"WHAT THE TITANIC SAID AT SUNSET."

The shadows grow and deepen round me;
I feel the dew-fall in the air;
The measures of the evening thicker
I hear the night-thrush call in prayer.

Sweet, sweet, the evening bells are ringing
And loving hands unclasp from mine;
Alone I go to meet the darkness
Across an awful boundary-line.

Far from the pleasant hearths behind me
I pass with slow, reluctant feet,
Where is the end of all my musings?
What lies beyond smile, what voice shall greet?

What space shall sow, what immortelles blind me?
What wonder roll of mute stars?
What rare processions sweep before me
Of shapes, of spirits, of worlds afar?

I shrink from unaccustomed glory,
I dread the unknown land of light;
Give me the unforgotten face,
And let me see some one I know.

He will not chide my mortal yearning
Who is our Father and our Friend,
In whose full life divine and human
We recognize our own kin and kind.

Mine be the joy of soul-communion,
The sense of spiritual strength renewed,
The reverence for the pure and holy,
The inner delight of being good.

No fitting are we to inherit
A kingdom purified and full;
No earnest eye is mine to measure
The glory of the Beautiful.

For love must needs be more than knowledge;
What matter if I shall be first or last?
While Adelbarton's star is ruddy
My eclipse flutter while a moon's

Forgive my human words, O Father!
Thy ways are not as our ways are;
Thy mercy shall transcend my longing;
Thy love shall be my morning star.

I go to find my lost and mourned for Safe in Thy eternal mansions shall
And all that hope and faith foreshadow
Made perfect in Thy holy will.

—Whittier.

Thrilling Escape from the Blackfeet Indians.

Mr. Alex. A. Crawford, of the bookstand on Locust street, has a lot of old periodicals of interest in connection with the early history of St. Louis. From the first number of the St. Louis Mirror—a Journal of Literature—issued in February, 1846, is taken the following account of a thrilling adventure of John Colter, by Mr. Thos. Jefferson, of a book of "Travels in the Interior of North America:"

Colter came to St. Louis in May, 1810, in a small canoe, from the headwaters of the Missouri, a distance of 3,000 miles, which he traversed in thirty-days. He was then about 40 years old, and received from him an account of his adventures after he had separated from Lewis and Clark's party. I shall relate one anecdote for its singularity. On the arrival of the party at the headwaters of the Missouri, Colter, observing an appearance of abundance of beaver upon the there, got permission to remain and hunt for some time, which he did in company with a man of the name of Dixon, who had traversed the immense tract of country from St. Louis to the headwaters of the Missouri alone. Soon after he separated from Dixon, and joined a company with a hunter named Potte; and, aware of the hostility of the Blackfeet Indians, one of whom had been killed by Lewis, they set their traps at night and took them up early in the morning, remaining concealed during the day. They set out examining their traps early one morning, in a creek about six miles from the mouth of the Missouri called Lot Jefferson Fork, and were ascending in a canoe, when they suddenly heard a great noise, resembling the trampling of animals, but they had not seen any sign in the fact, as the high perpendicular banks on each side of the river impeded their view. Colter immediately pronounced it to be occasioned by Indians, and proposed to immediate retreat, but was accused of cowardice by Potte, who insisted that the noise was occasioned by buffaloes; and they proceeded on. In a few minutes afterwards their doubts were removed by a party of Indians making their appearance on both sides of the creek, in numbers of five or six hundred, who beckoned them to come ashore. As retreat was now impossible, Colter ordered the head of the canoe; and, at the moment of its touching, an Indian presented to Colter and to Potte; but Colter, who was a remarkably strong man, immediately retreated it and handed it to Potte, who remained in the canoe, and on receiving it, pressed off into the stream, in the hope of attempting to escape, and urged him to come ashore. Instead of complying, he presented his rifle at the first Indian and shot him dead on the spot. This resolved, Colter ran to shore, but appear to be an act of madness, but it was boldness that was not of sudden and sound reasoning; for, if taken alive, he must have expected to be tortured to death according to their custom. He was instantly pierced with arrows so completely that, to use Colter's words, "he was made a riddle of." They now seized Colter, stripped him entirely naked, and then held a council on the manner in which he should be put to death. Various modes were first inclined to set him up as a mark to shoot at, but the chief, Lookingglass, was against it, by the shoulders, asked him if he could run fast. Colter, who had been some time acquainted with the Indian customs, he knew that his life hung on for his life, with the dreadful odds of five or six hundred against him, and with a proud heart, he, therefore, cunningly replied that he was a very bad runner; but that he was considered by the hunters as very swift. The chief now commanded the party, and said stationary, and led Colter out on the prairie three or four hundred yards in a straight direction, and then, turning round to look over his shoulder, when he perceived that the Indians were very much scattered, he had gained ground to a considerable distance from the main body, but one Indian, who carried a spear, was much before all the rest and was not more than 40 yards from him. A faint gleam of hope now cheered the heart of Colter; he determined to exert every nerve that escape was within the bounds of possibility. The Indian was now nearly fatal to him, for he exerted himself to such a degree that the blood gushed from his nostrils and soon almost covered the fore part of his body. He had now arrived at the side of the river, when he distinctly heard the appalling sound of a musketoe behind him, and every instant expected to feel the fatal spear. Colter, however, turned his head and saw the savage not twenty yards from him. Determined, if possible, to avoid the spear, he suddenly stopped, turned around and spread his arms wide. The Indian, surprised by the suddenness of the action, and perhaps by the fearful appearance of Colter, also attempted to stop, but, exhausted with running, he fell whilst endeavoring to throw his spear, which struck in the ground and broke. Colter instantly snatched the pointed part, with which he pinned him to the earth, and then continued his flight. The foremost of the Indians, on arriving at the place, stopped till others came up to join them, when they set up a hideous yell. Every moment of his time was improved by Colter, who, although fainting and exhausted, succeeded in gaining the skirting of the cotton-tree wood, on the borders of the Fork; through which he ran and plunged into the river. Fortunately for him, a little below this place was an island, against the upper part of which a raft of timber had lodged. He dived under the raft, and after several efforts, got his head above water amongst the trunks of trees, now used over with smaller wood to the depth of several feet. Scarcely had he secured himself when the Indians arrived on the river, screeching and yelling, as Colter expressed it, "like so many devils." They were frequently on the raft during the night, and never seen through the chinks by Colter, who was congratulating himself on his escape, until the idea arose that they might set the raft on fire. In horrible suspense he remained until night, when, hearing no more of the Indians, he dived under the raft and swam silently down the river to a considerable distance, when he landed and traversed all night. Although happy in having escaped from the Indians, his situation was still dreadful; he was completely naked under a burning sun—the soles of his feet were entirely filled with thorns of the prickly pear—he was hungry and had no means of killing game, although he saw abundance around him, and was at least seven days' journey from Lisa's Fort, on the Big Horn branch of the Roche Jaune river. These sufferings were endured under what is the most any man but an American hunter would have thought. He arrived at the fort in seven days, having subsisted on a root much esteemed by the Indians of Missouri.—St. Louis Republican.

Cleaning Carpets.

In all our own experiments we have found nothing so safe and serviceable, and at the same time economical, as very slightly—just sufficient to hold the particles together. In this case it is not necessary to stop and clean the broom every few minutes. Sweeping the carpet after the bran has been sprinkled over it not only cleans the carpet and gathers all the dirt into the bran, but keeps the broom clean at the same time. If the broom becomes soiled, it runs injuring the carpet, it makes the work harder, because the bran becomes very heavy if very damp. The bran should be sifted evenly over the floor, and then swept very lightly and lightly. The bran scours and cleanses the whole fabric, very little dust is made while sweeping with it, and scarcely any settles on furniture, pictures, etc., after work is in progress. Sprinkle over every particle of dirt, thread, bits of paper or lint together with the mass of bran that is being moved over the floor, and so thoroughly incorporated with it that it will not be easily separated. Carpets swept in this way look very little dust, as will be plainly demonstrated whenever they are taken up to be shaken.—Domestic Monthly.

A Mountain Lake Disappears.

Redfish Lake, above Sawtooth City, on the summit of the Sawtooth range of mountains, in Alpine county, Oregon, Idaho, has dropped through the bottom. The lake had an area of seven miles and was fifteen fathoms in depth. It was on the summit of one of the peaks of the range, some 11,000 feet elevation above the sea, and surrounded by navy timber, which rendered it a delightful place of resort in summer for camping, fishing, and picnicking parties. The cause of the action is granite and limestone, and as nothing of the kind has opened, whether caused by separation or settling of the mountain's sides, or from volcanic action is not known. At present the bed of the lake is dry and presents the appearance of a deep rock, as seen from the summit of the mountains. This lake has always contained millions of redfish and been a favorite resort for fishing parties from Boise City, and the fish went to is as much a mystery as where the water went.—Virginia City Enterprise.

Conscience's Whisper.

It was an Indiana man, who, when terrified from his sleep one night, jumped into the house of a neighbor and cried out:

"Jones, this is the ending up of earth!"

"I am afraid so," was the reply.

"And what shall we do?"

"Make our peace with heaven."

The wind blew still stronger, the house began to shake, and the excited man exclaimed:

"Jones, you lost five bushels of wheat last year!"

"Yes."

"And you have your suspicions!"

"I have. The man who took my wheat had little corn."

"Can you forgive him?"

"I can."

"Will you?"

Here the wind suddenly dropped, and, after a long pause, he heard the conscience-stricken man turned around. "Yes, I will forgive him. I'll advise him to call around."

The Morning Stars.

Neptune is morning star, and makes his appearance first on the roll. Five planets play the part of morning stars during the month of July, as in the following order: Neptune, Saturn, Mars, Jupiter and Venus, which retain this order of precedence until August commences. Neptune is near enough he would now be seen rising in the northeast about half-past 11 o'clock, and Saturn follows about half an hour after midnight. Mars is not in a favorable position, and is put in an appearance about a quarter after 3 o' lock in the morning, and Venus closes the list a half hour later. Shortly after 4 o'clock the planetary morning star is seen shining their shining way among the stars.

An ingenious farmer, sticking a few nails into a clothes-line to keep his neighbor's cattle out of his pasture, went about his other business, thinking no more of the matter. A fellow fellow came along, saw the rope and hung his coat upon it, and, in leaping the "barbed wire" fence, and the very farmer from whom the coat was stolen, paid the fellow a tribute for an article which he himself originally designed. A Bedford boy who is supposed is estimated at $100,000 per month.

Malleable iron castings are merely ordinary cast iron subjected to a long annealing process to make them malleable. Long years ago it was found you could cut upon his fingers all the establishments in the country that made malleable iron castings. Now they have multiplied, not only in number but in magnitude, and there is a notable increase of general iron manufactures. It has quadrupled, or have been improved more than a hundred per cent. in quality, and at the same time largely decreased in price.

The school-boy who had been wrestling with Latin and with his first chew of tobacco, said he did not want another quid nunc for it would keep him sic semper.—Bowling Green Gazette.

Man is like a pin. The size of the head does not indicate how sharp and pointed he may be.

Red is the natural color of a young baby, but afterward it becomes yeller.

The Egg-Dance in India.

The Indian egg-dance is not, as one might expect from the name given it, a dance upon frame fragile objects. It is executed in this wise:

The dancer, dressed in a corsage and very short skirt, carries a willow wheel of moderate diameter fastened horizontally on the top of her head. Around this wheel threads are fastened equally distant from each other, and at the end of each of these threads is a slip-noose, which is kept open by a bead. Then equipped, the young girl comes toward the spectators with a basket full of eggs, which she passes around for inspection, to prove that they are real, and not imitations.

The music strikes up a jerky monotonous strain, and the dancer begins to whirl around with great rapidity. Then seizing an egg she puts it in one of the slip-nooses and with a quick motion throws it from her in such a way as to draw the noose tight. The swift turning of the dancer produces a centrifugal force which stretches the noose out straight, like a ray shooting from the circumference of the circle. One after another the eggs are thrown out in these slip-nooses, until they make a horizontal surround of the head-dress of the dancer's head. Then the dance becomes more rapid—so rapid, in fact, that it is difficult to distinguish the features of the girl.

The moment is critical; the least false step, the least irregularity of time, and the dancer, by a single fall, is cut down by the dance of twenty-five or thirty minutes, advances with a firm step to the spectators, and presents them with the eggs, which are immediately broken in a flat dish to prove that there is no trick in the performance.—Harper's Young People.

Words of Wisdom.

It is more honorable to acknowledge our ignorance than our error.

If you cannot be a leader, prove yourself at least a reliable follower.

Human foresight often leaves its proudest possessor only a choice of evils.

He who laughs at cruelty sets himself on the road to barbarism.

Honest work clothed in poverty often trembles before approaching vice throned in wealth.

Mistakes may appear under the shape of pains, losses and disappointments, but let him who suffers them, ask how will see them in their proper figure.

It is with memory as it is with wisdom: it is not the mere possession of a good memory, but training for its judgment, discipline for its exercise, guidance for its conduct, and objects for its use.

In the midst of hopes and cares, of apprehensions and of disquietude, remember, that the way that downs seem to us as if it was to be your last; and superadded hours, to the enjoyment of which you had not looked forward, will prove an unexpected boon.

Presence of mind is greatly dependent on knowing what is best to be done in an emergency, and having the courage to act with decision and promptness. If this knowledge is acquired, it will not be from mere instinct, but by common sense will enable the person to act with decision and consequent safety in very trying circumstances.

Fascination by the Rattlesnake.

The first notice we have seen on record of the wonderful power of fascination possessed by the rattlesnake is that given by John Ledeyer, on his first expedition from the head of James River, in Virginia, to the top of the Appalachian mountains, in 1669.

"Upon the 9th of March, 1669, I went out at the falls of Pennaucok, (now York River,) with an Indian called named Shickahamany, and lay that night in the woods, encountering nothing remarkable but a rattlesnake of an extraordinary size, which I killed, for I judged it two yards and a-half or better from head to tail, and as big as a man's arm to the elbow. Being so near her, we found there a small squirrel, lying dead upon her, which I did not wonder. Just how a reptile should entice such a creature I cannot tell, unless it having caught it how she could swallow it entire. The Indians in respect of such a creature, do so dote the beast that he has no power to hinder slain, one of the Indian women, by the laws of this country, who takes in all his sustenance, and dresses it for him, lying upon him only to offend with it. But I rather believe what I have formerly heard, that it charms and climb the trees and surprise their prey in the nest."

Wanted Windows.

Mr. Bright's appalling statement as to the number of people in Glasgow, living in only one room apiece, is equaled by the statistics of overcrowding in Nadaud's report to M. Nadaud, in support of his bill dealing with unhealthy dwellings, according to M. Nadaud there are 119,270 houses in France without any windows at all, and to which light and air are admitted, when admitted at all, only through the door, or a hole in the door, which has to be stopped in wet or cold weather. There are, in France, no fewer than 1,000,000 persons altogether, who have no other lodgings than this. In Paris, although 60,000 tenements have been built in the last thirty years under the act of 1850, there are still between three and four thousand "cellars" inhabited, "cellars" without means of warming, and between three and four thousand single rooms with no aperture for light and ventilation. In Paris, 100,000 people live and thirty thousand habitations consist of a single room only. "Nothing of the same kind," says the report from which these statistics are taken, "can be found in any other city in Europe." Paris is the only one of all the cities in France, and in other countries besides France.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Just before the death of Jonathan Arnold, the wealthiest man in West Virginia, a reconciliation was effected with his wife, a sister of Stonewall Jackson, from whom he separated during the war. Years ago the wife was allowed alimony to the amount of $1,000 a year, but the Court refused Arnold a suit for divorce. Arnold was a strong Union woman during the war.

Bill Nye Vs. Senator Tabor.

Most everyone who voted for the legislators who voted for Senator Tabor, the shaggy Congressman from this magnificent State, is now bloodshot half off his head, or concealed in some quiet dell, he is kicking himself around over the damp earth. Mr. Tabor, the great statesman, orator, and third rate boarding-house keeper, who, a few years ago, played stallion poker in a bedtogg boarding-house while his wife, from whom he is now divorced, toiled, was and supported the orator, statesman, logician, and scholar, takes it all coolly and with his accompanied by her new wife he smiles at the lowest vote and heavy handed constituent who sent him to Washington in order that the broad and beautiful State of Colorado might blush her to death.

I used to think it hard that I was not a lunatic man who could enter good society or the penitentiary according to circumstances, and who might be Senator or a son-of-a-gun whenever I chose, but now that I have seen it tried I am content to labor on in obscurity without winning deathless notoriety as a lecturous Congressman and thick necked snooper, who, under the shadow of the great national Capitol at Washington, flaunts the tail of his $250 night shirt in the face of the Goddess of Liberty, spels nothing else with a k and don't know the difference between the two letters and knows not and cares a hoot care made and provided.

The gilded, thoughtless and cruel fate have fitted me to walk in the humbler trail and in a sixty cent night shirt, and I am content. Though I may not be so bewitching in the robes of night as Senator Tabor is, I am sure that previous and protem wives will burst in tears at the mere mention, and wreck the joy of my whole existence. I may be only a slight difference in taste but that's the way I feel about that I am.—Boomerang.

Somerset Reporter: Not long since, while the waters of Buck creek were swollen, Mrs. Naunie Lee and sister aged twelve, attempted to cross the creek, both on one horse. When they got near the middle of the stream the horse became entangled in some brush and threw them into the Shamrock stream and went to the bank and shook the saddle off. Miss Naunie went down twice when her sister caught her by the hair, and the horse went to them, turned around, and the younger sister caught him by the tail with one hand, and holding Naunie with the other reached the shore safely. The horse started for home and was met by a negro asked to return it, but Mis. M. and her child rode home. The child had lost the Bendish negroes out and gathering at the Lexington fair grounds Charley Parker was shot in the head by a discharge. The Lexington Transcript says the firm of Bale & Fitch have re-built the large portion of the L. and N. and C. S. railroads, in this city, which have been running for about ten years. In that time they have built, sold and sold as immense amount of walnut and other hard wood lumber, and have never reported a loss. Gov. Moore, 70, looks like manufacturing a perfect specimen of health.

Fleming—Poplar Plains recently lost by death Jeremiah Hall, a good citizen, aged 75 years. Mrs. Ann Hall, colored, aged 115 years. She remembered the stage 70 years ago, and the battle of Blue Licks. She lived to see the sixth generation of her descendants living in her house.

Harrison—A colored girl, in this county, aged thirteen years, gave birth to a child a few days since. Mother and child both doing.

Jessamine—Thirty-six head of Jessamine cattle were shipped recently to a Baltimore party at $100 per head. The cattle averaged 1,300 pounds per head.

Kenton—The Commonwealth says the display of dewars is spectacular in the Covington market, and is sufficient to give the looker-on the clothes.—In Covington a child, giving the name of McGuire, was shot and seriously hurt by a Covington boy.

Lyon—The Kuttawa Gazette says Miss Mollie Dixon had the misfortune to cut a deep gash in her left arm, on the interior tibial nerve, which produced lockjaw. Dr. Petely was summoned, who, after injecting morphine, cut the nerve and relieved her. Whether she will live or die is now in approving.

Meade—Bill Peyster, the chief of the Hardin county gang of horse-thieves, has been arrested by Marshal Coulter of Big Spring, in this county.

Montgomery—John Schultz was arrested at Mt. Sterling on the charge of embezzling $1,000 from the Mt. Sterling Machine Company. A man giving his name as Smith, was also arrested at Carlisle and brought to Mt. Sterling, on the charge of being one of parties that duped Henry Smith in the game by which he lost $2,500, when Smith's efforts exhibited at the latter place.

McCracken—An unknown tramp made a desperate attempt to rape Mrs. Wilson as she lay sick at her home in this county. A warrant for the scoundrel, but didn't lynch him because they couldn't find him. Mr. Wilson, a veteran of 1861 from Mt. McCracken county has been summoned to Livingston county to try the Mary Lyne murder case.

Owen—Frank Mansford was tried at Owenton and held to bail in the sum of $500. The charge against him is burning of his brother-in-law's barn, in which he was asleep at the time.

Dr. James Alfred Burchett, a promising young physician, recently from Georgetown, Virginia, and brother of Dr. Richard W. Burchett, of Owensboro, committed suicide at Owensboro, in Monticay, by shooting himself in the back of the head. He died about four hours. He was twenty-three years of age. The act was due to the excessive use of morphine.

Simpson—A fire at Franklin destroyed Lowell's store and lost a dozen or more horses. "Dr." Walker, a painter, filled with whiskey, fell into the flames.—J. L. Metcalfe, an old citizen and banker, died last week.

Spencer—A negro named Ben Steward was shot by Jack Goldsboro, both colored, in a dispute about a game of poker. The affray grew out of a bet of $1. An inquest was held resulting in a verdict of self-defense.—At Shadeville, on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, Tom Hamer killed Bill Nicholas. They were negroes, and the row was about Hamer's wife. His bail was fixed at $1,000.—H. P. Montgomery, of this county, had sixteen hogs killed by lightning recently. The lamin were fine ones, and were valued at $10 per head.

THE STATE.

Barren—One little country distillery in this county has already consumed 3,000 bushels of apples in making brandy this season.

Bath—The dwelling-house of Mr. Ambrose Jones, situated a few miles north of Owingsville, caught fire at an early hour in the morning, and, together with all its contents, was totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $3,500; no insurance.

Bourbon—On election night, during Mrs. John McClintock's absence from her house in Millersburg, thieves entered her residence and carried away from $800 to $1,000 worth of silverware.

Boyle—Bettie Higgins was arrested at Danville on the charge of killing her child.—James W. Potts was found to be a lunatic man who could not guard society or the penitentiary according to circumstances, and who might be Senator or a son-of-a-gun whenever I chose, but now that I have seen it tried I am content to labor on in obscurity without winning deathless notoriety as a lecturous Congressman and thick necked snooper, who, under the shadow of the great national Capitol at Washington, flaunts the tail of his $250 night shirt in the face of the Goddess of Liberty, spels nothing else with a k and don't know the difference between the two letters and knows not and cares a hoot care made and provided.

Christian—Wallace Williams, colored, shot and killed Henry Barkdale, colored, at Lafayette. Williams went to Barkdale's house and called him in cold blood, and then made his escape before he could be arrested. The killing was the result of an old feud, and a woman was at the bottom of it.

Clark—A negro girl set fire to her home in Clark county and her little sister was burned to death.

Daviess—At a colored ball at Owensboro, Albert Milam struck a woman for refusing to accompany him home, when Harry Buckner gallantly grabbed him with a knife, leaving Milam weltering in his blood on the pavement. Lewis Wahl, colored, charged with having murdered a young negro girl named Henry Belle McCrary, at several dances recently, was tried and sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

Fayette—The Sixth National bank, Lexington has been organized.—A negro woman stole a dollar from Mrs. Stanford's house in Lexington, and being asked to return it, beat Mrs. M. and her child severely. A Mr. Mason had took the Bendish negroes out and gathering at the Lexington fair grounds Charley Parker was shot in the head by a discharge.—The Lexington Transcript says the firm of Bale & Fitch have re-built the large portion of the L. and N. and C. THE TRIAL OF NEAL.

Scenes in the Courtroom at Grayson—Nearly All Mentioned—Disappointment of the People—Its Evidence and Hub Feeling.

[Special Corr. of the Louisville Post.]

GRAYSON, KY., August 9.—Your correspondent left the city of Ashland, now famous as the scene of one of the cruelest murders ever committed by men, on Neal's school train bound for Grayson to attend the Neal trial, not for the purpose of writing a long letter, but to mingle with about three hundred people of Ashland and vicinity, and about seventy-five from Ashland proper, who spent all leaving their work to again aid in bringing to justice the double-dyed villain who has now for almost two years insulted society by his presence, and who, if he had his deserts, the hanging of witnesses in his behalf, has bended form and gray-haired father of Fannie and Robert Gibbons, long since laid to rest by the red-handed murderers, but there is no rest for this poor old man.

Mrs. Gibbons, with her bright little boy Robert, left Ashland on Thursday morning to make one heartrack to see her husband, who, appearing cheerful at times, but always when she approaches or leaves a world absolute murder of her two children her eyes fill with tears and one has a sorry to see her. Mrs. Tinsley, the mother of Emmin Curtiss' six silent on the stand, was present, looking very feeble. With this heart-broken father and broken mother, the crowd all are silent in their presence, but kind and attentive to their every wants.

Our train arrived at Grayson at 9 o'clock. Court was in session. Upon the arrival of the train, Judge Lewis, Commonwealth's attorney, called the name of Commonwealth against Wm. Neal. State Attorney S. G. Kumer was supported by Hon. Jno. E. Tarr, Hon. J. Pickard, who prosecuted on the last trial, being, to be unable to attend, owing to business for the state were called, and forty-five witnesses were called, and all but twenty absent, several were reported to be in the way. The attorneys for the State asked and were granted time for consultation. The defendant's witnesses were then called, and out of twenty-five only five were present, and upon the Commonwealth's attorney for the state stating that they were ready, Colonel Moore, for the State, answered that, while all his witnesses were not in court, the State could and would be ready at a later day in the term; that he had some important witnesses were absent, they being sick, and that the case in the state was important.

The court then asked the attorneys for the defense—Hon. Jas. A. J. Cox and Hon. Jas. They were ready. Mr. Brown answered that, owing to the absence of a great number of his witnesses, he could not go into the trial with any hope of success, that he had sent for witnesses were out of the State, and others in the State, he would not be able to procure so as to enable him to get through this term of court. Judge Brown replied that he would urge a trial of the case; that it was of great importance, and that he would use all the power of the court to force the attendance of the attendance of any witnesses in his judgment. After hearing some argument by the attorneys for the defense, the court ruled that the case ought to go on, but that there should be no attachments issued in the matter for felony—one of whom had been continued, and the other was sick, and stated that the whole of last term was taken up with the Craft case, and that to set a day in this term to determine whether or not he could compel the attendance of important witnesses, with disorder against the peace of the State, compelled him to grant a continuance, and that he would issue no attachments to appear at the next term, and expressed a desire based for all delinquents that failed to appear in court.

There was some dissapointment at this turn of affairs, but it was thought best by all, and the fact that the case ought to be disposed of. They are getting heartily sick of it, and that their money, besides the trouble, has been entailed upon all, the expense of bringing the troops here was seen by a large number to be was determined not to go to that expense again, and that if the State of Kentucky fines from Ashland and vicinity cost the State nearly $20 for today's work.

The witnesses for the defense are mostly all poor, and they get no pay. They lose their time and pay their own way.

Your correspondent talked to hundreds of people today, and all seemed to be in good spirits for a trial. All say let the law and justice the laws. The feeling here has not changed in regard to the guilt of Neal. He is all think he is guilty, and none would hesitate to hang by any other process than by law. Your correspondent noted quite a number for their opinions, and found no one who thought the investigation would not result in a verdict in guilt. Neal was entitled to the trial, and that he ought to be prosecuted, expect one verdict when he is tried, and that verdict will be never, and that the Circuit Court from the Court of Appeals next September.

The attendance at court this term was very large, and a more orderly crowd could not be found in Kentucky—no disposition to cause indication of rowdyism. The people provided themselves with provisions, and left for home on the last train. Many of them were disappointed at the failure of the trial to come off. They were hopeful that the evidence would be brought, as their story there for two months would bring a large showing of people that they had for sale. Outside of this, the trip was a pleasant one for the soldiers, so far as the safety of Neal was concerned.

A New Party.

A new party has been formed, and it has the latest improvement, a Civil Service Commission attached. The commission is to examine all parties proposing to enter into the matrimonial contract, and all the lazy, the halt, the blind, the idiotic, incurably diseased, incurable drunkards, hopeless criminals, etc., are to be refused certificates entitling them to procure marriage license, and simple penalties and provisions of law are to be provided to enforce their decree. The census statistics show the marriage rate, that that thirteen of citizens some how get the start of the industrious, intelligent and moral classes in contributing to the augmentation of the census returns in the population of Union.

As honest and faithful carrying out of the platform of the new party for a couple of generations would diminish pauperism, intemperance, disease and crime about ninety per cent, and the average duration of human life would be heightened and its average vigorousness. The credit, so far as we can learn, for the inception of this new party belongs to Esq. Geo. W. Cline, of Princeton, Ky., a namesake of our greatest statesman and patriot, and his head is farther back and clear in his new party movement, and, but for his being so conspicuously cut up with his new mill, his business as a builder and architect, his legal business, and his church and school duties, he would start out to organize and build up the party himself.

Mr. E. T. Leonard has resigned his office of Postal Route Agent on the C. & O., which has filled so ably and satisfactorily to the public for a number of years, to take a position that will pay him better. None of our boys are fond of throwing off the wrong mail bag, or keeping the mail on board one hour or three days before delivering it, or filling the mail pouch with the wrong letters and papers can be charged to him. Mr. Leonard always took a pride in his business, and, being an honest man, was always determined to earn his salary, and fully succeeded. What this diversion must mean is that our city of Ashland is in a manner chance that private individuals or firms have, via, when they discover a new route, has developed a talent for his line of business that makes him worth more to them than he does hitherto, advance his wages, commence with his deserts, and thus are able to retain his services. But our personal and private law has no such common-sense provision.

Headlight Flashes.

Ground has been broken for the new C. O. shops, and work will begin at Ashland.

Wayne C. H. W. Va. Advocate: The Engineering corps on the Ohio & Guyandotte Railroad, which has been stationed at this place the last two weeks, left last Twelve Pole, nearly the entire way from Chesapeake to Ashland, a distance of twenty miles. Twenty Pole twice between here and Chesapeake.

It is estimated that the passenger traffic of the Northern Pacific will be at the rate of $15,000 per month from date of its opening for through passenger and freight business, and will increase at a rate of 10 per cent per month. Of the tributary States and Territories, Montana is the most active and wonderful, and is expected to contribute the most wrestling this great road for rebuilding it and attracting its capital. Jay Gould's name gives the aforesaid editor any advertising for his road, and the aforesaid editor will show to the contrary, and that the road many millions of dollars and damaged helping to bring on the great panic of 1873.

Capt. R. T. Smith having resigned the superintendency of the Kentucky Division of the C. & O. Road, Mr. A. H. Wood, formerly the efficient master of transportation of Ashland, has been appointed to supply the vacancy.

C. H. Hunter, Master of Transportation, C. & O., arrived here in his special car last week, and spent a couple of days looking after the interests of his road.

Mr. John A. Butler is clerking at the office of the C. & O.

Capt. Chaffee is making improvements around C. & O. Depot, cleaning out rubbish, dressing up with cinders, nicking side walks, etc.

Ironton Register: E. R. Willard has shown us a curiosity—a formation in the shape of a hickory nut, which was found in a chunk of coal on Jay's adjoining a few days since. The formation appears exactly its a large shackbarky nut, with the hull on, and not for the weight it would be hard to imagine it anything else than a hickory nut. The shell is as the ridged and half open hull, disclosing the nut inside.

Lexington Transcript: Now is your time to send in applications for purchase "clear old tater" goes out of office the first of September.

The Vanceburg Courier says that Fish Commissioner Wm. Griffith has made a shipment of young rainbow or California mountain trout, which he has deposited in the branches and headwaters of Kinney.

The Grand Army of the Republic at their meeting, Monday night, appointed a committee on Camp Fire to make arrangements for an encampment at the Fair Grounds during the continuance of the Boyd County Fair.

Burwell Booth, living three miles from Trout's Hill, W. Va., eloped with Kizah Salmons, leaving his wife and four children behind. Mrs. A. took her baby along, but left four more children with her husband.

Judge S. R. Savage, Mr. Frank Harbison and the Misses Cartwell left on Tuesday morning for Tygart, quietly on a sort of pic-nic and partly on business—the Judge going out to attend to Mrs. Cartwell's interests in her large tract of land there.

Mr. Ashley, a telegraphic operator who went out at Cincinnati with the strikers, was here Tuesday morning on business connected with the Brotherhood. He reports matters in Cincinnati as quiet, business moving slowly and steadily from the Western Union.

Sam. Gideon, the New Clothier, has secured the Bushring building, and is making preparations to give the people of Huntington the first-class Fair, commencing on September 13th. Gideon has energy and public spirit enough to spread over a whole city with the county included.

Hon. W. W. Culberson and family and their guests, Miss Marie Hunter, of Fort Worth, and the Misses Cordelia and Jennie Richeson, of Lexington, and Col. Geo. S. Shannon, of the Bluegrass Blue-Grass Band, made a pleasant party for the Louisa camp-meeting grounds, Monday.

Died—At the residence of her grandmother, Mrs. Leonard, in Carter county, August 11, Miss Allee Leonard, infant daughter of D. B. Leonard, aged about 3 months. Short time but Mr. Wilcox was called upon to pass through another terrible affliction, the loss of his wife, only a few days before. The bereaved husband and father has the sympathy of the community.

Mr. Henry Towler, of Coalton, has sent us a small twig of oak which had on the one small stem thirty-five acorns, and we learn from him that the most crop in this section of Kentucky will be very heavy this year. We think this is a sign that we have been very unfortunate in business this year, having lost our crop, simply from not owning any bugs to eat of this meat.

Rev. John W. Hampton preached at the M. E. Church, South, in this city, last Sabbath, using his seventh sermon in the ministry. The church was crowded, and he held the strong attention of the audience throughout. He is a fluent speaker and his gestures and pulpit manner are graceful, showing a training as a lawyer. Mr. Hampton is earnest and zealous in his new calling and speaks with great feeling and conviction.

R. W. LAMPTON, P. M.

The firm of T. Powell & Son, dealers in firearms, ammunition, &c., has changed its place of business from the old stand on Main, Cincinnati, near Sixth, to No. 180 Main street, near Fourth. Mr. W. F. Powell is now the manager, and is a clever and accommodating gentleman. Any parties wanting a gun, pistol, ammunition, or fishing tackle, will find a large stock at this establishment to choose from, and prices always as low as can be found anywhere.

One thing is very noticeable in going over our mail gallays, and we wish we make the last remark, especially to the Misses. A lady will write: "Please send The Independent to Miss ——, at ——, and oblige, Yours, ——;" and it may be that the next letter will contain a request as follows: "Please change my name to Mrs. ——, and send the paper to office below given." It's not the trouble in changing the name and address to which we wish to cite attention, but it's the matrimonial effect that the paper has on the ladies—sor

AND HYGIA HOTEL AT OLD POINT COMFORT.

The Second Annual Excursion from Lexington and Central Kentucky to Old Point Comfort and Washington, under the auspices of the Kentucky Female Orphan School of Midway, will leave Lexington August 30th, at 4 P. M., and run through direct to the Hygia Hotel at Old Point. The attractions of this excursion are so well known and now raise changed for the trip should induce a large number to visit the sea shore. The price of round-trip tickets to Old Point and return will be $12.00; Washington via Old Point and Potomac River steamer, and return, second way, $13.00; Washington via Old Point and Baltimore and Ohio steamer, and return, second via Alexandria and Charlottesville, $14.00. Tickets will be good going only on the Special Excursion train of August 30th, but will be good to return on regular trains until September 10th, inclusive, with stopping over at any point on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway.

The scenery of Virginia is of the grandest character—so diversified that it becomes enchanting. Dark caverns and narrow defiles are followed closely by quiet and picturesque valleys. The passage over the Alleghanies is high up on the mountains, overlooking, here a grim-looking chasm, and there a broad, fertile valley. The eye can scarcely rest upon a spot that has not been sanctified by heroic deeds and made memorable by the historian's pen.

The Valley of the Shenandoah, Montebello, Goodonville, Richmond, Seven Pines, Williamsburg, Fort Monroe and Hampton Peninsula, Manassas, Bull Run, and Gettysburg—all passed through the hottest battles of the war.

This is the best season of the year to enjoy the bathing, fishing, sailing, and crabbing at Old Point Comfort; and a visit to the Springs therefrom at this season of the year will find them filled with a gay throng on pleasure bent. Follow the advice of the never-to-be-forgotten John Minor Botts, "Whist we live let us live," and take this trip by all means.

Pamphlets and descriptive circulars of the Hotel and Resorts may be obtained from W. W. Mosseley, Lexington, Ky., or B. F. Lacy, Superintendent Kentucky Female Orphan School, Midway, Ky.

Last Thursday morning, about 4 o'clock, at the Lake Motel, at Mook's Station, we awakened by some noise about the open window, and on being aroused made some remark to his wife about leaving the window up and allowing the prowling dogs to get in. He soon changed his mind about dogs, for upon looking around he saw the form of a man standing in the attitude of making an entrance. Acting on the impulse of the moment, he caught up his revolver, ran out of and around the house and met face to face with the thieving villain, who wheeled and started on a run—away. Mr. M. fired and the ball apparently took effect in the fellow's back, for he staggered back in air but did not fall, and kept on running until he struck and fell over a sycamore stump in the yard. Three more shots were fired at him during and after his fall, none of which took effect, but were close to him. As soon as the thief were out from the stump over which the man fell, Mr. M. pursued no further, as his revolver was empty, but upon investigation found the thief to be of an epicurean nature, as the victuals in the house showed, for he had a good supper. He went out to the railroad and discovered some tracks which he supposed were made in preparatory to making an entrance into the house. The tracks were those of a pair of shoes, and a nice overcoat, valued at $15, in the pocket of which were a pair of kid gloves; they will be a—to Mr. M. when he came out winner. A cool, cool man was seen loitering around in the woods after that, by some other parties, with his arm in a sling, which no doubt was the burglar of Thursday morning's last. At last accounts he was making his way to Ironton. He was making his second entry into the house when he was discovered him, just in time to save property and it may be lives.

Camp-Meeting.

The camp-meeting near Louisa is a great success. It is well attended by well-behaved people, and order is well preserved. The attendance and the singing is splendid. The grounds are beautiful, and are cool and shady, well provided with water, and all conveniences and comforts. Ample preparations are being made for the same crowd that will be on hand next Sunday; in addition to the water there will be a large supply of ice placed at convenient places through the grounds, the boarding tent and refreshment stands will be well provided, and will feed the multitude in reasonable prices, and plenty of cars will be provided. The Chatteroi will sell tickets at half-fare rates, and will also run a special train next Sunday at half-fare, leaving Louisa at 7:30 A. M. Rev. Dr. Mullenix, of Zanesville, Ohio, and other eminent divines, will preach next Sabbath.

The portraits on the new postage stamps that come into use October 1st are: One-cent, Franklin; two-cent, Jackson; three-cent, Washington; five-cent, Garfield; six-cent, Jefferson; twelve-cent, Clay; fifteen-cent, Webster; thirty-cent, Hamilton; ninety-cent, Perry. The drop letter rate of postage will remain unchanged, that is, the letter will be half cents or fraction thereof at free delivery offices; and no changes are made in the rate of postage on second, third and fourth class matter. It costs as much under the new law for a drop letter as it does to send a letter from New York to San Francisco, over 3000 miles. The drop letter postage will no doubt be reduced at the next session of Congress, as well as the postage on newspapers, magazines, and other transient matter from the instructor. Respectfully.

Recent arrivals at the Aldine Hotel include: Mrs. J. D. Thompson, Louisa; Mrs. Croach and wife, Lewis Apperson, Mt. Sterling; E. B. Titus, Leon; M. Freese, R. F. Thompson, J. D. Newspaper Change.

H. S. Washington has disposed of his interest in the Louisa Sentinel to partner in his partner, B. A. E. Leslie. The Banner and the Pikeville Pioneer-Enterprise are to be consolidated next week. The new paper will be published at Pikeville as Pioneer-Enterprise, and will be called the "Banner-Enterprise." It will be under the editorial control of R. A. E. Leslie, Mr. J. H. Pierce, associate editor and manager. The Banner and Enterprise are both good papers, and the consolidation will no doubt enable the proprietors to introduce several new features, and add greatly to the popularity of the consolidated offspring.

Last Sunday evening as Mr. J. H. Emmons was returning with his team from Huntington, just after crossing the R. R. track at Guyandotte, the bit broke and the horses started to run away. Thomas Spiser jumped out and sprained his knee, but Mr. Emmons, the other passenger, left the vehicle. Mr. E. held back and guided the horses along with the hame that has left in his mouth, until they reached Lake Raven, where the horses had over spent their fury, and calling ahead to some gentlemen, they complied with the request to hold a rail across the place, which brought the horses to a stand still.

On Board Str. Fleetwood, }
Cincinnati, August 8th, 1883. }

INDEPENDENT: Dear Sirs.—I see from your paper that I am reported being found in the same shoes Str. Fleetwood at Huntington Thursday, August 2d, and ever heard about one mile below Huntington. We stopped there about an hour, but I did not see any more. We have a black oil-cloth carpet-bag filled with shoes, and I am endeavoring to letters or papers to designate who the unknown was, or what part he was waiting.

The Wheelersburg, Ohio, Stock Sale takes place on Tuesday, August 21, 1883. The last one held there was a complete success, and gave great satisfaction to buyers and sellers. If you have stock to sell take it there, and get good prices. If you want to buy you will find a large lot of stock to select from, and at prices low as well. The owners of the fairgrounds have made the sales in charge is a guarantee that everything will be just right.

Miss Hannah Dodson, of Prospect Furnace, who has been visiting Mr. Fred Spring's family in this city, left yesterday to visit relatives in Huntington.

E. S. Thornton's saw mill at Enterprise burned last week; no insurance. Mr. T. is an enterprising business man. We hope he will not be stopped by misfortunes like this.

In Memoriam.

Asleep in Jesus!—blessed sleep!
From which none wake to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the throes of woes.

How gently we can speak of our dessed sister, Lucinda Lynn, whose spirit left its frail abode and winged its way Heavenward, August 1, 1883, having been married long while with all mortals with the vanities and follies of this world for a period of twenty and 26 days. She remained steadfast to her early teachings, never forsaking the One who sold: "I give unto my life for thee."

For over two years she was afflicted with that fearful disease, consumption, during four months of the time was confined to her room through all of the sufferings which she endured she looked unflinchingly forward to the time when that grim destroyer, Death, would forever sever her connection with this world and give her a passport to the dwelling place of Love.

Our sister was born April 24, 1851, in Lauderdale county, Alabama, and moved to this State, in company with her parents, in the fall of 1861. She united with the Missionary Baptist Church, on the third Sabbath in February, 1870, at the Unity Church in the Old Woods, and from that time remained one of Christ's most faithful workers, always bearing the command: "Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

The friends of the deceased have our sincere sympathy in the loss of their dearest sister; but we must remember that our loss is her gain; knowing as we do that our sister is in the realms of the blest. Oh! who of us would call her back, even if the power were given us to do so? to this unfriendly world, to tread again the cold paths of life, to bear the ills and sufferings of life before; for our elder brother has given us sweet assurance of this in the words "In my Father's house are many mansions; I go to prepare a way for you." Yes, we can say, "Not our will, but thy will be done." Let us be ready when our time shall come, for our days are numbered and will indeed fall asleep in Jesus.

Shotgun and Fish-Hook.

The new Illustrated Sportsman, which is a large weekly journal devoted to shooting and fishing, has just been reviewing the growth of these pastimes in America during the last ten years of the present century. The editor claims that anglers and hunters have increased in a ratio almost incredible to those who are familiar with the sport, and he says that these pastimes are held in much higher esteem than formerly. The use of rod and gun is no longer an indication of shiftlessness. The Forest and Stream says its correspondents and contributors are largely distributed among the professions. Clergymen, lawyers, physicians, editors, bankers, business men, farmers, and, in fact, all classes of the intellectual and industrious workers of the day, are falling into the very commonplace custom of taking a week or two off in the middle of every summer. Game and fish are not so plenty as they were; but the Forest and Stream maintains that with a wise protection in its breeding season the game may be preserved in fair abundance for many years to come. The editor believes in strict enforcement of the trespass laws, and says that if the general sportsman will see that all trouble in getting permission to shoot and fish—that the rights which sportsmen claim to be, and with strict trespass laws would be, supposed. That strikes us as being rather sensible talk.

The New High School.

Prof. J. V. Martin will open a High School at the old Academy building in the Beech Grove on the first Monday in September, 2nd prox. The Professor will be here on or before the 20th of August, and will remain there until the school opens. Those who are interested in teaching, and has the highest testimonials as to character and ability as a teacher, from Greenville, Ind., and other points, will do well to call on Professor Martin, for any information as to terms, branches taught, etc., as he has some elsewhere further satisfactory calling on his part.

Worthy of Praise.

As a rule we do not recommend Patent Medicines, for experience has taught that really is a public benefactor, and does positively cure, then we consider it worthy of praise. We know of such a medicine in Electric Bitters are truly a most valuable medicine and will surely cure Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Complaints, even in the worst form or character. We know whereof we speak, and can freely recommend them to all suffering. Sold at Wm. Grant's drug store, Ashland.

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisement that you avoid all suspicion.

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible.

"To induce people

"To give them a fair trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.

"THE REEKS so favorably noticed in all the papers,

"Editors and scribes, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

"And ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years.

"The doctors doing her good?

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about,"

"Cured! Indeed! Yes!

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery

"From a complication of kidney, liver, stomach troubles and Nervous debility.

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief.

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"We think much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we believe it will, if he will use Hop Bitters. A LADY of Utica, N. Y.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., New York.

SCROFULA
and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Swellings, Tumors, Tetter, Ringworm, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.
To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to healthy and natural action. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It purges the system from all impurities, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all cause of disease, and restores the patient to a well and complete master of all scrofulous diseases.
A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.
"Some eight years ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were so badly ulcerated that I was lame, and was obliged to use crutches. I was under treatment for a long time, but did no good. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my health generally improved. I feel very grateful for the good Your medicine has done me." — Mrs. Mary Lee, Cor. Ninth and Jackson Sts., Jeffersonville, New Orleans, La., Mar. 29, 1882.
"If any person interested are hurled to see my letter of April 29, 1880, I will say that Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co. of Lowell, Mass., have offered me a reward of $1,000 for the cure of my daughter, Mrs. Lee, of Jeffersonville, New York, who with other physicians is testimony of the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge." — Mrs. Lee.
The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. F. Hall, of Rockwood, N. Carolina, June 7, 1882, "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having tried in vain to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent preparation, and a blessing to mankind."
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the blood, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, Scrofulous Humors, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.
It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, as a single bottle of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

Telegraphic Matter.

Our latest correspondence, May 16, 1883, brings to us the narrative of Henry B. Ingram, the General Superintendent of the District Messenger Co. of New Haven, Conn. Mr. Ingram says: "For many years I have been nearly troubled with a weak and tired feeling across the loins, almost invariably accompanied by a headache. I had noticed also that at stated periods following these pains my urine would be highly colored, and leave a heavy brick-colored sediment when allowed to stand in the vessel; my rest was broken, and I was discouraged to an alarming degree. Nothing helped me. I was prescribed for by some of the best physicians in New York City, where I was located at that time, but obtained no benefit or relief. When all most ready to give up in despair a acquaintance said to me, 'I want you to try Hunt's Remedy.' I did so, and hardly twenty-four hours had elapsed before I obtained relief, and my pain was gone. The above symptoms had disappeared, and I improved steadily, and was infused with new life, so that I could resume business again, which is one that subjects me to strains of all kinds, which are likely to affect the kidneys, namely: Erecting telegraph and telephone lines. Hunt's Remedy now occupies the most honored place in my cabinet of medicines. I take great pleasure in recommending it, and I heartily recommend it to all who are troubled with diseases of the liver, kidney, or urinary organs. It never fails to cure."

Town Clerk Forty-Two Years.

The following is from Mr. Othniel Gager, the well known and respected Town Clerk of Norwich, Conn. Mr. Gager is 89 years old, and his voice is as good as his bond. On July 2, 1883, he written follows: "For years I have suffered with disease of the kidneys and bladder, and was induced to try the renowned medicine Hunt's Remedy as a specific for these complaints. It has not only been the means of relieving me of terrible pain, but has cured a number of my complaints. To-day I am performing the duties of the office of Town Clerk, which I have held for forty-two years, which I could not be able to do were I not in a fair state of health owing to the use of Hunt's Remedy."
