RE-OPENED.

THE Subscriber has just returned from the Eastern cities with a large and carefully selected stock of fine Watches, Jewelry, Silver-Ware and Fancy Goods, to which he respectfully invites public attention.

Gold and Silver Lever Watches, by Tobias Johnson, Robinson and other approved makers; gold Guard, Vest and Fob chains, Seals and Keys; Breast-pins; Shirt and Sleeve buttons; gold and silver Pencils, Diamond Pointed Pens, by approved makers, in Gold and Silver holders. All the late styles of Lady's Breastpins, Coral, Cameo, Lava and Stone; together with Necklaces and Bracelets to match; Ear Rings of different styles; Silver, Pearl and Fancy Card Cases; Gold Miniature Lockets and Medalions; Diamond, Ruby, Emerald, Oriental, Opal and Turquois Finger-Rings; Gold and Silver Thimbles; Silver and Gilt Bequet Holders; Silver Combs and other Head Ornaments; fine Pearl and Ivory Fans; Gold and Silver Spectacles, also the celebrated Perfocal Spectacle Glasses; Coral and Steel Beads; purse mountings, Fruit knives, &c.

To my friends and the public generally, who have so liberally patronized and sustained me, I return my sincere thanks, and hope by promptness and close application to business, to merit a continuance of favors.

In order more effectually to provide against a second robbery, I have had my store made more secure, and have had manufactured a large fire proof and thief-proof IRON SAFE in which I deposit at night all customer's watches. J. B. BOYD.

☞ Watches and Jewelry carefully cleaned and repaired, and warranted to give satisfaction.

FOREIGN PERIODICALS!

REPUBLICATION OF

The London Quarterly Review,
The Edinburgh Review,
The Foreign Quarterly Review,
The Westminster Review,
Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine.

THE above Periodicals are reprinted in N. York immediately on their arrival by the British steamer, on a beautiful clear type, on fine white paper, and are faithful copies of the originals—BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE being an exact fac simile of the Edinburgh edition.

The wide-spread fame of these splendid periodicals renders it needless to say much in their praise. As literary organs, they stand far in advance of any works of similar stamp now published, while the political complexion of each is marked by a dignity, candor and forbearance not often found in works of a party character.

They embrace the views of the three great parties in England—Whig, Tory, and Radical. — "Blackwood" and the "London Quarterly" are Tory; the "Edinburgh Review," Whig; and the Westminster," Radical. The "Foreign Quarterly, is purely literary, being devoted principally to criticisms on Continental Works.

The price of the Re-prints are less than one-third of the foreign copies, and while they are equally well got up, they afford all that advantage to the American over the English reader.

TERMS.—Payment to be made in Advance.

For any 1 copy of the 4 Reviews,	$3,00	pr annum
For any two,	5,00	"
For any three,	7,00	"
For all four of the Reviews,	8,00	"
For Blackwood's Magazine,	3,00	"
For Blackwood & the 4 Reviews.	10,00	"

CLUBBING.

Four copies of any or all of the above works will be sent to one address on payment of the regular subscription for three—the fourth copy being gratis.

☞ Remittances and communications must be made in all cases without expense to the publishers. The former may always be done through a post-master by handing him the amount to be remitted, taking his receipt and forwarding the receipt by mail, post-paid; or the money may be enclosed in a letter, post-paid, directed to the publishers.

N. B.—The postage on all these periodicals is reduced by the late post-Office law, to about one third the former rates, making a very important saving in the expense to mail subscribers.

AGUE AND FEVER.

FLETCHER'S

CELEBRATED IMPERIAL

AGUE AND FEVER OR TONIC PILLS.

THE proprietors of this invaluable remedy for Ague and Fever or Intermittent Fever, deem it unnecessary to enter into a long dissertation, relative to the disease for the radical cure of which, the remedy now offered stands unrivalled. The universal prevalence of the Ague and Fever, and Intermittent Fever, throughout most of the states of the Union, and the thousands who annually suffer from it, unhappily render it so well known, that to dilate on its symptoms or pathology, seems wholly unnecessary. It may, however, with propriety be observed, that the neglect to cure what is too often called "only the Ague and Fever;" often leads to diseases more fatal in their nature—among which may be classed, diseases of the Liver and enlargement of the Spleen, commonly called Ague Cake, which in too many cases proves fatal.

Thousands of certificates might be published in reference to the efficacy of the Pills now offered to the public, which the proprietors deem unnecessary to publish. Suffice it to say, they have never been known to fail in a single instance. ONE BOX, when taken according to directions, is warranted to cure any case of Ague and Fever, or Intermittent Fever. The ingredients being PURELY VEGETABLE, and entirely free from any deleterious substance, they are confidently recommended as the safest, as well as the most efficacious article ever offered to the Public! The form in which these Pills are put up, (small tin boxes,) renders them more convenient than any other, as a man can carry them in his vest pocket without the slightest inconvenience.

"NE PLUS ULTRA" VEGETABLE COMPOUND

CATHARTIC AND DEOBSTRUENT PILLS.

These Pills, now for the first time offered to the Public, have been used in private practice upwards of Forty Years, by a celebrated Physician, formerly a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of London and Edinburg, and Licentiate of Dublin University.

The proprietors deem it unnecessary to enter into any lengthened discussion as to the merits of these Pills—neither will they say, that they "will cure all the ills that human flesh is heir to"—but they lay claim to one great fact, and that is this; they are the very best pills ever invented, not merely as a simple CATHARTIC, as their properties are various. They are a Compound Cathartic, and Deobstruent Pill. They cleanse the Stomach and Bowels without pain or griping; they act specifically upon the Liver and Kidneys, and as a Diuretic, they cause an increased discharge of Urine—restoring a healthful and proper action to the URINARY ORGANS. For monthly complaints, to which Females are liable, they will be found most efficacious in removing obstructions and restoring them to perfect health. It is perhaps necessary to add, that if the STOMACH and BOWELS are kept in a proper state, no fears should be entertained in reference to the welfare of the body.

We need only say to those who have tried all other Pills, of whatever name, to give the "Ne Plus Ultra's," one trial, and we feel perfectly confident, that they will satisfy all that they are THE PILLS! unequalled as well as unapproachable!!

February, 00, '47.

NAUTILUS (Mutual Life) INSURANCE COMPANY, 58 WALL STREET, NEW YORK.—After mature deliberation, the Trustees have become convinced, and the experience of old established companies fully warrants the conclusion, that the advantages of Life Insurance on the Mutual plan, may be extended and diffused with great convenience to a large class of contributors, and with equal security to all the assured, by requiring no greater amount of the premium to be paid in cash than the company will require to meet its engagements with promptitude and fidelity.

It has accordingly been determined that in all cases where the annual premium shall amount to $50, and 60 per cent thereof shall have been paid in cash, an approved note may be given for the remaining 40 per cent, payable twelve months after date, bearing six per cent interest. The interest to be paid annually, but the principal not to be called in unless the exigencies of the company require it, giving sixty days notice, and then only by assessments pro rata to the extent that may be required to meet the engagements of the company.

It is confidently anticipated that a system, the operation of which is so fair and equitable, so well calculated to place the benefits and blessings of Life Insurance within the reach of all, and at the same time enable each contributor to share equally and fully not only in its beneficent security, but also in its profits of accumulation, will meet, as it is believed to deserve the favor and confidence of the public.

The particular advantages offered by this company are:

1. A guarantee capital.
2. An annual participation in the profits.
3. No individual responsibility beyond the amount of premium.
4. Those who insure for a less period than life, participate equally in the annual profits of the company.

The Nautilus company confines its business exclusively to insurance on Lives, and all Insurance appertaining to Life.

GENERAL ZACHARY TAYLOR.

He stands among his warrior men,
With foes beleaguered round
With each a hasty council holds,
"We must retreat our ground!"
'Tis thus the generals cries reply,
Reluctant and despondingly.

Calm is the tone of him who now
The fate of all controls—
"We march! advance toward the fort!
Ye have the nerve, the souls!
In flight is death: Men we will die
Beneath you bird of liberty!"

Enough. Each warrior bows his head,
That master will has spoken.
The lines are charged—disordered—fled!
The leaguring hosts are broken.
The fort is reached—the four-fold foe,
As autumn leaves, bewildered go.

Again he stands at Monterey!
Yet weary miles at last
His gallant band have reached the mount,
Nerved by the glorious past.
Beyond them frowns the rugged steep,
Upon their arms the heroes sleep.

Each house a fort—each rough ascent
A barrier thrown by nature's hand,
Down from the horrid battlements!
In open field th' invading stand,
He speaks—they act! our eagle high,
Screams forth the shriek of victory.

Again—reduced—a noble few
Await th' uncertain shock.
Each pulse is calm, each heart is firm,
Firm as th' imbedded rock.
Well reck that few the approaching strife
Where one is matched with four for life!

Mad, as the raging tempest sweeps,
On dash their legions—on!
Th' unbroken lines repel the shock—
Death follows wide the gun.
Again their murderous legions near!
Again death checks their red career.

And now, combined—united—all
With shout, with lance they sight!
Loud peal the horrid notes of war—
Swept down, our eagles fly.
The day is lost—yet, list! a cheer!
"Ho! rally! charge! our chief is near!"

The tide is turned—the flowing gore
Of fleeing foremen streams around.
Dread, dread, the mutt'rous cries! nor rear
That MASTER SPIRIT holds the ground!
His presence as a spell hath wrought
The triumph which such valor bought.

Untouched in death the hostile lie!
No plundering hand profanes
The relics of the dead strewn there
Thick o'er the sanguine plains.
Th' imploring wounded claim a care—
Look in their midst—our chief is there!

Man of the iron hand and will!
Man of the Christian heart!
The conquering hosts are gathering still,
Bound with thee, ne'er to part.
From city full, from prairie wide,
Comes sweeping on thy fame's proud tide.

Man of the age—in vain resist
The envious few thy glorious way!
Bright shall the blessed sunlight gild
Thy destined, honored future day,
The nation claims thee, Hero true!
Her civic wreath awaits thy brow.

NEW ALBANY, May 11, 1847. B.

American Prisoners in Mexico.

Letter from Major Gaines—The Encarnacion Prisoners—Mexican Gratitude—Route from Saltillo to Mexico, &c.

The following, which we copy from the New Orleans Picayune of the 13th inst., will be read with much interest:

When Gen. La Vega left New Orleans, where he had been treated rather as the guest of the city than the captive of our arms, he expressed the hope that at some future time he might be able to requite the hospitality so liberally lavished upon him He brought with him from the field of battle a letter of credit from General Taylor, whose sympathies for a fallen foe impelled him to arm him against the additional calamity of want in a strange land, whilst here he was feasted with a prodigality that has not been shown any of our own officers returning from these wars. He was scarce allowed to feel the durance of military parole; but was free to go where he listed throughout the land. When about to return to Mexico he gave public thanks for the consideration that was shown him, and all of us believed that he would remember their kind offices for the good of such Americans as might fall into the hands of the enemy.

These expectations have not been fulfilled. He has forgotten what it behooved a soldier to remember, and has been unmindful of obligation when occasion offered for its redemption. We have before us a letter from Major Gaines, dated the 3d of April, in the donjon keep of the castle of Santiago, where he and his comrades had been immured since the 27th of February, without being allowed to breathe the free air of heaven. During a portion of this time, Gen. La Vega was military commandant of the city of Mexico; and he not only did not extend them the privileges of a parole which is seldom denied a prisoner of war, but he took no heed of their distress so nor gave a thought to their comfort. This is Mexican gratitude. Our Generals have permitted armies, officers and men to go their ways upon parole, whilst such of our soldiers as have fallen into their hands are kept in iron cages. Midshipman Rodgers has been hurried from prison to prison in advance of our army—this is what is reported of him; but we shall be glad to know that he has not been hurried to a prison house from which there is no release whilst time lasts.—When Gen. La Vega was last heard from, though again a prisoner, he was disporting himself in Vera Cruz like any other man. Gen. Taylor arranged for the exchange of Gaines, Borland, Clay and others. Why are they not given up! And why are not hostages taken for their safe delivery!

We have been betrayed into these remarks from reflections which the date of the letter of Major Gaines suggested. It is addressed to his brother in this place and is much occupied with private matters. We make such extracts as may be of public interest:

CASTLE OF SANTIAGO,
City of Mexico, April 3.

Dear Brother:—I have written you frequently since I became a prisoner of war. My former letter related to business almost exclusively. * * * I shall now speak a little of Mexico and Mexicans.

From Saltillo to Agua Nueva is eight leagues, and here there is fine water. Thence to San Juan de Venago, one hundred and fifty miles, there is no water, except in tanks and wells. The tanks are built of earth and cement and are filled in the wet season; but may be easily emptied by opening the bottoms. The wells can be very readily ruined by throwing in dead animals. Hence the almost impossibility of an invading army marching through the country,—is also very unproductive on account of the scarcity of water, it being impossible to irrigate to any extent from tanks and wells, and agriculture cannot be prosecuted without copious irrigations in consequence of the length of the droughts.

From San Juan de Venegas to Matchuala is twentyfour miles. This town is situated in a mining district and contains sixteen thousand inhabitants. From this place to San Luis Potosi there is a tolerably good supply of water. The country presents a beautiful level plain, bounded by rugged barren mountains. The people are poor, miserable, stupid. The country is going to decay, evidences of which are seen at every step. This has been the case from the time of the revolution—some, indeed, say, from as far back as the invasion of Cortez.

San Luis Potosi is a beautiful town with some sixty thousand people. We arrived there on the 8th of February and left the 15th. We passed a number of small towns containing from three to eight thousand people, and arrived at Quaretaro on 21st.—This city I had never heard of before. It is the handsomest I have seen and its reported population varied from thirty to seventy thousand souls. The buildings are superb, and the splendid, which supplies the city with water, is indeed magnificent.

We reached the vicinity of this place, (Mexico) on the 27th, when our conductors, learning that the civil war had broken out, detained us at a point three leagues off for a day's halt—to preserve us from the mob as they said, but as we found out, to save themselves, as, not knowing which party was uppermost, they did not know to which they belonged. We reached the castle after midnight and were smuggled into it with great privacy. A few moments after we entered, an alarm was raised by the discharge of four guns in rapid succession.—We heard some one say four men were killed and ten had escaped. We now ascertained that we were lodged in a prison containing two hundred convicted felons. The escape made it necessary to change there cells, and they were brought and passed through the yard where we were, chained two and two, and placed in a solo dungeon. The fight was yet raging in the city, and I shall never forget my entree into the city of the Aztecs.

The civil war lasted till about the 20th ult., when the arrival of Santa Anna put an end to it. Whether there were many killed during the twenty days' fight I do not know; but it is said that a great many old women, cats and dogs were slain. The insurrection was a god-send to Santa Anna, as it furnished him a small job after his dreadful defeat at Buena Vista. He left here yesterday with shattered fragments of his army, pretending that he would immolate himself, if need be, between this and Vera Cruz should Gen. Scott attempt to march upon the capital.

This nation, so far as Government is concerned, may be said to be annihilated.—They are without an army, money, or men capable of ruling. Santa Anna himself is said to be superior to his countrymen only in knowledge of the Mexicans character and his ability in humbugging them. Whether a peace would follow the capture of this city is extremely uncertain; amongst our friends here the opinion is it will not.

Gen. Scott having taken many prisiners at Vera Crvz we are in daily expectation of being exchanged, in which case we will rejoin the army and probably return to the United States as soon as we would had we never been captured. [Santa Anna appears as forgetful as his friend La Vega, as it seems to have escaped his memory that he had engaged with Gen. Taylor for the release of those prisoners.—EDS.]

I have written you several letters since my captivity.

* * * Although in the city of Mexico I have seen but little of it—and that little through the iron gratings of the castle of Santiago. Whether we shall be indulged with a view of it after our release I know not. I trust we shall. Your affectionate brother, JOHN P. GAINES.

For Oregon and California.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, writing from St. Joseph, under date of May 7th, says:

"The town is crowded with emigrants for Oregon, now crossing the Missouri river. Upwards of three hundred wagons have crossed at this place, and more are crossing daily. A company of one hundred wagons from Illinois will be here to-morrow. From present appearances, I should not be surprised if five hundred wagons crossed the Missouri at St. Joseph. A large number are also crossing at Iowa point. It is impossible, at this time, to make an estimate of the number that will cross there, and at the Crossings above. They are rendezvousing at the Iowa Mission, and will "take up their line of march" about the 15th of this month, when the entire company will leave. The emigrants from this place have been double what it was last year, and should it increase, in a very few years Oregon will be peopled.

A portion of the Mormons are making arrangements to leave this spring. You are aware that 300 went out as pioneers on the 18th of March last, from the encampment at the Bluffs. They are getting on well. They went prepared to put in a crop and will await the arrival of the main body in the fall. They are destined for California.

JOHN W. BEAR.—This somewhat noted stump speaker is now delivering Temperance Lectures, and taking Daguerreotype likenesses, in Hagerstown, Md. The Torch Light says, he is equally successful in depicting the features of Locofocoism, King Alcohol, or the human face.

From the Louisville Democrat.

Captain Gibson's Account of the Battle of Buena Vista.

We received this letter, printed in pamphlet form, at Lawrenceburgh, Ia. Captain G. is attached to the 3d regiment, Indiana volunteers, which distinguished itself in that glorious battle.

The letter of Capt. Gibson is well written and describes with great minuteness the movement of the different regiments during the two day's fight. We make the following extract from this letter, which marks with strongly the cool bravery of General Lane and those of his command at a moment of the deepest interest, and when, perhaps, the fate of the day hung upon the action of the moment. It was a deed worthy of the old guard of Napoleon, at the battle of Marengo:

"Seeing the enemy's cavalry filing out from their rear to charge us, and being in a bad position to receive cavalry, Col. Lane ordered us to retire by the right flank, and we fell back some three hundred yards to the edge of the ravine. Immediately on our left was a part of the 2nd Indiana regiment, and on the left of that the Mississippi riflemen. Our whole force was probably eight hundred men. Our regiment having come into position by the right flank, left our rear rank next to the enemy, and having no time to countermarch, we faced by the rear rank, throwing my company on the extreme right. The lancers were now advancing—behind them came the whole body of Mexican infantry in a column of Batallions. The charge was directed obliquely on our line and pointed on our extreme right. Seeing this, Col. Lane directed me to dress my company back from the line so as to present a square front to their advance. This was done when they were within about one hundred yards of our line. On they came, in most beautiful order, chanting a song, the breadth of their column just covering my company. Every sound was hushed along the line except the low tones of the officers cautioning their men to hold their fire till the word was given. At length Col. Lane's voice was heard "Ready" —so still was everything that you could hear the clicking of the gun locks from one end of the line to the other. "Right oblique, aim," and down came every musket—a moment of terrible suspense ensued—on came that gallant column, now within thirty yards of our line, and looking into the very muzzles of our muskets, still singing, their bright lances poised above their heads, and the leading column already rising in their stirrups for the onslaught. When the head of the charging column was within thirty feet of the line the order was given to fire, and so hastily followed the execution upon the command, that the last accents of the Colonel's voice were mingled with the roll of musketry. Down they went, men and horse together,—the head of the column disappeared as if by magic—the whole line extending back almost out of the range of musketry, were thrown into confusion—some receeding, some advancing. Brave men might be seen spurring their unwilling horses over the dead and dying where they lay in struggling masses, and vainly endeavoring to get the column once more in motion. Almost one fire fire died away on the left, and before I had believed it possible to rallied, it commenced again on our right, scattering at first like the first drops of a thunder shower, and then coming like a thunder bolt itself upon the devoted column. Human nature could stand it no longer, and they broke up the ravine at full speed, followed by our men shouting at them as long as they remained within musket range."

The Captain makes one or two cuts at the "regulars," which is in bad taste, and we would have wished so much of his otherwise unexceptionable description out of the pamphlet. It is not for a subaltern to know for what end and purpose a commanding General holds in reserve a portion of his force. Had the enemy renewed his attack on the 3rd day, this reserve, "kept for show," as the Captain says, would have been employed, doubtless, to good account.

Extracts from the American Star, an Army Newspaper printed at Jalapa Mexico.

ONE OF THEM.—There is scarcely an hour in the day that some of the natives are not with our quartermasters, urging payment for property destroyed or used by our troops. Whenever the claim presents anything like justice on its face it is invariably liquidated. A day or two since a Mexican proprietor entered the office and handed a bill for the use of fifty mules. After being interrogated through an interpreter, it was finally ascertained that the animals had been used in drawing a 32 pounder belonging to the Mexicans up the Cerro Gordo, which said piece had opened upon our troops and sent a perfect shower of grape and canister among them. The quartermaster informed the claimant that he was not authorized to settle up for the Mexican Government, but that when he was, he would pay such bills with pleasure.

JALAPA.—If there is any one place in Mexico that we deem superior to all else we've seen, combined, that place is Jalapa. It is the prettiest town, has the handsomest buildings, loveliest gardens and most delicious fruits of all others taken together; and what aids more than all this to the interest of the place is the fact that it seems to be quite a race distinct from those we have encountered elsewhere—possessing more ideas of refinement, more intelligence, more industry and more neatness. The women are decidedly pretty, and there is not a man who will say ought to the contrary and in their habits—we mean of course the "upper ten"—they approximate nearer to American refinement. Naught can be said of the men but what is to their advantage, and many a time, whilst passing up the principal street, we imagine ourself in some thriving Yankee city. Taking Jalapa, all in all, we are highly pleased with it and its people, and cannot conceive that there is any difference of opinion on that subject amongst us Americans.

A gentleman travelling through Roscommon met a woman on the road leading a donkey, on which was placed the dead body of her husband, while she conveyed a dead child in her arms, to the place of interment!

MUSTANG GRAY.

BY OLD "MEDICINE."

Dr. Chamberlain, of Cincinnati, Surgeon in the volunteer army, who is called 'old Medicine' by the boys, has written several instructive and amusing letters home to the Cincinnati Sunday News. We extract the following dated at CAMARGO, March 13, 1837.

I mentioned to you that a company of seventy-five Rangers, under the command of the celebrated Captain M. B. Gray, had just arrived at this place on their way to meet the enemy. They, though young in years are old in frontier warfare; a hardy robust, determined and reckless looking set of fellows, exactly suited to the kind of warfare we are engaged in. Capt. Gray is one of the most notorious Mexican fighters in Texas, and is more feared by the Mexicans than even Jack Hays, with whom he has been engaged in many a fight against them, as well as the Camanches. From his superior skill in capturing (stealing) Mexican horses, he has gained the nickname of 'Mustang Gray.' Having heard much of him in the army, and feeling a curiosity to see the 'real Daniel Boone' of Texas I accepted the invitation of Capt. B. to dine with him, where I learned 'Mustang' with half a dozen other officers were to be guests. I shall never forget the evening spent in listening to his own account of himself and some of his exploits. Gray in stature is six feet two or three inches, well proportioned weighing about two hundred or two hundred and ten pounds; in fact one of the most athletic looking men I ever met with and physically powerful enough to cope with six Mexicans at least. His men think themselves perfectly safe under his command, and would fear no force however numerous, to cope with them. I was speaking of himself and his exploits, Captain Gray was exceedingly modest and reserved. It required strong urging on the part of his friends, before he could be prevailed upon to relate to us the details of some of his adventures. He has been at various times a prisoner to the Mexicans, and assured us there is hardly a prison in the republic, the interior of whose walls he is not familiar with. On being urged to relate to us the 'best shot' he ever made, we got the following from him.

In 1838, whilst ranging along the Nueces with a company of ten men, spying the movements of the Mexicans, he got separated from his companions and came upon the trial of a large party of the enemy. He came in sight of them just before they encamped for the night, about twelve miles distant from the camp of his own party, and recognized among them a number of rancheros who had a considerable time before robbed him of a train of mules worth several thousand dollars. He kept out of their view until they encamped when he rode his horse up within five hundred yards of them and secured him in the chapparal. He was now at a loss whether to attack them single handed or return to his men and inform them of his discovery. If he did the latter he feared they might be gone before he could return, and he would then miss his opportunity of revenging the loss of his mules. Being loaded with a double barrel shot gun of the largest calibre, a cutlass, holsters, pistols and a brace of five shooters, he made up his mind to have a battle on his 'own hook.' Having loaded his gun charged with sixty buck shot, he advanced upon the party whilst partaking of their supper, and crawled undiscovered within fifty or sixty yards of them. Getting as many of them as possible in range, he discharged both barrels into them and then retreated rapidly to his horse under cover of the smoke. He instantly mounted, and continued unpursued his retreat to his own party. In the morning he made a visit with his comrades to the scene of slaughter, and found seven men killed and one wounded, his leg fractured, with nearly all his horses and mules, precisely as they had been secured when they encamped for the night. The Mexicans, the wounded man informed them, were so panic stricken at the suddenness and effect of the shot they vamosed into the chapparral leaving every thing behind them, and not daring to return. They supposed a whole volley had been fired into them.—This he considered the best shot he ever made. One more of his adventures and I am done with Mustang.

Some time subsequent to the 'great shot' he went again amongst the Mexicans on a trading expedition and made a handsome speculation—investing his grain in a train of mules, he started in company with six Mexicans to drive them into Texas where they where them quite valuable. Piled on the backs of his mules he had merchandise to the value of some hundreds of dollars. Passing near Mier, one of the Mexicans in his company, who had professed great friendship and affection for him, suddenly left him, went to the alcalde of Mier and informed him of the prize within his reach. A strong party was soon raised and followed after, and captured his whole train. He, with his Mexicans, being well mounted, escaped without a fight, considering the party too strong to risk one. Disliking very much to give up his property without an effort to recover it, and finding the party had given up pursuing them he resolved to hang about them until the party encamped for the night, and endeavor to regain possession of his property. He made his plans known to the five remaining Mexicans, all of whom had lost something and they promised to assist him. He had been with the Mexicans long enough to know their dread of an attack from the 'Indians,' and resolved as he termed it to 'play the Camanche on them.'

He saw them all snugly encamped around their fire and sound asleep; he besmeared himself all over with blue clay, and mounted his steed without a saddle, armed with a long sabre. He rode quietly into camp, when giving an Indian yell, he made a dash into their midst directly into the fire. His horse made a plunge and threw him into the midst of the coals on his back. The coals, sticking in the clay, burnt him severely and made him yell more furiously and dance a perfect Indian war dance. The Mexicans thinking the Camanche Indians were surely among them, stampeded to a man, and left, besides his own property, fifty good horses and three hundred and fifty dollars in specie in their trappings, and never stopped running until they reached Mier.

IRISH CHARACTER.—We do not feel tempted to imitate those "virtues" of conquest displayed by this neighbor of ours, Britannia. We can imagine we see under those royal vestments a black and murderous heart, calcerous as a volcanic coal, and treacherous as a waking Anaconda. We know that neither in man nor nation is virtue the necessary cause of good fortune.—Wealth and victory have in all ages been achieved by the unscrupulous, the disloyal, the cruel, and the abject. Before ambition found a globe theatre in this earth, the Poet sings how it had attempted in heaven to over reach the All-wise in wisdom, and the All-powerful in strength. Lucifer, whose brightness was as the morning star, dragged down from heaven, from under the very footstool, half the angelic host. In human history, Nimrod and Sesostris, Atilla and Timur, play parts as conspicuous, and no less important than Alexander, Cæsar or Hernando Cortez. No national character has been preserved by its finiments of conquest. When we talk of Grecian glory, we mean the glory of Solon and of Demosthenes, and not the glory of Alexander. When we speak of Roman virtue, we mean the virtue of the Gracchi, of Scippio, and of Brutus, not the virtue of Cæsar or Agustus. If Ireland were to use achieved independence for purposes of self-agrandisement and aggression, she should never be permitted to be independent. If she attempted to establish a character for subtlety, subserviency, or acquisitiveness, she would deserve to be thrown back into the dungeon whence she came.

In the early ages, when there were faith and brotherhood throughout all Christendom, before balances of power were invented to weigh liberty against expediency, or holy alliances to rob small states for the advantage of large one, Ireland had an European character. From the 6th to the 10th century of our era, Ireland was the Sun in the West of Christendom. Just as Arabia was celebrated for drugs and balsams, and Venice for riches and traffic, so Ireland was famous for her schools, her missionaries, and her itinerant teachers.

In the formation of an Irish national character we cannot lose sight of the fact that our country is divided into four provinces, and that, where all should be Irishmen, we are Connaughtmen, or Munstermen, or Ulstermen. The existence of provincial prejudices stand in our way. The North regards the South as unsocial; the South looks on the North as morose and musical. The West is affected to be despised in the East; and the citizens of Dublin, who would be prepared to defend all Ireland against foreigners, yet has a special stock of sneers and witticisms, &c. respecting Connought, with which he regales his friends and imbues his children. The poor reaper going over to England sets himself in a strange land once he enters Dublin, and is scoffed at in our streets by way of teaching him what he is to experience in Liverpool. This is crazy, insane—diabolical. Have we not enemies enough, that we should thus wage a civil war of reproaches and retorts upon each other?

Strength of will—perseverance in their aims—more of practical boldness—less of talk and puff—a mitigated reverence for rank—a detemination of self-defence against Lords or Laws, Kings or Constitutions, sects or Parties—are elements required for a national character. It is not intelligence, but resolution—patient, unfluctuating resolution—the people need. Political organization, without individual earnestness, is but "the shell of a blind nut." Imagination, common sense, and a love of truth, the Irish people do yet possess; but the continuity of purpose, the Italian energy, the Scottish habit, the English self-confidence, they have still to acquire.

Here is a trying time, indeed. Are there men in Ireland of a nature and temper fit to form a national characters—that is, to create and establish a true Irish Nationality? [Dublin Nation, April 3.

TRI-WEEKLY HERALD.

J. SPRIGG CHAMBERS, EDITOR.

Maysville, May 24. 1847.

The necessary absence of the Editor from the City, must account for the scarcity of editorial matter in to-day's paper.—Our news list, however, is uncommonly full and interesting.

☞ We are under obligations to our correspondent NEBUER for his repeated favors. We hope he will continue them.

☞ We invite attention to the advertisement of Mr. E. McMILLEN. We believe Mr. M. supplies a vacuum in the Mechanic Arts, long felt by this community. A close scrutiny of articles of his manufacture, will satisfy any one that he is a workman.—One word more. He who sells upon commission or on his own account, a tub or bucket imported from abroad, may make from 5c to 20c by the operation, and adds so much to his gains, but the home manufacturer creates by his industry and skill, a value, equal to the excess of the price of the manufactured article, over the cost of the material! which is added to the wealth of this community. This is the secret of the prosperity of manufacturing towns, and those who wish well to Maysville, must study to adopt the policy of supporting home manufactures.

Slip from the New Orleans Picayune.

We give place to the following note, addressed to us by the aid-de-camp of General La Vega, now a prisoner of war at large in this city, lest we should, by possibility, have done injustice to that officer. We believe none has done him. Upon the 27th of February he may have been third in command, but we are misinformed if he was not, some portion of the time, in a higher position. We have no desire to dispute what Lieut. Mejia asserts of his own knowledge; but that revolution must have been bloodier than the usual emeutes in Mexico to have hindered a great general from doing an act needful to his reputation as a soldier of lofty sensibilities.

Nor do we dispute what is said of Gen. La Vega's generosity to American captives, taken before and after the seige of Vera Cruz. We never knew before that American captives were in the way of his good offices—excepting Majors Gaines and Borland, and Capt. Clay and their companions, and these he utterly refused to succor in any manner. They appealed to him for aid and he refused even to reply. What he has done for others we know not.

It is now said that "Midshipman Rogers was found in an enemy's country at night, and with surveying instruments." What of it? He had on the undress uniform of a United States officer, and admitting the fact that he had surveying instruments with him, it only shows that he was making a reconnoissance; a duty clearly professional. That he was detained as a prisoner of war, no one objected. But to use him as a spy, and hurry him along from prison to prison whilst whole Mexican armies were released on parole, is a different matter—it challenges remark, and might justify the adoption of the severest measures.

"With regard to the treatment of Mexican officers in Mexico," whatever Lieut. Mejia may know of the conduct of the inhabitants towards them, we know that Majors Gaines and Borland and Capt. Clay and the remainder of the prisoners at Encarnacion were immured within the dungeon of Santiago with convicted felons and malefactors of low degree and kept there long after their release was arranged for by Gen. Taylor with Santa Anna; and they are yet there, so far as any one knows or has a right to suppose.

We were aware, at least were told, that Gen. La Vega never used the letter of credit furnished by Gen. Taylor to raise means upon it.

We have reason to believe that some of the officers taken prisoners by the Mexicans have met with humane treatment. We have heard so before. Nor have we any doubt what Gen. Mejia says: "one of the last acts he did for him (Gen. La Vega) was to write to the Governor of Puebla requesting the release of Midshipman Rodgers. He had not the power to order the release of this young gentleman, but his request was made in the strongest terms."

This is all true beyond question; but it must be remembered that when this last act was done Gen. La Vega was again a prisoner in the hands of the Americans, and have never heard of his doing anything for this "young gentleman" whilst he was free and in command of the Mexican army. When a prisoner, yes. He would write a whole folio now in behalf of Majors Gaines and Borland and the rest. But when a general in Mexico he could not for the life of him raise a hand for their relief, and turned a deaf ear to their entreaties—nay, he disdained to reply to their appeals to his generosity and gratitude.

But lest we do injustice to this General, who does so much when a prisoner, and so little when in power, we subjoin the note of his aid-de-camp:

NEW ORLEANS, May 14, 1847.

GENTLEMEN: In your paper of this morning you have done very great injustice to a brave man, and I ask you as a matter of sheer justice to publish the following statement of facts. Having been aid-de-camp to Gen. La Vega, a prisoner in the castle of San Juan de Ulloa, one of the last acts I did for him was to write to the Governor of Puebla requesting the release of Midshipman Rogers. He had not the power to order the release of this young gentleman, but his request was made in the strongest terms.

The article in this morning's Picayune, prefacing the letter from Major Gaines, in which you comment so severely upon Gen. La Vega's conduct, was, no doubt, written under the belief that it was in the General's power to serve the American prisoners in the castle of Santiago. You will, upon perusal of the following, be able to judge of General La Vega's powers and position.

On the 27th of February Gen. La Vega was third in command, not "military commandant in the city." The palace at the city of Mexico was besieged by the revolutionary party of the church and its adherents. I was with him and know that not one left the palace for many days who was not shot down by the populace. Three days before the arrival of Gen. Santa Anna, we left Mexico in great haste to oppose the Americans at the National Bridge, and the revolution was still active, so that we could hold no intercourse with the castle of Santiago, where Gen. Gaines was confined, it being within the enemy's lines.

On several occasions I have been an eye witness to Gen. La Vega's generosity to American prisoners taken from the piequets during and after the seige of Vera Cruz. I have frequently heard him express grateful feelings for kindness received in this country and a desire to reciprocate the same when circumstances would permit him.

Midshipman Rodgers was found in an enemy's country with surveying instruments at night. Take the opposite side, and would not the Americans have detained him?

With regard to the treatment of American officers in Mexico, I have to say I know, as a fact, that American officers have received from the inhabitants kind treatment and from the Government full pay. One of Gen. La Vega's aids carried the money to some officers taken at Matamoras. Immediately on the capture of the officers of the Truxton, they were asked what was their rank and what was their pay. The amount was paid to them at once and I appeal to them to state what was their treatment from the inhabitants.

The letter of credit given to Gen. La Vega by Gen. Taylor was never used by him except to show his friends at Mexico, as an evidence of Gen. Taylor's kindness and generosity.

I have the honor to remain, with due respect, your most obedient servant,

ENRIQUE MEJIA,
Aid-de-camp to Gen. La Vega.

CASTLE ST. JAGO, (City of Mexico,) March 24, 1847.

To His Excellency General Santa Anna:

SIR: The undersigned, officers in the army of the United States of America, respectfully state to your Excellency that they, together with their respective commands, consisting of seventy-one persons in all, became prisoners of war to the Mexican Republic at the Hacienda Encarnacion, on the 23d of January last. On that morning, before daylight, we found ourselves entirely surrounded by a large force—say three thousand men—and, about sunrise, a white flag approached us on one side, and a considerable force on another, we required that the troops should retire, precedent to our receiving the flag, which being complied with, the flag approached and a surrender demanded. We took one hour to determine whether we would entertain a proposition of the kind or not; at the expiration of the hour the flag returned, and was answered that we would hear a proposition, and were told that Gen. Minon would send a major to our camp, while one of our number of equal rank should repair to his headquarters and hear his offer. This being done, Major Borland entertained the officer sent in; whilst Maj. Gaines rode out to the General, had a conference of about one hour, with him, returned to the hacienda, and, in the presence of an interpreter on each side, stated the terms offered, which were accepted; and, between 11 and 12 o'clock, we surrendered as prisoners of war.

The terms were, that the General himself should receive the sword of our commander; that public property should be surrendered; and private property should be respected; and that the best treatment, in every particular, known amongst civilized nations to prisoners of war should be ours.

The General, when asked to reduce these terms to writing, gave us the most positive assurances that his word of honor was worth more than three or four signatures, and that unless his agreement was fully carried out, he wood abandon the service of his country. On our journey to this city, we had the gratification to meet your Excellency, and, after stating to you the terms of our capitulation, received the pleasing assurance that they should be complied with.

The object of this note is, to complain to the Head of the Mexican Republic, that so far from the terms of our capitulation having been complied with, we have been frequently subjected to the most previous deprivations, and we have refrained from making our protest hitherto, in consequence of the unhappy dissensions said to exist in the capital—which, being now fortunately adjusted, as we are informed, we most respectfully call your attention to our condition.

We forbear, at this time, from entering into the particulars of our complaints, and beg leave to refer your Excellency to Gen. La Vega, who has lately been a prisoner of war in the United States, (but who has not honored us with any notice whatever,) for the manner in which prisoners of war are treated in our country.

There is, however, one complaint which we owe to ourselves to call your immediate attention to. We are informed that General Minon, in reporting our capture to his government, alleges that we surrendered at discretion, and that we owe our lives to the magnanimity of the Mexican Republic.—Against such a statement we enter our solemn protest; and declare that, the terms of our surrender being accurately stated in the foregoing part of this note, anything inconsistent thereto is unfounded in fact.

Hoping that a peace between the two Republics shall speedily be made, upon terms equally honorable to both, we subscribe ourselves

Your most obedient servants,

[Signed.]

Battle of Cerro Gordo—Mexican Account.

The following is the despatch of Gen. CANALIZO, the second in command at the battle of Cerro Gordo, to the Mexican Secretary of War. It frankly acknowledges an almost total rout of the forces of SANTA ANNA, and the consequent impracticability of defending any point on the road to the capital:

"HEADQUARTERS, BANDERILDA,
"APRIL 18, 1847.

"SIR: One of those unfortunate reverses which will occur in the course of the war, has been productive of most disastrous consequences to this army, and under circumstances that seemed to indicate that fortune was on the point of favoring us, as the enemy were repulsed entirely on the previous day in their charge on the Cerro Telegrafo, situated on the right of our works; but this morning at seven o'clock, availing themselves doubtless of their better acquaintance with the country, they charged with their entire force in such a manner as to dislodge the troops that were guarding the newly finished fortifications, after a most vigorous resistance. After this they succeeded in taking the headquarters and other points of our encampment, giving rise to confussion and disorder on our side, which even the commander-in-chief, aided by his Generals, found it impossible to prevent, occassioning thereby the complete dispersal and rout of the infantry troops, and involving the loss of almost all our pieces of artillery. The cavalry forces only were not included in this disorder; but, being hemmed in by a column of the enemy's troops that were in the vicinity of a wood on the left, it became necessary for them to vigorously open a passage, in order to avoid being taken prisoners. This it was that prevented us joining the Commander-in-chief and the other generals who were engaged in defending the battery situated in front of the headquarters. During this time I was laboring under the most serious apprehension as to the fate of the Commander-in-chief, whether he was killed or taken prisoner; but, as I passed Jalapa, I happily heard of his safety, and hope soon to be reunited with him.—In brief, I will say to your Excellency, that, with the few remaining troops, infantry and cavalry, that I have reunited, and of which I shall hereafter give a more detailed account, I proceed my march, passing this night at la Hoya, and I shall proceed until I receive further orders from the Government, as I am unable to defend any point on the route, in consequence of the total loss of the artillery and amunition, as I have not sufficient powder left for one round. I would also mention that I have at present no means for supporting the troops that follow me; and as for the cavalry, in consequence of the lengthy march they underwent from San Luis to this point, they are in a most deplorable state as regards service.

"I feel much at having to communicate, through you, to the Supreme Government, such unfortunate news; but, nevertheless, I present you my respects and consideration.—God and liberty!

VALENTIN CANALIZO.

"To his excellency the Minister of War."

A BEAUTIFUL REPLY.—A young girl about seven years of age, was asked by an atheist, how large she supposed her God to be; to which she, with admirable readiness, replied: "He is so great, the heavens cannot contain Him, and yet so kindly condescending, as to dwell in my little heart."

British House of Lords.

HOUSE OF LORDS, Thursday, April 15.—Their Lordships assembled, for the first time, in the chamber appropriated in the new Royal Palace at Westminster to the Peers of England, setting in their legislative and judicial capacities. The descriptions which have heretofore been published of this magnificent hall fall, through no want of skill in the describers, but from the imperfection of language, to present an adequate image of its gorgeousness and grandeur. When first entering it, the eye is dazzled and distracted by the richness and profusion of the ornaments, the walls and ceiling being charged to the verge of excess, with azure, crimson and gold. The exquisite harmony which reigns throughout soon sobers the senses, and surprise subsides into admiration. The throne, the most striking object, is a triumph of architectural art, the symmetry of its proportions vying with the brilliancy of its materials and the costly splendor of its decorations. It is a vast Gothic canopy, distributed into three portions; under the centre is the Queen's chair of State, and a smaller chair is placed on each side beneath the sub-canopies. The ceiling of the Chamber is divided into square compartments, which are again subdivided by elegant panels, carved pendants, encrusted with gold, drops from the intersections. The broad oak panneling, richly carved, which covers a portion of the side walls, subdues the glare of the other parts. The reporters' gallery, placed at the end opposite the throne, is another prominent object, being externally a mass of gilded ornaments. The interior of the gallery is fitted up with the most careful regard to the convenience and accommodation of its occupiers. The house is lighted by richly gilt branches holding lamps, running along the side walls, and lofty magnificent candelebra, standing on the floor at the ends, bearing tiers of wax lights. The woolsack, the table, and the seat for the Peers, (covered with scarlet cloth,) resemble those in the late House, and, compared with the luxurious aspect of the other furniture, have a rather homely appearance. The great problem upon which so much depends, namely, the adaptation of the new house for the transmission of sound, cannot be solved without further experiment, under more favorable circumstances; for, during the short sitting of to-day, the constant hum of conversation, perhaps of admiration, amongst the peers and strangers below the bar, would have rendered it difficult to hear the most powerful speaker.

SANTA ANNA AND HIS CARRIAGE.—Mr. Kendall of the Picayune writes:

"I informed you the other day that I had a story to tell of Santa Anna and his traveling carriage. In his haste to leave it he went off without taking any of his effects—a small writing case was found broken open, for he had no time to unlock it, from which he had evidently taken a few papers of great importance; but the majority of his effects—his silver plate, his papers, his money—all were there in good condition. Two of our officers entered the coach, and what did they find, after rummaging about, but a most excellent dinner, together with delicious wine and some highly flavored cigars.

To say that they did not sit themselves comfortable down on his richly cushioned seats, partake of his sumptuous dinner, wash it down with his delicious wine, and finish it off with his highly flavored cigars, would be departing farther from the truth than I care about doing just now. The names of the officers were Capts. Williams and McKilstry, and the dinner was a perfect windfall after a hard morning's work without eating, and with slim prospects ahead for food.

A party of dragoon officers some two or three weeks since, also had their own fun near Santa Anna's estate of Mango de Clavo. While hunting about the premises, they stumbled upon the building where he kept his fighting chickens. Those well informed upon the subject tell me there was a great deal of cock fighting in that immediate section for a day or two, and that one particular fight created a great excitement. A fierce looking rooster which they dubbed Gen. Taylor—not so large as some, but with game sticking out all over him—was pitted against a long, gangling chicken that they gave his owner's name to—a heavy but clumsy bird, with but little fight in him.—Well, Gen. Taylor and Santa Anna, as represented by the chickens of the latter, were set upon one another, and after a few heavy hits from the former the latter "vamosed" out of the fight as fast as his legs would carry him, leaving Gen. Taylor's representative upon the ground crowing right lustily. Such are some of the accidents that have befallen the "Hero of Tampico.

DEATHS.

This morning, about 8 o'clock, very suddenly, after a succession of fits, Mr. JAMES RICK, (wagon maker,) of Washington City. The deceased came to this city about four weeks ago, since which time he has been in the employ of Mr. Joseph Darlington. Mr. K. leaves a wife and several children, a large circle of respectable relatives and friends in Washington, to mourn his sudden and untimely death. Although a "stranger among the land of strangers," the relations of the deceased, may rest assured that he will be decently interred by the city authorities.

SWAYNE—Dear Sir: Having used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, in my practice, I was requested by your Agent, Dr. Crutcher, to express my opinion in writing, of its properties as a remedial agent. I most cheerfully comply, as I feel by so doing, I will discharge a debt I owe to the community at large, and Physicians in particular. As much as I detest quack remedies and patent nostrums, I was induced from the failure of the most potent expectorants, recommended in our materia medicas in some cases of diseased lungs, to try your preparation of Prunus Virginia or Wild Cherry.—It is sufficient to say that it has much pleased with the result of that, and subsequent trials, that I now prescribe it in preference to all other remedies where an expectorant is indicated. In the much dreaded Pneumonia or Wheat cold of the Lungs, in that alarming form in which it appears in Kentucky, I regard it as an invaluable remedy in the treatment of that disease. To all who know me I have said enough, but as this may be seen by persons out of the vicinity of Frankfort, I will briefly add, that I have been engaged in active practice of my profession for 12 years, first as a graduate of Transylvania, and this is the first Patent Medicine I ever thought enough of to express an opinion in writing.

J. H. ELLIOTT, M. D.

January 7, 1847. Franklin co. Ky.

Frankfort, Ky. Jan. 7th, 1847.

The above certificate is from one of our Physicians living a few miles from here. He is doing a very good practice, and is considered a good physician, and stands fair; he is a late medical graduate.

DR. WM. R. CRUTCHER.

Druggist and Apothecary.

☞ Since the introduction of my article to the public, there have a number of Spurious imitations, individuals got up nostrums, which they assert contain WILD CHERRY, some are called "BALSAMS," "BITTERS," and even SYRUPS of WILD CHERRY, but mine is the original and the only genuine preparation ever introduced to the public, which can be proved by the public Records of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The only safeguard against imposition, is to see that my signature is on each bottle.

New and Good!

I HAVE just received from Cincinnati, a lot of "Green's Patent Cooking Stoves," four out of which I now offer for sale at Cincinnati prices, for cash in hand. These stoves come highly recommended by one hundred and sixty-one citizens of Cincinnati and Kentucky, in the following language, viz—"We, the undersigned, have used most, if not all, the popular Cooking stoves, and have now in Green's Patent, which we by far give a decided preference. In point of convenience, dispatch in cooking, heat of plate and economy of fuel, in baking we believe it can have no equal. We cheerfully recommend the above stove to all who may wish to purchase, as we believe it far superior to any now in use."

N. B. Any one who shall purchase the above named Green's Patent, after giving it a fair trial, and believe it not to come up the above recommendation, may return the same and I will refund the money. JNO. C. REED.

Mr. F. M. Weedon, of this place, has one of Green's Patent Cooking Stoves now in use, to whom I would refer all house keepers, for any information they may want, with regard to its reputation.

Master B. Stevens, the young Ducrow of America, in a beautiful Act of Horsemanship.

Songs, Solos, Duetts, Glees and Dances, by the celebrated band of Sable Harmonists.

In addition to which there will be performed four splendid Pageants, or Spectacles, never before performed by any other Company, viz:

Poniatowski, or, the Ladies and Nobles of Poland.

The Tournament, or the Crusader's Glory.

The Turk's Dream.

And the new, magnificent and gorgeous Gothic Pageant, entitled the

Holiday Sports of Old Spain;

OR THE

BULL FIGHT.

The Proprietors of this extensive Company were the inventors and designers of this admired Gothic Pageant. It is the most fortunate Equestrian Spectacle on record. It has drawn more crowded houses and created more excitement than any piece ever produced in the arena.

☞ The Company will also exhibit at Carlisle on the 3d, Flemingsburg on the 4th and Washington on the 5th of June. CHAS. S. PELL, Agent.

DR. J. F. BRADDEE'S
Celebrated Vegetable Medicines.
THE CORDIAL BALM OF HEALTH.

An excellent medicine, prepared and sold only by me or my authorized agents.

Acknowledged to be peculiarly efficacious, in all inward wastings, loss of appetite, indigestion, depression of the spirits, trembling or shaking of the hands or limbs, shortness of the breath, consumptive habits; it thins the blood, eases the most violent pains of the head or stomach, and promotes gentle respiration. By the nobility and gentry, it is esteemed as being pleasant to the taste and smell, gently astringing the fibres of the stomach, and giving that proper tensity which a good digestion requires. Nothing can be better adapted to nourish the constitution, after a nocturnal debauch with wine and is highly esteemed for invigorating the nervous system and acting as a gentle restorative on debilitated constitutions, arising from billous complaints contracted in hot or cold climates. Those who have the care and education of females, or are of sedentary habits, should never be without the cordial balm of health, which removes diseases of the head, invigorates and improves the mind, and quickens the imagination. And it is recommended to the weak, the relaxed and debilitated as a speedy restorative; also in consumptions, spit ings of blood, or loss of blood, pain in the breast and side, inward weakness or loss of flesh, also in dyspepsias. It is valuable in diseases attended with such symptoms as difficulty of breathing, sense of cold, as if water was poured on the patient, flying pains in the arms, limbs, back and belly, like the gravel; the pulse variable, sometimes slow, others quick, frequent sighing, and sometimes a sense of suffocation, as in a hot fit of hump, alternative fits of crying, the stomach frequently disordered, the body weakened, paleness, emaciation, eyes sunk in the head. The value of this medicine is daily demonstrated, in removing the most dangerous effects of nervous debility, and nothing has given it greater fame than its success on those complaints which take deep root on the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind; it is also good for the whooping cough. I have never used this valuable medicine in my practice without success, in the diseases mentioned.—Price, $2,00 per Bottle.

THE ANTI-IMPEGINIS.

For the cure of the scurvy, scrofula, leprosy, weak eyes, bilious pleurisies, liver complaints, gleet, or in women, the whites or schirous, or bearing down in the womb, ulcers of the throat, and all disorders originating from an impure state of the blood. These admirable drops strengthen the constitution, purify the blood, and promote the circulation of the fluids to affect which is evidently the work of time and perseverence in the use of medicines adapted to these salutary purposes. Disorders of the blood are generally many years in acquiring that strength which renders them almost insupportable in their operation. It cannot therefore be reasonably expected, that a single bottle of any medicine will operate like a charm, and change the whole system so long impregnated with deleterious matter; neither should patients be disheartened, if after taking one bottle they should find themselves, in their own apprehensions, not per woese; it is a predicament frequently caused by the moving of malignant matter, and is in fact a very favorable symptom. These drops are gradual, gentle, and almost imperceptible in their operation, sweetening the blood, stimulating it, and giving strength and tone to the nerves, enlivening and invigorating both body and mind. To remove those foul eruptions and often indolent tumors that effect the glans of the neck, under the chin, arm pits, groins, hands, arms and wrists, the most obstinate symptoms of the king's evil, strumo or scrofula, the whole materia medica has been tried with very little success, and the unhappy sufferer left to drag on a life of misery, but when the anti-impegiis would restore to health and vigor, if recourse was had to it, though reduced to crawl upon the crutches. The directions given with each bottle are plain, and its operation attended with little or no trouble, as no further precaution is necessary than such as is taken usually to prevent it. It is well established as a fact, an impure scrofulous taint will remain in the habit for years undiscovered, and will invade the noblest organs of the human frame before the patient can be aware of his danger. The anti-impeginis strikes at the root, and not at the branches, and with peculiar advantage, affects the human body. It is a sure and speedy cure for violent coughs, or inflammations on the lungs or livers attended with spitting of blood, or violent pains in the side. Diets will be fresh, as chicken, squirrel, veal, lamb, soft pies, custards, puddings, soups, milk, tea, coffee, chocolate, rice and sago, and Iceland moss, which can be had at the drug shop, made into tea, or young mullen roots, not gone to seed, bruised fine and made into strong tea, beach or sycamore bark, an equal quantity of each, made into tea, or fresh water, poured over slippery elm, or the inside bark of yellow poplar, and wild cherry, an equal quantity of each, made into a tea, or tea of bruised rattle root. Either of these used in place of water.—Price $2,00 per Bottle.

Patent Specific,

A PREVENTATIVE AND A CURE FOR THE CHOLERA.

Prepared solely from vegetable matter.

The dose for a grown person will be one large tea-spoon-full. If the patient should be taken very violently, the dose may be enlarged to two tea-spoons-full, and repeated every ten, fifteen or twenty minutes, until the body becomes in a hot perspiration of heat. Immediately on the first attack, there will be bricks applied to the bottom of the feet and knees, as warm as it can be well borne, and a peck of red onions roasted and immediately applied to the pit of the stomach and under the shoulders, as warm as they can well be borne, and sage, penny-royal, peppermint, or spearmint teas—either of those drank frequently as warm as it can be borne, until the body becomes in a hot perspiration of heat and if the complaint should be very violent, and the patient far spent, there will be two ounces of red cayenne pepper stewed in Cogniac French Brandy or Alcohol by cutting it fine, put in the stomach, breast and bowels will be frequently rubbed with the same. After the patient feels relief and the complaint abates, it will then be taken three or four times a day in the course of the day, until the stomach and body gains its usual strength. Children from three to nine months old may take one third or the half of a tea-spoon-full at a dose, and repeated in the same manner, or just as often as the child is able to bear it. From one to three years old, may be from one half to three parts of a tea-spoon-full given at a dose and repeat ed in the same manner. From three years old up to ten, the dose may be enlarged a little according to ages—children from three months to four years, the dose may be mixed with the same quantity of fresh water, and the mixture be shook every time before using. Besides the Cholera, this medicine is good for the phthisic, croup and fevers, bad colds, hoarseness, spasms, cramps in the stomach, cramp, colics, violent pleurisies, pains in the small of the back and weakness. The above medicine is made and sold by me only, or my authorized agents Price from $1 to $2 per bottle.

The Eloy.

This medicine is for the cure of consumptions, liver diseases, breast complaints, sunpains, pains in the back, legs, white swellings, or any other outward gathering, dyspepsia, dyspepsia, tetter worm, swellings, violent headaches arising from foul stomachs, female complaints, all diseases caused by colds, rheumatic or nervous diseases, ulcers on the throat or nose, violent pains of the limbs, scrofula, fungus, fits, hysteria, or pain in the breast of long duration, inflammatory rheumatism, fevers, shaking agues, inflammations, mortification, inflammation of the lungs, palpitation of the heart and aneurisms.

This medicine is a sure remedy for the deleterious effects of mercury or calomel, on systems broken down by the unskillful treatment of physicians. This medicine is from the juice of plants, and may be given to the youngest infants with safety, and repeated as above mentioned.

Price from $1 to $5,00 per Bottle, which will be sold only by me or my authorized agents.

Prospectus of the Maysville Herald,
TRI-WEEKLY AND WEEKLY.

THE undersigned proposes to publish a Tri-Weekly and Weekly paper in the city of Maysville, to be called "THE MAYSVILLE HERALD," which will be devoted, in its political department, to the advocacy of the great principles of National Policy professed by the Whig party.

Relying mainly for support upon a Commercial and Trading people, the Editor will seek to bring prominently into view, the advantages which Maysville affords to the surrounding country, as a market, for the products of the South, the manufacturers of the North and East, and the productions of the agriculture and domestic industry and skill of Northern Kentucky and Southern Ohio.

The HERALD will contain the latest Political and Commercial News, foreign and domestic, and keep its readers well informed of the state of those markets most frequented by the Merchants and Traders of that section of country in which it is published. It will also contain the usual amount of Literary and Miscellaneous matter to be found in papers of its class.

The subject of facilitating intercourse between the City and surrounding country, so important to the prosperity of both, will receive such attention as may be necessary to place it properly before those most interested in the result.

We shall foster and encourage, by all the means in our power, the Manufacturing and Mechanical interest, from a conviction that no town or country can prosper long, unless, whose citizens neglect to give to their surplus products all the value which reproductive industry can bestow, before making them the subject of her commerce.

So soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, we intend to publish, for the benefit of our Farmers, such information upon the subject of their noble pursuit, as experience and the application of the principles of science have developed, or may hereafter make known.

In short, we will aid, to the utmost of our power, by all legitimate means, in bringing into action the springs of prosperity, upon which the happiness of those most interested in our labors depends.

TERMS:

For Tri-Weekly paper four dollars in advance, four fifty within the year, or five at the expiration of the year.

The Weekly Herald on a large double-medium sheet, two dollars in advance, two fifty within the year, or three at the end of the year.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!! WILL WONDERS NEVER CEASE!

More evidence of its surpassing & healthful restorative virtues! Read below.

SPRINGFIELD, MAY, 14, 1845,

MESSRS. Sanford & Park:

GENTS—I take this method of informing you of a most remarkable cure performed upon me by the use of Dr Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

In the year 1840, I was taken an inflammation of the bowels, which I labored under for six weeks, when I gradually recovered. In the fall of 1841, I was attacked with a severe cold, which seated itself upon my lungs, and for the space of three years I was confined to my bed. I tried all kinds of medicine, and every variety of medical aid without benefit, and thus I remained along until the winter of 1844, when I heard of "Wistar's balsam of wild cherry."

My friends advised me to give it a trial, though I had given up all hopes of recovery and had prepared myself for the change of another world. Through their solicitations I was induced to make use of the genuine Wistar's balsam of wild cherry. The effect was truly astonishing. After five years affliction, pain and suffering, and after having expended four or five hundred dollars to no purpose, and the best and most respectable physicians had proved unavailing, I was restored to entire health by the blessing of God and use of Dr Wistar's balsam of wild cherry.

I am now enjoying good health and such is my altered appearance that I am no longer recognised when I meet my former acquaintances.

I have gained rapidly in weight, and my flesh is firm and solid. I can now eat as much as any person, and my food seems to relish well. I have eaten more during the last six months than I had eaten five years before. Considering my case almost a miracle, it is my duty, as necessary for the good of the afflicted, and a duty I owe to the proprietors and my fellow men (who should know where relief may be had) to make this statement public.

May the blessing of God rest upon the proprietors of so valuable a medicine as Wistar's balsam of wild cherry. Yours respectfully,
JOHN A. BAMER.

NEW SERIES OF THE
Congressional Globe and Appendix.

CONGRESS, at its last session, through the Joint Library Committee of the two Houses, having authorized a large subscription for the Congressional Globe and Appendix, and the Senate, by resolution, having directed the mode of preparing the reports of its proceedings, and contract with the Secretary of the Senate to contract with the Printer, stipulating that the reports, when written out, shall be subject to the revision of the speakers, the Congressional Globe and Appendix is now offered to the public, not only as an authentic, but as an official report of the proceedings of Congress, made under the eye, and published by authority of the body.

The undersigned originated the mode of journalizing the proceedings of Congress, which, thus adopted, is to be perfected with the aid and under the supervision of Congress. Their publication was the first and only one that gave each successive step in every measure in both branches of Congress—a brief of all the debates, every important vote, and an Appendix, including at full length all the revised speeches delivered during the session.

The work, as it is now to be conducted by them, will be found a most perfect political history. The senators from the States, and the representatives from every section of the Union, bring with them into Congress a knowledge of the feelings, sentiments, and interests of their constituencies. Public opinion and the public information, as it exists among those they represent, are embodied by them; and, in the crucible of Congress, the wisdom of our times is brought to the test, and is there concentrated, in directing the political movements of the entire country. The impulses thus given through Congress, from every quarter, react upon the nation as a whole, and all its component parts and made to move in co-operation. The press cannot be more usefully employed than in condensing and again spreading abroad the intelligence of our free country, tending to such happy results by our almost miraculously adjusted State and National Institutions.

Having identified ourselves with the plan of advancing the usefulness of Congress by publishing full and impartial reports, and having a large mass of the Congressional Globe and Appendix, issued during the last twelve years, which would be impaired in value to us and utility to the public if the work were discontinued, we have a double motive to prompt us to extend it through a new series. We are resolved, if possible, to give it permanency, and to hand it down to successors as a standard work, worthy of being maintained and improved. We shall enter upon our new undertaking without being distracted or hindered by any associate labors of the press; and, thus unencumbered, shall hope to make the new series a step in advance of the former in all points of execution. With a view to accomplish this, we shall be (one other exception) in attendance on Congress.

The reports will not be affected by our party bias. We believe every Congressman will bear witness that our reports are full and fair.

The Congressional Globe is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, and printed on superfine double royal paper, with small type, (brevier or nonpareil,) in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages. The speeches of the members in this first form are condensed, the full report of the prepared written speeches being reserved for the Appendix. All resolutions, motions, and other proceedings are given in the form of the Journals, with the yeas and nays on every important question.

The Appendix is made up of the President's Annual Message, the Reports of the principal officers of the Government that accompany it, and all Speeches of members of Congress, written out or revised by themselves. It is printed in the same form as the Congressional Globe, and usually makes about the same number of pages during the session.

During the first month or six weeks of the session there is rarely more business done than will make two numbers a week—one of the Congressional Globe and one of the Appendix; but during the remainder of the session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore we calculate that the Congressional Globe and Appendix together will make near 1,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type, (brevier and nonpareil.) We furnish complete indexes to both at the end of a session.

We have on hand the Congressional Globe and Appendix for the last fifteen sessions of Congress, making together fifteen large royal quarto volumes, which we will sell, unbound, for $41; or bound, with Russia backs and corners, for $56. Those who want the back volumes should apply for them immediately, as they are in demand. Congress subscribed for 341 complete sets during the last two sessions. The proceedings of Congress for the last nine years cannot be procured from any other source, Gales & Seaton having stopped printing their Register of Debates in 1837.

We will endeavor to print a sufficient number of surplus copies to supply all that may be miscarried or lost in the mails, but subscribers should be very particular to file their papers carefully, for fear that we should not be able to supply all the lost numbers.

TERMS:

For one copy of the Congressional Globe $1
For one copy of the Appendix 1
For six copies of either or part of both 5

The money may be remitted by mail at our risk. The safest and best way to remit it is, to pay the amount to the Postmaster where you reside, and take from him a receipt according to the following form:

POST OFFICE,——, 184 .

"Received from A B ——— dollars and ——— cents for the Globe, from which I have deducted one per cent, and charged myself, in my account with the General Post Office, with the balance. The postmaster of Washington City will pay that balance to Blair & Rives, or to their order on the back of this receipt, ———, Pm.

The rules of the General Post Office Department authorize such receipts to be given and paid here when the amount does not exceed 10 dollars. When it exceeds 10 dollars, it is best to remit as much as possible in bank notes, and the postmaster's receipt for the balance. The postmasters receipt should be sent directed to us, and not to the postmaster of this city, as some are in the habit of doing.

Proprietors of newspapers who publish this prospectus, and send us one copy of the paper containing it marked with a pencil, will be entitled to a contract for attention to it, shall have their names put on our books for one copy of the Congressional Globe and Appendix during the session.

Our prices for these papers are so low that we cannot afford to credit them out; therefore no person need consume his time in writing for them unless he sends the money.

At the commencement of this session, expecting that the debates would be very useful and interesting, (and they have come up to our expectations,) we printed several thousand surplus copies of both the Congressional Globe and Appendix, for the purpose of supplying all persons who might subscribe during the session with complete copies of either or both. We will be able to furnish the back numbers to all who subscribe before the 4th of next March.
