John Williams Shot Near Gates Station

Sunday about 11 o'clock a. m., some trouble came up between William Conley and Roy Williams, a brother of Roy "pulled him off" near the home of the latter's mother, near Gates Station, over a dog which sated in a flat fight. Roy had Will down and was pounding him when it is said, John Williams, a brother of Roy, "pulled him off" and took him to his mother's house, whereupon, as the story is told, Conley procured a high-powered rifle and bombarded the house from a place considerably distant. One shot, passing through the window, took effect in the left side of John Williams' back and he was thought to be fatally shot. Will fired a number of shots into the house and slightly wounded two little girls, one a child of John Williams, and the other, a child of Conley.

John Williams was taken to an Ashland hospital as soon as possible and his condition at this writing is said to be very serious.

Conley surrendered to the authorities and was placed in the county jail to await an examining trial which was set for Tuesday in County Judge Evans' court.

The examining trial was held before Judge Evans Wednesday when Conley gave an appearance bond of $2,500 and a peace bond of $1,000, and was released.

At last report John Williams was still alive in an Ashland hospital and in a dangerous condition.

A BIG HOTEL IN PROSPECT

John Cecil is figuring on building a 50-room brick hotel on the lot just below Clayton & Flood's Drug store from which a bungalow dwelling house is being moved.

Mr. Cecil proposes to have a bath and toilet in every room and make it the finest hotel of its size in Eastern Kentucky. Let the good work go on for Morehead is the best town of its size in the state. People like to stop in Morehead and no doubt this new hotel, if built, will be a paying proposition from the start.

GETTING READY

The Morehead Ice and Bottling Company is preparing to meet the summer emergency for ice and pop. Mr. Daugherty, the manager, is now playing the steam boiler which will drive the machinery in the new plant to be erected this spring. No better ice and pop can be made, than that turned out by the Morehead Ice and Bottling Company, and you never transacted business with a more perfect gentleman than Mr. Daugherty.

SICK AGAIN

We are sorry to note that Kiser Dickerson, the sewer felon, is again on the sick list. He recovered recently from a severe illness and doubtless went to work too soon.

ANOTHER LITTLE STRANGER

Born Saturday, March the 19th, to Virgil Flood and wife, a handsome girl baby.

LITTLE BETTY JOINS THE ANGELS

Poor little blind and afflicted Betty Bradley, eleven-year-old daughter of W. H. Bradley, of Rail Road St., passed to rest Tuesday afternoon and the remains were buried in Lee Cemetery, Wednesday afternoon.

The child had suffered the tortures of the damned for two or three years. She was sent to the School For The Blind but was sent home on account of her physical condition and grew gradually worse till death relieved her.

Poor little Betty—she was a sweet child and bore her sufferings with great fortitude. Now she has gone to join her mother and is no longer the little blind cripple; but in the full grown stature of young womanhood, her spirit now rests in "those everlasting gardens where angels walk and seraphs are the wardens."

LADIES' NIGHT AT KIWANIS (Reported)

On March 17th, St. Patrick's Day, the ladies met with their husbands and best friends in the parlors of the Baptist church to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. After a short social gathering in the auditorium of the church where they exchanged jokes and a formal introduction to the friends, etc., they were called to partake of the banquet, which had been prepared by the ladies of the church. After some time had been taken to devour the well-prepared dinner, we were called to order by the President to enjoy the rendition of two well-selected solos by Mrs. Baumstark, with Miss Miller at the piano. Then followed two readings by Miss Marie Holbrook which were enjoyed by all. After the readings, papers and pencils were distributed by Prof. Lappin and Chambers, where games were played in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. After games were played and enjoyed by all, the benediction was pronounced and all express a most enjoyable time and greeted each other with a sweet good night and left wondering when the next Ladies' Night would be and each hoping it would not be later than next St. Patrick's Day.

ADDING A THIRD STORY

AH Caskey is adding a third story to the City Hotel, to contain twelve well furnished rooms. This will be quite an improvement to this popular hotel and Mr. Caskey should be commended for his civic pride and enterprise.

This is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Proctor K. Mall of Bath Ave. Mrs. Van Antwerp was formerly Miss Adelaide Mall.

RECOVERING RAPIDLY

Ollie Blair and Ernest Lewis, of Wright, both of whom had a close call with appendicitis at an Ashland hospital, were released from the institutions—Blair on the 19th and Lewis on the 21st. Both are on the road to complete recovery, which is good news for the many friends of these worthy citizens.

THAT "BIG DEAL"

The report sent out from Mt. Sterling, to the Courier-Journal, that a gigantic real estate deal had been put over at Morehead is an error. No deal has been closed, but shrewdness and shrewdness, from a distance, have been here, the deal was going over the hills.

We understand there was a reward of $250 for Messer's arrest but we have not learned who made the arrest. Mr. Caskey and his son returned to Morehead and we presume Messer has been taken back to the Lexington jail.

MRS. MAY DIES

Mrs. Mollie May, wife of A. E. May, of the Farmers Bargain Store, at Centalla, Okla., died Thursday, March 10, 1927, aged 60 years. Mrs. May had been sick for several months.

KENTUCKY APPLE CROP THREATENED

Codling moth has become a serious menace to apple growing in Kentucky, and special measures will be needed for its control this year, according to a statement issued by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington.

Some of the oldest and heaviest producing orchards in the state sustained a loss of 70 to 90 percent of their crop last year, even after attempts had been made to control the pest.

Examinations show that many of the worms have lived through the winter, according to the statement, and apple growers may expect a heavy infestation and probably severe damage during the coming summer.

Prof. A. J. Olney and W. W. Magill, horticultural specialists, are urging growers to do everything possible to destroy the worms that have come through the winter. Destruction of these worms will tend to prevent the second brood, which do much damage to apples late in the season.

While sprays are used, beginning at blossoming time, special sanitary measures are recommended at this time. They include the scraping of loose bark from the tree trunks, and the destruction of these scrapings, since worms may be hiding in them.

All apple crates should also at this time be inspected and cleaned thoroughly, as well as packing sheds and apple storehouses. Crates may be dipped in scalding water. All rubbish should be destroyed.

Further information on the control of codling moth will be sent to newspapers from time to time during the season. Growers may secure detailed information from county agents or by writing directly to the horticultural department of the Experiment Station.

ALL STOCKHOLDERS

Every ninth person in this country is a stockholder in some sort of a corporation. The utilities, the industries and the banking of the country are largely in the keeping of the masses. Even the man who shines the shoes owns a share in the light and power company. Perhaps this is a reason why the modern politician does not find so much sport in baiting the corporations.

STEEL RIB FOR USE IN TUNNEL PREVENTS CAVE-INS

Engineers estimate that more than $2,500,000 will have been saved in labor costs and, doubtless, several lives spared in digging the Moffet tunnel in Colorado, through the use of a huge steel cantilever girder for supporting the top of the passage while timbers are put in place. Three of the girders have been used. Each is sixty-five feet long, ten feet high, eighteen feet wide, and weighs fifty tons. The girder is built of structural steel and somewhat resembles a centipede lying on its back, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It has projecting arms which support the arched section of the tunnel roof, while drillars, blasting and timbering of the bench on which it rests are in progress; and, as the work proceeds, it is advanced on a track by means of chains and cables attached to an air hoist. The apparatus is also used to place the enormous timbers which hold up the roof, a task that usually calls for many men and is often attended with disastrous slides. The girder was devised by George Lewis, general manager of the construction work on the tunnel and a mining engineer of many years' experience.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING ABOUT KENTUCKY

A report of a conference of bankers of Kentucky and Tennessee held in January is being distributed in pamphlet form by the bankers of Hopkinsville. It carries the recommendation of the conference to farmers in the dark fired tobacco district that the acreage of tobacco be reduced by at least one-third in 1927 and urges adoption of a more general plan of farming. An outstanding paragraph in the report follows: "We recommend that more cattle be fed on the farms, more flocks of sheep, more dairy cows, more poultry, more brood-sows; more hay crops and grazing land; enough corn on every farm to operate it, and enough surplus to feed a reasonable number of hogs; and that forage crops be fed on the farms, and less hauled away to market. We believe every farmer should raise enough foods of all kinds to "live at home" as near as possible, and to have something to sell from his farm every month of the year." Belief is expressed in the report that bankers in the section will look upon loans to farmers which are to be used in the manner suggested with much more favor than upon loans intended to finance the policy of growing the accustomed amount of tobacco.

A poultry owner at Beattville during the month of February marketed 1,882 eggs from his flock of 150 pure bred hens. The flock produced in December, January and February 3,822 eggs. In reporting the fact, the Beattville Enterprise says: "It is said that 15 good layers produce more in one year than the present value of a bale of cotton."

The Hazard Herald says 15,623 carloads of coal were shipped out of the Louisville field in February, an increase of nearly 2,000 cars over February of last year.

Agreements for growing almost 100 acres of tomatoes have already been signed by farmers, the Carlisle Mercury reports and operation of the canning factory at Bardwell this year seems assured. It is desired to sign up 125 acres.

The Woman's Division of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce is planning for a "clean-up week" for organization of garden and flower clubs.

Plans for a canning factory are being considered by the Springfield Commercial Club, says the Sun, of that city.

Engineers are engaged in making a survey of traffic and estimates of cost for a bridge over the Ohio river at Paducah. The movement is under the auspices of the Paducah Board of Trade.

"As substantial as the Pyramids, is the investment in the city of Russellville." This is the declaration heading a two-page summary of attractions of the Logan county capital appearing in the Russellville News-Democrat. Additional information about the city will be given in like manner at the next month, it is said, in order to interest manufacturing enterprises in opportunities offered by the community.

The Pellville and Whitesville oil fields are producing a little more than 2,000 barrels of oil a day, says the Hancock Clarion of Whitesville.

"No city or town in the United States can offer better advantages or inducements for manufacturing concerns of various kinds than Fayetteville." The people of Fayetteville are public-spirited and are always anxious to co-operate with any concern contemplating the establishment of any kind of factory in Fayetteville. These statements are made in an article appearing in the United States. It is the March 10 number of the Fayetteville Herald, which in itself is a testimonial to the enterprise of the eastern Kentucky city. The paper contains 139 pages, is illustrated in every one of its numerous sections and has a mimeographed information concerning eastern Kentucky. Extra copies, it is stated, will be furnished at 25c each.

The First National and City National Banks of Mayfield will shortly consolidate under the name of the former, the Mayfield Messenger reports.

The Lyon County Chamber of Commerce is behind a movement to secure a county agent, says the Edyville Herald.

Negotiations have been completed for a canning factory at Bardwell, the Clear Spring Distillery being pledged for 160 acres of tomatoes and 30 acres of beans are being rapidly signed, the Bardwell Standard declares. The plant will employ about 70 people.

Postmaster Burton Roberts, of Richmond, is quoted in the Panta-graph as inviting citizens of the Madison county seat to confer with him respecting plans for inducing a

BUREAUCRACY NOT JUSTIFIABLE

Bills advocating compulsory automobile liability insurance have been introduced in 21 of the 45 States whose legislatures met this winter.

Many states there was no expectation that the measure would be introduced, but rather the bill was introduced as a trial balloon.

The following reasons are advanced against such compulsory insurance, by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce:

1. Compulsory insurance creates an accident hazard among the irresponsible, because it would remove the segment fear of financial loss which tends to hold the reckless in check.
2. No evidence exists to show the total amount of uncompensated losses due to motor vehicle accidents. The great majority are being penalized to carry the burden of cost; the number and extent of which is not known.
3. It adds an extra burden on transportation.
4. It gives undue power to bureaucracy, which is justifiable only in cases of criminal offense.

A good life insurance solicitor can make you believe that it would be a pleasure to die if you were insured in his company.

Oral Hygiene for School Children Preventative Dentistry Is Urged

DR. KEENE SPEAKS

The following speech was made before the dentists of Ashland Friday evening, by Dr. R. P. Keene, of Owensboro, Ky., is deemed of such importance to mothers and fathers of school children that the text in full is reproduced here. Dr. Keene is traveling over the state arousing each city to the need of preventative treatment for the teeth of school children. His address follows:

Preventative Dentistry has come to us not through any particular persons of unusual intelligence, but as a slow and natural development, encouraged by the real need of the human race. Its growth has been determined and slow until it reached this age swiftly maturing ideas. It was given impetus by the general understanding of the world at large, of the relation of the mouth to health. We are passing through an age of prevention, and education, that used to be the possession of the privileged few, but now the possession of the masses, will finally press into an age of Positive Protection.

It takes hundreds of years to learn how to outwit disease. The knowledge that enables us to do it is called Preventative Medicine. It is the knowledge that enables us to check and prevent disease of the mouth is called Preventative Dentistry. In many localities where constructive dental work is being done this question arises, "What is the difference between Preventative Dentistry and the customary technical practice we have always known as Dentistry?" Preventative Dentistry aims entirely to prevent or arrest, and give early attention to the original defect from which practically all tooth diseases in adults originate, while the other type of Dentistry deals exclusively with an established condition of disease.

A large number of diseases of childhood develop because the body has been weakened by bad teeth, while the number of persons who are judged as stupid and incompetent, simply because four mouths poisoned their system. Dr. Ohas H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., has said that 90 percent of all children's diseases arise in the mouth, nose and throat, and that 90 percent of all deaths occur as a result of diseases that arise in this area or of the development in other parts of the body of diseases that have their origin in the nasal or oral activities. Since most dental disorders are preventable, this message should be given to the world at large.

It is a tragic thing to see a person of our age suffering from such neglect, for it is almost too late for remedy. By means of great care, the trouble itself can be stopped, but much of the infection has already made its way thru the system. It makes us realize that our efforts must be toward the child, and especially the young child.

Should Have Chance
Every child born should have an equal chance at good physical and mental health. They should be protected in the period of growth from all diseases that will cripple the body or alter its growth in any way. The average person knows little about a child. A child begins to cut his permanent teeth when he is about 5 or 6 years old. These teeth have been growing ever since the child was born so we cannot urge care too early in a child's life.

A child in its first school year is too small to realize the need of cleanliness of his teeth, and by the time he is old enough to read, attend lectures or think out the importance of this cleanliness, the damage has been done.

That is why Preventative Dentistry is so important, and one can easily see that the most practical way would be thru the school system. This would mean the control by our State, of every child's health, by medical, dental and psychological study in the school period. In this way the under privileged and unfortunate child would be reached as well as the class who are blessed with intelligent and wealthy fathers and mothers. If the children of today do not have this attention in their youth all the dentists in the United States working twenty-four hours each day, could not take care of the adult dental needs.

The most logical place for Preventative Dentistry today is in the school's regular program. It is generally conceded that most pupils retarded, are sick, and that most sickness is of dental origin. Frank Webster, Supt. of Minneapolis schools, reported it cost that city $554,000 in 1924 to re-educate the backward pupil, even though only 14 percent of them were backward. The State of Georgia reported in 1923 that a survey taken that year showed that it took two years for half of the children to do one year's work. In Atlanta, Ga., 32 percent of the children failed to pass their respective grades. During the following year a dental health program was introduced. In the final test at the close of the year, only 8 percent had failed to pass their grades.

These figures may interest you. It costs from $25 to $40 a year to educate a child in the primary and grammar grades of our public schools. The High School cost is far greater. Every time a child is retarded it cost the community or state double the amount. The general average of pupils in the schools of the United States who failed yearly is 40 percent. These figures of educational cost is startling.

A business man would be startled

ARE YOU GUILTY?

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer. "Why didn't you buy that lot of goods from me? I could have saved you a lot of money. You would have been purchasing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and holds up the locality." The farmer looked at the merchant and said: "I have been purchasing my home paper and advertising. I read it and hold it up to my head. I have been."

Into some sort of activity if he found out that 40 percent of his products had to be made over every year. The industrial associations of the nation are making studies daily of lowering costs of productions and operation. We invest money thru taxes in the education of our children, that is a business also. We pay the bills. The time has passed when the mental development of this child in the public school constitutes the whole of his education, while his physical welfare is neglected.

We make laws and spend money for the preservation of seals and whales, for fish and forestry, for birds and game. We safeguard our orchards and prevent our livestock from contracting diseases by quarantine regulations. Are we a considerate of our children?

An In Urgent Need
Kentucky needs Preventative Dentistry, it needs this program of Dental Health. It is a responsibility that belongs to you and to me. It requires time, tolerance with your fellowman, and love. Little children, to make the Oral Hygiene program a success, I am asking every one of you to go home with the pledge to the community in which you live, that they shall have some of the effects of their money and your skill and education.

Consult your Board of Education, talk with the Superintendent of your schools, perfect a plan to help the growing child. Serve your community, educate your community. Make constructive plans for better health. You have the knowledge that would help every child become a useful and efficient citizen. There is not a man here that does not love a child. You have a duty to every one as a future citizen. The children of today are our men and women of tomorrow. It is not a matter of charity, it is duty. All I ask is for justice to every child.—Ashland Daily Independent.

HARRY LAUDER TO BE IN KENTUCKY OIL BUSINESS

The noted Scotch comedian, Sir Harry Lauder has made arrangements to go in the oil business out of Winchester in the near future. A new syndicate is being formed to drill and explore for oil and gas and mineral in the eastern Kentucky field under the name of the Telford-Oil & Gas Syndicate. A large tract of land has just been leased by this syndicate in Owsley county near some recently drilled and highly producing wells. Sir Harry Lauder is one of the main subscribers in this syndicate. He determined upon this venture, when he recently played in Louisville, where he had as his guest, George Telford, who will be the president of the syndicate, and who has recently spent two weeks in and about Winchester looking over the eastern Kentucky oil field.

Sir Harry and Mr. Telford have been friends since their boyhood in England and Scotland, and are associated in other business ventures in America where Mr. Telford has made his home for years.

Coleman S. Moffet, Winchester attorney, has been engaged to look after the Lauder-Telford interests in this section.

RECORD MOTOR FOR AIRPLANE HAS EIGHTEEN CYLINDERS

Experts attribute the success of France in the field of aviation not only to the skill of her flyers but to the efficient equipment her engineers employ. This is illustrated in motors for the planes, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. An eighteen and a twelve-cylinder type are said to hold more world's records than any other make. The former develops 700 horsepower and the latter 400.

TAKING HOLD OF THE IDEA SLOWLY

Compulsory automobile insurance bills are before many of the Legislatures meeting this year, but so far as known no other State has joined Massachusetts to trying out legislation of such prudent-testing nature. A Senate Committee of the California Assembly found it questionable whether the number of persons who might benefit by such a measure was large enough to warrant the added expense to every automobilist owner in California, and advocated study of traffic problems and the need for compulsory liability insurance.

The poor fish who holds a soul mate in his arms and thinks he has found happiness is only hugging a delusion.

The reason why the average man is always broke, is because he would rather be known as a spend-thrift than as a tightwad.

Looks like Volstead also changed our standard measure scale. A quart of gin now means a peck of trouble.

Headache dizziness

"I HAVE headache once in a while, usually coming from constipation," says Mr. L. A. Morphis, of Pettaville, Ark., "and the very best remedy I have found to correct this condition is Theford's Black-Draught, it acts quickly and easily, and it just can't be beat."

"Black-Draught is the very best laxative I have found. I always feel so much better after taking it. My wife takes Black-Draught, too. For dizziness, constiveness and any little stomach disorder, we find it most satisfactory, and consider Black-Draught a family medicine."

Constipation locks up poisons in the body and allows them to do their dangerous work. Composed entirely of powdered medicinal herbs and roots and containing no harmful drugs, Black-Draught acts gently, helping the system get rid of impurities and preventing serious sickness. PRODUCE REVIEW

The past week has been one of the most trying periods of the season for the butter markets. The tendency of the markets has been unsettled and very sharp declines in values have resulted. Receipts of butter on the four principal consuming markets—Chicago, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, from Monday to Friday inclusive were slightly lower than the week previous and the same week a year ago. However, operators have been very cautious and only for current needs. As a result, some surpluses have been offered from day to day, which has had a tendency to affect the confidence of the buyers.

While domestic receipts of butter have been moderate, the situation generally is being affected by the butter markets abroad, resulting in comparatively heavy imports of butter from New Zealand, Denmark, and the Argentine. Importation of butter at this time is a decided factor in market conditions. SS Aousonia and SS American Banker from London and SS United States from Copenhagen and SS Devon direct from New Zealand, all expected to arrive this week, are reported as having consignments totaling 18,000 packages, or 1,098,000 lbs. of butter.

The Chicago market on 90 score Standards is quoted at 47 1/2 as compared with 94 1/2 cents on Monday of last week, a decline of 2 1/2 cents, while for the same time New York market on 90 score Extras is quoted at 47 cents today, represents a decline of 2 1/2 cents.

Receipts of eggs on the Chicago and New York market last week, Monday and Friday inclusive, showed a moderate increase over the previous week, and practically the same volume as for the same time a year ago. The present supply of eggs, in addition to taking care of direct needs for current consumption and movement into cold storage is supplying some export demand to Argentine. Weather conditions throughout the large producing areas have been favorable for increased production of eggs, with but few exceptions. The Chicago market on first day is quoted at 24 1/2 cents, an advance of 1/2 cent down as compared with a week ago. The New York market during the same time, advanced from 3/4 to 1 cent per dozen.

Receipts of live poultry during the past week have been heavy and the buying demand slow, resulting in unsatisfactory marketing conditions, and paying prices have worked lower. The Chicago market on fowls today is quoted as unchanged as compared with last Monday, but the New York market is 2 cents lower. The weather has been unusually seasonably warm, which has slowed up the consumptive demand and the future tendency of the markets at this time is uncertain.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR COLLEGE GRADUATES

"That agriculture and home economics offer opportunities to trained men and women is indicated by a survey made by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of occupations of recent graduates of the College of Agriculture, the University of Kentucky.

A large percentage of the graduates in agriculture and home economics, the survey shows, return to the farm or accept positions closely related to agriculture. Many graduates receive offers of positions which they feel warrant their leaving the farm.

The survey also brought out the fact that practically all the graduates of the College of Agriculture remain in Kentucky, and therefore the State is receiving the full benefit of the training it has afforded them.

Of the 21 men graduated from the College of Agriculture last year, seven are teaching agriculture, five are farmers, four are county agents, two are feed salesmen, two are engaged in the dairy business and one is continuing in the graduate school.

Of the 20 women graduated in home economics in 1926, 12 are teaching home economics, three are married, two hold positions as diet-itians, and one is managing a cafeteria. Only one reported no occupation on March 1, and only one was engaged in work unrelated to the subject in which she received special training while in the University.

There is an increasing opportunity for men and women educated in agricultural colleges, Dean Cooper said. While a majority of the graduates wish to return to the farm, many of them find it financially to their advantage to accept positions as teachers of agriculture, county agents, salesmen for feed manufacturers, or with dairies, creameries, milk condensaries, fertilizer companies or as agricultural agents for banks, railroads and other corporations.

Graduates in home economics find positions as teachers of home economics, managers of cafeterias, tea rooms and restaurants, or as dietitians, county home demonstration agents, and in other fields closely related to home-making.

A man often wonders why so many good looking and good-natured women are unmarried and why so many homely and crabby women are married.

GIRL BELIEVED TO BE DEAD RETURNS

Mary Vickery, 16 years old, whose body was thought to have been found in an abandoned mine shaft in Harlan county about 18 months ago and for whose murder Condy Dabney, 23, was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, appeared at Whitesburg last week and related the story which will give the man his freedom.

The girl had not left home because she was not happy. She had Dabney, a taxman, drive her to the railroad station, where she boarded a train for Cincinnati. She said she heard of the arrest and conviction of Dabney but kept quiet as she did not wish to return home. Finally, she said, her conscience compelled her to return.

Dabney has been in the penitentiary for more than a year. Mary Vickery and Marie Jackson, chief prosecution witness, who testified she saw Dabney kill the Vickery girl and put her body in the mine shaft, are being held.

With his face wreathed with smiles Dabney caught the train for Harlan to join his wife and two daughters, 12 and 9 years old.

"I was an innocent man and felt that I would get out of jail somehow," he said. "Many nights I called upon the Lord to help me, and when I received word Saturday night that Mary Vickery had appeared I gave thanks to God. I am going to Coal City and will go back to digging coal," he said.

Huge Still Captured Near Olympia

Still Said to Have Capacity for Making 500 Gallons Daily.—Probably Largest in State.

Prohibition Director B. F. Unthank and agents George Griffin, W. C. Manning, Alfred Moore and W. C. White, raiding near Olympia in Bath county Sunday afternoon, took into custody Donald Stanley, of Indian Run, Ky., and Ashland, Ollie Schultz, of Olympia and Lindsey Conley, of Indian Run, Ky., and Ironton, Ohio, charged with conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act by manufacturing, possessing, selling and transporting whiskey. They were taken before U. S. Commissioner, W. H. Wood, Sunday afternoon. Conley waived examination on plea of not guilty and was held for trial to the June term of court at Lexington and remanded to jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Stanley and Schultz both entered pleas of not guilty and asked for a hearing before the Commissioner. The case was set for trial March 29. The defendants were allowed bail of $5,000 each which they failed to execute.

These arrests were brought about by the results of a raid made near Olympia Saturday afternoon by Agents Manning and Moore in which a 500-gallon copper still with all copper equipment; 5,000 gallons of mash and 51 gallons of whiskey were seized and destroyed. The still was taken, by truck, to Owingsville, where, after pictures were made of the gigantic affair, the still was destroyed by the officers who were assisted in the raid by Sheriff Mason Botts and Deputy Omer Rogers. The still was in a large barn and was in full operation when the raiding party arrived on the scene. The outfit is the largest and most complete, according to officers, ever captured in the state and in the barn living quarters, including beds, cooking apparatus for the convenience of the operators while work was in process. Two hundred one-gallon glass jars were found in a Dodge automobile near the place and the car was confiscated. Raymond Stanley was captured at the barn by the officers and sent to the jail at Owingsville in Bath county and placed in the custody of the jailer. Stanley later made his escape.—Mt. Sterling Advocate.

KICKERS PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

A recent survey made by the President and Assistant Director of the Federation of British Industries showed that the American percentage of the total world production or resources, such as coal, petroleum, copper, steel, wheat, cotton lumber, automobiles, railroads, etc., averaged more than 55 per cent. It was pointed out, too, that these percentages of production or ownership applied to a country, large as it is, whose population is less than seven per cent of the population of the world. Attention was directed to the high level of individual prosperity which is enjoyed by all classes of our people.

"BLEST BE THE BRUSH THAT 'CLEANS"

(Sung to "Blest Be the Ten That Bind")
Blest be the brush that cleans
Our teeth at morn and night;
The water and the paste, the means
To keep them clean and white.

And after each meal we eat,
And ere we sleep at night
Again we use the brush, the paste,
This keeps them clean and white.

We share our mutual woes,
We share each others fun;
Our tooth brush is ours, and ours
alone,
We share this brush with none.

Blest be the brush that cleans
We praise it loud in song;
To use it well, at proper times
Will make us both well and strong.

TOO MANY LAWS

"Seven hundred and seventy-five measures passed by the Fifty-ninth Congress, which sat during part of the Roosevelt administration, constitute the record number of bills enacted during any one session. The present Congress is well on its way to breaking that record, according to statistics in the legislative record service of the Library of Congress. Up to January 31, the Sixty-ninth Congress had passed 536 bills and joint resolutions, the record from that date on not having been compiled as yet. This is considerably in excess of all other competitors, however. Only public acts are considered in the compilation, and the great bulk of private acts are not noticed.

"In all some 50,000 acts and joint resolutions have been passed by Congress since its organization. Of these about two-thirds constitute private measures, and of the 20,000 remaining a considerable number are purely local. The library believes that about 5,000 Federal laws have been enacted which at all affect the general public.

"Probably no one could be found who has even an academic knowledge of each of these 5,000 measures. How many of them are actually necessary in a debatable question. The sentiment of the country is for fewer and better laws. In this connection the record of the present session it not an enviable one, and it is to be hoped that it will stand for some time to come."—Washington Post.

COLOR AS BLOOD-POISON CURE TESTED WITH DYES

Progress in treating blood poisoning with dyes has been reported by Dr. John W. Churchman of Cornell university. The diptheria bacillus was shown to be quite susceptible to gentian violet, which was used in treating the amputation stumps of American war wounded of this infection, and diseased knee joints were sterilized with the same dye, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Aniline dyes are also proving effective in the treatment of surface infections. There is little evidence that the substances kill living bacteria floating in the blood, according to Dr. Churchman, but they alter the course of the blood poisoning.

ORGANIZATION FOR SERVICE AND NOT CONTROL OF PRICE

Men who desire to withdraw from a cooperative organization because non-members have been reaping some of the benefits should bear in mind that if all withdraw there will be no organization and consequently no benefits. O. B. Jeunes, of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, points out in a bulletin entitled "Cooperative Marketing and Price Control."

"Prices inside and outside of an organization often are hard to compare," he continues. "Non-members frequently obtain some benefits. The members should measure the value of their organization by the services it performs for them rather than by the benefits it may give to others."

"Are the results obtained by the organization better than those which the individual members would have obtained without organization? Are returns better with an organization than without? Has it improved grade and quality? Is it preventing discrimination among members and giving each fairer treatment? Has he otherwise would receive? In short, weigh it as a business enterprise on the basis of business service performed."

"The reasonable view of cooperative marketing," Mr. Jeunes concludes, "is that it gets results for its members by performing services and not by attempting to fix prices on an arbitrary basis or to hold prices at an artificial level in disregard of actual market conditions."

ERADICATE SCRUBS IN MANY COUNTIES

Organizations of farmers and business men are actively cooperating with agricultural agents in many counties in Kentucky in promoting the raising of better livestock. Purebred sires are being obtained for farmers at reasonable prices and assistance given in other ways in putting the livestock industry on a more profitable basis.

Following a survey which showed that there were 141 scrub bulls in Pendleton county, a three-day campaign resulted in 102 farmers promising to replace scrubs with purebreds. A scrub sire trial was held to arouse interest among stock raisers.

Campbell county now has but nine scrub bulls, while two years ago there were 119 in the county. Plans have been made to run the last scrub out of the county this year. A committee of farmers and the Jackson Kiwanis Club are cooperating with the county agent in a campaign to free Breathitt county scrub sires this year.

In Russell county 70 percent of the bulls now are purebred, while two years ago there were only two purebred bulls in the entire county.

Union county gained national fame last year by announcing to the world that it had chased the last scrub bull across its boundary. It was the first county in the United States to accomplish this feat.

Said a woman in a loud voice in a butcher shop the other morning, "I want a steak; a little one, costing about $1.50 will do." CHICAGO BANKER HELPS KENTUCKY BOYS AND GIRLS

M. A. Taylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and also president of the American Bankers' Association, has given two $25 scholarships to Junior Week, the annual assemblage of junior agricultural club boys and girls at the University of Kentucky, according to the announcement of J. W. Whitehouse, State club leader. Funds supplied by this internationally known banker will defray the expenses of sending two worthy junior club members to this week of education and inspiration.

Individuals and companies have donated a total of 31 scholarships to Junior Week. Senator J. N. Camden, Versailles, Ky., is another man who has given a scholarship. The following companies have announced their willingness to help further their Junior club work by donating scholarships to Junior Week:

SOMETHING ON THE TOPIC OF STATE DEVELOPMENT

While the candidates for the next General Assembly are announcing, and while the atmosphere seems charged with a healthy desire on the part of everybody in Kentucky to make the State grow industrially and commercially, it will perhaps do no harm to suggest that a widely recognized State developer is that condition where regulatory statutes are limited in number to those sanctioned by homely horse sense, and where the employment relationship measuring stick looks much like the Golden Rule.

The New Hampshire Legislature, early this month, killed a proposed 48-hour work week bill by a vote of 216 to 118 in the House. "Chief wonder is why 118 members of the lower branch of the Legislature have so little regard for economic realities that they are willing to place further handicaps upon the struggling industries of their State," remarked the New York Journal of Commerce. The same newspaper, after citing the wholesale migration of industry from New England to Southern States, "whose labor legislation is less puritanic," added: "Unfortunately, excessive regard for the rights of workers frequently deprives its subjects or victims of their most valuable possession, the right to earn a living under any conditions."

Citizens of Massachusetts are urging the Legislature of that State to modify the 48-hour law which everybody admits has been one of the prominent contributing factors to scores of industries moving out of the State.

A hearing is in progress this week in the Illinois Legislature on the proposal that women shall be prohibited from working over eight hours an any one day. The curtailment of production and the creating of more jobs are objects of the bill, says the president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. Protection of women from their desire to increase the size of their pay envelopes at the expense of their health is the reason for the bill, say the uplifters. A most effective bar to the ascension of women in industry, is one of the things employers say about the bill.

At least two prosperous factories are at this moment adding to the wealth of two Kentucky cities because they found it unprofitable to remain longer among the uplifters and the "closed shoppers" in the States where they first engaged in business.
