MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1935

DR. J. H. PAYNE IS SELECTED AS LIT. RA. Y ENVOY

Morehead College President To Sail On Bremen Steamship Saturday Afternoon

RETURNS BY SEPTEMBER 15

Dr. J. H. Payne, President of the Morehead State Teachers College, and immediate past President of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association, was notified this week that he had been selected as one of the 6 United States College Presidents to make a literary study in Austria, France and Germany under a grant made by the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation.

Dr. Payne will leave Morehead next Thursday or Friday, sailing on the steamship Bremen at New York Saturday. During June he will visit institutions in the Berlin Area. In July he will study methods in Hannover and the Rhineland.

The Board of Regents granted Dr. Payne a special leave of absence immediately after he had been selected to make the trip. He will return early in September, in time for the fall semester opening at Morehead. No one has been selected to serve as President of the College during his absence, but it is expected that Mrs. Payne and Miss Ann Carter, secretary, will carry on the office during the two summer schools.

Dr. Payne said the movement in sending representatives from the United States to Germany had no political significance, but the object of the foundation was the development of cultural relations between the United States and Germany and Austria. The special study of foreign languages will be conducted by the Department of Education.

TABBIN THE NEWS

Evidently taking advantage of the large crowd assembled at Bowling Green to bid Tom Rhea open his campaign for Governor, the forces of A. B. "Happy" Chandler flew an airplane over Bowling Green nearly all day with a long trailer, "Vote for Chandler, Defeat the Sales Tax." The airplane furnished a pleasant diversion for the assembled multitude from the more serious business at hand, and proved to be good advertising for someone. Whether it was a boost for Chandler or Rhea is hard to say. Anyway, Rhea can say he had a larger crowd for his opening address than did all the other candidates combined.

Dr. J. H. Payne, Morehead's No. 1 citizen, has been appropriately honored this week. The Morehead Press was chosen as one of the 5 men gathered from the entire country to make a study of literary conditions in Europe. It is an all-expense paid enterprise, and a chance that comes to a person once in a lifetime.

This appointment merely adds another achievement and goal attained to the already honored Morehead president.

Dr. Payne — Our sincere congratulations.

Katherine Ephraim has changed the serious business of play acting into "The Break of Hearts and Other Short Subjects." Or, perhaps the title of the picture in which she is appearing is "The Break of Hearts" and there will be many of art subjects shown before the feature picture.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET SATURDAY

Delegates To State Convention Will Be Named At Meeting

During the past week 2 Republican announced for State Representatives from the 95th Legislative District composed of Rowan and Bath Counties. They are Troy Jennings, Morehead, who previously held the post, and Reuben Adams, Haideman, who recently returned home from California.

This is Bath County's year to select a Representative, but no G. O. P. candidates came out from there. The Democratic fight for the nomination is expected to be between Walter J. Bailey, Preston, who was Representative in 1918 and 1923, and J. J. Thomas, Owingsville, who lost his only previous political battle, by 13 votes, for Clerk of Bath county.

Ask For Bids On Bridge In Elliott

In this issue of the Independent, the Kentucky State Highway Department announces the acceptance of sealed bids for the construction of a bridge across Little Sandy River at Green, Elliott county, on the Sandy Brook-Grayson road. The bridge will have two 150-foot spans complete with concrete floor. There will be a reinforced concrete substructure and grade and drain of approaches approximately 2.7 miles in length. The minimum wage paid to skilled laborers will be forty cents per hour.

Father's Day Observed At Morehead Services

Fathers Day will be observed with appropriate services at the First Christian Church next Sunday morning and night. A young peoples chorus will sing at the morning service and Dr. Fern will deliver a sermon with musical accompaniment honoring fatherhood. The Christian Endeavor Society will have charge of the night service at the church hour at 7:30 o'clock. The program will consist of talks and special music honoring their fathers. The public is invited to all these services.

Student Writes of Nivatori Club's Trip To Pike's Peak; 35 Make Journey

By Maureen McClure
Saturday morning, June first, at 5 o'clock, thirty-six Nivatori girls and our sponsor, Miss Exer Robinson, left Morehead on a nine days' trip to Denver, Colo., and Pike's Peak. We chartered a Greyhound bus and were accompanied by two bus drivers. We had planned to take a straight route through Missouri and Kansas, but were turned back at St. Louis because of the floods and tornado in that section. Most of the second day of the trip was spent in going northward to Omaha, Neb., in order to take the northern route. We spent the third night and most of the following day in North Platte, Neb. On the route from North Platte to Cheyenne, Wyo., we ran into evidence of the terrible damage of the flood. In many places entire fields were covered and the water was only a few feet below the highway. We encountered a miniature dust storm which was so dense that

ROWAN CIRCUIT COURT TO OPEN HERE MONDAY

Criminal Docket Is Lightest In Years; Keeton May Not Be Tried

The case against Mrs. Bernard Dry, of near Morehead, charged with slaying her son-in-law, Oscar "Red" Williams, two weeks ago, is expected to prove the case of primary interest in the criminal docket at the June term of Rowan Circuit Court, which convenes before Judge D. B. Caudill here Monday morning.

Mrs. Dry will probably plead self-defense. Officers said at the time of the shooting that she admitted killing the Williams boy, when an argument ensued over the custody of the small child of her daughter. She claimed that Williams had her husband down and was beating him when she fired the fatal shot.

However, at the examining trial neither Mrs. Dry nor her husband took the witness stand, and the Commonwealth fell short of actually proving that she fired the death bullet.

There will be little carried over from the old docket.

The case against Bill Keeton, under bond for shooting of Joe Peed here a week ago, will probably be held over until Peed recuperates adequately to take the stand. Bill Lane, also of Morehead, is under indictment for assault and battery as an outgrowth of the same trouble.

There are more than the usual number of statutory indictments coming up for trial. The docket is all most of warrants for disturbing religious worship. This is probably accounted for by the severe sentences and punishment that has been inflicted in the County Court by Judge C. E. Jennings during the past year.

CONNECTS P A S S THRU MOREHEAD

Several local persons saw the 3 converts that escaped from the State Reformatory at Frankfort and terrorized Central Kentucky before they were captured at Ashland Tuesday night. The men stopped their automobile here in front of the Amos A. Andy Restaurant and stayed here for sometime. No one recalled that they were the much sought desperados until daily newspapers came out with their pictures, following the capture in an Ashland restaurant.

The men were heavily armed with pistols, shotguns and sub-machine guns. A kidnapping and two hold-ups were laid to the bandits since their escape. They came through a carefully laid trap at Ford, Ky., where they crossed the Kentucky river, when officers failed to recognize the stolen V-8 Ford they were driving until they had already passed.

Student Writes of Nivatori Club's Trip To Pike's Peak; 35 Make Journey

It prevented travel for a few minutes. The fifth day was spent in the city of Denver. Our party met the mayor of the city and Governor Johnson of Colorado. In an impressive welcome address we were presented with the key to the city. On the following day we completed the journey to Monument, the small city at the base of Pike's Peak. We made the trip up the Peak in the early morning. The summit was covered with 17 feet of snow, and heavy coats had to be rented in order to face the fierce wind. Only a few hours later we were touring through the burning, red sands of the Garden of the Gods. The return trip was almost a non-stop flight. We left Monument, Colo., at five o'clock Friday morning and were in Morehead at ten-thirty Sunday night. We agree that the nine days were the most crowded and colorful in our whole experience.

WALLIS SCORES LAFFOON FORCE AT SANDY HOOK

500 Hear Paris Candidate Denounce Present State Administration

Frederick A. Wallis, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky, continued his campaign against the state administration at Sandy Hook Saturday, denouncing the highway department and charging "gross waste and corruption."

Mr. Wallis spoke in this little mountain town before approximately 500 persons who overfilled the Sandy Hook High School gymnasium. "It is unjust and unfair to voters of Kentucky and especially to the state employees that they must go into their pockets for a large per cent of their salaries to support an administration candidate in the governor's race," Mr. Wallis said. "Democrats are being made to fight Democrats in order to nominate an administration Democrat on money paid out by the taxpayers of this state, not to run someone's campaign, but to build highways and maintain our government," the speaker declared.

The Paris candidate charged corruption in the present system of operating the state government and declared he was running on a platform that did not include "vote buying on money from the coffers of the taxpayers." The voting franchise is being completely disregarded by the administration he added.

Mr. Wallis told the gathering that Elliott County would not need to send a commission to Frankfort to secure an appropriation for roads, since he had already seen enough of its roads to know that the county had more money than it could spend. "I see for a fair day now and for the highway department," Mr. Wallis declared.

Much of his speech dealt with the declared himself in favor of the federal government's old-age pension plan, and for not lowering the school per capita.

The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic political gatherings that has ever been held in this county, where 80 per cent of the voters are Democrats.

MUSIC DEPT. PLAN SUMMER CONCERT

Beginning this evening the faculty of the Department of Music of the Morehead State Teachers College will give a series of concerts. The first program will feature Prof. Lewis Henry Horton, head of the department. Prof. Horton is a baritone, and has already achieved numerous honors, not only here, but throughout the country. He has composed several selections.

Keith Davis, who came here last semester from Columbia University to accept a position in the Music Department, will appear on the program of Thursday, June 29. Dorothy J. Riess, long affiliated with the Morehead State Teachers College, is in charge Thursday, June 27.

The highlight of the entertainment will be a band concert under the direction of Prof. Marvin George on Thursday, July 4. This will probably be held on the terrace garden.

The closing program on Thursday, July 11, also features Prof. Horton, directing the college chorus. The complete schedule: Thursday, June 11—L. H. Horton, baritone. Thursday, June 20—Keith Davis, violin. Thursday, June 27—Dorothy J. Riess, piano. Thursday, July 4—Band Concert, M. E. George, director. Thursday July 11—Chorus, L. H. Horton, director.

D. C. Caudill Mentioned For State Senator Post

D. C. Caudill, President of the Peoples Bank of Morehead, District Bankers Association, has been prominently mentioned through out the week as a possible Democratic candidate for State Senator from Rowan, Bath, Menifee, Powell, Fleming and Mason counties. J. Frazer Hart, Flemingsburg, is the only Democrat that has cast his hat in the ring so far.

Mr. Caudill said this morning that he had not definitely made up his mind whether he would be a candidate, but indicated that he would give a definite statement next week.

BIDS TO BE LET ON POWER PLANT

Work To Begin Early In July; Will Be Finished In 1936

Contracts for the building of one of the most modern power, heat and water plants in Kentucky, will be let by the Morehead State Teachers College June 24. Actual construction on the plant, which has been delayed some time because of failure to secure rights to land Triplet Creek, will start between July 1 and 15. This means that it will not be ready for use until early in 1936.

Plans for the plant were drawn by Joseph and Joseph, architects, Louisville, who announce this week the letting of the contract. Joseph and Joseph have handled practically all drawings on building at Morehead College.

W. H. Rice, Superintendent of buildings and grounds said all rights had now been secured to construct several acres insuring an adequate water supply, even during the most serious droughts.

The Board of Regents is expected to meet by July 1.

ENROLLMENT OVER 800 THIS SUMMER

The largest summer enrollment that Morehead College has ever had was recorded this week as 1,182 students registered in both the college and the Breckinridge Training School. Of this number, 842 are enrolled in the college department.

At a corresponding time last year, Morehead had 650 summer school students, representing an increase this year of 192. A few more were expected to enroll after these figures were released Wednesday from the dean's office.

The fight over the issuance of certificates is thought to be the principal reason for the increase in resident students. It is probable that by September the State Department of Education will have in force a new law raising the standards for normal school and college certificates.

The same courses that are offered during a regular semester are now being given at the college.

Prof. McCoy, who obtained his Master's Degree from the University of Kentucky is an addition to the faculty in the Department of Science. He will teach Biology, a subject he has had special training in. Prof. Henderson has been added to the Department of History, and Prof. T. U. Fann, a graduate of Morehead, is an instructor in the Department of English.

Prof. E. F. Brickhead and Arville Wheeler, Superintendent of Paintsville City Schools, will teach in the Department Education. Wheeler has taught here several years.

DR. WISE, OPTOMETRIST, HERE FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Dr. L. A. Wise, Optometrist, of Mt. Sterling, will know throughout Kentucky, will open offices in the Hart Studio here Thursday, June 20; and will thereafter be in Morehead on Thursday and Friday of each week. Dr. Wise specializes in examining eyes and fitting glasses for which he has gained a high reputation. His advertisement appears in this issue of the Independent.

30,000 ATTEND OPENING SPEECH IN KY.

Upholds Gross Sales Tax Before Through Estimated At 30,000

Outlining HIS PLATFORM Pledging full cooperation with President Roosevelt's recovery program, if chosen governor of Kentucky, Thomas S. Rhea, of Russellville, formally opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination as governor at a barbecue and rally at Bowling Green Saturday attended by thousands of his followers.

Outlining his position on campaign issues, Rhea said he "favor[ed] a sales tax to the exclusion of all other forms of taxation." Referring to the sales tax passed by the 1934 legislature, he added, "yet I am firmly convinced that the emergency plan which existed in Kentucky had to be met or else disaster would have resulted."

"So long as these conditions exist," he said, "I will advocate a modified sales tax . . . or until a better form of taxation is suggested which will meet and care for the needs of emergency which exist in Kentucky."

A heavy rain at daybreak failed to dampen the ardor of the throng which came here by special trains, bus and automobile for the rally. Estimates on the number of visitors ranged from 20,000 to 40,000. The highest estimate was made by Congressman Gover Cary, of Owensboro, in his response to the welcome made by Max E. Nahn, Bowling Green banker. Cary said there were delegations from 111 of Kentucky's 120 counties.

During the rally an airplane trail, which was headed by Governor Chandler—popular sales tax" circled Hilltop Park and the principal districts of the city. Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler, foe of the sales tax, also is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Humorous referring to this incident, Congressman Cary advised the crowd to stay on the ground with Tom Rhea as he already has his opponents up in the air.

The rally opened with a big parade which required 35 minutes for marchers in columns of four to pass a given point. The march ended in Bowling Green with 150 pounds of barbecued meat supplemented by last-minute purchases of sandwiches were served visitors.

A "square deal" for labor and industry was promised. Further extension and improvement of the state's highway system was the crux of the speaker's message. Maintenance of the highest educational standards and equal opportunity for all of the children of the state were other features of the program announced by Mr. Rhea.

New Bonus Army in Los Angeles

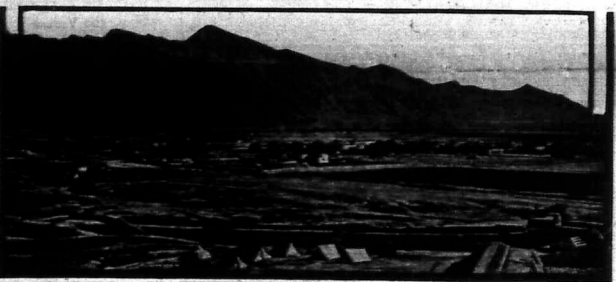

War veterans in Los Angeles responded quickly to a call for the formation of a new bonus army to go by automobile to Washington and plead for immediate bonus payment. In the picture Royal W. Robertson—right, wearing a veteran's cap—is seen enrolling members of the army.

Nippon Bids for Seaport Must Obtain China's Okay to Transfer

The Portuguese seaport in Macao, China, is being sought by the Japanese government, which is reported to have offered to purchase it from Portugal for $97,400,000. The city, a view of which is shown above, is located 35 miles across the mouth of the Canton river from the British port of Hongkong. One of the stumbling blocks to the proposal is that Japan must seek China's consent before the sale can be consummated, and nothing definite has been learned about whether this can be secured. Some observers see in this proposal a part of Japan's scheme to seize new territories in China. Recent rumors have it that Japan is massing troops apparently in preparation for a new drive.

Indian City Where Quake Killed Thousands

Estimate 30,000 Dead in Quetta

Above is shown a bird's-eye view of the city of Quetta in British Baluchistan, India, which was a shambles following a recent series of earthquake shocks. It is estimated that the disaster resulted in the loss of 30,000 lives, and considerable property damage. Included in the dead are 43 British Royal Air Force pilots stationed at the British military base maintained in the city. From the standpoint of lives lost, the disaster was one of the greatest in years.

American Is Dance Partner of Prince

For a time there was considerable speculation about the identity of this new friend of the prince of Wales who danced with him frequently in Paris and was so often in his company as to give rise to gossip. The mystery was finally solved when it was learned she is an American, the former Miss Wally Simpson, who is now the countess of Garrick. She is well known in Philadelphia, and before her marriage was Marion C. Donaghu.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service

Outside my window a couple of sparrows are building their nests. They are building Reason it in exactly the same way that sparrows have built nests since and long before the days when they were mentioned in the Scriptures. Their intelligence is limited to the ability to find the twigs, straw and mud they need to put together the future home of their offspring. That is about as far as they can go. Animals of a higher sort can be taught a few tricks, but they do not have the least idea when they are performing them, why they are performing them, or that they will be fed or patted on their heads if they do the job well, or punished if they do it badly, or refuse to do it at all. Among all the creatures of the earth, man alone has reason. Too bad he often does not make more and better use of it.

That reason is a gift which improves by use. There is a difference in mind capacity, of course. But it can be improved by thought, by mingling with intelligent people and by studying the world around you and the life in it.

That brain of yours was given you to use—not now and then—not just to support yourself and your dependents—but to do a little something toward advancing the sum of human knowledge, and making the people of your own circle a little indebted to you for spreading new ideas around so they can get hold of them and use them. Cultivate people with intelligence, and your own intelligence will expand.

If you are not personally acquainted with that kind of people, cultivate them in the books that they have written. If your schooling has been inadequate you can extend it by reading. Many a sound and useful education has been built up on the reading of newspapers alone. Reflect about the things you see around you, and try to make out the "why" of them. Don't use your mind, merely as an animal uses his, to find more and better ways of getting food. Your comfort, your enjoyment of life will be dependent on the kind of a mind you possess.

Make yours as good as possible, and, though you may not live happily ever after, you will enjoy your existence much more, and to enjoy existence is one of the important ends of this life of ours.

There is nothing wrong with hero worship, if you pick the right kind of heroes. Hero show at a "speake" Worship day I watched a crowd of people go into raptures over a cinema star who was making what is called a "personal appearance."

I am told that this young man is agreeable, good to his mother, and quite popular with his fellow actors and other people who know him. But he hardly deserves an ovation such as would never be given a great physician or a great inventor, or a great novelist, if they too made "personal appearances."

In fact I do not think that Thomas A. Edison, or even the President of the United States would be received with as much enthusiasm as was this young man with slicked black hair and a bad imitation of an English accent.

I have known a great many of the heroes of baseball and of football. They are regular fellows. Some of them may some day when they are no longer athletic be of great use to the world.

But however excellent athletes they may be it seems a bit overdoing it to bestow more attention upon them than is given to a man who has discovered a new method of combatting a deadly epidemic disease, or driven the grafters out of a great municipal government, or given the poor a better chance to enjoy the comforts of well built and sanitary apartment houses. I know that there is a continuous effort among school teachers and educators generally to convince the young idea that some of the great men of their own country, as well as of the world ought to be examples for youth to follow.

But I think that when at home or among their playfellows the urchins think and talk more about the stars of the screen than they do about the men who have made this nation possible.

We could stand a little more worship of real leaders of thought. It wouldn't hurt the youngsters any to know what they have done for their country or the world.

But for some reason or other it is the entertainer, not the builder who gets the big hand. Maybe I'm wrong about this.

Maybe these screen and athletic stars are marvelous people and are doing a marvelous work. But I think none the less that the rising generation would be better fit for the big job it will have to do pretty soon if it gets a real perspective on what is going on in the world and why.

Lilliputian Masterpieces Created by Man in All Ages

In all countries and in all ages there have been those possessed of a genius for creating Lilliputian masterpieces, says Everyman, London. In the sixteenth century Queen Elizabeth was the recipient of one such masterpiece; a golden chain composed of 50 links and so minute that it was practically invisible unless placed against a black ground. To demonstrate its lightness the maker wound it around the body of a fly, which flew off unembarrassed. The man who made this tiny chain was by trade a blacksmith. The smooth shapeliness of a grain of corn has tempted the skill of several men. A late President of the French Academy of Science once received a grain of corn on which one of his pupils had written a sentence of no less than two hundred and twenty-one words. Still more extraordinary was the feat performed by a Spaniard named Fabo. This man built a carriage exactly the size of a grain of corn. Examined under a strong magnifying glass it was possible to see the perfect detail of its interior decoration. An equally skillful piece of work was performed by a Swede who carved a dozen ivory plates so small in diameter and so thin that they fitted inside a peewee-berry. This berry, duly ornamented and inscribed, was given to Pope Pius V. When it came in mind how clumsy were the tools of the Middle Ages it is all the more surprising that feats of this kind were comparatively common in those days. The old monks were particularly skilful in this way. It was a Polish monk who did the tour de force of transcribing the whole of the Iliad on a strip of parchment which, when rolled up, could be placed inside a walnut shell; and one of the prized possessions of the Library of the Lovain university is a 15th-century Book of Hours, beautifully illuminated, smaller than a pocket watch. Smaller still, and of later date, are some of the pocket dictionaries to be found in German collections. A postage stamp stuck on the cover of one of these miniature volumes would completely hide them. Yet under a magnifying glass they can be read with ease.

Less futile and still more astounding are the chefs d'oeuvre of the watchmaker's art. In spite of the high precision required in making the parts and the fineness of the assemblies, there are on the market watches which keep good time and are so small that they can be set in a ring the size of a very small signet. There are cameras, too, small enough to be sewn inside the lining of a coat without making a noticeable bulge, or the projecting lens looking like a small button. Combining the arts of the cameo-cutter and the miniature painter, untrained Russian and Czecho-Slovakian peasants produce marvels of dexterity and patience in the form of tiny wooden figures, about half the size of a small 1's soldier.

These figures, carved in every conceivable attitude and painted in natural colors, are so extraordinarily life-like that in an enlarged photograph they appear to be living creatures. The Chinese also excel in the art of miniature carving, but their work is far from attaining the perfection of the Slav. This passion for the diminutive is not confined exclusively to inanimate objects. The Japanese garden, with its fir trees no taller than a blade of grass, is a well-known example of Lilliputian horticulture. Some years ago this penchant for small things led to the breeding of griffon dogs until the evolution of the Griffon—about the size of a rat. Still smaller, and having a delicate beauty all its own, is the masterpiece of dwarf breeding—the Buttery dog. The perfect specimen of this breed is smaller than a rat, though having slightly longer legs, and weighs just over three ounces. The engineer has also been tempted by records of smallness, and the creations of the model engineer far surpass the work of the artisans of the Middle Ages.

The smallest electric locomotive in the world has thrilled many London schoolboys, but this is beaten for smallness by a model anti-plane which plays Schuber's "Serenade" with the touch of a virtuoso. It is no bigger than a box of vestas.

Let even this cannot compare for smallness and precision with that masterpiece of model-making executed by an American engineer—an engine developing less than a thousandth horse-power, and so small that it can be hidden in the palm of the hand.

Tanning Is No Indication of Health, Expert Asserts

"It is not just the fact, but the fact too strongly that tanning is in no way an indication of health. It merely announces to those who know, that the person who is so tanned has been exposed to strong sunlight, and that his protective mechanism has operated to the fullest extent."

Having uttered these debunking words, John Seaverns, of Boston, spokesman for the American Chemical Society, proceeds with some timely remarks about the disadvantages and perils of sunburn, which is the penalty reckless people pay for not being able to tan.

In spite of all that has appeared in the public print, and all the broadcasts that have been given, there will be thousands of adults and children exposed unnecessarily and unwisely to the summer sun this year," Mr. Seaverns said, adding this emphatic statement: "It is little short of a crime for anybody to send a light-skinned child out into the sunlight to play, practically nude."

That unquestionably is high heresy; but we have a pretty definite notion that it is sound sense, by which the wise and piffling will profit. And just why the Boston chemist speaks as he does, he explains when he says:

"It takes from two to six days before the effect of deep sunburn heals, and during this time that portion of the skin that has been burned does not function. Further, if the burn is deep enough, permanent injury to the skin may result which may impair the health of the victim for the rest of his life."

"Taken altogether, the sunburn is a much more serious thing than most people believe and should be looked upon as a source of great possible danger in place of being something to joke about."

"So if you and your children are blonds who do not tan quickly but do burn easily, be wise and acknowledge that the ultra violet ray is an enemy bound to come out best in any rash encounter. If you must have sun baths, make them short and guarded until you have succeeded in establishing some sort of immunity. You may even live longer in case you do."

Our Utilities

The Federal Government continues their fight against privately-owned utilities. Further appropriations are being made for the construction of dams and other means of manufacturing electricity. The United States Government is going to business on a big scale. Along with this comes municipal operation which is growing every day.

Morehead's municipal water plant is a perfect example of what government owned enterprises are able to do. Not only have we procured water at a cheaper rate than most cities in the state but we have practically run the government from the revenue derived from their water works.

It may be possible that within a comparatively short time power from Morehead Dam may reach Morehead. Certainly the people of this City have never been satisfied with the present method of operation and the price scale. Although we are told that Morehead's rate has been lowered, we fail to notice any decrease on the monthly statements. Unfortunately we have never made a survey of electric costs in other cities compared with Morehead, but we do know and have talked with many people from other cities. Without exception they seem to be paying less than we do. This may or may not be true. It could be that we are being furnished power at a fair rate.

Supports No One So Far

The Courier-Journal, Kentucky's leading newspaper, is the one that gives special care to get into every political campaign and major controversy within the commonwealth, has, so far, taken no sides in the governor's race.

Anti-administration leaders claim that the Courier-Journal would wholeheartedly support Chandler. However, we notice that Chandler's opening address was crowded onto a back page and since that time the metropolitan daily seldom mentions the Lieutenant Governor's name. The latest word is that the Courier-Journal will support Jim Richmond. It seems, however, that this is untrue in view of the fact that Richmond is getting started late, and even the staunchest friends fail to see victory for him.

Here's the way we see it: The Courier-Journal would not support Egan after they had conducted a four-year fight against Governor Laffoon and the administration. They feel that Chandler is not qualified. They do not think Wallis can win, and they may support Richmond.

It would be something new in Kentucky politics if the Courier-Journal stayed completely out of the Governor's race. This would almost be without precedent. It has been often said that the Courier-Journal cannot elect a man, but they can ruin him after he is in office. In that statement there is much truth to be seen.

It can almost be safely said that the Courier-Journal will not support Egan, and Chandler. From the rest of the flock will come their man, if they support anyone. And, it looks like another losing year for Kentucky's leading newspaper.

Smart Wardrobe in One Pattern

Pattern 2197

You can make yourself a snappy smart summer wardrobe right from this one pattern. Simplicity's the thing—simplicity means are "the nap"—and here's a beautifully fitting model that may take many variations. Made in a fine silk or print it is perfect under most new and on into summer—make it again as in the other sketch—with square neckline and loose sleeves, in a solid color. Then start all over and use a striped or checked silk or printed lawn. The material influences the look to a great extent—and this is a perfect one for developing the latest new fabrics.

College Theatre Will Show 'Break of Hearts'

Romantic Drama at College Friday

As the title indicates, this is a love story—it is also a heart drama. Concentrating on those qualities, it embellishes them with other entertainment and showmanship assets, principally light comedy relief and an intriguing musical accompaniment.

An smoldering string feature, aimed to appeal to the more tender sentiments, it is the kind of attraction that probably will prove most interesting to women. Yet because of the quality of its story; that of its romance, drama and comedy, plus the unusualness of the function, aided by music, it is also an attraction that holds much for both class and mass audiences.

The basic story of "Break of Hearts" is neither new nor different. It is told on a familiar plot, but one which many times has proved its entertainment and commercial value. Motivated by an atmosphere of humanness, it is natural in its portrayal of what most human beings would do under conditions similar to the situations in which its characters find themselves. The story is simple. It is that of mutual love which from an accidental beginning flowered in and election. Mr. Rhea pledged that his administration would pursue a program of strict economy and that every economy would be appointed solely by reason of his or her ability to perform the task the government assigned to them.

In referring to the administration of President Roosevelt, Mr. Rhea declared: "No administration in our national history has done more for the public welfare than that of President Roosevelt." "History," said Mr. Rhea, "will record Governor Laffoon a great jurist, an able and conscientious executive."

Economic security for the masses, said Mr. Rhea, is a governmental necessity. If the measures proposed by President Roosevelt, are enacted by congress, he predicted, county poorhouses will be eliminated and will be replaced by a system that will "provide old people with a decent and dignified existence" and counties will be spared the expense of maintaining institutions that now destroy self-respect and sever ties of a lifetime.
