NUMBER TWELVE

MID-SEMESTER ENROLLMENT EXPECTED TO BRING TOTAL FOR TERM NEAR THOUSAND

Nearly Two Hundred New Students Expected To Enroll For Next Nine Weeks Course, Will Bring Total Enrollment Far Above That Of Any Previous Semester—Many New Faculty Members To Be Added

The opening of the mid-semester on April 6 will offer a broader opportunity for the students entering at that time than has previously been possible at any mid-semester. The courses being offered are particularly designed for persons wishing to complete the requirements for the Standard Certificate and the Bachelor's degree. The work is of such a nature that it will not be difficult to secure a course which will renew certificates.

In the Normal School Department the course offered will be counted toward the renewal of the Provisional Elementary Certificate, and also toward high school graduation.

The offering of the courses listed below will necessitate the addition of a number of new faculty members. In addition to increasing the number of the faculty it will send the present student registration over the eight hundred mark. Judging from the number enrolling in the past at this time, the present student body should number about eight hundred fifty.

Registration will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning. April 6. Class work will begin the following day.

Below are listed the courses available for the mid-semester term:

Marie and Wallace In 'Min and Bill'

Marie and Wallace in "Min and Bill." That's ordinarily enough to make local theatre fans sit up and take cognizance in preparation for the biggest laugh of the year. Well, Marie and Wallace will be seen and heard at the Cozy Friday and Saturday night in their new screen play "Min and Bill." And for the benefit of those who don't know Marie and Wallace, we might explain that they are the two leading laugh producers of the pictures, Marie Dressler and Wallace Berry.

No one here knows what "Min and Bill" is all about. They have no press books on the picture and no advance word. But they have seen Marie Dressler in a number of excitingly funny pictures notably in "Caught Short" and they know Wallace Berry is a comedian of the superlative consequently they have no hesitancy in recommending the new picture with the two of them together, as one worth seeing. It will be a comedy, right, at the Cozy on Saturday night.

Dr. Vincent To Be Heard At College

Much interest has been aroused among the students and faculty of the Morehead State Teachers College by the announcement that Dr. Leon H. Vincent will return again April 6 to 10, for a series of lectures. Last year, Dr. Vincent's lectures were of a biographical nature and were so interestingly presented, that he has been requested to lecture during this week in April on the following topics:

1. Carlyle and His Wife.
2. Thackeray, the Man and the Books.
3. Dickens, A Personal Study.
4. George Eliot.
5. Macaulay as a Converser and an Historian.

Dr. Vincent has been a specialist on literary subjects since 1985. Born in Chicago, he graduated from Syracuse University and soon embarked upon a prolific career of writing and lecturing. He has traveled and studied much in Europe as well as America; he has been connected for many seasons in sequence with the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, the University of Chicago, Columbia University and elsewhere.

Waltz's Have Narrow Escape

Mrs. C. U. Waltz narrowly escaped serious injury last Saturday on the road to Ashland when a blind horse was led across the road at a curve causing her son Wilford who was driving to wreck his car. Broken glass cut Mrs. Waltz in a number of places and her glasses were broken. Other occupants of the car, Mr. H. Bittner and Miss Aileen Waltz escaped unharmed.

The accident occurred just as Mr. Waltz was rounding a curve. Without warning a man led a blind horse across the road directly in front of the Waltz car. The driver tried to stop but the horse was too close and the collision could not be avoided. Beyond breaking the wind shield and windows in the car little damage was done. Dorr is still looking for scratches.

in Chicago, he graduated from Syracuse University and soon embarked upon a prolific career of writing and lecturing. He has traveled and studied much in Europe as well as America; he has been connected for many seasons in sequence with the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, the University of Chicago, Columbia University and elsewhere.

Personality. Vincent has an extraordinary charm, causing one to be relieved at once of any restraint that might be felt in the presence of a noted author and lecturer. The cordiality of manner, which has won the hearts of the novice in literature as well as the most advanced student, is undoubtedly one of the reasons why Dr. Vincent's services have been in demand throughout the country.

Dr. Sutton To Give Lectures

Dr. Willis D. Sutton, Superintendent of Schools of Atlanta, Georgia, will present two lectures at the Morehead State Teachers College beginning April 22. Dr. Sutton is not only an outstanding educator but ranks high as an educational leader. He is recognized as such throughout the Nation and was elected President of the National Education Association for the year of 1930-1931.

Dr. Sutton has made an enviable reputation as leader of the Atlanta Public School system and is beloved by each of the sixty-thousand pupils. He was born on a plantation near Dansburg, Georgia, and later graduated from Emory University. Probably his greatest achievement is to be found in his remarkable influence over the young, particularly the boys of his school.

Baptist Revival Is Drawing Attention

One of the busiest men in Morehead at present is Rev. Ralph A. Her-ring of Ashland, Ky., who is preaching in a series of revival services at the Baptist church. The local pastor, Rev. Kazee has the work planned so that practically all of the evangelist's time is taken in helping "to save the lost and revive the saved," according to the slogan of the meeting. Mr. Her-ring arrived here Monday and began his work at the Monday night service. The crowd that greeted him was almost as large as the Sunday night preceding. Although the weather has been inclement, the people have responded in generous numbers.

During the day, the pastor and evangelist are going about from home to home, talking with the lost and impressing the needs of Christ upon them. In the college dormitories, they meet with student groups and individuals for conferences and talks, in which the students are privileged to find out their own spiritual needs and have them met by the evangelist's efforts in directing them to the Bible and Christ. Wednesday morning at the regular chapel hour Mr. Her-ring spoke to a group of students in one of the class rooms. Sunday evening he will speak to the Y. W. C. A. vesper service at Fields Hall. He will preach at the local church every evening this week and it is expected that the meeting will also go through next week.

Rev. Kazee is leading the singing and almost every evening he sings a special gospel song as a solo. The college quartet is helping out with frequent numbers. The services start promptly at seven o'clock each evening. The spirit is great and the public is cordially urged to attend what is termed "a meeting for everybody."

Hi School Banquet To Be Well Attended

Months are already beginning to water and food is being partaken of in less and less quantities by the members of the football team and basketball squads of the Morehead High School, in anticipation of the annual Football-Basketball banquet which will be held in the basement of the Methodist Church on next Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Morehead Athletic Association. The banquet will be served by the ladies of the Methodist Church.

Plans are being made to make the banquet what it should be, one of the outstanding events of the athletic year. According to present indications, it will be just that. The advance sale of tickets indicates that just about everybody in Morehead is interested in the boys and girls of the city, and intends to attend the banquet on Tuesday night to show them that they do feel that interest in them. The banquet is being given by the association not so much to give the boys and girls a feed, as to show them that the citizens of the town appreciate their efforts in the past year and the honors they have won not only for themselves but for the community. It will mark the climax of the school year.

An excellent program of tonight's dinner will be arranged with Mr. Guy Snyder, one of the most consistent backers of the teams acting as toastmaster. Included in the program are talks by President John Howard Payne and Dean H. C. Haggan of the Morehead Teachers College. Together with other numbers, it is expected that the program will be one of the best ever offered.

Judging from the line who have signified their intention of attending the banquet, there will be one of the largest crowds that has ever attended a similar affair in Morehead. Tickets are on sale now. It is requested that those who intend to attend the banquet purchase tickets not later than Monday morning. N. E. Kennard has charge of the sale of tickets.

Federal Loans Being Made

More than one hundred farmers of Rowan county have applied for loans from the United States Department of Agriculture for the purchase of seed, feed and fertilizer. Seventy of these farmers have received checks in return for their applications and more checks will be received this week. Over $16,000 has been applied for in this county. Recently money has become available for farmers to borrow for the purchase of groceries, clothes, pay for hired labor and to pay for the repair of farm machinery. This money is obtained the same way as that from the seed, feed and fertilizer fund, that is by a note to the United States Department of Agriculture secured by a mortgage on the 1931 crop. Money from these two funds may be borrowed until the last of April or until such time as the funds appropriated are exhausted. Farmers desiring to borrow money with which to raise a crop in 1931, should consult County Agent Goff at once.

Repairs Made at Court House

County Court Clerk John M. Butcher has been repairing the damage done during the fire of three weeks ago in progress to such an extent that the prospects are good for this being able to move back by April 1, according to those in charge of the repair work. Mr. Butcher has been handicapped since the fire by being forced to carry on his work in the Circuit Court Clerk's office across the hall and in the vault of his own office, which the flames did not reach. The insurance adjuster has been here and has completed his survey for a settlement with the County Fiscal Court with the exception of the cost of the tax commissioner's records, the automobile license receipts and the licenses plates which are destroyed. As soon as the cost of these is learned, the complete settlement will be made.

A. T. Tatum Is Hurt In Wreck

A serious wreck occurred near Olive Hill last Friday on the C. and O., which resulted in the death of one man and the slight injury of a number of others, among them A. T. Tatum of this city, when the local "helper" out of Olive Hill backed around a curve and demolished the motor car on which the section men were riding. Charles Carroll was so seriously injured that he died within an hour, while Mr. Tatum suffered a severely sprained ankle, probably sustained when he jumped from the motor car.

The accident occurred Thursday afternoon. The "helper" had helped a freight train up one of the long hills on the other side of Olive Hill and was backing back to its station. According to Mr. Tatum, he and his crew were riding along on the motor car, when he suddenly looked up and saw the "helper" backing around a sharp curve at a good speed. When he saw the train it was only a few feet distant and he had no more time to yell a warning and jump. He does not know whether Mr. Carroll heard him or stayed on the car. The other men also jumped and escaped with minor bruises. The motor car was literally demolished.

On Monday April 6, the Corbin Ellington Post of the American Legion will hold a mass meeting and program in the Circuit Court room at the Court House, commemorating the fourteenth anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the World War. It was just 14 years ago on that day that the long delayed entrance of this country into the World conflict was announced, an announcement that spelled doom to the autocracy of Germany and success to the Allied powers.

The meeting and program on April 6, is open to the public and every citizen of Rowan and Bath counties is invited to be present. A good program is being prepared along patriotic lines and will consist of musical numbers and short talks. An special invitation is extended to all members of all wars to be present and to take part in the singing. There will be something in the program to appeal to everyone. Veterans of the World War, veterans of the Spanish American war and veterans of the Civil war are urged to be present.

Outstanding as a feature of the program will be a number of selections by the Morehead High School band. The high school band has made one other public appearance under the direction of Miss Emma Shade and made a wonderful impression on those who were fortunate enough to hear them. They will add a great deal to the success of the Legion and Baptist Churches has also so to take part in the program by supplying two musical and singing numbers. Mr. Kazee is noted in this part of Kentucky as well as nationally for his playing of the banjo. His numbers will be thoroughly entertaining. Prof. Lewis Henry Horton, head of the music department at the Morehead Teachers College has been asked to lead the group singing which has come to be recognized as a part of any American Legion program.

A strong band will also add to the pleasure of the occasion. And as a final touch, Dean H. C. Haggan of the Teachers College has consented to deliver a short address appropriate to the occasion. Dean Haggan is a service man, a member of the local Legion Post and is thoroughly familiar with and sympathetic with the problems that face the veterans of the world wars and other wars. He will discuss these problems with them and will undoubtedly be able to assist many of them with his advice.

Right now the great problem is that of turning the adjusted compensation insurance into cash. Any service man who wants assistance in this or any other line, should make an special effort to be present on Monday night, April 6, as they will be given an opportunity to get help in making them out at that time following the program.

Remember the program is being given for the benefit of the service men of all wars and for the public, all of whom are cordially invited to be present.

To Give Talk Ask E. A. Meet

Mrs. Lydia Messer Caudill, County Superintendent of the Rowan County, has been honored by being requested to open a round table discussion at the conference of the County Superintendents to be held at Louisville during the meeting of K. E. A. with a discussion on "The Problems of the County Superintendent." Mrs. Caudill is preparing to present a discussion based on her experience as superintendent of Rowan county during the past year.

The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

A Dramatic Story Of The Old Frontier West By WILLIAM McLOED RAINES

"hat if I'm jumped by Ingram or someone else?" "Then you'll have to look after yourself. But I don't think he can get here before night." The partners rode back to the creek by way of the park rim, dropping down to the meadow land over a pine clad hill. Smith, Beresford and the others carried the rifle. O'Hara led the creek horse. They moved up the creek keeping to the far side from the screen. "Getting close to the stable," Smith Beresford whispered over his shoulder to his friend. "There's a sort of ford where the horses drink just ahead. Think we'd better splash over and make a run for it!" "Might as well," O'Hara agreed. The horses waded through the little creek and climbed a slope beyond. They broke into a canter and headed straight for the stable. Quantrell let out a yell of glee as the two men swung to the ground. "Made it," he cries, you two dogged old hellamers!

"O'Hara did not share his enthusiasm. He had come to get the riders out of trouble if he could, but he did not intend to condone their offense. "Wh has been hurt?" he asked. "Ames is shot up right bad. I'm carryin' one pill in my leg as you saw. How did you find out?" "How did you find out?" "How did you find out?" "How did you find out?"

"O'Hara swung to the left and sent the horse rearing into the young willows. They crashed through, the supple branches whipping their faces. The animal lost its footing as it went down into the creek and both men were flung into the water. Tex as Jim caught the bridle and dragged the bronco to its feet. The riders were soaked but, O'Hara had managed to keep the rifle out of the water when he made his dive into the stream's shallow depth.

Into the saddle the Texan dragged himself. He stiffened his foot and O'Hara used it for a step to swing himself behind. A moment, and the horse was charging through the saplings fringing the opposite bank. Glancing back, O'Hara could hear the excited voices of the pursuers. They were too far away for him to make out the words, but he realized that they were already in motion. Someone shouted to them. O'Hara caught sight of young Quantrell riding down the creek. "Come back to chew over old time," he called gaily to them. "Where are the others?" O'Hara asked.

"They're humpin' right along. We can hold these roosters back if we have to. If they get on the prod we'll educate them proper." "We're not looking for trouble, Bob. What we're trying to do is get away with our skins whole. Don't forget that I won't have any unnecessary shooting. We've had more than enough." The voices of the pursuers came closer. Quantrell grinned cheerfully. "What shooting I will do will be necessary, looks like."

The Englishman followed the others. Hidden by the stable, the little cavalcade got some distance before it was seen by those in the house. Then it poured out from the orange as seeds are squirted from a hose and one of them leading the pursuit toward the stable gave a yell. O'Hara pounded of triumph and rage. O'Hara recognized him as Deever. "Already O'Hara had given orders to his companion but he interposed them by a reminder. "Remember, Texas, you're not to hit any of them unless we can't drive 'em back. The firing from the stable took the Ingram men by surprise. They wavered, broke back for the house. "If we can give our boys fifteen minutes start they ought to make it," O'Hara said.

"Can't do it," the Texan answered. "Just about now it's gonna strike those fellows to slip adds on their horses an' swing round to let the boys off from the mouth of the park." Texas Jim anticipated their throbs by less than five minutes. Presently they could be seen slipping up from the creek to the hitch rack by the house. "Time to say 'Adio' if we don't aim to be cut off," the cowboy said. "Right you are," agreed O'Hara. A moment later he saw Smith Beresford's horse, with the Texan behind it, gallop out past them.

"Cut for it!" he called to them. "Texas Jim advised." "O'Hara swung to the left and sent the horse rearing into the young willows. They crashed through, the supple branches whipping their faces. The animal lost its footing as it went down into the creek and both men were flung into the water. Tex as Jim caught the bridle and dragged the bronco to its feet. ned a bullet in front of them. The Ingram gunmen opened up into loose formation, but they kept coming. Shots sounded. A bullet cut off the branch of a willow five feet from O'Hara.

"Another half mile boys, an' we'll make it," Texas Jim said anxiously. "Onet we reach the boulder field we can stand 'em off."

Bob Quantrell slid from his horse saying, "I'm gonna stop them birds."

He rested his rifle across the branch of a willow, took careful aim and fired. A man tumbled from a horse.

Quantrell let out a "Hi-y!" of triumph. "Got that fellow good," he yelled across to Texas Jim. "Guess they won't push on their reins to get any closer."

He was right. The pursuers made for such cover as was available. One object lesson at a time was enough.

The fugitives took advantage of this to increase the distance between them and the Ingram men.

"They ain't such curly woves as they think they are," Quantrell said gleefully to his two companions. "I'll show this bully puss bunch that they can't push me more'n so fur."

The hills that fenced in the park grew closer. Not far ahead was the left through which ran the creek. Into this the horses galloped. They passed to a boulder strewn field beyond which was a gulch.

At the upper end of this they found the rest of the party. With them were Joe and the horses he had brought to the rendezvous.

Owens, his face drained of blood, looked like a man ready to collapse and sustained only by a resolute will.

"Can you go on?" O'Hara asked him.

Both of his hands clung to the saddle horn. He nodded, not wasting the energy to answer in words.

"We'll try to make the Circle S. O." O'Hara said. "It's less than four miles by the mesa."

He rode on one side of Owens, his partner on the other. Quantrell and Texas Jim brought up the rear, watching alertly for the pursuers.

The deputy sheriff and Joe rode in the van of the procession. Joe was an old timer and picked with a sure eye the easiest way across the hills to the ranch.

Owens succumbed within sight of the ranch, slipping from the saddle

KITCHEN LORE
by JANE ROGERS

THE wise housewife will take care to serve salads frequently during the cold, winter months. It is during this period of the year that fresh green vegetables are expensive and none too plentiful, and salads help to take their place by providing the family with an appetizing source of the needed vitamins and mineral salts.

Selection of just the right salad to harmonize or contrast with the other dishes is important.

The more substantial salads are usually most enjoyed when served as the main dish. A lighter salad, for instance one in which grapefruit or oranges are the chief ingredient, is preferable when the main dish is a roast or fowl, the tartness of the citrus fruits offering a refreshing contrast in flavor. In preparing French dressing for citrus or green salads, orange juice may be used as a suave substitute for the vinegar.

ned a bullet in front of them. The Ingram gunmen opened up into loose formation, but they kept coming. Shots sounded. A bullet cut off the branch of a willow five feet from O'Hara.

"Another half mile boys, an' we'll make it," Texas Jim said anxiously. "Onet we reach the boulder field we can stand 'em off."

Bob Quantrell slid from his horse saying, "I'm gonna stop them birds."

He rested his rifle across the branch of a willow, took careful aim and fired. A man tumbled from a horse.

Quantrell let out a "Hi-y!" of triumph. "Got that fellow good," he yelled across to Texas Jim. "Guess they won't push on their reins to get any closer."

He was right. The pursuers made for such cover as was available. One object lesson at a time was enough.

The fugitives took advantage of this to increase the distance between them and the Ingram men.

"They ain't such curly woves as they think they are," Quantrell said gleefully to his two companions. "I'll show this bully puss bunch that they can't push me more'n so fur."

The hills that fenced in the park grew closer. Not far ahead was the left through which ran the creek. Into this the horses galloped. They passed to a boulder strewn field beyond which was a gulch.

At the upper end of this they found the rest of the party. With them were Joe and the horses he had brought to the rendezvous.

Owens, his face drained of blood, looked like a man ready to collapse and sustained only by a resolute will.

"Can you go on?" O'Hara asked him.

Both of his hands clung to the saddle horn. He nodded, not wasting the energy to answer in words.

"We'll try to make the Circle S. O." O'Hara said. "It's less than four miles by the mesa."

He rode on one side of Owens, his partner on the other. Quantrell and Texas Jim brought up the rear, watching alertly for the pursuers.

The deputy sheriff and Joe rode in the van of the procession. Joe was an old timer and picked with a sure eye the easiest way across the hills to the ranch.

Owens succumbed within sight of the ranch, slipping from the saddle

THE SOURCE of Motor Oil

is not nearly so important as the manner in which it is refined!

"IT'S NOT WHERE YOU COME FROM—BUT WHAT YOU CAN DO!"
...

CRUDE OIL is not an automobile lubricant. It is converted into motor oil by a refining process which removes the wax and extracts the gasoline, kerosene and lighter fuels.

The lubricating value of a motor oil depends upon the method of refining and the care used in the refining process, rather than the source from which the crude is secured.

The best quality crude oil, regardless of its source, is selected for the refining of "STANDARD" Motor Oil. Then comes the refining process, based on our 50 years' experience in the manufacture of petroleum products. The result is "STANDARD" Motor Oil that year after year leads all other motor oils in sales in the territory in which it is sold.

Cheerfulness
 Learn to laugh; a good laugh is better than medicine.
 Learn how to tell a story; a good story, well told, is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick-room.
 Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself; the world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.
 Learn to stop croaking; if you cannot see any good in the world keep the bad to yourself.
 Learn to hide your aches and pains under pleasant smiles; no one cares to hear whether you have headaches, caraches, or rheumatism.
 Learn to meet your friends with a smile; a good-humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic is not wanted anywhere.
 Don't cry; tears do well in place in novels, but are out of place in real life.
 Above all, give pleasure; lose no chance of giving pleasure.
 You will pass through this world but once.
 Any good thing, therefore, that you can do, or any kindness that you can show to any human being, you had better do it now; do not defer or neglect it.
 For you will not pass this way again.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers
Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims—Food Programs Instituted on Wide Scale
 More than 1,000,000 persons in 25 States throughout the country are being fed by the work of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.
 Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when news was received to the effect that 58,000 families for the planting of rice and other pastures, and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for the year post-amounted to $225,000. Gross vegetables were made available up to the first of January.
 Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 States. Quarter-acre plots were set out in the form of a vegetable, carrot, collard, or a row of lettuce, spinach, mustard, okra, onions, pump, spinach, squash, tomatoes and beans. "I had a stubborn case of constipation after a very severe spell of grip," says Mr. John B. Hutchison, of Neosho, Mo. "When I would get constipated, I'd feel so sleepy, tired and worn-out. When one feels this way, work is much harder to do, especially farm work. I would have dizzy headaches when I could hardly see to work, but after I read of Black-Draught, I began taking it. I did not have the headaches any more. "When I have the sluggish, tired feeling, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and it seems to carry off the poison and I feel just fine. I use Black-Draught at regular intervals. It is easy to take and I know it helps me." This medicine is composed of pure botanical roots and herbs. Contains no chemicals. In 25-cent packages.

Contributed to the cause of the 12,000,000 and 100,000,000 people. Many historical and modern examples are available to the advocates of kitchen gardens, and many people are interested in the work. It is the hope of the Red Cross that this contribution to the relief of the drought-stricken areas will be a permanent one. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents are working in making this part of the relief program an entirely successful one.

Calorized Meals Served
 In a few instances where the need for adequate and suitable nourishment was so acute, the Red Cross has been forced to be satisfied with little or no food. In such cases, the Red Cross has served calorized meals, consisting of a hot soup and bread, or a hot soup and stew with bread, or a hot soup and bread with a hot drink, such as coffee or tea.

In the case of the Red Cross, the need for the calorized food and other necessities has been met. The Red Cross has received extra supplies for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, prunes and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.
 County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations procured on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, dried apples, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, egg yolk and other protein-rich elements

Thousands of Volunteer Workers
 Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free of charge by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected areas. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efforts, not one unfortunated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered. Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children returned their studies and been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief work.

States involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.
 Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the crisis of distress.
 "Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond. In widely scattered points, from leading cities, came the answer that undoubtedly there would have been many deaths directly from starvation, with epidemics preying upon the undernourished."

1931 OUTLOOK

Make labor go further. I have every thing to say about the farm, so that work can be done more quickly and easily. Keep gates and doors hung, so that they can be closed without loss of time. Do this when it is too wet to plow or conditions are unsuitable for other field work.

2. Keep tools and equipment in good condition. There is no pay having high priced tools. A dull tool or an implement that will do only half the work it should do. Put every implement in repair several weeks or months before it is to be used. Order repairs early and avoid expensive loss of time in the season when time means money.

3. Plan ahead for each particular job. If planting corn is the job that the planter is to working order on there are double tree and a neck yoke on it, that there is an oil can and monkey wrench and the seed is ready.

4. In going to the field to plow, always take an extra plow point and a wrench to put it on with. This will save a trip to the house, or to town to get a new point.

5. Doing work at the proper time is a matter of what importance in saving labor. A half day's work with the weeder or harrow when weeds are just sprouting will kill more of them than two day's work later when the weeds have gotten a start. The most vital rule for the successful farm manager is to constantly push forward and keep ahead with the farm work.

6. Every farmer should carry with him a memorandum book. This should be tied to a shot pencil and it should be set down a list of jobs to be done on rainy days and parts of days, ready at a moment's notice. The good farm manager never loses time from field work in good weather or by doing indoor work that could just as well be done at times when bad weather makes work in the field impossible.

7. If a hired man is employed give him good tools to work with and see that his tools are kept in first class working order. Give him intelligent and interested supervision. Usually the surest way to keep him interested and efficient is for the farmer to work with him and direct him as he works. Remember Benjamin Franklin's saying, "He who by the blow would thrive, himself must carry the hammer for drive."

8. In order to get the best farm hands it is necessary to employ them by the year. This makes it necessary to organize the farm to provide profitable work in the winter as well as in summer.

9. Encourage the hired man to plant and cultivate a good garden and a potato patch so as to have an abundance of vegetables throughout the summer season and also for winter use. Give him a few hours off at odd times to work his garden. If there is some dead or down timber on the place give him a chance to haul this in for fuel at odd times when it will not interfere with important field work. If he has a surplus eggs, or a little butter, or a few surplus eggs, or a milk hide or skunk hide, help him sell them so as to get the highest market price.

10. For farm operations requiring a number of men and teams a very good way to economize on costs is to exchange work with neighbors.

11. One practical plan for enabling a man to accomplish more farm work in a day is for him to drive more horses. In a great many cases farmers who have been breaking land with the 12-horse 2-horse plow could break 50 percent more land in a day and do it better by putting a third horse and using a larger plow. Often the two bottom 4-horse plow can be used to advantage and will enable one man to plow as much in a day as a two man using a single bottom plow. Farmers who are still using the one-horse cultivator in the cornfield should replace it with the two horse cultivator if they expect to cope successfully with the labor problem. On farms having good sized level fields the 4-horse cultivator pulled by three horses might replace the 2-horse one-row cultivator.

12. Much time and labor can be saved by hauling larger loads at each trip. A considerable saving will also be made by driving the team at a comfortable trot on the return trip with the empty wagon. More farmers should resort to use of three and four horse wagons, especially when loads are to be hauled considerable distances and whenever possible the teams should go loaded both ways.

13. Labor saving machinery when judiciously selected may help reduce costs. However, very careful calculations are made in the larger and more expensive kinds of machinery. Thus, for example, a very little downward adjustment of machinery prices to conform to the new lower prices levels of farm products and other things. To justify a complete line of such machinery a good sized farm is required. But two or three neighbors whose farms are too small to justify the individual purchase of such machines as the manure spreader, grain binder, corn harvester or engine cutter, may overcome the difficulty by owning these together.

ONLY LOST TEN

D. D. Slade, owner of the Kentucky Hatchery has received many letters from satisfied buyers of his chicks.

Mr. Geo. A. Mead, Spring Creek, Penn., writes, "I take pleasure in writing you in regard to those 200 White Oriskany chicks you sent me last May. I only lost 10 of them. They were so strong and sturdy they could not be blive. By November they were worth more than $250. I ordered them to arrive on the tenth of May and they were two days on the road. You timed them just right. I received them May 20th. I want to thank you for your fair treatment in every way."

Mr. Mead is just one of the thousands of customers who have written so favorably. Mr. Slade, owner of the Kentucky Hatchery was formerly in the Poultry Department of the University of Kentucky and long ago realized that quality chicks meant satisfied customers which would be with him year in and year out. Therefore, the Kentucky Hatchery has made every effort to turn out pure bred chicks of highest quality.

Chicks are shipped on the C. O. D. basis. Simply send in $1 when placing your order. Balance is paid to the postman when the chicks arrive.

The new 1931 Kentucky Hatchery catalog is very attractive and popular. If you want a copy of the book which contains helpful information on the raising and care of poultry as well as full information on pure bred chicks write Kentucky Hatchery 397 W. Fourth St., Lexington, Ky.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobacco.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum clearing apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidifier and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

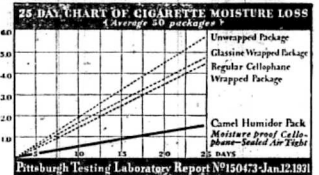

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a watertight material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Report N9150473-Jan.12.1931
Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.
