Dean Lappin:

Examination Schedule: Explained that examinations will be given according to the schedule no matter how many hours of credit are given for the course.

Asked that every list of names be presented in alphabetical order.

Registration: Urged that attention be given to registration to avoid unnecessary changes.

Suggested the following things that we can do to reduce number of changes:

1. Do not hold a place in a class for a student.
2. Check master card for each student when he comes to register. If he does not have one, he does not belong in registration line.
3. Check number on master card. No. 6 refers to special freshman program.
4. Check trial schedule card for advisor's signature. Send student to proper division for advisor's signature.
5. Initial card in proper place and give student correct card. If it is necessary to give him a card for another section, call student's attention to the change. See that he makes the change on the trial schedule card.
6. Permit no one to stay in your class whose name is not on the official roll.
7. Check on prerequisites.
8. Do not wait until a section is full to put people in other sections.
9. Do not send a student to Dean's office to make a change unless you know the student can make the change.

Blue change card will be used this summer.

Called attention to the fact that over 50% of the grades last summer were A's and B's.

Discussion of pressures on the colleges

Dean Lappin read portions of a speech made by President Dearing, Harpur College, New York (a liberal arts man). He identified the following pressures jeopardizing teaching:

1. Research emphasis--publish or else
2. More attention paid to graduates than to undergraduates
3. Tendency to use graduate students for teaching
4. Refusal to take education courses for personal improvement
5. Misuse of examination and examination procedures
6. Blind conservatism--refusal to accept new ideas and technology
7. Unwillingness of students to put off narrow vocational aims
8. Excessive interest of faculty and faculty organizations in fringe benefits instead of in improved quality of instruction
9. Preoccupation of administration with their duties, leaving no time for supervision of classroom activities
