THE BROKEN HANDCUFF.

By OLD CAP LEE.

[Chapter I, continued]

The clerk laughed and said:

"You don't seem to be in a very good humor over it, France."

"I ain't."

"Maybe you had better leave it alone."

"Not at all! What's the row?"

"A robbery."

"The particular?"

"A woman's scream first drew attention to the case. A hell man on duty at night rushed to the room whence the cry came, and the inmate told him she had been robbed, that a man had been in her room."

"Can I see this woman?"

"I suppose so. I'll send up and find out if she has gone back to bed or not."

"Just a second before you do. Is the woman here whose is the hotel?"

"No. Her husband is with her."

"Was he here at the time of the robbery?"

"No."

"When did it happen?"

"About an hour ago."

"I can! Then the husband was still out at two o'clock? It strikes me that's rather late hour for a respectable married man to be out."

The clerk laughed.

"Two o'clock is early for some of them," he said. "There's a more hardened man who does not think of getting in until after that time. He's not an exception by any means."

"Does his wife kick?"

"Not so far as I know."

"Where is the man who responded to her yell?"

"He right at hand. Jack."

An intrepid-looking man answered

"Jack, I'm authorized to say that:
tel, sing me things about the of Mrs. Surven's room.

"I am authorized to say that:

"At the time of the robbery,
Did you know first where the boy and—"I know it came from the office boy, and turned there at once.

Did you see my lady in the hall
No.

"I caught no glimpse of the man who committed the robbery."
I didn't."

"Where was Mrs. Surven?
I think she was in the hall until just as I was about to turn the corner. At that time I guess she remembered that she was in her nightclothes, and dove into her room out of sight."

"Did you know the room then from which the boy had come?"

I did when I got opposite, for it was slightly ajar. I called out to her, and she told me to wait a minute. It was not longer than that when she came to to the door with a wrapper on.

"Well?
She asked me if I had seen anything of a man running down the hall.
I sold her no. Then she said she had been robbed.

"That is practically all you know of the matter, then?"

"It is, sir.
Did she say when the man left the room—that is how long before she uttered her first call for help?"

"She did not.
Very well; I would like to see her now."

The clerk sent up to Mrs. Surven's room, and told her that the detective had come.

A few minutes later the detective was at the door of Mrs. Surven's room.
On entering he saw a man there, whom he shortly learned was the wife-man's husband, who had returned to the hotel only a short time previously.

In an easy way Fance said:
You have been robbed it seem?

Yes.
What are the circumstances? How did the thief get into the room?

Through the door. It was not locked.

Not locked?

No.

NEW YORK, JULY 1st, 1887.

The Croquet-Players.

Play croquet in town,
And you will look about,
For a smiling person.
The ball comes out
In next thing in view,
The older on the stand,
With a pipe in his mouth
And a cigar in his hand,
A lay boy will call,
With nothing to do,
With a smile on his face,
They have no time to go to town.
A full six day long,
They will be busy,
While wasting their time
In playing croquet.

At this idiot's game,
They all go,
Crying and swearing,
And laughing, ho-ho!

This is what you see,
When you go around
The Court-House yard,
At Frenchburg town.

Now remember dear readers,
Keep out of the way
Of the men and boys,
That play croquet.

How many two-cent postage stamps
Can you get for a cent and a quarter?
Don't answer so hastily.

In favor of protection—An old card.

A regular settler—The evening sun.

A death blow—A cyclone.

Science does more for man than the can. Pigs attacked by the most fatal diseases are frequently "cured" after death.

The Democratic barbecue was a success. Gen. Buckner made a good impression upon the people on Democrats and Republicans. He made a brief but inanswerable speech and Adams completely destroyed all Republiquean hopes, and Ed. G. O'Brien had no come to his appointment here the 16th. Thanks to prompt action of the officers, the day past off quietly.

The 11th in our district another battle was fought. The Standard said that the government was bound to do not to be lost in the election of a just and wise president. They were unable to do this and the election was lost to the Standard.

The former Republican does not believe that the Navy Department is the best in the country. The Standard is the paper of the country.

And now the name of a week's pa-

The reason sending us a copy of the paper to print is that we will receive a large sum of money.
We will give this prize to the one contributing the most original papers.

Our Premium.

We will give, to the person sending us the greatest number of cash subscribers within two months*, choice of the following books:

Life of Gen. Marion;
Picturesque Journeys in America;
Thaddeus of Warsaw;
Standard Fairy Tales;
Swiss Family Robinson;
The Boys of the Sierras;

All of the above books are nicely bound in cloth, retail price, $1.25.

The second largest list will receive a copy of Bill Nye's books (paper bound).

After two months the subscription price will be ten cents per month, or one dollar per year.

"I'm not able."

Is the excuse of a man who never gives anything to Sunday Schools or churches. Nine times out of ten he is richer than those who give freely.
Now "The Union Sabbath School" is trying to get an organ. If you want to give anything, give it freely. If you are too particular, if you are willing yourself, don't keep others from it, see some in town are doing.

I have a nice lot of old silk stockings yarn.
