CIRCUIT COURT ADJOURNS AFTER EXCITING SESSION IN WHICH 3 OFFICERS WERE INDICTED

Misfeasance In Office Charged Against Judge R. Tussey, Pinkard Alfrey and County Superintendent Harlan Powers—Denials Made By Officials—Complete Report Grand Jury Published Below.

The October term of Circuit Court which closed on Friday last week with a cleaned docket, was one of the whirlwind variety, and after the final report of the Grand Jury was accepted, it was found that they had returned indictments against three county and city officials for misfeasance of office. They were J. H. Powers, county superintendent of schools; Richmond Tussey, Morehead Police Judge and Pinkard Alfrey, City Marshal. The latter two charges are an aftermath of the killing of Jim Reynolds, it being charged that the officers were indirectly responsible for that killing, through their failure to perform their duty and arrest him when he was drunk.

Mr. Powers in a statement to the News shortly after his indictment was returned, asserts his confidence of his vindication when the case comes to trial. The charge of misfeasance is not the same as Malfeasance difference being that in Malfeasance there must be the intent to embezzle funds and the person committing malfeasance must have profited personally from the transaction. In misfeasance the person committing the offense does so through negligence but does not profit personally from the transaction. Misfeasance carries if a conviction follows, a fine of from $100 to $1,000 and removal from office.

Judge Tussey in a signed affidavit states that the indictment returned against him is false and untrue, and that he did not at any time refuse to arrest or order the confinement of Jim Reynolds to jail and that at no time was he turned over to him by the officers, but that at one time he was fined for drunkenness and later when sober paid the fine.

The charge against Pinkard Alfrey was placed for failure of refusal to execute and arrest Jim Reynolds while Reynolds was intoxicated and drunk and while Alfrey was policeman in the city of Morehead.

The report of the Grand Jury follows: Rowan Circuit Court October Term, 1929 Hon. H. R. Prewitt, Circuit Judge: Your Grand Jury for final report, say:

We have been in session eight (8) days and have had before us many witnesses who were interrogated, touching their knowledge up on any violations of the law that have happened within the county of Rowan. We have been able to and have reported in seven (7) 43 indictments. We find considerable difficulty in having witnesses disclose to us information that we had reasonable grounds to believe they knew in many instances, and have reported True Bills in all instances in which the evidence justified.

We think the road engineer should give careful attention to the repair of roads and any bridges that are in need of such repair. Some complaint has reached us along this (CONTINUED ON LAST PAGE)

Open Basketball Season At Haldeman

The Haldeman basketball team are at work having played their first games of the season at Soldier last week. And the best part of it was that they won both games, taking the girls contest by a score of 13 to 0 and copping the boys battle by a score of 17 to 4.

Being the first contest of the season, neither team was in the best form, all the players missing many shots that in mid-season will be easy. Soldier fought gamely to overcome the lead of the Haldeman teams but was unable to show.

Winchester Visitors Have Good Time

The business men of Winchester made a Good Will Tour of their neighboring towns which included Morehead. President Adkins of the Kiwanis Club appointed a committee to act as representatives of Morehead, the College and Rowan county. The good will tour was met at the Rowan County line by Guy Snyder, Chairman, Jack Wilson and A. R. Perkins.

The guests from Winchester were taken to the Teachers' College Auditorium where a program was considered and souvenirs were handed out by the business men of Winchester. The program included the following: Mr. Snyder introduced Hop James Clay who gave the address of welcome on behalf of Morehead. Mr. Everett J. Beers, Chairman of the good will tour then responded by introducing Dean Paul F. Farnish of Kentucky Wesleyan College, who spoke in response.

Throughout the program the band brought along by the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, played to the delight of all. At the close of the program Dean Vaughan of the Morehead Teachers' College had the very leaders of the College present to show our neighbors the real spirit of the school. It is a pleasure to be around a group of young people when they have a spirit of devotion to the school and these young people show that spirit in their yell.

R. Perkins also was with us, his presence among us is very encouraging and helpful. Mrs. Walter Miller was a welcome visitor at this meeting. Mrs. P. M. McManis was enrolled as new member.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The executive committee of the Rowan County Woman's Club will meet with Mrs. C. E. Bishop Wednesday, October 30th, at 3 P. M. Full attendance is requested in order to transact some very important business.

Kiwanis Club Enjoys Ladies Night

The club turned from the ordinary programs on Monday evening and put on a delightful ladies night. The program was in charge of a committee of which Kiwanian Chiles Van Antwerp was the able chairman. Prof. Van Antwerp proved his ability as being an able master of ceremonies. Everyone present enjoyed the occasion.

Other than the committee and those on the program the club claims to have a real hero in Kiwanian Rex L. Hoke. Mrs. Russell Becker, did not have a music rack and the educator with the genius for inventions, came forward with the ability of a genius invented the music rack and, the program proceeded.

Kiwanian Van Antwerp announced the program would be one without speaking and so it was and this added to its favor for a delightful event. Those on the program were: Miss Louise O'Rear, of the music department of the Teachers' College. Miss O'Rear was requested not to play classical music and instead to play something down on the everyday persons level. This she did in a fine way. These numbers on piano started music back thru the avenue of the time and Kiwanian Terrill called for "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Miss O'Rear has a fine way of making her music touch the responsive note. After she played her own selections, then she suggested she would be glad to play any number called for. It was not a surprise that some called for the song close Kentuckians hear, "My Old Kentucky Home."

M. W. C. MET WITH MRS. A. W. YOUNG

The Morehead Woman's Club will hold their regular meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. A. W. Young with Mrs. Lester Hooge, Mrs. Virginia Chynoweth and Mrs. Frank hostesses. Mrs. Roy E. Graves will have charge of the program this week. The food sale is in charge of Mrs. H. C. Willet and her committee. The sale is to be held at the Club house, Saturday.

After this, Mrs. Russell Becker of Haldeman, accompanied by Mrs. S. M. Bradley played some violin numbers. Mrs. Becker always plays so delightfully that everyone wishes for more violin music.

Then came Mr. Dale Haven, head of the Music Department at the Teachers' College. Mr. Haven first explained the various combinations in music and then played numbers on the piano to illustrate these variations. After Mr. Haven had played several numbers, he and Kiwanian Terrill composed a song and captivated everyone present. After this composition, the charming young lady who has been so charming, young lady had requested Mr. Haven to play his own composition "The Old Music Box." Naturally Mr. Haven complied with the request. Then someone asked if he would play his variations to "Rock of Ages." He did, completing the musical part of the program.

Kiwanian Van Antwerp, then awarded the prizes to the ladies and one of Kiwanian Hoke who was the successful Kiwanian. The guests present were: Mrs. H. Van Antwerp, Miss Betty Bruce Van Antwerp, Mrs. L. T. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Becker, Mrs. Ellen Gentry, Mrs. E. V. Hollis, Miss Louise O'Rear, Miss Lucille Catlett, Mrs. E. W. Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Bradley, Mrs. Wm. H. Vaughan, Mrs. A. R. Perkins, Mrs. H. C. Hazen, Mrs. C. E. Bishop, Mr. Dale Haven, Mrs. C. O. Peratt, Mrs. A. F. McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. ## Cats Lose Fourth Game To Cole Hi

The bright sunshine of last Friday quite evidently affected the Morehead Cats when they met the Kittens from Cole Junior High School of Ashland, and took the part of a 13 to 0 score. The Cole's played football to win and the exhibition was a great improvement over the show put on at Olive Hill the week before. In spite of the fact that the boys lost. There are always a number of "ifs" in a football game. For example, if the third quarter had not interrupted the Cats drive for a goal they would have made a touchdown. And if they had made one they might have won or at least tied up the score. Again, if they had stuck to line drives through guard and tackle, instead of trying an end run where they lost ground, they would still have made the touchdown and in all possibility have won. But — The third quarter did end at the wrong time and — They did call an end run — The young Tom Cats did win. The game was one of the most interesting ever played here and the side lines probably played harder to put the game on ice than the players themselves. The Colers kicked off and Morehead returned, the ball for a few yards, gained on two plays and punted out. Cole High swung around end and made good gains pushing the ball over for the first marker within a few minutes. They failed to make goal and the score was Cole 6 Morehead 0. Cole Hi kicked off and for the rest of the half honors were about equally divided, with Cole High having an edge on the locals. Neither team was able to cross the goal line for additional markers. The half ended with the score Cole High 6; Morehead 0. With the opening of the third quarter the Cats took the ball and marked down the field, Peck Robinson and June Evans smashing the line for three and four yards at a clip. They were within striking distance of the goal when the whistle blew and the quarter ended.

At the beginning of the fourth Morehead continued their march making a first down by bringing the ball within fifteen yards of the goal. On two line plunges if tackle they advanced the ball five yards. An end run lost them two yards. And then the line plunge again netted them four yards, just one yard short of the required ten and the ball went over to Cole High who punted out to the danger zone. The Cats had lost chance to score and with it the game for they were unable to stage another rally in the short time that remained. Cole High added insult to injury by making another counter in the last few minutes of play. The final score was Cole High 13; Morehead 0.

Considering the fact that every team that has met the Cats has had several years of experience while the local boys are in their first year of football, Morehead has a right to be proud of the Cats, even though they have not yet succeeded in winning a game. They are about due to come through with a victory, and then Morehead will back them up. As it is, they are still Morehead's and Rowan county's boys and are fighting an up hill battle to win. They are entitled to the loyal support of every citizen of Morehead regardless of whether they win or lose. At a matter of fact, they need your support and encouragement much more when they are losing than when they are winning.

The Cats meet Grayson this week on Saturday, here. Why not every body turn out and give the boys a hand. Show them we want them to win, but more than that, that they are win or lose, our best and we are interested in them and proud of them.

Armistice Day To Be Celebrated

November 11, Armistice Day will see the first real attempt by the local Legion to celebrate the close of the World War. On that day plans are being made to hold a real celebration here, with speaking in the afternoon and with a banquet in the evening for all the World War veterans whether members of the Legion or not. Incorporated in the celebration will be the unveiling of the monument in honor of the veterans of the World War. Several years ago the Rowan County Woman's Club erected a monument on the Court house lawn to the honored dead of Rowan county. This monument is now being capped, through the efforts of the same club by a "Dough Boy," honoring all the boys from Rowan county who took part in the World War. The statue is of bronze and will be erected within a few days. It is the official representation adopted by the Federal Government for memorial of this sort.

Some years ago the Federal Government made appropriation of one thousand dollars for each county that would spend the money for the erection of a monument to the World War veterans. The members of the Rowan County Woman's Club, hearing of this became active and succeeded in obtaining this money for Rowan county. The figure has been shipped and should arrive here within a few days. (CONTINUED ON LAST PAGE)

C. H. MUTTERS DIES AT CATLETTSBURG

C. H. Mutters of Catlettsburg, Ky., brother of S. B. Mutters of this city died suddenly Monday night at his home in Catlettsburg.

We were unable to learn the exact cause of his death, but his brother, S. B. Mutters believes his sudden demise was caused by heart failure as he had been suffering from slight heart attacks for some time. He was 77 years of age, and has been engaged in mercantile business in Catlettsburg for the past 15 years. He was well known in business circles throughout the tri-state region. (Contributed.)

Eagles Win Easy Game Saturday

The Slaughter of the Innocents, or how to pile up a score might have been the title of the exhibition of football put on at Day Field last Saturday, when Campbellsville College met Coach Downing's Eagles and met overwhelming defeat at their hands, by the score of 54 to nothing. And the score might as well have been 150 to nothing, except for the fact that Downing ran in his high school team for part of the game after it had been decently laid away.

N. B. We note above that the score was 54, to 0. It wasn't but it should have been. Campbellsville dug up a touchdown when it was least expected from kick-off. The boys from a far kicked the ball again to Riddle who touched it but failed to hold it. The other team went bouncing away with both teams after it. It finally rolled to the goal line and a Campbellsville Warrior fell on it for their only touchdown, a gift from the gods if there ever was one. With Laughlin on the bench due to afflictions, Carroll disported himself. (CONTINUED ON LAST PAGE)

The Rowan County Red Cross drive is on and has been for the past two weeks. And it is not only on, but it is going over big, so big, when the drive is ended on Thanksgiving Day, November 28, the Rowan County Chapter of the Red Cross will, judging from the number that have already enrolled, have a membership of at least seven hundred. Considering that the membership last year, which was the largest ever enrolled, since the World War was 260, this is a marvelous record and will speak well for the citizenship of Rowan county and their interest in their neighbor.

The drive is under the direction of Mrs. N. L. Wells and has been divided into sections under the management of the various churches and organizations.

The members of the Methodist church have already finished their quota of fifty members and are working on to increase that enrollment. The members of the Church of God are within a very few of their goal of fifty and will work the rest of the time to increase that. Christian Church workers who started their drive later have not yet finished their quota nor have the Baptist Church. The Corinthian Eltington Post of the American Legion has fifty memberships to obtain and they are on the way to going over the top within a few days.

Haldeman expects to turn in a quota more than the quota allotted them, and Haldeman never fails to do their part.

Clearfield where Mart Bowne is chairman of the drive will get more than they were asked. Farmers and other sections of the county are already coming in with their membership.

The local officers of the Red Cross are delighted with the progress already made. With a month remaining in which to complete the drive and with over half of the quota already enrolled there is no doubt that Rowan county will make one of the best records of any county in the State.

Rowan county owes much to the Red Cross for it may not be forgotten that National Red Cross came through last spring and the preceding two years with assistance when Rowan county needed it and needed it badly. Rowan county must not forget and must not be ungrateful. The farmers along Licking River and in other sections of the county will not forget. Many of them have already enrolled as members of the Red Cross. All of them are planning on enrolling.

Last year these farmers were in hard circumstances. This year, largely through the efforts of the Red Cross these same farmers are in good circumstances. They are able to see their way to a comfortable living and prosperity. Another good crop will see most of them on their feet again. These farmers are loyal citizens. They are giving full credit to the Red Cross as the greatest organization in the World for the relief of suffering. And they are volunteering their memberships to the Red Cross, the Greatest Mother of them all.

said to itself, "Well we spent our energy in the spring time and we wasted it this summer. We all just let the old yard go and get it all at once next spring.

The surrounding hills beckon Morehead to make an effort this fall to clean up. Instead of one clean up each year, civic pride should force the citizens of Morehead to keep their places clean the year around, and especially in the fall.

Visitors from Winchester and Paintsville

Morehead had an opportunity to welcome visitors in the city on Tuesday and Thursday of this week when the Good Will Tourists from Winchester and Paintsville spent a few hours in the city on their annual Good Will Tours.

It is a sign of the times when the business men of neighboring cities decide that they can aid and abet friendship between communities by paying these Good Will visits. There is nothing mercenary about it, nothing but the desire to bring about a better understanding and a more thorough neighborliness between the business men and women of these communities. And they are helpful to a much greater degree than is commonly supposed.

This section of Kentucky is developing and one of the best signs of this development is the fact that the neighboring towns and cities are realizing that it is no selfish aim that brings them together, but a desire for a mutual helpfulness, and a more united effort to develop eastern Kentucky. Our neighbors are not outlanders, they are not dangerous. They are our friends and they, like we, are working for a common aim that can only be strengthened by cooperation.

SALT LICK SCHOOL NOTES

Our new school building was completed September 30th and both the high and elementary schools opened September 30th.

The high school has an enrollment of thirty, with a senior class of nine members, while the grades have one hundred and four enrolled. Mr. J. R. Welch is the principal and Mrs. U. M. Kincaid is the assistant principal of our high school. Miss Rett Williams, Miss Alma Fanning and Mrs. Edna Stages are the grade teachers. School has been going on for three weeks and is progressing fine.

The children have a better advantage to do better work this year than last year, as they were handicapped in the old buildings that had to be used last year. We are going to try to make this one of our best school years and want all the patrons to help us as much as possible in doing so.

The Publicity Committee of the

At the first general meeting the organization voted a membership fee of 10 cents each for literature.

The Athletic Association was organized October 7, 1929. The officers elected are as follows: Helen Wills, president; Mrs. Byrd Perry, vice-president; Cleo Roberts, secretary and treasurer.

Professor J. R. Welch is coach of the boys and Mrs. U. M. Kincaid coach of the girls. At the first meeting the association voted a membership fee of 10 cents each, to be used with their present fund, to purchase new standard basketball goals. The organization has also ordered an official ball. Fall practice has started in order that we may have as good teams as possible considering that we have only an open court. Any teams near our size that desires a game, should get in touch with our Principal. We prefer mid-week games.

The high school is happy over two new recruits. These are Willard Powers who came here from Colorado and Oleta Amburgey who moved back from Indiana. Oleta was here in high school last year. These two distinguished themselves by being in third year high school and both good students. We hope others like them will come. Some new ones whose names the writer does not have now have come to the grades.

Work is going forward on the new rooms which are being added to the building. It is hoped that these may be completed soon so that the grade pupils who are in the gym may come into the main building.

The Black Cats were planning to scratch to pieces the football boys from the Grayson Hill next Friday afternoon, but owing to the fact that the Morehead Teachers' College team and Eastern will clash, our game with Grayson will be played Saturday afternoon.

Don't forget the change to Saturday at about 2:00 P. M.

We were sorry that we failed to get any news in the paper the past two weeks.

Several from here attended church at Crix, Sunday.

Mrs. Dewey Stidham of Herndon, W. Va., is staying with Mr. Stidham parents at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Adkins and two children, Glennis and Gladys, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Conn and baby Martha Marie were visiting Andrew Quisenberry, Saturday night.

Miss Madeline McGill was the Sunday guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Stidham.

Mrs. Cora Lambert was visiting friends at Elliottville last week.

SCHOOL NEWS

Last Friday ended the first period of six weeks of the school. Students received their report cards Tuesday. Every father and mother should see the report cards that are brought home. By carefully examining these cards, parents, who are unable to visit the school or see teachers, may learn something definite of the quality of work their children are doing.

Attention is especially called to the records of attendance, tardies and deportment. Teachers hope that the cards may always be returned at once after they are signed.

In the high school there are a number of students with good records, but there are only two who have exceptional records. These are Jewel Fannin and Marie Thomas. These girls have grades of B plus or above. Perfect records in deportment, attendance and punctuality. Several others would have had mentioned had it not been for minor things such as being from school a day or two on a tardy mark.

How About A Fall Clean-Up

There is no beauty spot in Kentucky and that is equivalent to saying in the world than Morehead when the autumn colors are on the leaves, when as James Whitcomb Riley says in speaking of Indiana, "The Frost is on the pumpkins and the fodder's in the shock. Surrounded as she is by hills dressed in the most brilliant autumn hues, with the brightest crimsons veing with the yellows and shading into scarlet and purple, Morehead is the center of a beauty spot beyond compare.

Then you drop your eyes to Morehead itself and the scene of beauty is gone and you see instead the fallen leaves piled high, the weeds gone to seed, be dragged and sodden with the autumn rains.

The question we want to ask is, "Why not a fall Clean-Up? We have, every year a spring Clean-Up ordered by the City Council and proclaimed by the Mayor. At that time with winter gone, Morehead awakens and begins to prepare for a session of vacations by cleaning up the yards, doing away with unsightly garbage heaps, ridding themselves of tin cans accumulated during the winter, getting garden patches ready for planting. It is a season of fervid activity.

And then comes summer and after that the fall, which is and should be the most beautiful season of the year. But gone is the energy of the springtime. Gone is the desire for a clean city. The entire populace seems to have settled back and

MOST people know this absolute antidote for pain, but are you careful to say Bayer when you buy? And do you always give a glance to see Bayer on the box—and the word genuine printed in red? It isn't the genuine Bayer Aspirin without it! A drugstore always has Bayer, with the proven directions tucked in every box:

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, who tells the story, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Canzian, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife, in the penitentiary. Sam has adopted a boy, John, now grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, twenty-one, physically healthy but weak-minded. Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse lives with them.

CHAPTER II—Hubert Hand, a wanderer, and Chadwick Caulfield, John's wartime buddy, who is an expert ventriloquist, are the other members of the household. The girls arrive.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Magin has an uneasy feeling that there is a sinister motive in the twins' presence at the ranch, and her suspicions are strengthened by the girls' mysterious prowling around the place. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Caulfield shows a pronounced liking for Gabrielle.

CHAPTER IV—Gabrielle seeks to win John from her sister, and John disgusted, tells Mrs. Magin the girl is a trouble maker and he would like to choke her. Gabrielle's actions when she receives a letter from France arouse and mystify Mrs. Magin.

CHAPTER V—Sam learns Canzian is soon to be released from the penitentiary and he looks for him to come to the ranch. The household, with the exception of John, in town for the mail, and the twins, together upstairs, are in the living room when Gabrielle comes down and, with Caulfield, goes into the garden. Danielle, from upstairs calls to her sister. Caulfield comes back alone. In a few minutes Danielle comes into the living room.

CHAPTER VI—Mrs. Magin finds Gabrielle, choked to death, with tobacco ashes beside her. Despite her terror at the discovery of the body, she realizes that the ashes must be from Sam's pipe, he being the only pipe smoker, and conceals them before calling the household. Caulfield commits suicide.

CHAPTER VII

A Confession.

The sheriff, the coroner, the undertaker, a newspaper reporter, and another man that the coroner had brought along for a jurymen, drove up to the ranch at five o'clock that morning. Sam and the sheriff had been friends for thirty years. Sam's money had paid for the coroner's medical education. They, and the others, were mighty sorry to have to bother us at all, and their sole aim was to make as little trouble as possible.

They interviewed each one of us, alone, but pleasantly and informally, in the dining room; each one, that is, but Danny—the coroner, visiting her as a doctor, said it would never do to pester her, in the state she was in—and Martha, who was still asleep and whom they said it was no use to wake. They kept each of us about ten minutes. They brought in the verdict of died by his own hand, for Chad; and, murdered by person or persons unknown for Gaby. They left, on tip-toe, holding their hats in their hands clear to the end of the driveway.

The sheriff left, I am all but certain, with the strong conviction that I had committed the murder, and with the resolution that he would not do Sam an ill turn by depriving him of a good cook. The coroner, and the others, except the reported, were sure, I think, that one of us was guilty but were thankful to goodness that they had not found out which one.

The undertaker did not leave with the others. He was preparing the bodies to take them to Telko; there to wait the instructions that we could not give until after we had gotten in touch, if possible, with Chad's people, and had come to a decision about Gaby's burial place. All the Nevada newspaper accounts made much of the fact that the fiend, who had committed the terrible murder on the Desert Moon ranch, had made a complete escape, without leaving any clues of any sort.

No clues! Lands alive! The place was positively cluttered with clues; and most of them about as useful, in the end, as clutter generally is.

I asked Sam about the contents of Gaby's beaded bag. "It is all on the table in her room," he said, "where I put it for the coroner's jury. You can go and see. But, first, read this. It was tucked inside here dress. The undertaker found it, and gave it to me. I dread giving it to Danny."

He handed me a folded sheet of paper. I opened it, and read:

"Danny dear: If you ever read this, I shall be dead—murdered. Don't have me buried here in this Godforsaken country. Take me to San Francisco and have my body cremated. I love a flame. I hate the cold earth.

"You have had much trouble on my account, old dear. Don't blame me for having kept the fear and the dread of this thing, which I felt certain was going to happen, from you. You, nor no living person, but one, could have saved me.

"Remember, Dan, that in spite of all the distress I have caused you, and may still be causing you, I have always, in my own way, loved you, Gaby."

"Sam," I said, "I knew she was afraid, yesterday. Oh, why didn't she tell us? Of course you men could have saved her. Why did she go out alone to meet that fiend?"

Sam's only answer was a slow shaking of his bowed head, and a deep sigh.

"Mary," he said, then, "will you give this note to Danny, and explain to her how it is?"

"How what is it?"

"I mean—Well, she can't leave the Desert Moon, now, to take the body to Frisco. Until we find out who murdered that girl, not a man-jack of us is going to leave this place, for any reason. Danny may be as innocent as she seems to be, and—she may not. She, nor anyone else, can leave this place until we have gotten to the very bottom of this thing. That goes. This note, in Gaby's handwriting, clears Danny of the crime, if all the other evidence didn't which it does. We know that she did not kill her sister. But of all the people in this house, she is in the best position to know who did it. Of course, if she is involved in this she is involved innocently. If she put the key in your pocket, while we were out in the car, she did it with no idea of what she was doing. Just the same, I want her right here on the Desert Moon, for a while. Mary, you take the note to her, and explain, in your nice way—"

"I'll give her the note, Sam," I said. "But you'll have to do the explaining yourself. I'll tell you why. It isn't right for you to try to protect anyone, not even Martha, to the extent of refusing to allow one sister to carry out the dying request of another sister."

Sam dropped his pipe. As I saw the tobacco and the ashes scatter, I was more certain than ever that I was acting as a decent woman should. The door opened, and Danny came in. She was so pale that her cheeks had sort of a greenish tinge to them. Great dark circles spread far down under eyes that were red and swollen from crying.

I hurried to her and put my arms around her. Sam turned away, as if he could not bear to look at us.

I took her into the living room, and sat down in a big chair and held her in my lap. Sam thinks that "If only," she kept saying, "if only she could have left us in her beauty. She was so beautiful, Mary Ann now—"

Remembering what I had seen the night before, I knew that I must get her mind into other channels if her eyes stars, when I remembered the note.

After she had cried harder than ever, I knew that it was crying of a sorer sort.

"Will you go with me, Mary?" she questioned, when she had quieted some. "To San Francisco?"

"We'll have to talk to Sam about that, dear." I said. "I am afraid that Sam wants us all to stay here, for a while. Sam thinks that the duty of each one of us, right now, is to stay here and help to find the guilty person."

"Does Uncle Sam think we will find him here?" she questioned.

"There isn't anywhere else to try to find him," I said. "Did you know about the key in my pocket?" She nodded. "I knew about that," she said.

"What else did you know about?" I asked.

"Nothing," she said, hurriedly. "Nothing. But, Mary, doesn't it seem possible to you that someone, clear from the outside, did it? And gave the key to Chad, and asked him to put it in your pocket? And that, for some reason we probably never shall discover, Chad could not, dared not, tell on the person who gave it to him? And that is why he shot himself?"

"And we hadn't thought of that!" I gasped. "I do believe it. It is as clear as day."

Her sudden, definite silence talked as plainly as any words she could have spoken.

"Danny," I questioned, "you thought of that, but in your heart you don't believe it. Do you?"

"I—I want to believe it," she evaded.

"But you don't?" I persisted.

She was silent.

"Danny," I pleaded, "tell me about it. Just tell me, dear. I'll never breathe it to a soul, if you say for me not. What is it you know, or think that you know?"

She waited so long before answering me that I thought surely she was finding the words with which to take me into her confidence. I was so disappointed I could have cried with her, when she hid her face on my shoulder, again, and moaned, "Mary—I can't, I dare not tell. I tell you—I dare not."

She jumped up out of my lap, and ran upstairs as if wicked, dangerous things were running after her.

John came into the room. "The outfit is back, or most of it," he said. "Darn their confound! Curiosity, nothing else. But for this, they wouldn't have shown up for two days yet. I think the women went into the kitchen just now, Mary."

There they were, Belle, Sadie and Goldie, all huddled up together like a bunch of something, near the back door. As I came into the room, they jumped and screamed. The only thing that makes me madder than being scared myself is to scare some body else. I spoke to them right sharply.

I told them that I expected them to go about their work, and to act like sensible girls while so doing.

Sadie, the sauciest of the lot, spoke up.

"We haven't decided yet that we want a 'go workin' in a house where a murderer, and maybe more'n one, is livin'."

"Very well," I said. "If you are going, go now. If not, put on your aprons and get to work."

I could scarcely believe my eyes. The three of them had decided to leave the door. I felt sort of sick, watching them go. Not because I'd have to teach new girls the work and my ways, but because their leaving gave me my first realization that the Desert Moon ranch was darkened by the shadow of sin.

When I telephoned to Sam, down in his office in the outfit's quarters, I tried to keep the truth from him; saying, only that the girls and I had had a spat, and asking him to find some new girls for me.

He came up, in about half an hour, with an Indian girl, not more than fifteen years old, trailing along behind him. Answering his nod, I went with him into the living room.

"She is the only one I could get," he said. "We'll have to send to Reno or Salt Lake. None of the outfit want them—women folks working here. I don't blame them. The Desert Moon ranch is disgraced!" He stopped short, looking at a piece of paper on the writing desk just in front of him. It had been propped up against a vase; but it had slipped down into a curve. He reached for it; read it, and handed it to me.

"I killed her, Chadwick Caudill. P. S. Sorry to put you to the trouble of disposing of me. Make it cheap and snappy. I haven't a relative in the world. P. G."

"A lie," Sam said. "I tell you, she had been dead two or three hours, anyway—probably longer—when we found her. Listen, Mary. Between four and five o'clock—we all saw her alive at four—Chad sat right there at that piano, and he never left it once. Did he?"

"No, he didn't. I kept thinking he would, to join Gaby. But he didn't."

"Between five and six o'clock," Sam went on, "he was with me, every minute of the time, down in the barn, and coming up to the house. Never out of my sight. Between six and seven he was with us all at supper. If he'd been gone all afternoon, I'd know that note was a lie; know it just as well as I know it now."

"But this note! A confession! Why should he die in disgrace, when we know he was innocent?"

"God knows. To shield someone else, I reckon."

"Who?"

Sam dropped his pipe.

I heard him stamping the sparks out. I did not look down. I did not want to look down.

"He wrote it," I said. "The writing is his. So is the writing. You know it."

I guess I was too sentimental. But I couldn't bear to see Sam's good old face all aching with worry.

"Sam," I whined, "have sense. We've a confession here that will satisfy the world. He killed her; and when the body was found, he shot himself. Nothing could be more reasonable. No one would doubt it. We can send this to the papers—he has no relatives to be disgraced, or to sorrow over it—and the Desert Moon will be cleared of crime. One of your favorite sayings, Sam, is to let well enough alone."

Sam drew himself up to the top of his six feet and five inches and looked down, from there, at me; away down as far as, say, if I had suddenly dropped into dirty old cistern. "There is no question of well enough," he shouted, so that I could hear him in my depths, "until the Desert Moon is cleaned, clean, Mary Margin. Cleaned and fumigated, or destroyed. It is not going to be whitewashed. There is someone on this ranch who is as guilty as he—I, who knows who committed the murder; who aided and abetted it. We are going to find that person. Then we will find the murder. They'll be hung together. After that, we can leave well enough alone."

"Suppose," I suggested, "that Chad was the accomplice."

"Somebody suggested, already to-day, that it was Chad who put the key in your pocket. When did he get the key to put it there? Well, say that he got it between seven and eight o'clock, when he was out scouting by himself. Did he meet some entire stranger, then, who asked him to dispose of the key? Did he agree to do it as a favor to said stranger? Did he, later, shoot himself, and leave a lying confession to shield the stranger? The stranger, that is, who had killed the girl Chad loved? Chad did carry some secret to the grave with him, Mary. I am sure of that. But not a secret that we can't discover. We are going to discover it."

To doubt Sam, standing there before me talking so earnestly to me, to doubt his honesty of purpose and his goodness, was more than a question of doubting my eyes, my ears, my senses.

"Sam," I began, resolved to tell him, then and there, about those pipe ashes of his on the headed bag. I had waited too long. Mrs. Ricker was coming down the stairs.

"I think," she said, "that Martha should not sleep so late. I fear that she is sleeping too heavily."

"It is a blessing that she can sleep," Sam said. "She is all right. Those sleeping powders are as powerful as all get-out. I'm going up, though, I'll have a look at her."

"By the way," he added, "two ladies to sleep in this room, at promptly three o'clock this afternoon."

"Upon my soul!" I said, when Sam was out of sight. "What do you suppose that means?"

Mrs. Ricker shook her head, and walked to the widows' and turned her back on me.

I looked at the straight, gaunt back, and at her long arms hanging at her sides. She seemed frail, and yet, she could hold Martha still, when Martha was in one of her tantrums, and that was more than I, a much stouter woman, could do. She with no one but Martha who did not count, had been alone in the house for an hour the evening before, while the others of us had been out hunting for Gaby.

Sam insisted that Gaby had been dead two or three hours when we found her. But was he certain of that? How did he know? Might he be mistaken? Mrs. Ricker had hated Gaby, as only a jealous woman can hate.

There seemed to be a heavy weight in the pit of my stomach, and quite a bit of nausea, yet I couldn't vomit. I tried different remedies, but suffered on just the same. "When in West Virginia on a week train, I was in such a condition that I just gave up and came home. I couldn't stand any work, in my condition. Court Adjourns (CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) line, and without specifying particular bridges. It is his duty to look over all of them, and we urge that he attend his duties along this line. The public property of the county seems to be in good condition, and we have no suggestions to make along this line except the heating system is inadequate of the City Public School opening under the windows. This should be corrected. We have attached hereto a list of witnesses for whom we recommend attachments to be issued; also a list of witnesses for who subpoenas should be issued for their presence before the Grand Jury at the next term of this Court. We thank the Court for his assistance during our sittings. Respectfully submitted, J. H. LEWIS, Foreman. This October 18, 1929.

Boosters Were Here (CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) Everyone enjoyed the spirit and genius of the good will tour and we hope it will be repeated often and that it will be the means of making us better acquainted. They made it plain to all, that they were not here to take business away from Morehead, saying their motto was: "Trade at Home," but in the event the Morehead people were going somewhere else to do some shopping that could not be done at home, then they extended a hearty welcome. Too much cannot be said about the good spirit of Editor Jack Wilson. As soon as he knew there was need of work to get ready for this reception, he placed his car at the disposal of the committee and worked until everything was done that could be done to make the trip a pleasure to our neighbors. Occasions like this one is good for all people. We come to know each other, we understand better the other, persons problems, and the other person rubs our elbows and learns of our problems, and the spirit of good will is wholesome for any community and would be fine to practice more of it in our own Morehead.

Good old Castoria! Children cry for it. Mothers avert by it. Not a household where there is an infant should ever be without it. A few drops of Castoria quiet baby in a perfectly innocent manner. It is natural slumber that follows. Castoria is a purely vegetable product. No opiates. No narcotics. No any kind. Now you know why trained nurses give Castoria as often as an infant is ailing, or even restless. And why doctors tell mothers it is the first and only home remedy when baby has constipation, colic, diarrhea, or other upset. It is so safe for babies, and safe to give to babies, and safe to give to babies, and safe to give to babies. Fletcher's Castoria is "old-fashioned" if you count its fifty years, but it's an old-fashioned mother, nowadays, who worries along without it. Twenty million bottles bought last year! Think of the number of mothers who rely on Castoria! All these mothers can't be wrong! To keep a bottle in the house is a precaution you owe your little one.
