Facts from the Censes.

If any man doubte that the American prolears a great nation, or the United States a great constry and great power, he has only ones Mr. De Bow's Statistical View of the inited States, just printed and distributed by oughten. In this case he will find that fact Congress. In this case he will find that fart has notatipped imagination, and the order realizing of history have eclipsed the widest visuose for more five vontaged from the collection of the word, that the people inhabiting a narrow strip on the Atlanta band, was a separate an independent nation—acree more than the three over years and was allotted to the average life of must and yet that small and insignificant people have grown in that short space to be a first rate power among the nations. History, in Accient of Molern times, presents no event, no appear.

arom the Statistical view of the United States just published by Congress, under the supervision of Mr. D. Bow, the Superintend-ent of the Census, the able and eminent Statis-tician, we extract a few of the leading and most Impressive firststicins, we extract a two of the feating non more impressive facts.

The territorial extent of the United Stater, for early ten times as large as that of Great Britain and France combined; three times as farge as the whole of France, Britain, Austria, Prussia, Spaig, Portugal, Help mm, Holland, and Denniwst, together; one and a half times as large as the Russian Empire in Europe, non-

The limits of the United States when their dispensations was achieved, (1733) did not exceeded 20,000 equal empire. In 1834 at was 206,2566 equal emiles, showing an increase of more than three fold in less than severally years. There are at attest and certainties "year, as the state of the power of France, Grest Britain, Austria, Pursus, Spain or Turkey.

At the beginning of the Revolution in 1775, the Colonies had a population of 2,955,000 ecols. At the close of the year 1834, the United States and apposition, in cound numbers of 26,500,000 ecols. But though the population of the United States and explicitly, the doubled. Thus, the spain of the Colonies had a population of the United States and continued the state of the population of the United States and continued the state of the population of the United States and except of the population of the United States and continued the state of the population of the United States and continued the state of the population of the United States and except of the population of the United States and except of the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered in the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered the population of the United States is much less than that of any European countered the population of the United States i the South, and harty the South-West. The monetarcholding beautiful to the South-West. The monetarcholding States.

In population the United States in 1550 was only exceeded by four of the European powers, and the States and the States and the States. The states are populated as white. Francis, and his British Empire in Europe. It is mearly, or quite, twice apopulous as sucher Praxis. Spain, Torkey, the whole of the German States, the whole of the Italian States, including Greece and the Sarias Republics, and excluding Naples and Edily; It is nearly three times a large as the kingdons of Sweden, Belgium and Perugat the Mingdons of Sweden, Belgium and Perugat Combined, and is equal to the Magragent population of twenty-four out of the thirty-even States into which McCollech divides Europe. Exceleirely of Ireland, it exceeds that of Great.

Exclusively of Ireland, it exceeds that of Great Brikin by a population nearly equal to that of Brikin by a population nearly equal to that of the State of Penanyivania.

Our limits will not permit us to follow out further, at present, this comparative view of the growth, progress, power, and reasources of the United States, as exhibited in the report of Mr. De Bow. The facts which it discloses, show that the United States is destined, if no untoward event shall make shipperced of its supercept of power and greatness such as the spectacle of power and greatness such as the world has never seen.
