STATE AUDITOR AND INSPECTOR FINDS SHORTAGE IN BOOKS OF CO. BOARD OF EDUCATION

F. D. Peterson Finds Fault In School Records And Books Of School Officials—Grand Jury Has Not Been Asked To Act Yet—Prewitt Says It Is Of Interest To Every Citizen In Rowan County.

Below appears the complete report of F. D. Peterson, Auditor and Inspector of the State Superintendent's Office, relative the Rowan County Board of Education and the County Superintendent's office, which was submitted to the Grand Jury Tuesday morning by Judge Henry R. Prewitt, for investigation and if justifiable, for indictment of those officers responsible for the existing condition.

In submitting the report to the Grand Jury, Judge Prewitt stated that it was a condition such as had never before developed in his district and one that directly affected every citizen of the county. He demanded a rigid investigation and if the facts warranted, an indictment against those who were responsible. He called attention to the fact that over $47,000.00 of illegal debts had been contracted by the Board of Education, that several thousands of dollars had been misappropriated and misused that notes had been sold at a discount contrary to law, that money had been paid, that records were poorly kept. He stated that Mr. Peterson should be called before the Grand Jury and required to verify his report and that either the County Superintendent, the County Board of Education or Mr. Peterson should be indicted.

"Such a condition as that indicated by Judge Tussey who was under each, is one that cannot be permitted to continue," said Judge Prewitt. "It is a condition that endangers the lives of every citizen of the county. I do not know anything about it, not living in the county, other than Judge Tussey's statement. I insist that you as the Grand Jury call in these peace officers, Chas. Keeton, Leo Hinton and Pink Atkins who exist on the grounds. Also if the facts of court to remove them from office. If the facts do not justify it, indict them and I will call a special term of court to remove them from office. If the facts do not justify an indictment, then I insist that you return an indictment against Judge Tussey, whom I know well as an honorable gentleman, for false swearing."

Asks Indictment Of Officers

Calling the Grand Jury before him on Wednesday morning, Judge Henry R. Prewitt, Circuit Judge of Rowan county informed them that under oath Judge Richmond Tussey, police judge of Rowan county had sworn that the peace officers of Rowan county had failed or refused to do their duty in arresting Jim Reynolds, after Judge Tussey had issued a peace warrant for him, and demanded that the Grand Jury investigate the statement and return indictments against those officers, if the facts warranted. If the facts did not warrant their indictment, Judge Prewitt asked that the Grand Jury indict Judge Tussey for false swearing.

"Such a condition as that indicated by Judge Tussey who was under each, is one that cannot be permitted to continue," said Judge Prewitt. "It is a condition that endangers the lives of every citizen of the county. I do not know anything about it, not living in the county, other than Judge Tussey's statement. I insist that you as the Grand Jury call in these peace officers, Chas. Keeton, Leo Hinton and Pink Atkins who exist on the grounds. Also if the facts of court to remove them from office. If the facts do not justify it, indict them and I will call a special term of court to remove them from office. If the facts do not justify an indictment, then I insist that you return an indictment against Judge Tussey, whom I know well as an honorable gentleman, for false swearing."

PAINTVILLE BOOSTERS TO PAY MOREHEAD VISIT

Word has just been received that "The Paintville Boosters" are out on a good will tour and will arrive in Morehead, Thursday, October 24, at about 10 a. m. There will be a good crowd of Paintville folk, and we should be ready to show them around the city and through the schools.

President Payne Speaks To Club

If the first regular meeting of the club can be taken as a prophecy, the year's activities will be both profitable and inspiring.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Warren C. Lappin, Tuesday evening, October 15th. Miss Catherine M. Braun, president occupied the chair, conducting the meeting with her usual gracious poise.

During the short business meeting reports were made by the chairman of the different departments of the club on plans for the year's work. The following delegates were appointed to attend the 9th District

SCHOOL PAPER IS EDITED SEMI-MONTHLY

The first issue of the Morehead Teachers College paper was issued last Saturday. The name has been changed from the More-Head-Light to The Trail Blazer. The paper is ably edited by Ernest White and a corps of reporters and editors who have organized a Journalism Club. It will be published twice a month for the time being although it is planned later to go to a weekly issue.

THE MINUTES

The proceedings of the Rowan County Board of Education are recorded in a loose leaf minute book kept by the Secretary. They are properly numbered and paraphrased, and are read and approved by the Board. The minutes record Board members present at each meeting. The Chairman, however, has not signed minutes for July, August, September, October, November, and December, 1928, and minutes for January, February, March and April, 1929. Minutes are not legal until signed by the Chairman and Secretary of the Board of Education.

A list of Board members and a list of subdistrict trustees are recorded in the minute book. All trustees have not taken the oath of office. Teachers' service record and teachers' certificate record in the main are complete for the year 1928-29, but they are not complete for years prior to that time. Teachers' salary record has not been kept. This is an important record and should not be omitted by the Superintendent. The valuation of school property has not been kept. This is an important part of the records of the Superintendent's office and should be complete. A record of the Board's liabilities and assets has not been kept. The records do not contain a complete, correct record of subdistrict boundaries. This record should be corrected and completed. There are filed in the Superintendent's office teachers' record books, which consider an insult to the teaching

Bald Eagles Trample Transy Frosh

Transylvania Freshmen, came to Morehead with blood in their eyes Monday for a football game with the Eagles of Morehead Teachers College. Late Monday evening, Transy called it a day as the long shadows dropped over Eagle Field and darkness shut in, with five minutes left to play, with the blood all out of their eyes and with the short end of a 50 to 13 score. The clean up squad of the Eagles was at its best, and how they did clean. With Clayton and Fraley showing up like stars, the last half developed into a track meet and the only reason there were not more scores made was that it takes time to run from one end of the field to the other.

Clayton, Fraley and Riddle are shining in the light of long runs for touchdowns. Clayton ran back and punt gave sixty-five yards to a Transy player. He repeated a few minutes later with a sixty yard run. Riddle intercepted a pass in the last minutes of play to through the entire Transy eleven for another.

The Eagles looked much better than they have looked this season. Laughlin, playing under the handicap of boils, McNabb with a sprained ankle, Carroll with the same thing and other injuries too numerous to mention, caused considerable concern before the game started, but the way they handled themselves later demonstrated that they were ready to deliver in spite of the handicap.

The first quarter passed without a touchdown by either side. Clayton in the second quarter broke loose for the first marker after a beautiful run of sixty-five yards through the entire Transy team. Norris kicked goal. Morehead followed with another touchdown and failed to kick goal making the score Eagles 13; Transy 0.

Transy kicked off and the ball was recovered by Lewis and Clayton, being recovered by Transy. Transy's ball on the twenty yard line. A successful pass gave Transy her first touchdown. The ball was carried over for the extra point. Transy again kicked off and in the pass back after the lineup Clayton fumble the ball and Transy recovered. Another long pass netted another six points and a touchdown. And the half was over. Incidentally it was the longest half that has ever

Winchester Merchants Kiwanians Are Given Make Good Will Tour Intelligence Test

An automobile caravan not unlike the one which invaded the Eastern section of Kentucky last month, will leave Winchester, Tuesday morning, October 22 at 8:30 o'clock for an extended tour through the Northeast section.

The object of the tour is not business selling nor advertising, but to make a good will tour. It will seek only cooperation and friendly relations between Winchester's neighboring cities.

The last trip was made to Jackson and proved most successful in that, at every stop, crowds had gathered to listen to the short talks, band concerts and receive souvenirs from the Winchester merchants.

Stops will be made in North Middletown, Shاربurgh, Bethel, Owingsville, Salt Lick, Farmers and Mt. Sterling. At each city a short snappy talk will be made.

The 30-piece Winchester Band which has gained repute throughout the State will accompany the motor-

Black Cats Lose To Olive Hill Comets

In a wield exhibition of "How Not to Play Football" the Morehead High School went down to defeat at the hands and feet of the Comets from Olive Hill, in a game Saturday at Olive Hill, which was featured by the first half, and by the fine spirit of friendship existing between the two cities. The score in the entire story was Olive Hill 18; Cats 0. And that just about told the story of that half.

The second half showed that Morehead team to better advantage. While the boys failed to score, they held the Comets scoreless likewise, and not only held them scoreless but had and held the advantage all thru the half. The Morehead Cats made 8 first downs in this half to three for the Comets.

At the outset of the game the Comets kicked off, Morehead receiving the ball on their twenty five yard line. A play through tackle netted eight yards with Peek Robinson carrying the ball. The ball was on the edge of the field and another line plunge resulted in a first down. With the ball practically the same position on the field the Cats failed to gain and kicked. Both ends went down and were waiting when Comet safety man received the punt. They actually had their arms around him and figured him tackled and some one on the side lines blew a whistle. Hackney and Caudill supposed it was the referee and released the Comet and a Comet he proved to be, racing seventy yards for the first

JURY BRINGS VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY IN REYNOLDS TRIAL AFTER SHORT PERIOD OF TIME

Case Starts Monday With A Pick Out Of 105 Men And Women Of Rowan County Citizens Found Jury Complete— Jury Left Court Room For Little Over One Hour And Came To Final Agreement.

Supt. J. H. Powers Makes Statement

TO THE CITIZENS OF ROWAN COUNTY:

At the request of Jack Wilson, Editor of the Rowan County News, herewith submit the following statement relative to the financial condition of the Board of Education:

A great deal of discussion is being carried on over the county on account of the financial condition of the Board and I feel that in justice to the men that have composed this Board that I should make this statement.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Anna Reynolds, charged with the killing of her husband, Jim Reynolds on May 28, 1929, returned a verdict of Not Guilty after being out for a trifle over one hour Wednesday morning. The verdict was brought in at noon and the vast crowd that had stood patiently for three days awaiting the verdict, breathed a sigh of satisfaction. There was no demonstration, as Rowan county audiences are schooled not to make a court demonstration. There is little doubt, however, that the verdict was a source of satisfaction to all who were present.

During the past few years the Board of Education has, at the urgent request of the citizens of the county, erected new buildings in almost every district in the county and had to pay for others that had been erected beforehand. The combined value of these buildings and equipment would be approximately $125,000. Coupled with this during the administration of State Supt. Colvin we were required by the state department to issue warrants to the teachers for amounts from seventy-five to ninety-five dollars per month when the entire revenue received from both the county and state would not permit us to pay, at that time more than fifty to sixty dollars per month and with seventy to eighty teachers to pay this resulted in an overwhelming indebtedness which has handicapped us ever since.

Notwithstanding this indebtedness

ELWOOD ALLEN GIVES STAG PARTY TO FRIENDS

Elwood, Allen entertained a number of friends at the Sam Allen home on Friday evening at a stag affair. The time was spent in playing bridge. Four tables were used the high score being to Everett Blair and the low score being acquired by Clarence Allen.

Following the bridge, a lunch of sandwiches and coffee were served to the guests.

Bridge Party Given Was Last Thursday

A delightful social event was the luncheon bridge at the home of Mrs. C. B. McCullough on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. C. B. and Mrs. W. K. McCullough as hostesses.

The home was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and a dainty luncheon was served to the assembled guests at 1:00 o'clock. Following the luncheon bridge was the order of the afternoon, with Mrs. Russell Becker winning the prize for the high score and Miss Christine Anderson the consolation.

Dainty corsage bouquets were given to each guest as favors and the entire afternoon proved to be a most delightful event.

CO. SUPERINTENDENT INDICTED FOR VIOLATION

County Superintendent J. H. Powers was indicted Thursday by the Grand Jury for Misfeasance in office. The indictment, if a conviction follows, carries a fine of from $100 to $1000 and removal from office. Misfeasance must not be confused with Malfeasance, the difference being that Misfeasance in Misfeasance the thing is not committed for personal gain and the indicted does not profit personally from the transaction.

Mr. Clay made what is probably the greatest plea he has ever made and one of the best ever heard in the Rowan Circuit Court.

The case was given to the jury at 10:50 and at 11:55 they returned a verdict of Not Guilty.

A Statement of Utmost Importance

In this issue we are publishing what undoubtedly is the most important report that has ever been offered to the citizens of Rowan county, the official report of the Auditor of the State Department of Education made this summer, an audit of the condition of the county school funds. There is nothing in which the citizens of Rowan county should take a deeper or more vital interest than in the schools of the county, for they directly affect every home and every child and parent in the county. On their proper administration depends the future education of those children who in years to come will be the citizens of the country, the children who in years to come will be the backbone and the brawn and sinew and brain of this county.

It is not in a spirit of vindictiveness that this report is published, for we feel that the gentlemen who are involved in this report are among our best friends. It is our belief, however, that containing as it does, news of such vital import to the citizens of Rowan county, that the Rowan County News would be doing far less, that its duty to its readers and subscribers were to hesitate for a second in bringing this report in its entirety to them.

A deficit or a misappropriation of funds in any amount is a serious charge, and in the amounts mentioned in the auditor's report are staggering. Regardless of personal feelings, regardless of friendship, regardless of sentiment this matter is one that must be handled fearlessly in justice to the people, Rowan county, whose funds have been misused, and whose trust has been placed in the officers.

Someone is at fault as Judge Prewitt remarked in his advice to the Grand Jury in bringing the matter to their attention. It may have been and probably was a fault with no intention to betray. The actual moral intention of the County Superintendent and the County Board of Education is not to be questioned. We believe that County Superintendent, Harlan Powers has not abused his office for the purpose of embezzlement in the slightest degree. We believe that the County Board of Education is made up of men who are sincere in their attempts to administer the school affairs of the county justly and fairly. We believe, however, that they have made mistakes in failing to understand the laws and by this failure have unfortunately gotten those affairs into a tangle. Their misfortune has been that they tried to do too much with too limited finances. They spent too much money for their receipts when the time of payment came, it is probable, according to report of the auditor that they "frobbed Peter to pay Paul." But according to pay Paul." But according to the school law of Kentucky that is not permissible.

In justice to the school officers of the county, it should be said that no money has been embezzled. It was not shown in the report that any funds had been deliberately taken for their use. The major funds were simply used for one purpose when they were intended for another.

Again we publish this report, not for the purpose of injuring any man or body of men, but solely for the purpose of informing the citizens of this county who have right to know the conditions of the county school funds and a right to protect their interests.

BUILD A POULTRY HOUSE NOW

By J. E. Humphrey
The following talk was given over the University of Kentucky remote control radio station:

Records kept on over a thousand poultry flocks in the State of Kentucky during the last ten years point to the fact that a good poultry house is necessary if the greatest profits are to be realized from the chickens. The records also show that one may have an excellent flock of purebred poultry, feed the best feed obtainable, and cull and manage the flock correctly, but if the poultry house is not properly constructed the profits will be lowered. The poultry house should have: First, adequate space for the desired number of hens; Second, proper distribution of sunlight; Third, sufficient ventilation; Fourth, comfortable quarters and equipment; and Fifth, durability and convenience. Disease, which is often the limiting factor in egg production can not be properly controlled if these essentials are overlooked.

The size of the house will depend upon the number of birds to be kept. The house should be built as nearly square as possible. If the flock has birds can be kept in a house of a given size. Ample roosting space must be provided. The standard Kentucky shed roof laying house provides quarters for one hundred laying hens. It is 20 feet deep and 20 feet wide, thus allowing four square feet of floor space and 8 to 10 inches of roosting space per bird. One nest is provided for every four or five hens. Multiple units for larger numbers may be built by adding several of the 20 foot units, making houses 20 feet by 40 feet for 200 birds, or 20 feet by 60 feet for 300 birds.

In order that the maximum amount of sunshine may be admitted, the poultry house should face south, east or southeast. The sunshine adds warmth and yeast, promotes dryness, aids ventilation, makes for better sanitation, and has a stimulating effect in the poultry as Vitamin D is supplied. Admission of sunlight in the house during the winter season makes conditions more springlike and favorable for egg production. Experiments conducted at the Kentucky Experiment Station show that hens receiving direct rays of sunshine lay more eggs, with thicker shells, and that these eggs give better hatches than those produced by confined hens.

The poultry house should be ventilated to afford fresh air, dryness and at the same time freedom from drafts. Fresh air is essential. Impure air causes sluggishness, a decreased egg production and a lowering of vitality of the birds. Dryness is a most important essential in a poultry house. Since hens have no sweat glands, they must depend almost entirely upon breathing for the elimination of moisture. If the air in the house is damp, it will not absorb the moisture given off by the hens and the chicken house. Whether concrete or wood is used will depend upon your location. Usually the wooden floor is most economical in construction. When a wooden floor is used, the house should be supported on sound posts or concrete posts 4 to 8 inches in diameter and 8 to 4 feet long. The posts should extend 18 inches to 2 feet into the ground and about 18 inches above the ground. Leaving space under the house so that the air can circulate, will keep the floor dry and thus lengthen the life of the flooring and joists. The floor should be laid tight to prevent drafts and loss of feed. Matched flooring is preferable.

A concrete foundation, properly made, is very durable. The concrete foundation should be 8 inches wide at the bottom and 6 inches at the top. It should extend into the ground about 24 inches and 8 inches above the ground. Bolts, one-half inch by 2 inches long should be embedded in the concrete foundation 6 feet apart which the sills should be bolted to the foundation. The concrete should be mixed in the proper proportion of 1 part cement, 2 and 1/2 parts sand and 4 parts crushed rock or gravel.

If the house is placed on well drained land, the concrete floor may be placed directly upon the ground. In most cases, however, to avoid dampness, crushed stone or cinders 6 inches deep should be placed over the ground and roofing paper or tar felt over this felt before laying the floor. This felt helps to prevent moisture rising through the concrete.

The house should be properly equipped, which includes nests, roosts, feed hoppers, watering table and utensils. The roosts are placed on the same level. Ten to 12 inches of roost space should be provided for each bird. The feed hopper is the most important piece of equipment in the poultry house essentials. If you are interested in building a new poultry house or remodeling your old house, see your County Agent or write to the College of Agriculture, Lexington, Kentucky, for Extension Circular 107, Housing Farm Poultry.

TOBACCO GRADING DEMONSTRATION
Mr. Eric C. Vaughn, tobacco specialist will assist the County Agent in giving two tobacco grading demonstrations in the County on Friday, October 25. One of these demonstrations will be given at the farm of Mr. John Jones at Bluestone at 10:30 A. M. and the other at Mr. Boyd-Litton's farm near Hilda at 2:00 p. m. Any tobacco grower in the county will be more than welcome to attend either of these demonstrations and should bring 15 or 20 hands of tobacco which has been graded according to the usual custom. These hands will be examined by Mr. Vaughn and any mistakes made in them will be pointed out and information concerning how to avoid them will be given.

The letter to Mr. Vaughn is given below which gives a brief outline of the demonstration.
"Friday, October 25 is being reserved for the tobacco grading demonstrations in Rowan County. Each man on whose place a demonstration is held should be asked to bulk about 100 pounds of tobacco before hand, so it will be in order when we reach his place. Also ask him to strip and grade about 10 sticks according to his usual custom and have this in good handling condition. In addition to this invite a number of tobacco growers living nearby to bring a few hands of their tobacco which have stripped and graded.

"The general plan of preparation of tobacco for market will be presented and they will be shown how to avoid some of the costly mistakes often made."
These demonstrations will be beneficial to any farmer who wants to know more about the grades of tobacco regardless of the experience he has had in tobacco grading. Be sure to attend one of these demonstrations.

Oxygen The Enemy

It seems a curious contradiction that oxygen so necessary to the maintenance of human life and health is the chief enemy of most of the foods necessary to the maintenance of human life and health. Oxygen not only attacks the aromatic oils which give taste and aroma of certain foods, but it even helps to dissipate the taste and aroma of certain foods. Everyone knows by now that science has discovered that foods cooked in open kettles in the usual household manner lose more of their vitamin content than foods that are processed in hermetically sealed cans, but how many people know that oxygen will extract the taste and aroma of the best of coffee by the end of a very few days?

How few people realize this. If they did, roasted coffee would never be sold in sacks, cartons or paper bags, but would instead be retailed in vacuum packed cans, and kept after these were opened, in air tight containers. It is the combination of the heat caused by the roasting and the oxygen which destroys the taste and aroma of our favorite national drink.

How Coffee Becomes Stale
Green coffee which comes in contact with heat during the roasting process commences to expel its own gas (harmless carbon dioxide), which should by no means be considered as having poisonous carbon monoxide) and its aromatic oils. These oils are very volatile and begin to evaporate immediately.

How many times have you passed a coffee factory where coffee was being roasted and sniffed eagerly at the attractive odor which greeted your nostrils from afar! And haven't you had this same experience sometime in a car when someone was carrying home fresh roasted coffee in a paper bag? How that delicious odor permeated the entire vehicle! That odor was the aroma escaping from the freshly roasted coffee, and the part of it which you enjoyed so much in passing never reached the carrier's coffee cup.

It has been ascertained by scientific tests in the laboratories of great University that from 65% to 70% of the coffee gas and an appreciable part of its aromatic odor disappear in the first twenty-four hours when freshly roasted coffee is exposed to oxygen. After that period the gas is expelled at a slower rate, but in ten or twelve days roasted coffee exposed to oxygen has lost all of its gas and a great part of the aromatic oils which constitute its flavor, and has become noticeably stale. Finally it becomes unfit to drink.

How to Keep Coffee Fresh
The only way in which fresh roasted coffee can be kept both fresh and flavorful is by backing it in a container which is absolutely impervious to all climatic influences. By doing this, you not only confine within the container all the gas which is so essential to the preservation of its freshness, but you also excluded all possibilities of the entrance of any deteriorating influences on its contents. This method of packing is known as the "Vacuum Process," and more and more coffee packers are now adopting it.

One more precaution is necessary if you are really sufficiently interested to want a perfect cup of coffee to start the day. Once the vacuum can has been opened, don't let all that pent-up goodness dissipate itself in the oxygen in your kitchen. Put the paper you don't use into Mason jars and screw the covers of them down tight on the rubber rings. In that way you'll keep the taste and aroma which was started by the vacuum packing process intact after the roasting, and you'll continue to have good coffee until the can is all used up.

The "DESERT MOON MYSTERY"

By KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN.

CHAPTER I—Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, who tells the story, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Canneziano, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife, in the penitentiary. Sam has adopted a boy, John, now grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, twenty-one, physically healthy but weak-minded. Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse lives with them.

CHAPTER II—Hubert Hand, a wanderer, and Chadwick Caulfield, John's wartime buddy, who is an expert ventriloquist, are the other members of the household. The girls arrive.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Magin has an uneasy feeling that there is a sinister motive in the twins' presence at the ranch, and her suspicions are strengthened by the girls' mysterious prowling around the place. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Caulfield shows a pronounced liking for Gabrielle.

CHAPTER IV—Gabrielle seeks to win John from her sister, and Jean disgusted, tells Mrs. Magin the girl is a trouble maker and he would like to choke her. Gabrielle's actions when she receives a letter from France arouse and mystify Mrs. Magin.

CHAPTER V—Sam learns Canneziano is soon to be released from the penitentiary and he looks for him to come to the ranch. The household, with the exception of John, in town for the mail, and the twins, together upstairs, are in the living room when Gabrielle comes down and, with Caulfield, goes into the garden. Danielle, from upstairs calls to her sister. Caulfield comes back alone. In a few minutes Danielle comes into the living room.

THE STORY CHAPTER VI

Murder and Suicide
At five o'clock the men put up the chessboard. Chad stopped playing the piano, and the three of them went to the bars together.

I went into the kitchen to get supper. Danny inspite of her headache, insisted upon helping me.

At six o'clock, though neither John nor Gabby had returned, we down to supper. Danny was too nervous to touch a bit of food. She kept looking out of the windows at her watch, and out of the windows again.

"Don't worry, Danny," Sam said. "John has had tire trouble, on account of the heat. They'll come riding up the road any minute now."

"They?" she questioned. "Gabby toggled up and went down the road to meet John, didn't she?"

"No," Danny's voice curled into a wall. "No, Uncle Sam she didn't. Martha saw her going to the cabin. Didn't you, Martha?"

"Martha," Mrs. Ricker astonished us all by saying, "I don't know where Gabby went. She knows only where Gabby told her she was going."

"But why should Gabby tell her a fib about it?" Danny asked.

"And why," I questioned, "should Gabby go around the house to get to the road, instead of going right out the front way?"

Again Mrs. Ricker shocked us by speaking. "She would not go out the front way, if she wanted to keep her trip to the road a secret."

"Mrs. Ricker," Danny's voice trembled. "What are you hinting? What is it that you know?"

"I know," said Mrs. Ricker, "that there is not a man living who is not, as false as sin."

"I have no facts," she said, "except, that right after dinner today John and Gabby had a private conversation, and he decided, very suddenly, to go for the mail."

At that minute we heard a sound for sore ears—the car coming up the driveway. Danny jumped up and ran to look out of the living room window. "He has gone all the way around to the kitchen," she said, when she came back.

She ran into the kitchen. She and John came to the door of the butler's pantry. John was gray with dust. His brows were knitted as they are when ever he is troubled about anything.

"He hasn't seen Gabby," Danny announced, with an exultation that most anxious about. "He brought up the rock salt. That's why he drove to the kitchen. Come and see Mary?"

"I'd rather see you two come and eat your suppers," I said.

"Good night!" John answered. "I've got to go and get rid of a few tons of dirt before I can come to the table."

"No," Danny insisted. "Never mind the dirt, dear. Supper is all had not stopped, and that no one was waiting for Twenty-one. He looked foolish, when he turned from the telephone, and said, 'Take it all back, John. My mistake.'"

Sam looked, mighty serious. "Well he drawled, 'I don't know but what as good a plan as any would be for us all to go to and have a look around for her—'"

"Oh," Danny exclaimed, sharply. "Uncle Sam, you do thing that she has met with some mishap!"

"I think," Sam said, "that she had met with another machine and ridden off in it. But, better safe than sorry; then we'll be fine and fit for the fireworks. Eh, Martha?"

Martha, who had been drowsy all during supper, was half asleep on the davenport, and did not answer. Sam's first plan, after he and Hubert had made a quick ride to the cabin and back with no sight of Gabby, was for the two of us to go down the road in the sedan. Fortunately, he decided at the last minute to have John come with us to drive. Danny came along with John, Chad and Hubert Hand were to scout around the place on their ponies. Mrs. Ricker stayed at home with Martha.

We drove to the highway before we turned around. We had come back about a mile, when the wind came howling up, blowing the sand and dust in thick clouds, jerking and snapping the sage and the greasewood, chasing and bouncing the tumbleweeds balls.

John drove fast; but we barely made the ranch before the storm broke, and, just as we reached the front porch, the rain came pouring down as if all the sky were the us, with a bewildered expression, and, "Say are you fellows trying to put something over on me, or what?" he asked.

"Then you don't deny—" Hubert Hand began. Sam, who has enough dander for John and himself both, when necessary, broke in.

"John doesn't have to deny anything. Marcus will be in the office now, waiting for Twenty-one. Phone down. Phone's handy. Ask him whether he flagged Twenty today, for a passenger, or whether he is going to flag Twenty-one."

Hubert went straight to the telephone. From his end of the conversation, we could tell that Twenty was waiting for Twenty-one. He looked foolish, when he turned from the telephone, and said, "Take it all back, John. My mistake."

Sam looked, mighty serious. "Well he drawled, 'I don't know but what as good a plan as any would be for us all to go to and have a look around for her—'"

"Oh," Danny exclaimed, sharply. "Uncle Sam, you do thing that she has met with some mishap!"

John drove fast; but we barely made the ranch before the storm broke, and, just as we reached the front porch, the rain came pouring down as if all the sky were the nozzle of a big faucet and someone had turned on full force.

"This will bring her in," Sam said as we ran up the steps. "She'll be there, high and dry, when we get in."

She was not. Chad and Hubert Hand had come in, and they acted as if, since we had set out to get news of Gabby, it was a wonder we had not done it. Martha was sobbing because she could not have the fireworks.

Sam went and took a match to the fire ready to be started in the fireplace. I ran upstairs and closed the bedroom windows. I had gone downstairs, ready to take my rest when I remembered the attic, with all its windows wide open to the drechning rain.

My ears had been hurting me all day; so, Chad being handy, I asked him to go and close the attic. He went to the stairs, and almost at once came back to the head of the stairs to call down that the attic door was locked.

One of my principles is, that if you ask a man to do anything about the house for you, you do it twice yourself. I thought, again, how true that was, as I went on my aching feet up the stairs to prove to him that the door was not locked, never had been locked, and, likely, never would be.

It was locked. Chad walked off, saying that he would see whether some one downstairs had locked it and had the key, or, if not whether he could find another keep to fit it.

I stood there waiting. I put my hand in my pocket for my handkerchief. There was a key. It fitted the lock. I opened the door.

About half way up the stairs, Gabby was lying in a huddle of pink wrap. I spoke to her. She did not answer. I ran up the steps and put an arm around her, trying to lift her. Her head rolled to one side. I saw her throat. It was saffron color, with great blue-black bruises at its base. I touched her swollen face. It was cold.

For an instant, my only sensation was one of violent nausea. I tried to scream. My throat had closed. I must have shut my eyes, for I remember thinking that, if I did not open them the dizziness would sweep me off into unconsciousness. I opened them. I saw, there on the red carpet of the steps, something that shocked my reeling senses into sanity. Draped all over the bright beaded bag, lying there, were the burned tobacco and the ashes from Sam's pipe.

All of my horror concentrated into a frantic desire to get those ashes cleared away so that no one else could see them. I shook them from the bag to the carpet. I brushed them from the carpet into my handkerchief. Just as I got to my feet from my knees, Chad came up.

"Call the others," I said. "Gabby is here—murdered."

I stuffed the handkerchief filled with ashes into my pocket, and, for the first and last time in my life, I fainted dead away.

The next thing that I knew I was lying on my back listening to some-

Shippers Render Valuable Aid

THE Railroads are able to furnish an almost 100 per cent perfect service largely through the co-operation of the Shippers' Advisory Boards.

These voluntary organizations handle service and transportation problems. They formulate reports on prospective freight car requirements in their respective territories; they have greatly assisted in the movement for the prompt loading and unloading of equipment; they are strongly behind the campaign for the elimination of waste in the use of equipment by more fully utilizing its full carrying capacity.

From their reports, the Railroads are able to know what the requirements will be, and to allot their cars to the sections where there will be most need for them. This form of co-operation has practically obviated car shortages and has enabled the Carriers to make unparalleled records in the handling of freight shipments.

While these Regional Boards are acting with such success in the national transportation field, it is possible for local shippers to do their share in helping further to improve the situation by joining in the prompt loading and unloading movement, and by loading cars to full capacity.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO feels some satisfaction in the character of the service it is rendering, but requests its patrons to join in these efforts which inevitably will lead to further improvements, efficiencies and economies in railroad operation.

In 5 MILLION HOMES TONIGHT

A host of babies will enjoy sound sleep tonight. And their parents will have unbroken rest. Castoria is the cause of this contentment in a multitude of homes.

Good old Castoria! Children cry for it. Mothers swear by it. Not a house hold where there is an infant should ever be without it. A few drops of Castoria quiet Baby in a perfectly innocent manner. It is nature's slumber that follows. Castoria is a purely vegetable product. No opiates. No narcotics. Of any kind.

Now you know why trained nurses give Castoria as often as an infant is ailing, or even restless. And why doctors tell mothers it is the first and only home remedy when Baby has constipation, colic, diarrhea, or other ills. It is made for babies, and safe to give babies, and other things are not. "Father's Castoria" is "old-fashioned" if you count its fifty years, but it's an old-fashioned mother, nowadays, who worries along without it. Twenty-five million bottles bought last year! Half of the number of mothers who rely on Castoria. All these mothers can't be wrong! To keep a bottle in the house is a precaution you owe your little one.

we have held up our salaries and not a year, excepting the last, have we failed to pay more than the allotted part to the teachers. During the past year our salary schedule as submitted by the state department and approved by our board without any reductions whatever provided for payment of salaries amounting to over forty-six thousand dollars. This was paid in full although our budget for the year only provided for forty-three thousand dollars for this purpose. On account of the extra large per capita which was declared after the budget had been approved by the court and the salary schedule approved together with an extra increase in corporation taxes we had a surplus at the end of the year which was applied to the payment of old salaries making a total of over fifty-six thousand dollars that was paid to the teachers during the year. These debts to the teachers were due and we felt they should be paid and if this was not the correct steps to take I am sure no member of the board was prompted by any other, that best of motives in so doing.

Some criticism exists over what appears to have been duplicate payments of two or three warrants to the bank. If this is true I feel that we will have no trouble in getting this matter adjusted.

We were criticised on account of the manner in which the Haldeman Consolidated School building was erected. When we started to have this building erected the lowest bid that we could get for the work was over twenty thousand dollars. The bond issue was for only ten thousand dollars so we had to either give up the idea of the building or devise some other plans to accomplish our desire. The Kentucky Firebrick Co. came forward with an offer to contribute material and men for the work provided we would build the better building this we did after letting contract for foundation, brick work, plastering, etc., the result was that with the assistance of these people we have a building at that place worth at least twenty thousand dollars which cost only about ten thousand dollars and this was provided by a bond issue voted upon the district itself.

As to what appears to be an overpayment on the Morehead building this two hundred dollars was for insurance placed upon this building by the contractors with G. W. Snodgrass, of Ashland and which was taken over by the board upon the completion of the building.

There is one item of the report that I can not account for that is relative to a loan of $100 made during 1925 and which I only charged to the bank as treasurer as $1,000 I do not recall the transaction and as the records show that the error was made by myself I have made up this difference.

It is true that we are heavy in debt but we have tried to serve the citizens of the county as best we could and provided comfortable buildings throughout the county, until we have one of the best equipped counties in this section of the state. Our building program is about through. We have revenue due us at this time which will enable us to reduce our indebtedness at least ten thousand dollars and this can be done but a very short time until our debts will be paid and during this time we will have the benefit of school buildings for our children in keeping with the day in which they live.

Trusting you will thoroughly investigate every phase of this matter, I am,

Yours respectfully,
J. H. POWERS.

meeting at Cynthia, October 22nd: Mrs. E. Hogge, Mrs. C. E. Bishop, Mrs. Drew Evans and Miss Catherine Braun. Mrs. Rex Hoke, Mrs. F. C. Button, Mrs. Howard Lewis and Mrs. Arthur Blair were named as alternates.

Mrs. C. E. Bishop was appointed chairman of the committee on the year book, the personnel of which will be Mrs. Arthur Blair and Miss Edna Neal.

Mrs. Rex Hoke, chairman of the literary committee in an interesting and unique manner introduced President Payne. In his characteristic and delightful way, he eulogized woman and her particular sphere in the universe, and especially the service that they may render when they unite in club work and have a purpose. In a review of Shakespeare and Scott, Mr. Payne showed that neither writer had any heroes in their writing, but many heroines. At the close of the talk he urged the women of the club to help in two things this coming year, first to help in a campaign for more good reads into Morehead; and second publicity for the Teachers' College. A delightful social hour was enjoyed by the members at the close of the program. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. G. Lappin, Misses Braun, Anderson and Jordan.

one screaming above the voices of Sam and Mrs. Ricker. I realized that those awful sounds were coming from my own throat. I tried to stop them; but I could not. I put my hands to my throat to make it stop the noise. Sam's voice came, clear and strong then—real, like a light in the dark.

I sat straight up. The screams ceased. "What?" I managed, "is the matter?"

Everything on God's earth, that could be," Sam answered. "But here, Mary, drink this. Get some sleep. Nothing to be done, now. We'll need you, tomorrow."

He shook a powder into my mouth. Mrs. Ricker held a glass of water to my lips.

When I opened my eyes again, it was gray dawn. I saw that I was in Mrs. Ricker's room. She was sitting by the window talking, watching her for a few minutes before memory seized me, and I cried out with the pain of it.

"Sh-h-h," she warned me, in a whisper. "You'll wake Martha. She is asleep here on the couch."

I felt in my pocket. The ball of handkerchief was still there. I went into the hall bathroom, washed my face and hands, and drained the last crumb of tobacco down with the water out of the washbowl. I washed the handkerchief, scoured the bowl, and went back to Mrs. Ricker's room.

As I opened the door, she again warned me again, as waiting Martha. "Was the shock too much for her?"

I asked, going and standing beside Mrs. Ricker so that she might talk in whispers.

"I didn't allow her to go upstairs. She followed Chad, out of the house and saw him shoot himself. He died within ten minutes. It was terrible for Martha. I had to hold her, while Sam gave her a narcotic."

"No, no," I protested. "What are you saying? Not Chad? What was it you said about Chad?"

"He walked out and shot himself through the head."

I rushed out of the room, away from her. I staggered down the stairs into the kitchen.

Sam, Hubert Hand, and John all jumped up from their chairs and started toward me. John reached me first, and put an arm around me. "There, there, Mary. Four her some coffee, dad. Quick! Here, sit here. Turn on that fan, Hand. Get some water."

"No, no. Tell me, Mrs. Ricker said—it isn't true. It—it can't be true. Not our Chad—"

Sam answered, gruffly, to keep the choke out of his voice. "It is a 4-m shame. Mary; but it is true. The boy shot himself, not fifteen minutes after we found her. 'Wait,' he went on quickly, 'because you think anything. I want to tell you what I have told the others. It is God's truth. That poor boy is as innocent of any connection with the murder as I am.'"

"What," I moaned, "are we going to do?"

"We are going to do a lot Mary," Sam said. "We are going to keep Chad's name clean. Sure," in answer to my protest, "we all know. But, just the same, we are mighty thankful that I have his alibis for him, myself. A side-life looks bad, you know. That is, it would until we find Canneziano. This is his work—"

"But, Sam," I said, "if he wasn't let out of San Quentin until yesterday morning he couldn't possibly have got 'way up here that same evening."

"We've told Sam that, a thousand times," Hubert Hand said.

"All right, all right," Sam said. "But if I ever get that long distance call through, you'll find that Canneziano was released a day or two early. She met him yesterday—"

"Did you have a passenger up from Rattial, yesterday, John?" Hand asked.

Sam spoke, before John could answer. "Son," he asked, "did you by any chance, as a favor to one of the girls, bring that skunk here yesterday?"

"I did not, dad."

"He got here, then, as I've said all along. Horseback, across the desert. And he murdered the girl. By G-d, he'll hang for it. If it takes my last dollar. He killed Chad too, as much as if he'd shot him down. We aren't overlooking a couple of murders, not here on the Desert Moon. Not right yet. She went out to meet him yesterday, I tell you. She brought him into the house, for some purpose; through the back way and up into the attic."

"Without anybody seeing or hearing them?" Hubert Hand questioned. "Habit was too strong for Sam. 'Well in,' he quoted, with a groan."

THE FIRST COMMERCIAL

was considered one of the marvels of the age. It sold for $1.25, was rated at 16 candle power and the average amount of light it gave throughout its life was about 65 per cent of its initial light.

The present average lamp costs 20 cents, is rated at 69 candle power, the average amount of light it gives throughout its life is 93 per cent of its initial volume of light and it consumes 40 per cent less current.

Roughly speaking, five times the amount of light can be obtained today for about 20 per cent of the cost in the early days.

This is one of the returns for the money and time spent in electrical research since the day the first commercial incandescent lamp was born.

SICK AT HIS STOMACH

"I was suffering from stomach trouble, in 1917," says Mr. C. K. Nelson, a railroad engineer living in Pulaski, Va. "I had a tightness in my chest, a shortness of breath. There seemed to be a heavy weight in the pit of my stomach, and quite a bit of nausea, yet I couldn't eat. I tried different remedies, yet I suffered on just the same."
 "When in West Virginia on a work train, I was in such a condition that I just gave up and came home. I couldn't stand to work, in my condition. Some one told me about Black-Draught. I started taking it in small doses after it helped me, and I went back to work."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

October 20, 1929
Bible School 9:45.
Our Bible School is making a splendid record but we need a lot more boosters so that we may reach that goal of 200 before Christmas. Morning Worship 10:45. Subject, "The Sower."
Evening Worship 7:00.
Subject "The First Romance."

October 29, 30 and 31 are the days for our Fall Festival. Lets get ready for the biggest social event of the Church year. Let's remember too, that every dollar we put into this Festival is so much on the church debt. We have just had a splendid meeting. Some came for baptism and five came by statement. We are indeed glad to welcome these into our church fellowship. We hope to welcome some others who should come in soon. This should be a fruitful year for our church. It will be if every one finds his place and works. But we need Everyone. May we count on "11?"

Field Day In Elliott County

Friday, October 11th, was Field Day for the Elliott County Schools. The event here field day school grounds at Sandy Hook, Ky. This was the fourth year that Field Day has been held and observed by the schools of the county and interest in it keeps growing. Pupils, teachers and citizens look forward to this one of the outstanding events of the year.

Something like five hundred people were present this year and nearly all of the schools of the county were represented by contestants. One of the events that attracted general interest was the old Fielder's contest in which the judges were Judge G. W. E. Wolford of Grayson, Ky. Attorney Henry Rose of West Liberty, Kentucky and Milford Duval of Sandy Hook, Ky. Dr. W. E. Sparks of Buah, Kentucky, won first prize and Alvah Green of Green, Ky., second prize.

There was a baby show conducted by the County Health Department. Quite a number of babies were entered. The scores for the baby show and general field events have not been ascertained. The winners in these events will be announced in the next issue of this paper.

Mollie H. Greene,
Supt. Elliott County Schools.

Bald Eagles Shine

been played on this or probably any other football. The first quarter lasted almost one and one-half hours.

And after that the Deluge. For during the last half Transy realized that it was little short of a deluge. The Eagles gained at will through the line and around end. It was kick off and down the field for the Eagles with Transy doing their best to hold the line and stop the scoring machine. And as the shade of evening and then of night fell the Eagles, running substitutes was still on their way. Five minutes before the game was over it was so dark that the players could not see the ball and after a consultation between the players and coaches the play was stopped.

This ended Morehead's first night football game, with the Eagles putting their feathers and asking for other worlds to conquer.

They plan on conquering the next world on Saturday when they meet Campbellsville here.

Black Cats Lose

The entire first half in which the damage was done was one of the worst examples of football disorganization ever seen. The Cats simply went to pieces and no one was responsible. The Comets have never, deserve a great deal of credit for being on their toes enough to take advantage of the opportunity and to play the Cats off their feet. They won the game and their no alibi.

No one regrets the loss of the game, for those things happen. And no one is more determined to win the next than the Cats themselves. And by the way the Cats have another chance at the Comets, and they say that if Comets have tails as they are said to have, they intend to send some tail-less Comets back home.

That game is over. The next which will take place here on Friday will be with the fast aggregation of Cole Junior High School. The Cats are determined to win back the confidence of their supporters here, a confidence that they have not really lost. They will be out for blood and their first victory Friday and they hope that everybody will, be there to help them share their victory as they have helped them share their defeats up to now.
