

KENTUCKY EDUCATION MEETING NOW IN SESSION AT LOUISVILLE DRAWS MANY ROWAN TEACHERS

Many From Public School of County As Well As From The Morehead Teachers College Spending Week At Convention—Local Educators Have Places In Program—High School Here Closed For Week

The annual meeting of Kentucky Education Association, known thru out the state as K. E. A. is in session at Louisville this week, and the "Big Town" is proving a Mecca for those who follow pedagogical pursuits. It is estimated that over 15,000 teachers will gather there for the sixteenth annual convention.

In that fifteen thousand, Morehead and Rowan county will be well represented, both in numbers and in the programs in the various departments. Haldeman and Morehead teachers in the public schools and practically the entire faculty of the Teachers College will attend, many having left as early as Tuesday.

This year Rowan county is particularly interested in the annual state-wide spelling contest in which champion spellers from every county in the state are entered. Rowan county is also represented in this contest this year, by Miss Mary Alderson of Farmers who won the county championship in the contest held in January. Miss Alderson is a twelve year old girl, and according to reports will make somebody trip if she wins the laurels from her. She left Tuesday afternoon under the care of County Superintendent, Mrs. Lydia Messer Caudill, who is primarily responsible for her entry.

The Morehead Teachers College closed Wednesday for the balance of the week to give the faculty members and students an opportunity to attend the sessions at Louisville. Many of the students as well as the faculty are expected to be absent on the trip.

Morehead is also honored by having received at least two invitations to take part in the permanent programs. Prof. E. V. Hollis will address the educational division while County Superintendent, Mrs. Messer Caudill will open the round table discussion on the "Problems of the Department Sessions for County Superintendents."

The schools will reopen on Monday morning of next week.

GLADYS FLOOD BREAKS ARM

Glady Flood suffered a broken arm and a number of painful cuts and bruises on Monday of this week when she fell over the banister at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Flood.

Daniel Boone's Life At Cozy

A picture of particular interest to Kentuckians, is "Great Meadows" which will be shown at the Cozy Theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week. It is unfortunate that the college is enjoying vacation this week as the picture would have a particular appeal and interest to the students of "Great Meadows" in an historical picture of the days and life of the early Kentucky pioneers, especially that of the great one of them all, Daniel Boone. The setting of the picture is authentic, as it is located at Harrodsburg, and includes the old Fort Harrod. Many from Morehead have visited the old fort in its restored condition, and will be able to view and hear the picture with added interest, because of their intimate knowledge.

Of course "Great Meadows" has a romance connected with it that connects up with the historical details. The cast is headed by John Mack Brown and Eleanor Boardman.

Eagles Take First From Cedarville

Playing their first regular school baseball game in this section of the state, the Morehead Teachers College Eagles defeated the Cedarville Ohio College here last Saturday by a score of 8-2, in a listless game.

Edgar McNabb struck out thirteen of the visiting players and was effective in the pinches. Carlisle and A. Turner, hurling for Cedarville, whiffed ten Eagles between them.

Each team drew eight hits, but the Eagles bunched them better and drew one less error than their opponents. McNabb did not issue a base on balls while his teammates cashed in on four. Prater and Kash Williams led the batting attack for the home guards, each drawing two hits.

Cedarville opened up in the third and with a hit and an error or two took a two nothing lead. The Eagles came back in their half for three, and in the sixth added another, taking three more in the seventh and one in the eighth. McNabb held the Ohiomans at his mercy in the last half of the battle.

I. G. A. STORE TO OPEN SATURDAY

The L. G. A. Store is organized along the lines of the chain stores with the exception that they are owned and operated by local men. Mr. E. C. and his son are both well known merchants of this county having had years of experience in the mercantile business at Elliottsville before moving to Morehead several years ago.

MOREHEAD CLUB TO MEET MONDAY

The Morehead Woman's Club will hold the final meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. H. C. Willett on Monday night of next week.

As this is the final meeting of the year at which the officers for the coming year are to be elected, all members are particularly urged to be present. No other program has been planned.

Fire Damages DeBord House

Fire was discovered Sunday night in the house belonging to Marion DeBord east of Morehead. The Morehead fire department responded to the alarm and, in spite of the fact that the building was one of the city limits and had no water protection did some remarkably efficient work in extinguishing the blaze and in limiting the damage.

The fire was of unknown origin. The house has been vacant for several weeks, and the fire seemed to have started in a back room of the porch. When the fire department arrived on the scene the flames had broken through the roof and appeared as the building was being demolished. However, the chemical engine was turned on and within a few minutes the fire was under control.

Mr. DeBord lost another house on the same location a year or so ago. Damage according to insurance adjusters was limited to approximately $14,000.

Mrs. C. E. Bishop and Miss Emma Shader spent the weekend in Lexington.

Kiwanis Discuss County Farm Agent

Last Monday evening the Agriculture Committee of the Kiwanis Club made a report of the committee's activities. When the chairman had finished, he said the biggest thing Rowan county has is to maintain the County Agricultural Agent. It was suggested that the members would like to know the outstanding things the County Agent had done. It was said that those who are opposing the program will not fail to tell the Fiscal Court their objections. It was felt that those who were in favor of the program and felt that the results of his activities would be felt for years to come, should likewise be in a position to let the Fiscal Court know that they felt the members of the court were doing the best possible thing for the county.

Some of the outstanding things he is doing are as follows:

1. Getting the farmers interested in soy beans.
2. Getting the farmers interested in inoculating their seed.
3. Getting modern poultry houses built over the county. Getting the farmers to see what an asset good chickens are and the money value in return.
4. Getting started on pure bred stock.
5. Getting the farmers interested in draining their low lands. This will increase the production of this low land three or four times.
6. Getting the cream station started. This affords a market for the cream of the county. Mr. Hargan pointed out that the price of cream is down now, but this is the fault of a farmer himself. He said they bring their cream in and sell it, then the buy some brand of substitute for butter and take back home with them, stopping the market on their own product.
7. The county will not be able to see the immediate value of the County agent. Twenty five years from now this work will show up to be one of the best investments the county has ever made.

PAGEANT DRAWS LARGE ATTENDANCE

The Pageant at the Christian Church last Sunday night "The Open Door" drew a large crowd for its grandeur and was well worthy of the time and attention given. The Pageant, which was put on by various groups of the Missionary Society, was an pantomime and was read by Mrs. Lester Hogg.

Unfortunately the close of the Pageant was somewhat marred by the fire alarm which took away the attention of the audience.

The Kentucky Tuberculosis Association has begun an intensive campaign with the slogan "Tuberculosis—The Foe of Youth." Tuberculosis is the foe of youth. Under a new plan of "attack on disease," the 1,400 tuberculosis associations of the United States are organizing an intensive effort to fight tuberculosis in youth. Despite the general reduction of the death rate from this disease in the last twenty years, it still kills more persons between the ages of 18 and 35 than any other cause, and has the high death rate of 120 per 100,000 in the age group of 20 to 24, while among the population in the nation as a whole the rate is only 76.

Boys and girls have been discovered in active high school work, leaders in athletics and scholarship, apparently in good health, but actually with tuberculosis smoldering within them, ready to break out into flame. Modern scientific progress has brought the tubercular test and the X-ray, and by these aids physicians discover cases in time to check the disease, even before any symptoms are manifest.

"Raise Food" Say The Experts

The following statements according to County Agent, Chas. Goff are made on a leaflet published by the Experiment Station on "Raise Your Own Food." Mr. Goff considers the situation of particular importance to Rowan county farmers.

Producing a large portion of the family food supply on the farm is essential in 1931.

Successful farming in 1931 begins by raising food for home consumption.

The farm can furnish three-fourths or more of the necessary food for a family.

The market outlook for agricultural products in 1931 is not favorable for high prices.

The farmer who intends to grow cash crops and buy groceries may come out in debt.

The amount of food produced for home consumption can be increased this year with safety.

Vegetables, milk, butter and meat are necessary articles of food in a well fed family. All can be supplied by the farm.

The garden is usually the most valuable plot on the farm and too often receives the least attention. One acre will grow a year's supply of vegetables for an average farm family.

THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE CLEAN UP CAMPAIGN

being started in Morehead gives many reasons why the citizens of this city should manifest a personal pride and personal interest in the Clean Up Campaign soon to be inaugurated.

Winter is blowing its last blast. The grass has begun to lift its head above the gray earth, covering valley and hillside. The dew-drops have come out to see the daylight. Men and mads and robins and red birds will commence to build nests and the folks and the trees will begin to dress in spring clothes. Women and flowers will blossom out in gorgeous array and people and sparrows will chirp. "This is the life," we'll say.

The annual miracle is about to be enacted. Probably many people regard this more thrilling than the REBIRTH OF MAN from the depths of earth.

All nature seems to be making nature clean; but man, in his kingly might stands in his path. He litters the streets, chokes the alleys and backyards, and buries the grass beneath his feet with tin cans, trash, old boxes, and all sorts of rubbish. The annual miracle cannot take place in all its beauty unless man does his part as majestically and unselfishly as does nature.

Beginning Friday at noon, May 1, and running thru till May 7, trash will be hauled away from the premises free of charge.

JOHN PAUL NICKELL LOSES IN CONTEST

Much to the disappointment of his friends here, John Paul Nickell who won the right to enter the state music contest held at Lexington last week, failed to place in the fifteen contestants who were entered in the particular class. Many of those present felt that he deserved at least a place among the winners, but evidently the judges decided differently.

Three Families Start For Montana

Last fall, the Rowan County News received a letter from a former citizen of Rowan county who now lives in Montana, Mr. Moccabe wrote recommending the best growing section of Montana and offering to assist any one who cared to go to that country in getting located and started in the industry.

And now comes reality. A number of families in this county who read the letter got in touch with the writer. It has not been very long since they have since that time and today three families of them are starting out for Billings Montana in response to Mr. Moccabe's letters. The three families who are making the move are those of C. A. Hall, W. B. Marcum and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hall.

In addition to the three families mentioned above, Curtis Hall, E. D. Hall, Taber, Wells, and D. C. Gault are making the trip. Mr. Gault will, of course, return.

The trip is being made in the Casskey Special bus, with Alf and Lester Galtley driving.

These folks are to be commended for their spirit and for their determination to do what they think is right.

The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

A Dramatic Story Of The Old Frontier West
By WILLIAM McLEOD RAINES

There was a little rustling movement of her body toward him. Perhaps it was only an unconscious sigh of happiness. She felt love pouring through her quivering lips.

Ingram kissed the palpitant brown throat, the glowing eyes, the red lips between which gleamed perfect ivory teeth. The touch of love had awakened her. She was a flaming flower, incomparably desirable in her soft and joyous vitality. From her surrender, so full of innocent and passionate abandon, the man picked up emotion new to his experience.

"My mate! My woman!" he cried exultantly.

In her bosom throated burst as he and from her soft throat there came a happy little laugh. "If you care as much as that," she murmured.

"Bye she withdrew from his embrace, her cheek flying a flag of color. "We're all alike, we women," she laughed tremulously. "We want our man and our home."

He came to earth and the less important business of the day. "Tell your father it's to be peace between us. I'll sure be easy to do business with."

"I can't tell Dad. He mustn't know I've been here. It's to be a secret."

She turned to him with a smile. "Mr. Quantrell, I'm sure you'll be glad to see me."

He turned to her and asked to climb to the mess above. For the hour at least she had given him a new vision of life. Thru all the harshness and hatred of the feud she had contrived to remain fresh and sweet and fine as the song of a meadow lark. He felt himself a small thing, infinitely removed from the stars to which she looked so bravely. But he realized this conviction was but for the moment.

He knew that he was what he was, what the years and environment of his ancestry had made him, a hard and willful man, one who would go his own way at all costs. Men are not born again, not in this work away world. He would make peace because circumstances forced his hand, because the path he wanted to follow lay that way. But he must wait a time, since it was in his honor to trample down those who opposed him on his road to success.

As he rode up to the Hughes ranch to reconnoiter a claybank row pony at the hitch rack near the house. Several men were sitting on the porch including Harvey, Deever and Roche while leaning against one of the posts a rifle across his legs, sat Bob Quantrell, smoking a cigarette innocently but warily.

"What are you doing here?" asked Ingram harshly.

The lad took the cigarette from his mouth and blew out a fat smoke wreath lazily. "The short an' sweet of it is that I'm here looking for a job. I'm through with that other outfit. I don't like their ways an' they don't like mine."

"You've got a nerve to come here after what you did the day before yesterday," Ingram said blackly.

"All in the way of business, Dave the boy replied daintily. "What would you expect? I was workin' for Steelman's crowd then. Like I said, I've quit them. If you're needin' a top hand, either with a bunch of boys or a slaughter, why hire me, say the word. I'm your gonsberry. Any of the boys here can recommend me."

The big cattle man did not lift his eyes from the slim lad with the receding chin. This youngster grinning at him with his buck teeth showing was the most notorious bad man in the territory. In time men would come from afar to write books about his wild career, though none of these present could guess that his reputation would soon be as plain as day.

Ingram was out of sight of him. He

COOPER SEES DANGER IN BIG TOBACCO CROP

Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the Experiment Station and College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky believes that farmers should consider giving more attention to selection of tobacco lands and production of food and feed crops rather than to a larger tobacco crop.

"Information from the United States Department of Agriculture that it is the present intention of the farmers to increase their tobacco acreage this year should be the subject of serious consideration," Dean Cooper said.

"Increased interest in the growing of burley tobacco is evidenced by a proposed expansion in acreage, varying from 11 percent in Missouri to 40 percent in West Virginia. Kentucky growers are planning an increase of almost 19 percent.

"Every grower is in a position to know that an additional acreage beyond the amount necessary to produce what is required for overabundance may result in oversupplying the market. Consumption of burley is increasing more slowly than is realized generally. Stocks of tobacco are other than abundant and are some greatly interested in growing this crop. Despite the drought of last year the burley tobacco crop was the largest on record. An increased acreage this year over last with average yields would create a supply far beyond normal requirements.

"It is evident that if these proposed plantings take place farmers will be confronted by a serious situation—it may be difficult for some farmers to decide what to do under such circumstances. Everyone recognizes, however, that it is not advantageous for tobacco growers as a whole to produce a large over supply. Possibly time and attention devoted to a smaller acreage of first class land will produce good quality tobacco and more consideration to the production of livestock and home supply of food for the family will be a solution of the problem of tobacco for many farmers."

ed the rifle from his grip and sent it flying through the air. Struggling desperately the boy was flung to the ground and his hands were pinned down by one of Ingram's. The sixshooters of the gunman were torn from their scabbards and tossed to one side.

The cattle man caught his shirt at the throat and dragged him to his feet. They stood for an instant glaring at each other, the youngster held at arm's length by the powerful grip of the Diamond Tail owner.

"I'll kill you for this," Quantrell cried with a furious oath, his voice breaking into a boyish falsetto.

Ingram did not answer. He was not through. His eyes had fallen on a quilt hanging from a nail driven into the wall of the house. Toward this he propelled his victim, forcing him up the steps to the porch. The boy tried savagely to fight himself free.

As Ingram reached for the whip Quantrell realized what he meant to do and shrieked protest.

"Don't you dare touch me! Don't you! Don't you!"

The cattle man paid not attention. His muscular forearm held the boy off while the lash hissed through the air and coiled itself around the slender body protected only by a flannel shirt. Six—nine—twelve time the quirt rose and fell. Quantrell sought to escape the tortur, snarling and biting like an animal.

Thus watching the scene stood silent, startled at what they saw. No sound except the swish of the lash, the scuffle of the shifting feet and the whine of wild-beast fury issuing from the throat of the writhing man.

Ingram stopped, flung away the whip.

"Gather those guns," he ordered Roche.

When the cowboy had done this the cattle man threw the young out low down the steps.

"Get out of here," he ordered. "Out of this country or I'll hunt you down like I promised."

Grimly Ingram looked won at him. He did not answer the man's ravings but standing there straight and stern he made a picture of masterful strength.

The young killer limped to his horse, dragged himself to the saddle and rode away.

Harvey was the first to speak. "I'll say you're thorough, Dave."

"I'll run him out of the country," Ingram turned to the others. "Boys, our party is off for today. The Jefferson county way is about over, it looks like. We Steelmen an' I are gonna patch up our troubles. Don't any of you get on the prod with any of the Hashknife warriors for a day or two till we see what's what. Come on into the house Tom I want totalk it over with you."

Barbara did not ride straight back after her talk with Ingram but turned of aside, to the Circle S O ranch. She wanted to talk with Garrett O'Hara before she saw her father. As she traveled the hills and valleys between the creeks on which the ranches lay her heart was lifted as it had not been for many a day. Yet back thrilled her was a premonition of disaster. It was not in the cards, so some deep instinct told her, that she and her lover should be happy together.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

THESE days when a rigidly economical household menu is frequently a necessity, how to assure maximum health and food value at the least cost is an important problem. A greater use of cereal foods as lunch and supper dishes, as well as for breakfast, is one way to solve it. A dish of cornflakes and cream provides about one and a half times the food value of a serving of stein steak at a fraction of the cost.

Rubbing the edges of the square pan with butter is one way to prevent milk from boiling over.

The right way to use the new HUMIDOR PACK

1 Do not tear Cellophane. Look for the convenient flap at the top and back of package

2 Simply lift this flap and you will break the specially devised air-tight seal

3 Hold package as shown and with your thumbs push it part way out of Humidor Pack

4 To avoid tearing the foil, slip first finger of each hand under Revenue stamp and break it

5 Help yourself to a fresh cigarette, then slide package back into its Humidor Pack

6 Close package. It guards Camels from dust and germs and provides sanitary protection

THE moment you open the new Camel Humidor Pack you begin to note the advantages of this new, scientific and sanitary method of wrapping Camel cigarettes.

At once you are greeted with the delightful aroma that comes from choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos in prime condition.

Your sense of touch also detects the freshness of Camels, for unlike moisture-robbled cigarettes Camels are pliable to the fingers.

But the real difference comes when you light a Camel and inhale its cool, fragrant smoke.

Cigarettes brought to you so perfectly conditioned deserve to be kept that way in your pocket.

The simplest way to insure this is to open the Camel Humidor Pack as shown above.

That will keep intact the mildness and freshness that is making the whole country say: "Now I'd walk two miles for a Camel because they're twice as good."

If you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack, switch over for just one day.

Then go back tomorrow if you can.

NOT only as a beautiful and delicious fruit, but also as an important flavoring agent, the orange deserves a prominent place in the cuisine. This latter use of the orange is not so well known as it deserves to be, but along with lime and tangerines, the orange never fails to lend a piquant touch to the recipe in which it is used.

Both the grated rind and juice can be used with advantage in the preparation of sauces, gravishes or stuffings for meats or fowl. In selecting oranges for flavoring, it is best to choose the thin skinned varieties, and since the amount of juice is important, to remember that size for size, the heavier fruit is always the juicier.

Rogot Duckling a la Mignon
Prepare a duckling for roasting in the usual manner, adding one teaspoon of grated orange rind to the stuffing. Place in a hot oven for 15 minutes. When the fat begins to run, baste every 15 minutes with a syrup made from the juice of three oranges, one teaspoon of thin apple sauce and one-half cup of sugar. Finish the duckling with thick slices of orange on beds of water dress.
