REPORT

Of the Judiciary Committee, upon the subject of the wearing of concealed weapons...

The committee for Courts of Justice, to whom was referred so much of the Governor's message as recommends a prohibition against the wearing of concealed weapons...

By an act of 1813, the Legislature declared that any person who should wear a pocket pistol, dirk, large knife, or sword in case, concealed as a weapon, should be fined one hundred dollars.

The decision is based upon that clause of the constitution which declares that the right of the citizen to bear arms, in defence of themselves and the State, shall not be questioned.

Much reason and sound policy will be applied to the convention, in securing to our citizens the right to bear the arms of a soldier.

It is not the duty of the Legislature to restrict the right of the citizen to bear arms, in defence of themselves and the State, shall not be questioned.

er, so to cause the subject to be again brought up for the reconsideration of the judicial department of the government.

The court assumed the broad ground that the constitution meant to protect the citizen the right to wear and use every description of weapon which he might deem proper, State, in any mode he might think fit, and every attempt of the Legislature to regulate the mode of wearing a weapon, is null and void.

In support of this construction, the court says the argument that, as the constitution specifies no particular kind of arms, it must mean all kinds, or it can be made to protect no particular kind of arms.

Whichever possibility may be supposed to belong to this mode of reasoning, were established it is merely plausible and must yield to a more substantial and more liberal interpretation of the words, without attention to the subject matter and probable intention is always a bad construction.

confined to the purposes of such an intention. The term, "to bear arms," is in common parlance, even at this day, most usually and most appropriately applied only to the distinctive arms of the soldier, such as the musket or the rifle.

The very same phrase occurs in the following part of the 28th section of the 93d article of the constitution. "Those who conscientiously scruple to bear arms shall not be compelled to do so, but shall pay an equivalent for the privilege."

arms, as will be seen by the following article which we find in a slip from the Albany Daily Advertiser.

Wednesday, 6th Dec, 6 P. M. We have just received the following interesting information from a gentleman of respectability at Queenston, Upper Canada...

The Governor and all the officials are pent up in the market house. Many buildings were burnt, some lives lost, and many taken prisoners.

The captain was sent here by the Governor to drum up volunteers, but he has succeeded in getting very few.

Capt. Whitney has just arrived from Toronto, which place he states was attacked yesterday by the radicals, and taken.

The Patriots require from the Governor that he should let the Legislative Council, and the people of the country, know that he should leave the country within two weeks.

It was under the reign of Caligula, when C. Marcus was prefect at Vienne, that an old man, bent with age yet of tall stature, was seen to descend from his litter and enter a house of modest appearance near the temple of Mars.

grave and deceitful. He pretended that his religion forbade him and his attendants to sit down at the table of the Gentiles, and to offer up libations with wine.

At that time, Jerusalem was of all conquered cities the most difficult to govern. So turbulent were the people, that I was involved in momentary danger of an insurrection.

that Pilate should sometimes tremble; but when I was young—in my veins flowed the Spirit and blood of the Roman blood, as incapable of fear as it was of its own emotions.

When the Nazarene made his appearance, I was walking in my bath, and my feet seemed fastened with an iron band, to the marble pavement. With an iron band, the Nazarene—came—as innocuous. When he came up to me, he stopped, and by a simple gesture, seemed to say to me: here I am.

For some time, I contemplated, with admiration and with awe, this extraordinary type of a man—a type unknown to our numerous sculptors, who have given form and figure to all the gods and all the heroes.
