house, when they made a second attempt to escape, and succeeded in getting out of the house, but he succeeded in recapturing them. The Sheriff of this county, we learn, had his prisoners in a room in his house, and they made a desperate effort to escape, but he succeeded in securing them. We have not been able to learn the particulars of the escape, or of the recapture, but we learn that the Sheriffs have shown great energy and zeal in the matter, and have succeeded in securing all but one of the prisoners.

Some time since, we gave an account of the robbery of a Mr. Ripley, of Ripley, of a large quantity of goods, which he had just received from the East, and had offered for sale on the day of the robbery. We then stated that the robbers had succeeded in disposing of the goods, and had left the country, but we did not then know that they had succeeded in disposing of the goods in this city, and that they had left the country from this place. We now learn that two of the men who had been suspected of the robbery, and who had been arrested in Ripley, and had escaped from the Ripley Jail, did actually make their way to this place, and offered the goods for sale in this city, and that they left the country from this place. We learn that they made their way to Cincinnati, and there they disposed of the balance of the goods, and then left the country. We learn that they made a second attempt to rob Mr. Ripley, but failed. We learn that they made their way to Ohio, and there they were arrested, and were in jail when they made their escape from the Ripley Jail. We learn that they made their way to this place
