BARNES NOMINATED FOR AWARD BY DANFORTH FOUNDATION

Lewis W. Barnes, Professor of English, was nominated for the E. Harris Harbison Award for Distinguished Teaching, through the Danforth Foundation, St. Louis. But upon investigation, Professor Barnes found the award is limited to those under 50. In responding, he said, "This occasion is one of the few occasions wherein I regret being fifty-four." The Newsletter editor wonders if the 50 age limit might mean that you can't trust anyone over 50 or is it 30?
