

100 Years at Morehead State: Lighting the Mountains

Presented by Dr. Adrian Mandzy's HST-310: Public History, Dr. Thomas Kiffmeyer's HST-352: The History of Appalachia and Archivist Dieter Ullrich, Special Collections and Archives Camden-Carrol Library

MOREHEAD STATE UNIVERSITY

An aerial photograph of the Morehead State University campus, showing various buildings, a large open field, and surrounding hills. A large, semi-transparent '100' is overlaid on the right side of the image, with the numbers appearing to be made of a dark material with a metallic sheen.

For the last 100 years Morehead State served as a light to the mountains. From the establishment of the Morehead State Normal School in 1922 to the attainment of University Status in 1966, the institution has provided a meaningful education to thousands of students. These posters, are a culmination of student's work that illustrates how the university has developed from a small school to what it is today.

Special Thanks:
David Gregory, Dean
of Library Services
and Dianna Murphy, Associate Dean of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences