COULD WE BUT KNOW.

Could we but know
The land that endeth our dark, uncertain travel,
Where the pilgrim-soul shall at last find a resting-place—
Ah! if around the spirit's inmost cavit
Aught of that country could we surely know—
Who would not go?

Might we but hear
The hovering angel's high imagined chorus,
Or among the stars, with lovedones, descry
One radiant visit of the realm before us,
With one spirit-whispered given to see and hear,
Ah! who would fear?

Were we quite sure
To find the spirit-friend we left on land to weep,
Or there, by some celestial stream as pure,
Begin a new, and ever-lovelier life
This weary mortal coil, were we quite sure,
Who would not sleep?
—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

MR. BARTON'S HOUSE-HUNTING.

"I give it up!" said Mrs. Carmichael, in despair.

"Now it was neither riddle nor conundrum, but only this young married housekeeper was "giving up." The expression was merely an index to the despair of her husband.

She had been house-hunting all day, all week, for the month—for, since the stony-hearted landlord raised the rent of the little cottage home, which they already inhabited, twenty-five per cent., and left it as inevitable necessity to move—and she could find no home for the sole of her foot.

"I mean, I give it become of us. I'm sure I don't know," said Mrs. Carmichael. "For we can't pay more, and we can't live under an umbrella in a field, and I'm sick of the month and what rents are entirely out of the question."

"That's nonsense, my dear," said Mr. Carmichael. "We have several plenty of houses to be had!"

"That's just my yourself," said his wife with spirit.

"Why, I'm sure business to attend to," said Mr. Carmichael. "We are always in the rushing season in the spring of the year with our wholesale orders. We can't join go!"

"Joiner!" repeated Mrs. Carmichael.

"Yes, John," said her husband.

"I never knew you to do it, sir," said Mrs. Carmichael.

"It's not so bad a suggestion," said Carmichael. "John isn't such a slave to business as I am, and—"

"But what do John know about a house?" exclaimed the young wife pitiously.

"My dear child," said Mr. Carmichael, in a tone of pity, as if he meant, "to hear you talk, one would im gine that house-hunting was a science, and required a college course. John isn't a fool. Tell him what you want, and how much you can afford to pay, and that will be all that is necessary."

So it came to pass that Mr. Barton—Mrs. Carmichael's brother—who was an enterprising young lawyer, found himself burdened with the weighty responsibility of the family house-hunting.

"A fine idea!" said Mr. Barton. "I might as well be a married man and be done with it."

"Dear John, do oblige me!" coaxed his sister. "I'm sure you don't mind a little time and trouble, and I'm clean tired out, with the baby's teething and Bill's hearty appetite, and—I'm sick."

"Very well," said Mr. Barton, pursing his lips up into whistling shape. "I'll take a one sort of a house, or I'll know the reason why!" and from that moment with it, don't blame me."

And he commenced the next day in good earnest, armed with a list of houses which might apparently content a dozen families.

The very first house was a pretty little Philadelphia-looking mansion, on a side street, with a window full of hyacinths and a sewing-machine singing away in the sitting-room.

Mrs. Blake was making some pink frocks for her baby, and her friend, Miss Daffodil, was sitting with her, in a dissatisfied of some pink and orange pinafore, blue-eyed girl, with a thin figure in a pink cotton suit, bordered with a "rickrack" tape.

"There's the bell!" said Mrs. Blake, as she flung a pinafore into the lap of her friend's lap, to be duly finished with button-holes and buttons.

"Who can it be at this hour of the morning?" said Miss Daffodil, with a terrified glance at the mirror.

"Oh a house-hunter, I suppose!" said Mrs. Blake in accents of disgust.

"Please, ma'am," said Norah, appearing at the door, "a gentleman to see the house."

Miss Daffodil jumped up and fled precipitately into the closet.

"Don't open this door, Maria, whatever you do!" said the frightened whisper.

"I'll not be afraid, dear," said Mrs. Blake.

The next minute Mr. Barton was shown into the room.

"Sorry to disturb you, madam," said he pleasantly! and he was looking for an eligible house, and the agent has put this one in my list."

"You are looking for yourself!" said Mrs. Blake in accents of disgust.

"Of course," said Mr. Barton, who had been effectually "posted" by his sister. "Our family number two children—and we're quite particular about a light home, good plumbing and water-tight roof."

"Good gracious!" said Miss Daffodil, among the tea cups and saucers, "It is John Barton. The base deceiver! to let us all suppose he was a married man!" and the rosy color mantled to the very dimpling pink and white rosettes hered low she let John Barton kiss her at the last pieces, and not nobody at looking.)

"I suppose," said he, all unconscious of the pretty prisoner in the chinacloset, "that I'd better write down a list of the rooms and dimensions."

"Yes" said Mrs. Blake, "and then your wife can come and look at the house. For, of course, a gentleman can't be expected to understand all about these little household conveniences."

"Oh, of course not," said Mr. Barton. "The idea of my thinking of such things!" and Miss Daffodil, hysterically clasping her hands.)

And the two left the room.

Miss Daffodil could hear them overhead, on the stairs, passing through the hall, and finally the front door closed with a reverberating sound, and Mrs. Blake came back to the sewing-machine and laid down her work.

Miss Daffodil had by this time emerged from her prison-cell and stood at the window.

"What a very pleasant young gentleman!" said Mrs. Blake.

"He is a miscreant!" cried Miss Daffodil, whirling around, like an opera dancer, on one foot.

"Why, dear, what's the matter?" said Mrs. Blake, in amazement.

"He has been trying to make to me at church socialies and picnics for three months!" said Miss Daffodil. "and now he turns out to be a m—m—married man! Oh, dear, oh, dear! is there no end to the misery this causes!"

And Jenny Daffodil flung herself, sobbing, on her friend's shoulder.

"Don't cry, dear," said Mrs. Blake; "Perhaps he didn't mean anything. Men will flirt, you know."

"But he told me he loved me."

"Dear, dear!" said Mrs. Blake.

"And he asked me to marry him."

"I never heard anything like it in all my life!" said Mrs Blake.

"And he gave me a ring with a little tiny spark of a diamond in it," added Miss Daffodil.

"Send it back, my dear," said Mrs. Blake, "at once!"

Mr. John Barton would hardly credit the evidence of his senses, the next morning, when the postman handed him the mysterious sealed packet which contained the little engagement ring.

"What on earth can have happened?" he asked himself.

Instinctively, he turned to his sister for consolation; but Mrs. Carmichael had just gone to complete the bargain for the little Philadelphia brick house on Merrimac Street.

Miss Daffodil didn't go into the china closet this time; she stay retired behind the window curtains.

She was disappointed to see what John Barton's wife was like; and Mrs. Blake drew herself up in her chair, when Mrs. Carmichael was shown into the apartment.

"You are the lady whose husband called yesterday," said she—"by the name of—Daffodil."

"Not my husband," said Mrs. Carmichael—"only my brother. Barton is the name—it's quite correct; but mine is Carmichael."

"Ah, indeed!" said Mrs. Blake. "And when may we expect his wife to call?"

Mrs. Carmichael laughed.

"He hasn't got any Jenny," she said. "He's an old bachelor."

("What!" said Jenny Daffodil, behind the curtains.)

"Did he say he was married?" said Mrs. Carmichael.

"Well, since you ask me the question," confessed Mrs. Blake, "I don't remember that he did say so in so many words. But I naturally took it for granted."

"He was engaged to a very sweet young lady," said Mrs. Carmichael, "a Miss Daffodil, whom I have never seen. But just at present he is an old bachelor, and—"

"Very fine peese we have both been!" cried Mrs. Blake. "Jenny, come out here this minute! Kiss your sister-in-law that is to be. We have jumped to conclusions!"

So the matter was settled. Miss Daffodil received the diamond ring back again, and was kissed in a hurry, and Miss Daffodil in her lover, Mr. Barton in the prospect of a minute, and introduced to Mrs. Carmichael in the eligible house which her brother-in-law had secured for her occupancy.

"But if I live to be a hundred years old," says Mr. Barton, "I'll not offer to go house-hunting again."—Saturday Night.

To Avoid Cold.

There is but one way to keep the body healthfully warm, and that is to wear sufficient clothing, dressed properly for as the weather changes. On cold, rainy days it is better to wear clothing that when the sun pours down, hot and sultry. It is a popular idea in this country that if we wear special warm clothing we are liable to chilliness and great coats will afford us no extra protection when we go out. But this is disproved by a great many people who never stole in only think of the facts which have come within their own observation. Most persons must have noticed that, after sitting in a theater which is sufficiently heated, and getting chilled to a greater or less degree, the putting on of coats and wraps, which they had come with, have no effect, and the chill which remains is apt to result in a severe cold. On the other hand, if an overcoat is kept on in a heated theater, so that the wearer feels comfortable, his warmth is undisturbed as he goes out, and the change of temperature does not have the expected effect, notwithstanding it may be addition to the weight of clothing. Such an experience as this should convince us that the wearing of clothing made especially for warmth should not be confined to the open air, but that the indoor draught and occasional chilliness, to which every one is more or less subject, should be provided against by always wearing warm clothing, in the shape of underwear, or of flannels, or of an outer coat or dressing gown.

Kentucky Education.

"Well, Colonel B." said a friend of education in Kentucky to a member of the Legislature, "I suppose we can have your support this winter?"

"Yes, sir-ee!"

"Do you your educational interests, or course. We are agitating the question, you know, all over the State."

"Dog on your educational interests, I don't know much more of it in my ear."

"My dear Colonel, you surprise me! What makes you think that way? Are you not in favor of education?"

"No, sir-ee, I hain't."

"Why not?"

"Well, because I hain't. It makes trouble for me. You see, before I was eddicated all I had to do was to make a cross mark for my name, but now I've got to wrassle with a pen-point half an hour, and run my tongue out like a slice of fat bacon! Before I eddicated and kan sign my name. (Or my name is signed for me,) and I'm too well eddicated myself to be fooled any further."—Merchant Traveler.

A Judicious Darkey.

Old Uncle Moses had never been to the theatre, but having stuck up bills for a theatrical troupe and having received a free admission ticket to the gallery, he concluded to attend the performance. He went dressed up in his Sunday attire. He had not been inside of the door when he turned to run when he emerged shaking his head.

"Don't you like the performance, old man?" asked the surprised doorkeeper.

"No, sah, I don't like dem performances sayin' one thing an' doin' another."

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Neffu sayin' 'reptin' a woman on de platfum get to talkin' 'bout family affairs wid a strange old saunter 'roun, an' I didn't perpose to stay. My old marster in Virginny got shot plum to pieces a-doin' dat fer less'n twenty dars alters trouble wiar dat sort ob foolishness I'm gone an' I'm a-pulldisluss nigger, I is. I don't want ter be sho in de big ye by mistake, or brunged up as a witness in de case wiar it strikes de courts."—Texas Siftings.

Duffy's Dog.

"What is the trouble with the minister?" said the grocery man to the bad boy. "He was in here this morning with the tail of his dark coat sewed up, and when I asked him to sit down he said he was standing up to mend entirely now, and when I asked him if he had been you lately, bested he had, he said he sorrery, and he never wanted to see you again. I hope you haven't done anything you will be sorry for."

"It wasn't me at all. It was Duffy's dog," said the boy, as he turned away with a laugh. "You see, the minister felt so bad about the bad boy to me when I asked questions of him, and he met me on the street and apologized, and said heredfter he would try to show in a Christian spirit and would answer my questions I might ask him. So I began to ask him how he thought it was that Daniel had such control over the lions when they cast him into the den. I told him I thought Daniel had chloroform on his handkerchief, and when the lions got a sniff of it they drew back and let Daniel go. I told him he said that wasn't it. He said it was the power of man over the brute creation and showed the efficacy of prayer. He said Daniel prayed three times every day, and then looked the lions right in the eye, and a lion wouldn't have gall enough to eat a man who looked straight in his eye. To illustrate his point, he said he could take a vicious dog right in the eye and the dog would get tail and run. I said I had just passed Duffy's, and the dog barked and growled, and the minister said that he wasn't surprised to see that dog with the human eye over the brute, and he wished I would go home and see if I knew that dog, 'cause Duffy used to have been mean, and I went right in a-see. I didn't want that dog to think I was trying to play any Daniel business on him, because every little jaguar looked at the dog; and when the minister got to the door he stops I says to myself, Daniel, you t—ter be getting home; but Daniel d— t get home till it was too late. But I guess he would have saved his coat if he hadn't tried to pull the dog out of the picket fence. The minister is a a-deliberate man, but when the dog began to tangle his teeth up in his coat tail he felt that it was good to be somewhere else, and he began to go away to look some other dog in the eye. I guess Duffy's dog is not the right kind of a dog to look in the eye. I think different dogs is different about being looked in the eye. The minister looked like a biting terrier when he left he came over that fence. They need n't tell me our minister never belonged to a gang of boys. He couldn't get over a fence that way and always have his coat tail sewed up. He never stole in only three of the facts which have come within their own observation. Most persons must have noticed that, after sitting in a theater which is sufficiently heated, and getting chilled to a greater or less degree, the putting on of coats and wraps, which they had come with, have no effect, and the chill which remains is apt to result in a severe cold. On the other hand, if an overcoat is kept on in a heated theater, so that the wearer feels comfortable, his warmth is undisturbed as he goes out, and the change of temperature does not have the expected effect, notwithstanding it may be addition to the weight of clothing. The Lime-Kiln Club.

"If Boulder Pizarro Grant am in de hall to-night he will cause step fo'd," began the old man as Samuel Shin stuck the triangle and sent its quivering notes dancing along the ceiling.

"Brother Pizarro was present, and he stepped, his eye a-flashin' wid de alarm and his knees losing their sand as he entered.

"Brudder Grant," continued the President, "you am a young man on de dead-step of life; you war wery tight pons an' a wery short coat an' a wery narrow hat, and you kin see de hull wrekon-ville. De great world am tightly bound to you. If you begin right an' dares bet two to one dat you won't sit in a Governor chair fifty years wi' safety. If you begin wrong it will be safe to bet 1,000 to nuffin dat you will bring up in de Lawson Prison befo' you am forty an' gray.

"Yes, sah, Iza tryin' to start right," said Pizarro, as Brother Gardner stopped to wipe the sweat off his face.

"I hope so—I hope so, but I doubt it. Brudder Pizarro, I'm bad eye on you for some leetle time back. I doan' find yo' would liar or steal or burgler or forger, but you has fallen into a wery bad habit. De odder day you met a friend in de street, and he stopped you a-axed you if you war gwine on de excursion to Niagara Falls, and you gave yo' a sigh. On another occasion I heard you remark dat you war tired ob yo' work to mun'. Again you observed dat yo' feelings fell and yo' spirits sank when you told yo' wife dat you had invited yo' an' you adrised Pickles Smith to 'tet on de table. Dat, sah, is de ve' tingiest mean, Brudder Grant!"

"I don't see—I don't see—I am victim, as he stood on one leg and scratched his head.

"Nor I, either. Iza looked up de Latin an' French an' German an' Greek language, but I can't find dat yo' am a prisoner as 'bire a hall,' see you in de grave-yard, an' I gives it up in de mistic." Why do you make use of 'em?"

"I don't know, sah."

The Elections.

In the state elections held on the 6th inst., Maryland and Virginia each gave about 12,000 Democratic majority. New Jersey elects a Democrat, Bennett, by 3,500 majority. Mississippi is Democratic to the usual extent. New York gives Cleveland, Curtis, Republican, for Secretary of state, 30,000 majority over Wheeler, his Democratic competitor. The balance of the state ticket is Democratic by from 4,000 to 8,000 majority. Ohio the Republicans carry both branches of the Legislature. Pennsylvania went Republican by about 15,000 majority. In Massachusetts Butler is defeated by about 11,000 majority, his charges of fraud and jobbery of other Presidential candidates, and gives his friends to understand he will be a Democratic candidate for Governor again next year. Connecticut has carried a Republican Legislature. Nebraska gives about three Republican majority. Minnesota gives Republican majority.

Mining and Manufacturing.

H. C. Barr has been appointed receiver for Collis Fleming.

Sixty three miners were killed in an explosion in the Pocahontas coal mines, Virginia.

That "authentic" soul at Gilson, Ohio, has turned up here to inform us that a "sailor" died.

The Shelby Mining Company's property at Coalgate is nearly opposite this city will be offered at auction on the 24th day of December o'clock, Dec. 11, 1883.

The silver dollars coined since from the Lake Tahoe mines has fallen off more than a half million in value in the past year. The cost of this one, and its transportation will have to be refined.

The Chatfield tinplate has been repaired, and working at the rate of three hundred boxes per week. Manufacturers are unloaded from it into stores Monday, and the Lawrence Republican says that the Pearl, Overland Mines in this place are to be operated this winter.

The receipts of coal by the Ashland Coal and Iron Railroad Company for the month of October were 23,858 tonnes; of coke, 1,000 tonnes; of iron ore, 2,000 tonnes; of limestone, 2,000 tonnes; shipped by the road, 25,000 tonnes and 62,000 to Cincinnati.

The Machine Works and Machine Shops have been building a lot of small cars for Cincinnati, Lawrence, Ashland and Greenup, enough to work Colonel Shea's steam pipe for the Norton Iron Works and have been doing the most unusual of repairs for the Chesapeake and Ohio and other delapidated patrons.

Hour, Solar, of Ironton, has the contract for building Northcutt's Furnace Works, which will be 50 feet by 100 feet long, 40 feet high. The stack will be of iron fronted with brick and will be 25 feet in diameter. The furnace will be stacks in 24 feet high and five feet diameter. Northcutt's furnace will be ready for the blast in October, and he will give Solar a contract for the stack, and he will be the large, rolling mill and nail factory he had last year. They shipped 1,200 keggs of nails last week.

The Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Company, that was recently organized by the Lorillards, is now in full operation, and and total loss of quicksand. Parties who have the interest of Lawrence county at heart will view, look possession of the property, and be satisfied that it is a good investment. Mr. Lorillard, or Mr. Lorillard's representative, will be here November 20th, September, Mr. H. A. Gant, Colonel Shea, Mr. Lorillard's representative, and Mr. Charles Allen, superintendent of the iron works, will be in Louisa to meet the citizens of Lawrence county, and show them the Virginia property, and show them how properly and profitably it is managed, and show them how improvements can be made, and how it can be conducted on shareholders.

The steamer Lizzie leaves her shaft at Huntington, and was towed to Louisa to have the shaft turned and a bar put in, and ordered her here at Cincinnati.

Gallipolis, Ohio, The Gradual Retrograde struck the Pomeroy bridge Sunday, losing two spans and a pier. The bridge was built in 1869 and was 1,000 feet long, and cost $100,000. The channel is now open to navigation.

Disastrous Conflagration!

THE NORTON IRON WORKS BURNED!

About half past one o'clock on Wednesday morning, a fire broke out near the office of the Norton Iron Works, about the oil room. The fire whistles were blown and many were quickly on hand and worked manfully, but about 2 a. M. Nr. J. Ward got it spread and spread like a flash under the iron roof, and by 3 o'clock the mill factory, forge and rolling mill were a smoking mass of ruins.

The dwelling houses on the opposite side of the street belonging to the Company were working with heat, and household goods were moved out, but some of them, not were saved from the devouring element by great exertion.

The scale house was on fire but was torn down in time to prevent the flames spreading to the stock house, engine house, containing two of the largest and finest engines in the country, and the gas factory, which, with the furnace department, remain intact.

The wind was blowing up the river, which, no doubt, prevented the further spread of the fire. There were 5,500 kegs of nails in the nail factory, 285 kegs of which were rolled iron, and the rest of iron lay in heaps and were burned and melted into almost solid masses of iron. The chimneys of the puddling furnaces are all left standing. Of the 91 nail machines, it is supposed most of them can be used again by supplying the smaller parts, as also the larger parts of the engine and machinery in the rolling mill. Mr. Montgomery says he has seen four nail mills burn and that has been his experience.

A rough estimate places the loss at $86,000, with insurance about one-third that amount.

About five hundred men and boys are thrown out of employment by this disaster. We presume the bona fide portion of the work will be re-built as soon as circumstances will allow.

Will S. Kirker, reported a defaulter to the 24 National Bank of Ironton, to the amount of $7,000, returned home last Saturday night. He says he took no money from the bank, only had $16,of his own money, with him, and left because of an unconstitutable desire to take a big spree, and that he knew nothing of the defalcation nor of the reward of $1,000 offered for his arrest. He says he has been traveling openly on the most public roads in the country, without any effort of concealment, and wore the same clothes in which he left; that he has been three days each in Richmond, Boston, New York, and Cleveland, besides at other stays in other cities. At Cleveland he ran out of money and pawned his fine watch for forty dollars to bring him home. In Cincinnati he met Charlie Bickoff, the clothier, and asked him to come home with him, as he was nearly played out after his extended spree. Bickoff came with him. His statements are said to be generally believed and the question is now, "who got the money?"

Meteorology.

Prof. Tice makes a "new departure" in his "Farmers' Almanac and Weather Forecasts" for 1884, adding much of value and interest to all, and especially to the farmer. The large amount of information in regard to the Cure of Stock, their Diseases, Symptoms Cure, etc., prepared by the most celebrated veterinary surgeon in America, and the rules, now given for the first time, which will enable any person to foretell the approach of frost, are among the new features introduced in the forthcoming issue. "Weather Foretelling", and the article showing how the clouds indicate the approach of storms, will prove of great interest. A "stormy corner" will be given for those who enjoy a good fight, while the usual full moon-keeper is not forgotten. Send for it (send it, follow its advice, and be happy. Tice & Lillingston, the publishers, 205 N. Third st., St. Louis, Mo., will mail sample copy and terms to the trade on receipt of twenty cents.

The Case Manufacturing Co., of Columbus, Ohio, have just finished for Messrs. Poage & Son, of this city, one of their complete Roller Mills, and we can truly say it would be a credit to any firm to erect such a mill. Mr. H. C. Poge, who has charge of the mills, showed us some of the flour, which will compare very favorably with any brands of roller flour made. Neither the Case Company nor Messrs. Poage & Son have spared no pains to make this a perfect mill, and to-day we have right here in our own city a mill turning out a super-fine flour equal to the equal of any flour made; why, then, should our citizens send their money away from home to buy an article they can get right here just as good and just as cheap?

R. W. LAMPTON, P. M.

Last week while Reuben Bolt, colored, was drawing up a bucket of sand from the 87½ feet deep, dry well, sunk by C. P. Barrett and H. A. Noite, on the line in the rear of their business, he noticed a rat and the bushes of the windlass struck him in the face, cutting close through into the gums, and knocking him down, but he quickly rose to his feet and grabbing hold of the windlass, succeeded in stopping it before the loaded bucket reached John Murphy, who was at work in the bottom of the well, in a place too narrow to admit of dodging the descending bucket, and in the bucket was saved by the presence of mind, alertness and grit of Reuben Bolt.

Being in Huntington last week we called to see our friend, W. H. Burke, at the Continental Hotel, and found him full of business, and he and Mr. Fairchild took charge that they have made much improvement in the way of painting, papering and renovating. The ladies parlor we particularly noticed as having been finished in a handsome manner. The Continental is a table equal to any set in this part of the country. Mr. F. L. Flagg presides over the office with grace and dignity.

Messrs. S. P. Hogge & Son have opened out a new store in the fine store room in Savage Block, corner of Broadway and Winchester, opposite the Ashland Bank. Everything in the store stock is entirely new, fresh and first class, and as they bought low for cash, they are able to sell at prices so low that the people cannot fail to be pleased. The Messrs. Hogge are young men of business, and the public can rely on any statement they may make. Call and see them; they will be pleased to show you goods whether you buy or not. Read their announcement in another column.

It is stated that the Sorghum Sugar Works at Grand Rapids, N. J., will this season turn out over 100,000 pounds merchantable sugar. The works are Robinson and Sterling, Kansas, are both running with the most complete success, and turning out an excellent quality of sugar. Prof. Cook, late Chemist to the Agricultural Department, is firm in the faith that we will finally not only produce enough sugar from this source for domestic consumption, but large quantities for export. The cane will not produce sugar unless fully ripe.

The Same Old Shaw!

WRITES AGAIN.

Ladies are Requested Not to Read This

DEAR EDITOR:—I come more take my pen in hand to inform my many customers who have been so much alarmed, and pegged to know what has become of me for the past few months, that I have been well pleased during the last few months to see so many of my old customers from East Fork, Princess, Star, Woods, and different points in Ohio, rolly into town on the livelest business place now to be found in Ashland, where they get the highest market price for their produce and more goods for their money than at any other place in Boyd county.

During the time I have made many new acquaintances, and I find that I have been bulldozed long enough, and that hereafter they will not fail to come to headquarters, make their wants known, and be supplied. Why, sire, some of them tell me that they have been bulldozed so long, "small fry," who barely exists, but who had the audacity to tell them that he is in business and was going to move to Ironton or Cincinnati—and of course he was so good I, but he was mistaken; I came to stay. I am like the man at a big meeting away up in Ohio, on Bulltain Creek, who was called. The preacher requested everybody who wanted to go to Heaven to rise up, and of course everybody rose, with the exception of a big six-footer, who sat still, and refused to never baited an eye. The preacher said:—"John Bullcain, you want to go to Heaven?" "Yes, but I ain't in any hurry about it; I would rather stay right here on Bullskin, where I am acquainted, for I don't know Well, sire, that old preacher looked worse than a man who had spent all his time change running for mayor and then got defeated. But he was a good man, and I hope and believe he is in Heaven to-day. He was a regular old pulpit-pounder, and every time I see that little old-fashioned pulpit, I mean! (single? It reminds me of old McCruity, the Grove Preacher, and of his latest sermon, or, some forty years ago, long before the war. Dear Editor, that I time and space, I could tell you many a joke that happened in that little old school-house.

But as there has been a slight coolness for a few days about the mustache I spoke of in my last letter, I will say that if he (our Billy) does not shun bad company, hurry up the mustache and get to flying around home in fair sez, he won't be like his daddy used to was, some forty years ago.

Editors, I have sent your paper to many of my old friends in different States who are nearly all business men; I have sent it to Ohio, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and many of them have written to send them on another for INDEPENDENT, and they all say they are surprised to see Ashland sent them such live-live papers as THE INDEPENDENT and Republican—no patent outside, all written at home.

C. B. Blake, a live business man of Gallipolis, Ohio, who has lately retired from serving a four years' term as sheriff of Gallia county, and who is a live man, full of fun, but who never gave anybody "any kind advice in his life, tells me to send him another INDEPENDENT, but not to send another to H—ll. He says he does not know which is the one, me or you, or the other dog. But I am getting too personal, and getting down rather low, for you can tow your own horn and I'll blow mine.

Kit says if I stick her name in the paper she will go down and clean out the place and Devil and all. But Kit was caught out in the big storm a few days ago, and when she came running into the store with the bundle of new goods in her hand I heard her says where is your umbrella? She said I went toward Paul Jones'.

I am now handling several brands of Flour. The best we have to offer is the Maysville Rose, Ribbon, made by Capt. Freese, at Louisa, Ky., and I feel it right square against the Little Duke, Big Duke, or any other kind of flour. We are selling lots of it, and Mr. Freese tells me if a single barrel of it does not give satisfaction, to send it back to him. I also have Patton & Co.'s best brand, which I sell every day. We also handle the Little Duke at the regular price, which is now $5.50. But I guarantee Freese & Co.'s Blue Ribbon to be the best flour manufactured in Eastern Kentucky. I have been selling a great deal of it lately, which I am selling at greatly reduced prices—very piece warranted.

J. W. Shaw has the latest mince-meat to be found in the city; also a full stock of Fruit Butter, Jellies and five kinds of Preserves.

Now, when I blow loud,
The boys all holler;
But Old Shaw's sugar
Is worth dollar for dollar—
As you go matching along.

Yours, as ever, J. W. SHAW.

Another Railroad to Ashland.

The I. B. & W. R. R. Co., whose lines of road now extend from Jackson, O., through Springfield and Hillsboro, to a point on the line 192 river and beyond, is seeking an Eastern outlet, and has commenced the work of building a road from Springfield to Ashland, nearly opposite this city, on the Kentucky side of the Ohio. The road will pass through Hindoston, were in town Thursday, gathering information, and report a two or more roadies by which an extension of the road to this city can be made. The road will be found to find a direct connection, by which they can build a road whose grades will not exceed fifty feet, and whose curves will not exceed 500 feet. Owing to the nature of the country, the road, if built, will be, no doubt, much in vain. They have surveyed a line from Springfield to Ironton. This route seems to be a direct route, most direct from Huron Switch, provided it comes down Blain and Pine creeks, passing near Howard and Centre, and thence by Pedro Furnace, and down the Ohio River and thence past Rice, Ellisonville and Hecla to Greenup and Petersburg.

Received at Harris & Osborn's, a fine lot of Palace Coal Vases; the Favorite Stove Boards; Ice Cream Freezers, Ice Picks, &c.; all which will be sold at very low prices.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE
Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the stomach, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their great success has been shown in curing they will prove equally valuable in Constipation, Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Fever, Jaundice, Pain in the Side, &c., Regulate the Liver and Bowels.

HEAD
ACHE

Purely Vegetable.

Small and very easy to take. Not more than one pill is a dose, and but one dose is required to regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD
ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint, but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our boast, and offer our pills to those who need them.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and easier to take than any other pill. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their action on the liver they do away with the cause of Piles, Jaundice, Biliousness, &c. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., New York.

AYER'S PILLS

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement. Such as Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These pills are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are constantly recommended by me to my patients as mildest and most efficacious. Your youngest child is only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the most pleasant I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so on every occasion."

Yours truly, W. L. Ross, M. D.
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 2, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in my family for years, as occasion has recommended to me, and have never found anything to do the work of them. I generally use them when I feel a cold coming on, and they soon cure it. Nothing so effectually keeps them on hand at our house as AYER'S PILLS. Our family physician prescribes them, and we have never had any cause to regret it."

Mrs. Mary Ann Dodge,
Mexia, Texas, July 12, 1882.

The Rev. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Mendon, Ga., says: "For many years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of various pills, I suffered severe and protracted inconvenience, until some months since I was induced to try AYER'S PILLS. I have entirely overcome my previous habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

Catarrh

At this season of the year everybody has a cold, and everybody has some of the frequent exposures the invalidism of catarrh. Without doubt nine-tenths of all the colds and coughs are catarrhal. Relief may be obtained by the use of Hunt's Remedy.

For many years in succession, beginning at the first of November, I was troubled with a cough and cold on my lungs, it consisted of an excessive flow from my nose.

Ringing and Roaring Noises

in my head, and I could not sleep, I would lie wide open for hours. Five years ago, about the middle of November, I began to use Hunt's Remedy. I was helped right away, but I continued the use of it for three months.

—Mr. Thomas Pullman, Ashland, Ky.

Jerome Boswell, merchant and extensive miller of New Salem, Franklin Co., Ky., says: "I have used Hunt's Remedy in my family for catarrh, and I find it the best medicine I know of. Hunt's Remedy is the one of its last remedies I shall use when I need a medicine."

"I have been troubled with that distressing complaint, catarrh, and have been using Hunt's Remedy for the same. I find it the best medicine I have ever used. It relieves me, has lasted ten years, and never could get any thing that would do me any good before."—Martin Shields, Chicago, Ill.

Dandy Cures Catarrh

Depends upon the amount and extent of the derangement. Many apparently incurable deaths from consumption can be traced to neglected catarrh. Hunt's Remedy relieves, protects, cleansing nostrils, the eyes weep, the throat ceases to irritate, and the patient sleeps undisturbed.

In such cases Hunt's Sarsaparilla corrects the poisons in the blood which are generating the poison from the blood through nature's great outlet, the kidneys, and purifies blood reaches the membranes and is wholesome.
