More persons filed for SA elections

Elections for the Student Association are Sept. 13 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the first floor of the Adron Doran University Center. Holton, SA president and a Louisville senior majoring in pre-law, said there has been increased interest in running for SA this year. In past years, two or three people ran for representative from each class. But this year the numbers have increased to 18 freshmen, nine sophomores, five juniors, nine seniors, a graduate student and four com-masters — a total of 46 students. Of these, six freshmen, four seniors and two sophomores will be elected. In this first budget increase since 1979, the SA added $10,000 this year, primarily due to a $5 increase in the student activities fee. The increase to $25 was agreed on this summer by the university's Board of Regents. The total budget is $108,300. The special events account is $94,300 and the administrative account is $14,000. Because of the increase in the budget, the SA has moved its office next door. The new office, still on the second floor of ADUC, has a locker booth and separate office for the president.

The SA has scheduled the musical rock group Quarterflash to perform Oct. 17. Air Supply will perform Sept. 13 in the Academic-Athletic Center.

Holton resigns from governor-appointed CHE post

By CURT QUALLS
Special to The Trail Blazer

David Holton, Louisville senior pre-law major and president of MSU Student Association, recently resigned his newly-appointed student representative position to the Council on Higher Education because of conflicts with state law prohibiting a member of the Board of Regents to also be a member of the council.

Holton, a student representative to the BOR, was appointed Aug. 17 to the CHE by Gov. John Y. Brown and was sworn in prior to a council executive meeting Aug. 19.

He ran into trouble however, when he was informed by Dr. Harry Snyder, executive director of the CHE, that by serving as a student representative of CHE and the BOR he was in violation of Section 164-010 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes.

In a letter to Brown, Holton said, "After much discussion and personal deliberation, I feel I must remain as president of the Student Association and a student member on the Board of Regents of Morehead State University."

Serving as president of the Morehead State University Student Association is good training for David Holton, a Louisville senior pre-law major, who said he plans to eventually try for an elected political office.

Holton said he will either enroll in law school or study higher education and university administration when he enters graduate school.

He said he decided to enter MSU mainly because his father is an MSU alumnus, but Holton said, "I couldn't have found a university that I would have liked better than MSU. Maybe it's because things have worked out so well for me here."

Holton was elected SA president by full-time MSU students during the spring semester with 76 percent of total votes — the largest majority win ever. Holton is MSU's first blind SA president.

He said he attributes vote spread to his serving as SA vice president for two years and having worked closely with former SA president Donna Totich of Morehead, now employed by MSU.

"What was left for me to do but run for president?" he said. "I had on-the-job training and knew the proper channels to go through in order to get things done. Also I feel a real closeness to the students."

Among his tasks as president, Holton's least favorite is dealing with the entertainment agents and promoters of the bands that come to MSU. "I'm only holding down 12 hours (of classes) this semester and that leaves me open to do more for the SA," Holton said. "Being president is a 24-hour-a-day job. Whether it's talking to the administration or students, I feel I'm on call 24 hours a day."

"My being able to serve in this office is the biggest honor of my life, mainly because it was my peers that voted me in," Holton said.

This summer Holton was named by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. as a student representative to the Council on Higher Education and had to resign because of conflicts with serving as student representative to the Board of Regents. SA presidents are automatic representatives to the Board of Regents.

Holton said it was difficult to decide whether to be a student representative to the council or the regents but when told the SA presidency was involved he said he knew what his decision would be.

"I could have had more prestige by being a CHE representative, but I feel my obligation to the students is more important than prestige," Holton said. I couldn't handle leaving the SA. I'm a 'people' person. I love to work with the students."

McLain Family to Appear for Parents' Weekend

The McLain Family Band from Berea will give a free performance to the Parents' Weekend crowd at 8 p.m. Sept. 17 in But-ton Auditorium.

The McLains have been performing together for 11 years and have toured in more than 62 foreign countries as well as visited 45 states. They have also appeared at the Grand Ole Opry in Tennessee and the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The band, whose members range in age from 12 to 51, plays traditional and contemporary material with many original songs written by band members.

"Our purpose is to have a good time with music and to share the pleasure," said Raymond K. McLain, member and father of several of the band's players.

Air Supply to perform Sept. 13 at MSU

By RUDI HICKMAN
Special to The Trail Blazer

Air Supply will perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 13 in MSU's Academic Athletic Center.

The Student Association, which signed the pop band, has also contracted bluegrass performers The McLain Family Band and rock group Quarterflash to perform at the university this fall.

Concerts in recent semesters at MSU have consisted of bands such as Alabama, The Little River Band, The Pointer Sisters, Jefferson Starship, The Dazz Band, Ronnie Millsap, Kenny Loggins and Doc Severinsen.

"We hope to please everyone," said Student Association President David Holton, Louisville senior pre-law major.

"For example, Air Supply is about an average costing band on the market today. They are one of the more expensive groups we have had at the university but I believe they are worth every penny. Air Supply renders some of the finest quality music today."

Air Supply is estimated to end up costing somewhere in the neighborhood of $30,000.

Catching a big name group right when they are at a peak is a job in itself.

"Trends are very hard to catch," said Kelly Holdren, senior fashion merchandising major from Chillicothe, Ohio, and SA programs director.

"You never know whether a band you get will be on an upswing or downswing," she said.

With Air Supply, the SA seems to have picked a lucky strike. This week Air Supply's latest single, "Making Love (Out of Nothing At All)," written by Jim Steinman of Meatloaf, is in the top 20 and expected to close in on the top 10 the week of their appearance at Morehead.

On Sept. 13, they will bring their "million dollar extravaganza," which includes ultra-modern laser technology, rear screen computer optics, and other visual effects with the intention of dazzling the Morehead student audience.

The seven-piece band, led by vocalist Russell Hitchcock and guitarist Graham Russell will feel at home with an extended stage representing the Australian Outback.

Air Supply started performing in Australia in 1976. Russell and Hitchcock formed the group after meeting in a production of the hit musical "Jesus Christ, Superstar."

In 1977 Air Supply released their first album titled "Love and Other Bruises." The album was a hit and went gold in Australia but was not released in the United States until after their second album "Lost in Love" was released on Arista Records in 1980.

The album went platinum in the States and produced three hit singles including their first No. 1 single "All Out of Love."

Since 1980 seven of Air Supply's singles have been top 10 hits. The Australian band has sold more than seven million albums worldwide since its beginning in 1976.

According to Billboard Magazine, "Air Supply is the most successful pop group of the 1980s, based on the number of weeks their songs have lasted in the various top 100 charts."

Currently Air Supply will be appearing in 53 cities across North America and have made a recent appearance on the televised First Annual Miss Teen USA Pageant August 30.

The opening act for Air Supply will be recording artist Michael Johnson.

The singer-guitarist is best known for his top 10 hit "Bluer Than Blue." This was not only a significant hit for him but also for his record label, who scored with a top 10 hit on their very first single release.

Tickets are $10 for the general public and $2 for MSU students with a valid ID card, and may be purchased at the MSU Student Association office located on the second floor of the Adron Doran University Center, and the Music Den in the Trademore Shopping Center.

The pop music group Air Supply, with lead singer Russell Hitchcock (right) and lead guitarist Graham Russell, will perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 13 in the Academic Athletic Center.

Air Supply leaves all out of voice

People lined up in front of the Academic-Athletic Center late Tuesday to get ticket refunds after the Air Supply concert scheduled for that night was canceled. Lead singer Russell Hitchcock had developed laryngitis and couldn't perform.

Singer Russell suffers laryngitis; fans disappointed

From Trail Blazer Staff Reports

"I was all dressed up and no place to go," said one student in response to the aborted Air Supply concert slated for last night in the Academic-Athletic Center.

Lisa Davis, Homer, Mich., freshman radio-television major, voiced a common concern made by many Morehead State University students when she said, "I had looked forward to the concert for weeks and I'm disappointed it was canceled. I thought it would give me something to do."

"I even bought my ticket right when they first went on sale," Davis said. "I wish they had told about (the cancellation) earlier."

The Student Association-sponsored concert was canceled when lead singer Russell Hitchcock developed laryngitis, according to Clyde James, director of student activities and organizations.

Hitchcock and the band had canceled six consecutive engagements beginning Thursday including two concerts in Virginia because of throat problems. A doctor Hitchcock visited Saturday told him it would be Tuesday before he could perform. Hitchcock reportedly woke Monday feeling better and decided to go ahead with the MSU concert. The band is scheduled to perform tonight at Murray State University.

James said he contacted the band Monday and they had confirmed plans to perform at MSU.

SA President David Holton, a Louisville senior pre-law major, said tickets went on sale 13 days ago and by 4:45 p.m. Tuesday 2,100 student tickets, priced at $2 each, and 1,900 general admission, at $10 each, had been sold. Ninety high school students participating in the Presidential Leadership Conference yesterday were given complimentary tickets.

"Many students were waiting to buy tickets at the door so I'm sure we would have sold 300 additional student and 300 general admission tickets," Holton said.

Total cost for the show is reported to have been near $30,000 but Holton said the SA hadn't paid Air Supply the $20,000 performance fee and Michael Johnson, the opening act, his $1,000 fee when the show was canceled.

The SA did pay around $5,000 to bring Air Supply to campus which included $160 for printing the tickets, $300 to feed the band and road crew, which totaled 20 people, and more than $500 for publicity, Holton said.

Holton said the SA would seek reimbursement for expenses from Air Supply.

Refund of general admission tickets began at 7:30 last night, but not many of the nearly 600 people gathered received their money as funds lasted for about 10 minutes, James said.

Tickets will be refunded at the ticket win-

Flip of the coin decides one SA race

By CURT QUALLS
Staff Writer

A total of 485 voters comprised the biggest turnout of past years for the Student Association and Student Senate elections according to David Holton, SA president. Full identification for the candidates is not available.

On a call of "tails" Myron Lee Bailey won the coin toss against Scott Black to gain a commuter SA representative position. They tied with 18 votes. Paul R. Westerfield won the race with 23 votes.

With a total of 190 voters for junior and senior SA representatives four people were chosen for each class out of the five that ran. For junior representative Scott Coburn led with 57 votes, Beth Stephens had 38, Jeff Gullely 37 and Jennifer Redmer had 31 votes. In the senior representative election Brian Cumbo led with 64 votes, Beth Withrow had 60, Kateri Boone 58 and Frank Sallee had 45 votes.

From a total of 117 votes and eight candidates in the sophomore SA representative election five representatives were chosen. Both Amy E. Holton and Duane Osborne had 58 votes, Ginnifer "Gin" Saylor had 50 and Lee Emmons and Missy Offutt had 48 votes apiece.

A total of 774 votes were cast for freshman SA representative. Out of the 16 people that ran six were chosen. Tom Douglas got 83, Jon F. Harris had 70, Mark Kinster 65, Tracee Lynn Buchanan 60, Bruce Kennedy 59 and Jeanine Kirkpatrick 51 votes.

Totals aren't available for the Student Senate elections but the winners are as follows: school of applied sciences and technology, Stephen Putt, elected to a two-year term; school of business and economics, Valerie Edington, a one-year term; school of humanities, Claudia McCall, a one-year term; and in the school of sciences and mathematics, Kevin Eldridge, a two-year term. A representative for one of the at-large positions has yet to be appointed. The remaining positions were chosen prior to the elections.

Concerning the election results Troy Gray, SA vice president, said, "This has been one of the best general elections — mainly because of a renewed interest in the SA."

SA president, David Holton, said, "I was somewhat pleased with the results, although one always wishes there had been more (people to vote). Compared to last year's fall elections this is up considerably. Part of the reason for the larger turnout is that more positions were contested. Overall we had more candidates than in the recent past."

The first meeting of the SA will be held tomorrow at 5 p.m. in the Riggle Room of ADUC. All meetings are open to all students and will be held on Wednesdays at 5 P.M.

dow in the SA office on the second floor of the Adron Doran University Center from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through Tuesday.

The road crew began setting up sound equipment early Tuesday in the AAC gymnasium, including two specially-built and university-paid-for stage extensions to accommodate the band's special effects exhibition.

According to reports by James and Holton, the seven-member band went on stage at 6:30 p.m. to do a sound check.

After two songs, Hitchcock's voice gave way and the band made a decision to cancel the concert.

About 15 minutes later, they told James. The band immediately packed the equipment and boarded the bus which had brought them to Morehead, Holton said. James said the band wanted to be out of AAC before the people lined outside were told about the cancellation.

Next, James, Larry Stephenson, staff assistant in the bureau of student affairs, and Susette Redwine, associate director for the Division of Student Activities and Organizations, exited three doors of the AAC and told the approximately 500 students gathered that the concert had been canceled.

"Everyone was disappointed," James said. "But they were polite. They asked 'Why was it canceled?' and 'When will it be rescheduled?' and the only answer I could give them was 'I don't know.'"

"The response was tremendous," Stephenson said. "Everyone reacted very well."

Hurricane, W.Va., high school student Aimee Adkins, her parents and a male companion traveled an hour and a half to see the concert.

"I very upset about it," Adkins said. "This would have been my first Air Supply concert and my first concert at MSU."

Jennifer Phillips, an Elkhorn City freshman pre-nursing major, said, "I had just gotten to the AAC and everyone was coming back to the campus. I wish they had just let us know sooner — I could have stayed in bed all day."

Scott Penick, Russell freshman music major, commented on the students returning to the main campus. "I think it was kind of funny to see all the people walking back from the AAC," he said.

David Holton said the SA and MSU students would be the deciding factor in whether or not Air Supply would be rescheduled.

Staging purchased for concerts and coffeehouses

By JON GARFIELD
Staff Writer

As the 1980's progress, the stage shows of major concert attractions has expanded to epic proportions. Nowadays people are not only able to enjoy listen to the band perform their hit songs but are also treated to big scale productions of numbers which leave the observer with images making a lasting impression.

This perhaps began with the Electric Light Orchestra and their extravagant laser light shows in the early 70's. Bands have not only now expanded on that but went further in developing a breathtaking show for the audience to enjoy.

When Air Supply decided to appear at Morehead the agent told the university that the group needed additional staging. The university purchased additional staging for Air Supply to utilize their state-of-the-art laser optics and computerized special effects.

The additional staging will also be used for the Quarterflash concert this Homecoming and for all concerts from now on.

Plans for the staging also include its use for coffeehouses this fall and spring in Alumni Tower Cafeteria.

"There never has been any coffeehouses in Alumni Cafeteria mainly because the lack of appropriate staging," said Student Association Programs Director Kelly Holdren, a senior fashion merchandising major from Chillicothe Ohio. "Coffeehouses have always been in ADUC Cafeteria and now we plan on having coffee

Coffeehouses are small scale amateur night talent shows. Students on campus are encouraged to participate for their own enjoyment while at the same time entertaining their fellow students.

Coffeehouses are a regular event when football season ends and the weather begins to get colder and many events move inside. Coffeehouses are sponsored by the Student Association.

Richardson would vote for co-ed dorms

By LISA SHERWELL
Staff Writer

Judge James M. Richardson told representatives of the Interfraternity Council at its Sept. 13 meeting that if the subject of coeducational residence halls became an issue, he would vote for a bill on it to pass.

Richardson, a member of the Board of Regents, said, "When the issue of co-ed dorms came first came up, I was against it.

"If it came up again I would vote for it."

Fraternity representatives questioned Richardson as to why there was no open house during summer school.

Richardson said, "I don't see any reason why open house could not be enacted for summer session."

He suggested the representatives discuss ideas with student representatives.

Duties started Victorious candidates should address issues

The Student Association offices are now filled and our newly-elected representatives are busy working to plan the best year ever for the students.

Or are they?

Coeducational residence halls have been "cussed and discussed" for years. The only semblance to co-ed dorms MSU has are increased open house hours to the current average of 16 per week.

Weekends, except for occasional "special events" such as Parents Weekend and Homecoming, leave the average student nothing to do; thus students go home.

David Holton, SA president, says the association won't schedule a major event, such as a concert by a popular group, on weekends because there's the risk of it not being well-attended; students usually go home. It's a vicious cycle — one the SA could break by scheduling events designed to involve students.

The absenteeism rate at SA meetings last year was such that once or twice there were not even enough members for a quorum. At the first meeting of this semester, there were 35 of 42 elected officers present.

These people are our elected representatives. The students of MSU put each of them into a designated office; because of this, each student has a right to demand that every official do their jobs.

Being an elected official means listening to students' complaints and concerns and trying to do something about them. Let's hope the SA actively gets involved with students and strives to improve student life this year.

Homecoming week continues with Quarterflash

By JOHN SMITH
Staff Writer

Quarterflash, the popular rock group, has been chosen to perform for the 1983 Homecoming Oct. 13 at 8 p.m., at the Academic Athletic Center. The band's opening group will be BFX2, a new rock group just entering the charts with a single called Emotion.

Quarterflash, a new and uprising group, has taken the concert stage by storm in the past recent years. Their first album, Quarterflash, was an instant success. It was released in the summer of '81 and termed as an out-of-the-box success according to a spokesperson for Geffen Records. The album charted in the top five in all major musical trade magazines and hit No. 1 on several album-oriented-rock charts.

Harden My Heart, the first single released off the album, went to the top ten and started the album on its success to the top. The follow-up single Find Another Fool repeated the performance of the first single, but this one found its way to the top 20 charts.

The album continued its success well into '82 when the album went platinum, meaning it sold more than one million copies in America and Canada.

The album showed just as well internationally, as it placed near the top of the charts in France, Italy, Japan and Australia.

With over a year since the last album, the group's second album, Take Another Picture, has recently been released and it is following its predecessor with the same success, according to Billboard Magazine. During the break in between their first and second albums, Quarterflash recorded the

The group first started performing with such performers as Foreigner and Loverboy and labelmates such as Elton John and Sammy Hagar.

The media has also found a new success with Quarterflash. They have made appearances on numerous talk and musical shows nationwide. Their concert special on Music Television (MTV) has been one of the most watched to date, according to Nielsen ratings of the Saturday Night Special Show.

The group was soon scouted and signed to Geffen Records. In 1981 it went to Los Angeles to begin work on its first album with producer John Boyllyn. Boyllyn has been credited with giving starts to such performers and groups as Linda Ronstadt and The Little River Band. His work on Quarterflash has made it one of the most successful debut albums in rock history, according to Geffen Records.

Take Another Picture is expected to be even more popular than Quarterflash. Picture was released with 10 original Quarterflash songs. It also includes the group's most recent hit, Take Me To Heart.

Quarterflash will cost MSU's Student Association $15,000 to produce. The light boards and sound systems will cost $2,500 and the spot lights for the show will cost $800. BFX2 will cost $1,000.

According to Clyde James, director of student activities and organizations, general public tickets cost less than usual for this show because it is much cheaper than other shows like Air Supply, which will cost about $30,000 to produce.

Tickets for the performance are now on sale. They are $2 for MSU students with a valid ID and $8 for the general public. Students may only purchase tickets at the Student Association window on the second floor of Adron Doran University Center. General public tickets are available at the following locations: the Big Store on First Street or the Music Den in Trademore Shopping Center and the SA office window.

If tickets are still available the night of the concert they will be sold at the door. No orders by telephone or mail will be taken for tickets.

Movies, more open house in SA study

By CURT QUALLS
Staff Writer

The Student Association is looking into the possibility of obtaining "The Movie Channel" and of almost doubling open house hours for students in residence halls, according to David Holton, Student Association president.

A campus TV cable preview is scheduled to begin next Oct. 18, 8:30 a.m. to Oct. 19, 8 a.m. (excluding 5-6:30 p.m.) and on Oct. 20, 6 p.m. to Oct. 21, 7:30 a.m., according to Holton.

The movies to be shown on Tuesday will be: "The Stunt Man," at 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 p.m.; "Time Walker," 11 a.m.; "Conan, The Barbarian," 12:30 a.m. and 8 p.m.; "Trail of The Pink Panther," 3 p.m. and 1 a.m.; "It Came From Hollywood," 6:30 p.m.; "Goodbye Porkpie," 3 a.m.; "An Eye For An Eye," 4:30 a.m.

On Wednesday the movies will be "Rainbow," at 6:30 p.m.; "Goodbye Porkpie," 8:30 p.m.; "Topper Returns," 10 p.m.;

and "Love Child," 11:30 p.m.

Shows for Thursday will be "I Never Promised You A Rose Garden," at 6 p.m. and midnight; "To Race The Wind," 8 p.m.; "Southern Comfort," 10 p.m.; "The Toy," 2 a.m.; "The Road Warrior," 4 a.m.; and "Paternity," 6 a.m.

On Tuesday of next week possible networks to be shown on campus will be on seven screens in ADUC's West Room A and B from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Networks to be featured are ESPN, Nickelodeon, The Nashville Net, USA Network, WGN-TV, WVAH 23 IND and the weather channel.

The SA's Residence Hall Living Committee will conduct a survey of the residence halls to see whether or not students are willing to pay an extra $12 in housing fees for the additional channel. Students will be asked for their preference of what specific movie channel they want.

Holton, Louisville senior pre-law major, said any increase in university fees will need to be approved by the Board of Regents.

"In order for President Norfleet to recommend this increase the student opinion will have to be overwhelmingly in favor," Holton said.

Increased open house hours

The SA is also working on a proposed increase in open house hours for upperclass residence halls that would raise the open house from 32 to 62 hours per week.

Under this proposal upperclass women's dorms would be open from 3 to 11 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and upperclass men's dorms from 3 to 11 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. Weekend hours would be 3 p.m. to midnight on Fridays, 1 p.m. to midnight on Saturdays and 1 to 11 p.m. on Sundays.

"With these increased hours increased staffing will be needed. This is because of a university policy that requires one resident adviser to be on duty in a residence hall where open house is taking place. Because of this, as is the case with The Movie Channel, it will be necessary for an increase in the room rent if these thirty additional hours a week are approved," Holton said.

"We have devised a formula in which every upperclass residence hall student would pay four dollars to cover the cost of these new hours.

"If the students are indeed in favor of these proposals we need their support in making the administration aware of the student opinion," Holton said.

The committee is currently discussing an increase in freshman open house hours but has not reached a decision on a recommendation, Holton said.

Quarterflash tickets

Tickets for the Quarterflash and Air Supply concerts are now on sale.

Tickets for the Oct. 13 showing of Quarterflash are $2 for students with a valid ID and $8 for non-students. Air Supply, which will perform Oct. 24, are $2 for students and $10 for non-students.

Tickets are available at the MSU Student Association ticket window located on the second floor of ADUC, the Music Den and the Big Store on First Street.

Tickets will be available at the Academic-Athletic Center prior to 8 p.m. performances.

Association votes financing state convention

By CURT QUALIS
Staff Writer

In its Oct. 19 meeting, the MSU Student Association voted unanimously to accept a bill to allot $275 to Morehead representatives attending a fall session meeting of the Kentucky Intercollegiate State Legislature Nov. 17 through 19 at the Capitol in Frankfort.

The money will be used for membership dues.

At its Oct. 11 meeting, the SA also voted unanimously to accept a bill supporting the continuation of encouragement of MSU administration to secure a 24-hour teller machine on campus.

SA members said they feel because of new developments in Morehead's banking community, new opportunities may be provided for the project.

In other action, SA unanimously accepted the appointment by President David Holton, Louisville senior pre-law major, of William Andrew James as married student representative.

An air band competition is scheduled for Nov. 14 at 8 p.m.

A coffeehouse has been rescheduled for Oct. 27 from 7 to 11 p.m.

MTV

New station's popularity shows increased cable need

MSU students are studying by it, dancing to it and starting their mornings with it. In the fall semester's first few weeks, Music Television has gained popularity and is one of the most watched and talked about cable stations offered to students.

MTV is a first step in the right direction. Some students, likewise, could even benefit from a wider variety of entertainment options on the local cable system.

Current expansion efforts involve negotiations with The Movie Channel which could be installed on Association President David Holton.

For this reason, Holton says TMC wants its services in every residence hall room.

The question then becomes one of added cost to all students. The cost would probably be tacked onto housing fees, which Holton describes as the probable place for their addition.

The final decision for cable expansion lies with President Morris L. Norfleet and the Board of Regents — the persons responsible for approving fee increases.

Cable stations available to MSU include the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, WGN, USA, Nickelodeon and Nashville networks. Holton said he is not sure who would choose the stations to be included in an expansion. The student body is the ideal chooser, through voting or surveys, since it is our entertainment tastes at issue; but again, the administration will decide what to do since it concerns a fee increase.

The Student Association Residence Hall Living Committee intends to learn the students' attitudes and ideas and aim toward a workable solution, according to Holton, but that can't succeed without student involvement.

Many students want expanded cable service and are willing to pay a reasonable extra cost to bring a more complete spectrum of viewing alternatives to campus. The recent addition of MTV proves the popularity of new innovative stations; it's up to the students to let their opinions on the issue be heard by MSU student and school administrators.

Quarterflash

Band gives a very lively concert to a not so very lively crowd

From Trail Blazer staff reports

Quarterflash's concert Thursday in the Academic Athletic Center was the band's first time headlining a show in Kentucky, said lead singer and saxophonist Rindy Ross.

"We've played in Louisville but that was as an opening band for Sammy Hagar," Ross said. "It's really weird playing to his audiences — if they like you they throw things on the stage . . . like batteries and bottles. It's really strange."

Quarterflash, a rock band, is currently on a 20-stop tour of colleges across the nation, according to band members. The band performed at the University of Tennessee Oct. 12.

"It was strange performing there," she said. "All of the students acted like they had to be polite — they just sat there not doing much until about the last four songs then they just rushed the stage. It's really scary when you don't get a response."

"Morehead is like night and day compared to UT," Ross said after the concert. "Maybe it was all of the chairs at UT that influenced the students not to crowd the stage. I like it when the audience gets into the music."

"We really enjoyed this crowd," Ross said. "We have much more fun playing in a smaller place like this where we are the main show rather than the opening show. You can do a different type of show in a smaller auditorium — like a ballad — which wouldn't go over in a large coliseum."

Quarterflash has recently finished a tour of opening for Rick Springfield. "His audience is almost all 14-year old kids screaming through the lyrics," said Jack Charles, singer and guitarist for Quarterflash.

"This was a wonderful audience," Charles said. "Playing for a college is so different . . . the audience has more smarts and it's easier to do a show."

According to David Holton, SA president and a Louisville senior pre-law major, $7,033 worth of tickets were sold. Holton estimated 1,800 student tickets were sold at $2 each and 500 general admission, at $8 each, were sold.

The concert was sponsored by the MSU Student Association and cost a total of $15,000 to produce. Additional costs were light boards and sound systems at $2,500 and spotlights for the show were $800. DFX2, the opening band, cost $1,000.

James said general public tickets cost less than usual for this show because it is less expensive than shows like Air Supply, which will cost $30,000 to produce when the band comes to MSU Oct. 24.

Ross is the only female in the six-member band, which includes her husband, Marv Ross, an acoustic guitarist. They and Charles write the songs the band performs.

The other band members are Rick Di Gallonardo, keyboardist; Rich Gooch, bass guitar; and Brian David Willis, percussionist. The band's producer is John Boylyn who credited with starting Linda Ronstadt and The Little River Band.

Ross was a college-educated teacher for three years before she and her husband decided to begin their traveling music career.

It was never their intention to work the concert circuit, but Ross became "tired of playing for a bunch of drunks who came for the booze instead of their music," she said.

After their hit single "Harden my Heart," the Rosses decided to make a full-time career out of performing as a musical group.

Ross has been playing the saxophone for seven years. She said she took up playing the instrument because she was "tired of banging on a tamborine."

DFX2 has been together for about a year, said band members. The band is young and has yet to develop into a competent rock force.

Their good assets include an outstanding drummer and a fine saxophonist.

Lead singer David Farrage was an imitation Mick Jagger. His vocals would have come off better if the rest of the band hadn't drowned him out particularly in the first song.

On the other hand, Quarterflash showed what a polished act can do. While comparatively young themselves (they've been together for three years) they were professional.

Rindy Ross shows a great stage presence and her vocals may easily be mistaken for those of Pat Benatar.

An interesting note is where the name Quarterflash comes from. It's a New Zealand folk phrase meaning one-fourth flash, and three-fourths "off the wall," said Ross.

While many members of the audience gathered at the foot of the stage to cheer and dance, Quarterflash had difficulty motivating a great majority of the audience in the center.

One student said the lack of motivation may have been the result of difficulties

Quarterflash singer and guitarist Jack Charles performed a song which he sang in the Academic Athletic Center to an estimated crowd of 2,300. The concert was part of Homecoming Week activities.

Opinions about Quarterflash, DFX2 concert covers both sides of spectrum

An informal survey of MSU students who attended the Quarterflash-DFX2 concert Oct. 13 received these responses.

Tim Long, Flemingsburg sophomore med-tech student, said, "I didn't care much at all for DFX2 but Quarterflash was great, one of the better concerts the SA has had in a long time."

Sarah Hurt, senior data processing student from Hazard, said, "The first band just stunk. Quarterflash had a very good stage show and I absolutely loved Rindy (Ross)'s husband."

Linda Daavers, freshman criminal psychology major from Chicago, said, "DFX2 was a little too raw, they would be a lot better if they hadn't been wasted but had straightened up. Quarterflash couldn't have been better; I was very entertained by their stage show."

Anita Buckner, freshman sociology major from Morehead, said, "I couldn't understand DFX2 at all, it was just too loud and a mess and the Quarterflash part was boring but then the crowd was more boring."

Theresa Weber, senior education major from Versailles, said, "Whoever the first band was wasn't at all what I expected a band to be; they were too hard and too loud. Quarterflash could have been better."

Joe Sizemore, Hazard senior science major, said, "It was one of the best concerts that has been here since I've been in school. I would rank it up there with Alabama and Little River Band for how much I enjoyed it."

Bobby Gregory, freshman physics major from Flemingsburg, said, "Quarterflash had great sound and a great stage show; DFX2 was really pretty bad."

Tony Stephens, senior education major from Louisville, said, "The only thing DFX2 could do was play loud (sic) and scream. Their lead singer tried to sound like Mick Jagger, but couldn't. Quarterflash was good with the songs I was familiar with but the songs I never heard before didn't interest me at all."

Nathan Mathews, sophomore pre-law major from Olive Hill, said, "DFX2 was pretty good, I liked them mostly because they played pretty raw rock. Quarterflash was really great but the Morehead crowd was totally dead. The band really got into the concert but the type of people there just wouldn't."

Rindy Ross, lead singer and saxophonist for Quarterflash, talks backstage before the concert to MSU student journalist.

DFX2 experienced while opening the evening.

The first song DFX2 performed was practically a musical score as one of the speakers wasn't operating properly and the vocals were completely drowned.

The all-male six-member band received light applause for their original songs with the exception of "I Ain't Got No Dough" which was received well by the audience. A rendition of David Bowie's song "Rebel, Rebel," involving a certain amount of body language, also received a warm welcome from the audience.

Backstage, before the concert, Douglas Farrage, lead singer, said the band had recently completed the vocal track and video for "Maureen," a song to be released within the next two weeks.

"We did two videos," Farrage said. "One regular for network shows and one See Concert, page 16, col. 1

Farrage's twin brother, David, is the band's guitarist. Other band members are

The highlight of the evening was Quarterflash's performance of "Take Another Picture" where the band members use instant cameras and snapped photos of themselves and the audience and threw the shots into the crowd.

Air Supply makes a return engagement Oct. 24 after cancellation

From The Trail Blazer staff reports

After their cancellation Sept. 13, Air Supply will perform in concert at the Academic Athletic Center at 8 p.m. Oct. 24.

The cancellation was decided upon after lead singer Russell Hitchcock developed laryngitis during a sound check prior to the concert.

The band also cancelled their other concert dates, including one at Murray State University.

The band's concert schedule when they cancelled had been what is called their "Western Movement," a string of concert dates which moved progressively westward.

To make up many of the dates in which they missed, Air Supply is backtracking themselves eastward, they will be appearing at Murray Oct. 21 and then at Morehead.

In re-negotiating the contract for their appearance, Director of student activities and organizations Clyde James said only two items concerning the previous contract had changed.

"Naturally the date of their appearance had to be changed, but also the amount we offered the band to perform was changed," James said.

"We estimated that due to the cancellation that expenses of $7,000 were incurred, so our bidding price was changed from the previous $20,000 to $13,000."

The incurred $7,000 included spotlight rental and payment for the opening act.

"The owners of the spotlight get $1,000 on delivery and the opening act (Michael Johnson) was ready to go on and we were obligated to pay him since his was a separate contract," James said.

Now the concert is set, the band will

SA committee to survey students

By CURT QUALLS
Staff Writer

A survey will be taken by the Student Association's Residence Hall Living Committee in order to give MSU students the opportunity to express their opinions on the proposed increase in open house hours in the upperclass dorms from 32 to 62 hours per week, the channels to be offered on Cable Television and whether or not the Movie Channel is wanted in the residence halls.

"I strongly urge every student living in the residence halls to complete the survey so that their opinions will be included in our results," said David Holton, SA president and Louisville senior pre-law major.

"It is of utmost importance to return the survey as soon as possible so that the proposed changes can be initiated at the beginning of the spring semester," Dianna Ross, chairperson of the SA's Residence Hall Living Committee and a junior pre-law major, said.

Students should tune into MSU's Channel 12 on Thursday from 4:30-5 p.m. and 5:30-6 p.m. to view and participate in a programmed special on the proposed cable systems for MSU residence halls, according to William Rosenberg, director of media services.

The program will feature SA president David Holton, Rosenberg and a representative from the division of student affairs who will be answering call-in questions from students about the proposed systems, possibilities including The Movie Channel and several cable television selections.

Majority students approve measures for SA adoption

By CURT QUALLS

The Student Association's survey on open house and television preferences resulted in 1,374 responses out of a possible 2,930, according to SA President David Holton, a Louisville senior pre-law major. Results of the survey, which was deadline for return Monday, indicated the largest deficit in response was among married housing students. Of 164 polled, 24 responded.

The survey was compiled by the SA's Residence Hall Living Committee.

Preliminary results show response to the question of whether or not students would favor the SA plan for additional open house hours, 82 percent said yes as of Sunday.

Also as of Sunday, 80.8 percent said they would accept a $4 increase in upperclass hall rates and $1 increase in freshman hall rates per student per semester to provide funds for these additional open house See Adoption, page 12, col. 3

More than 73 percent of the students surveyed decided for "The Movie Channel."

"The results of these three questions were essential for the Student Association to formulate a proposal," said Holton.

According to Holton, an all residence hall survey has not been conducted since 1980-81.

"This overwhelming approval of our proposals is enough justification to pursue further work on these issues," Holton said.

After the survey has been completed, the SA's Residence Hall Living Committee will make its proposal to the Student Association Congress.

With the results of the survey taken into account the congress will decide the fate of the issue.

If approved, the proposal will appear before the Committee on Student Life on Oct. 31 where they may amend it in total or defeat the proposal.

If amended it will go on to MSU President Morris L. Norfleet. If he accepts this proposal it will then be on the agenda, Holton said.

'We made it'

Air Supply dazzles 3,000 with special effects; shows what Morehead missed the first time around

By SARA M. VANCE and Trail Blazer staff reports

"Good evening, Morehead. We made it!"

Air Supply's lead singer Russell Hitchcock spoke to an audience of about 3,000 at Monday's night concert in the Academic Athletic Center.

His remark was in reference to the aborted concert on Sept. 13 when he developed a case of laryngitis.

Backstage, before the concert, Graham Russell, lead guitarist and singer, and Hitchcock said they were glad to be back in Morehead to make up for the concert they had to cancel.

The seven-member Australian band canceled their scheduled concert at Murray State University the night following Morehead's cancellation. They made up the Murray concert Oct. 21.

Ticket sales for the concert were off-course compared to their first scheduled MSU appearance, according to members of the Student Association, who sponsored the concert.

Until the day of the concert, approximately 300 tickets had been sold and more than 700 advance tickets were purchased the day of the concert.

Originally, the band charged $20,000 to perform at MSU. The university estimated expense of about $7,000 when the band canceled. The bidding price this time was changed to $13,000, according to James.

The Student Association, who sponsored the concert, did not note a decrease in ticket sales due to the canceled concert.

The audience was made up of a large number of older, non-student members and several children, in contrast to the Quarterflash concert here Oct. 13.

Hitchcock winked, waved and pointed at the audience, which was prohibited from standing during the first half but encouraged to stand for two songs leading into the second.

During "I Can't Get Excited," a little-known rock tune off the album "Lost in Love," the band's much publicized laser light show started.

The second half of the concert not only highlighted the laser light and other special effects, but contained most of Air Supply's hit songs including their latest top two hit "Making Love (Out of Nothing at All)."

John Hall, the opening act for Air Supply, gave a good solo performance.

He entertained the crowd with a melody of songs such as "Still the One" and a rendition of "The Morehead Blues."

Vance is editor-in-chief of the MSU yearbook, "The Raconteur."

Committee adopts open house, Movie Channel proposals

Committee revises Association's plan

From Trail Blazer Staff Reports

The Committee on Student Life passed proposals in its meeting Monday outlining a total 34-hour increase in open house visitation hours and the installation plan for The Movie Channel in all Morehead State University residence halls.

The committee acted without reservation on the Student Association proposal which calls for the installation of The Movie Channel and the $12 increase in room rent for the spring 1984 semester.

The SA conducted a survey last week with 997 out of 1,375 students saying yes to the increase in open house hours and increased fee. The Movie Channel will occupy one of the slots available on the present MSU cable system.

The revised version of an SA open house proposal was the plan agreed upon by members. The new proposal calls for a 23-hour increase in upperclassmen halls and a 14-hour increase in freshmen halls.

The new proposal also involves upperclass residence halls opening as early as 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Freshmen halls will open as early as 6 p.m. on the weekends.

The same alternating weekend plan for men's and women's halls will be used for See Passes, page 20

A $15 increase in room rental rates will be in order next semester if passed by the new proposal, as well as the Monday and Wednesday men's open house hours and women's Tuesday and Thursday open house hours.

Morehead State University President Morris L. Norfleet after the Committee on Student Life and Student Association passed open house and cable programming measures Monday.

A special committee met on Friday and discussed the SA proposal at great length and countered it with the new proposal of its own. The new plan brings freshmen and upperclass hall open hours closer together in plans and in costs.

The new plan will cost the university $6,941.20, which will be absorbed by the student through an increased room rental fee.

The proposals, since passing the committee, will be sent to Morehead State University President Morris L. Norfleet who will in turn pass the proposals onto the MSU Board of Regents.

The regents next meeting will be Nov. 12 at 10:30 a.m. in the Adron Doran University Riggle room.

crease, except for freshmen women living in Fields and Thompson Halls. Because those two halls do not have cable hookups in each room, residents of those dormitories will be assessed a $3 increase to cover open house expenses.

The $15 increase will represent the first increase in two years of room rental rates. The last increase occurred in 1982-83, in which the $330 for upperclass men's and women's rates and the $300 and $320 for freshmen rates were established.

In the passed proposal, room rate increases per student for freshmen figured to be $2.09 per semester. For upperclassmen the figure is $2.58 per semester. In the original SA proposal, per student rates for each semester were $1.05 for freshmen and $3.36 for upperclassmen.

Freshmen dormitories include Cooper, Regents, Wilson, Mignon Tower, Waterfield, Thompson and Fields halls. Because the proposals involve student fees, Norfleet will have to consider the

SA working on faculty-course evaluation booklet for students

From Trail Blazer Staff Reports

A faculty-course evaluation data booklet — a replacement for the present faculty and course evaluation system — is in the works by the Student Association academic affairs committee, according to chairperson Jeff Gulley, a junior pre-law major from Tollesboro.

The data booklet, which is planned for spring semester use, would contain a general information section, and explanation as well as the evaluation itself.

The explanation of the evaluation would inform the student on how names were chosen and the methods used to collect data.

The data booklet, if approved, would be submitted to only 50 percent of the student body. Data collected from 50 percent would be nearly identical if the entire student body were polled, Gulley said.

In the last SA meeting, the committee's work was presented to SA members for questions. Gulley was receptive to the idea that both undergraduates and graduate students be permitted to participate in the evaluation.

"Students will be informed that they will be providing information about the amount of work required in a course, the grades received, the English speaking ability of the instructor and the course characteristics, including their opinions about the instructor and the material covered," according to the committee's early report.

The committee has decided to wait until after Saturday's Board of Regents meeting in the Adron Doran University Center to present the faculty evaluation procedures, according to David Holton, Louisville senior pre-law major and SA president.

SA members criticize, praise paper during meeting

As a slight indication of how this newspaper might be serving its readers, I made a serious effort to speak with members of the Student Association at a meeting last Wednesday.

I told the group that it isn't often a Trail Blazer editor speaks with members of the SA, but as a "check" on this student administrative body, I thought it important to find out what the representatives of the students were saying about this semester's publication.

The discussion started off with sharp criticism, which I encouraged and sometimes answered. One reader thought we missed the women's tennis championship of a week ago. It received page five coverage within the sports section. He thought it deserved page one.

Almost as if it were practiced, most members of the SA voiced displeasure with the last issue's headline noting that "less than half" of the students responded to the SA survey.

"Why can't you accent the positive?" one member asked.

Other members mentioned specific stories of which they had particular beefs. One member said she was never contacted about a story in which she was related to and that made her residence hall look bad. Another SA member told me that our coverage of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon 50th year reunion wasn't adequate enough.

The meeting wasn't filled all with pessimism, however.

SA members liked our concern over faculty issues and wanted more. Another found the faculty viewpoint in the "guest columnists" section interestingly noteworthy.

Some SA members praised the newspaper for its "Accent On" section, and it also received praise by three SA members as one of the better Trail Blazers seen here in four years.

SA President David Holton's comments were reserved for last. His praise for the newspaper was present, acknowledging our fairness, coverage and other editorial opinions. He did mention that he thought some stories deserved bigger attention than what we gave them.

I can remember at the first of the semester when Holton and other members of the SA were irked about our editorial opinion that the SA should get to work". It was a very general comment asking for the elected members to get together and work together in accomplishing SA goals.

It was an interesting discussion with a group of students who are all always first to express opinions about any topic and who are usually more interested in campus activities than the average student.

SA to sponsor second Air Band competition

The Student Association will hold the second annual Air Band Competition in the ADUC Grill Nov. 14, beginning at 8 p.m.

An Air Band is actually "jamming" to any type of music without instruments. Performers get the chance to demonstrate their mimicry, acting ability and musical rhythm.

The music in which a band performs is up to the band itself, as is the type of "Air Instruments." Most bands prefer no instruments and just "go through the motions" like the instruments are there but can't be seen.

A prize of $50 will be awarded to the first place winner, $25 awarded to second place and $15 awarded for third place. The SA Executive Officers will choose the winners.

Nov. 10 is the deadline to register for the contest. Entry forms may be picked up in the SA Office, 2nd floor ADUC.

In other action, the SA voted to accept a bill designed to incite university administration to upgrade the campus by placing a copy machine at the Alumni Cafeteria and Grill, erecting an activities board at the Lakewood Terrace Married Student Housing Complex, repairing benches, constructing a separate entrance into the ADUC second floor women's restroom, synchronizing and repairing all the clocks on campus and placing a change machine in Alumni Cafeteria and Grill.

"This is a way for us to urge the administration to pursue some campus improvement projects that are not overly expensive and that can be completed before the beginning of the spring semester," Holton said.

Cancellation of classes urged for study day

By CURT QUALLS

and Trail Blazer Staff Reporter

Members of the MSU Student Association passed a bill at their Nov. 2 meeting urging the university administration to designate Dec. 9 as a "Reading Day," during which all classes would be canceled.

Dec. 9 is the Friday prior to final exam week.

David Holton, a senior pre-law major from Louisville and SA president, said he, the Student Association and the SA Congress felt the class-free day would be of benefit to students preparing for finals.

He said last summer he had talked with the university administration about what he terms a last ditch effort by the SA to have the idea approved.

A reading day had been designated for next semester on the Monday of finals week.

New open house, movie channel approved

By GLENDA GASSAWAY
Special to The Trail Blazer

The Morehead State University Board of Regents approved Saturday the Student Association-initiated bills to increase open house hours and add "The Movie Channel" to the university's existing cable system.

The recommendations were just two among a host of MSU President Morris L. Norfleet recommendations which received quick approval from the 10-member governing board.

Open house hours for freshmen residence halls went from 18 hours a week to 32 hours a week. Hours for upperclass halls received an increase from 32 hours weekly to 55 hours per week.

A survey compiled recently by the SA's Committee on Student Life revealed hall residents favored increasing open house hours and adding the "The Movie Channel" to MSU cable selection.

Forty-seven percent of the campus residents responded to the informal survey.

Funding for open house and "The Movie Channel" will come from an increase in residence hall fees.

Room rent in freshman halls Thompson and Fields will increase by $3 and an increase of $15 will be noted in upperclassmen halls — including a $12 increase for the movie system. Thompson and Fields Hall do not have televisions in individual room.

Students living in Lakewood Terrace and Normal Hall will receive an increase of $6 per month.

Increases go into effect Jan. 1, 1984.

Despite approval of "The Movie Channel" question, some dissension was expressed by board members that the cable system would be too expensive for students, it would be mandatory for some students who might not wish its services and whether it was really needed.

In other action from the student affairs committee, the board approved The Eagle Handbook and The Traffic Manual, both adopted by the bureau of student affairs.

The 10 a.m. meeting was opened and quickly went into executive session, where it was assumed personnel matters involving Norfleet, MSU head football coach Steve Loney, and the university's involvement in litigation were discussed.

After the 90-minute closed session, the board quickly approved recommendations, including:

— In order to comply with State Board of Nursing regulations, a four point proposal was unanimously approved by the regents.

The new proposals requires that the program of nursing be removed from the department of allied health; the title "coordinator of nursing programs" be changed to "department head of nursing;" the contract term of the department head of nursing be 12 months; and the department head of nursing report directly to the dean of the school of applied sciences and technology;

— approved unanimously to hold the administrative task force's report for study and that no action be taken until a new president is named;

— approved unanimously to hold the academic affairs task force committee report for study and no implementation of official action without the approval of the board of regents;

— approved unanimously to table the Albright report for no further official action until a new president is appointed;

— voted to remain at the same athletic competition level, as a member of the Ohio Valley Conference and Division I-AA. (See story on page 14);

— approved unanimously reports and summaries on programs funded from external sources, surplus properties, a routine but incomplete financial statement, lecture and adjunct reports, personnel actions, a policy on faculty promotions and an audit committee recommendation.

— approved a request by Peoples Bank to set up an automated teller banking machine in the Adron Doran University Center and allow other banks to do the same;

Jerry Howell, board chairman from Jackson, told reporters in a press conference that a special meeting would be held to decide details of the appointment of a new president.

SA serves student interests through recent actions

The Morehead State University Board of Regents' approval of two Student Association initiated proposals — one on increased open house hours and one on the installation of The Movie Channel in residence halls — must signal some type of relevation for students, for Student Association presidents and for all of our billfolds.

For years, students have complained about different aspects of this university, including the residence hall and its services. Beginning in January, students will be viewing The Movie Channel and those in upperclassmen residence halls will have 55 hours a week of open house while the freshman halls will be open for 32 hours each week.

Unseemingly, we disagree that any difference in visitation hours be made between upperclassmen and freshman halls. We're also surprised a proposal was even considered after last year's revision — of which one regent member answered that there would "be no further liberalization" of open house policies — and a current, strong, but unconcerted Student Association effort to bring coeducational dormitory criteria before the student life committee.

Most students had a chance to voice opinions on the subjects through a Student Association survey that indicated students supported more open house hours, wanted The Movie Channel and will be willing to pay for it.

According to an unscientific survey conducted by The Trail Blazer, most students are not worried about the small increase, which will be $3 for residents of Fields and Thompson halls and $15 for all other residence halls, or have a parent or financial aid package picking up the tab.

The regents approval of the two proposals culminates a long and tough road hoed by several MSU Student Association presidents, dating back to 1981 and Steve O'Conner. Since him, Todd Holdren, Donna Totich and now-Student Association President David Holton, the presidents have worked separately in a single effort trying to reach substantial gains in making MSU comparable and more socially appealing to the college-searching student.

For any government organization, constituent representation is what ultimately should occur. In the case of open house and The Movie Channel, it is a job well done.

SA seeking band for spring concert

By CURT QUALLS
Staff Writer

Hank Williams Jr., John Cougar, Stray Cats, 38 Special, Adam Ant and Billy Idol are some of the top-name performing groups the Student Association considered at its Nov. 23 meeting in planning a spring semester concert. No final decision was made.

In other action, the SA passed a bill allotting $650 of its funds to be used for scholarships awarded at the Miss MSU Scholarship Pageant on April 11-12.

Air Supply cancels

One Student Association concert, Air Supply, canceled its performance minutes before the show was to begin and caused headaches for concert coordinators. The group rescheduled and performed before nearly 3,000 persons on October 24. Other SA successful concerts included Quarterflash, Kenny Loggins and The Dazz Band.

24-hour teller installed

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

An automatic 24-hour teller service has been installed at Adron Doran University Center and will be ready for use by the middle of February.

The teller service has been in the planning for more than two years.

"I'm glad to know that a project the Student Association has had on the burner for more than two years is finally cooking," said David Holton, SA president, a senior government major from Louisville.

With the new teller service, students, faculty and staff will be able to make several transactions, including withdrawals, deposits, loan payments and transfers from one account to another.

Each person will be limited to a $25 withdrawal within a 24-hour period from his or her account and the amount must be a multiple of five. There is no extra charge for the service.

In order to get a card, account holders must have at least $50 in their accounts at the time the cards are issued. After a card is issued the account holder must know the account's current balance when using the machine, because it will not reveal the balance on accounts for security reasons.

If an attempt is made to withdraw more money than is in the account, the machine will keep the card. It can be picked up at the bank later or will be mailed back to the client.

According to Holton, the project began two years ago when Todd Holdren was the president of the SA in 1981-1982. Holdren talked to several banks in eastern Kentucky about bringing a teller service to campus.

He met with little success. During the next year when Donna Totich was SA president, the talks continued but nothing was finalized until the fall of 1983 when David Holton had started his presidential term.

Applications will be taken until Friday, Jan. 27. Any students needing assistance can contact Vicki Blakeman at the People's Bank Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Open house rules on par with others

By Robin Ann Cox
Staff Writer

Open house rules at Morehead State University are comparable to policies at other universities, in the state and surrounding area, according to a random sample taken last week.

There are universities with shorter hours and stricter security. The following is a list of state (and several close out-of-state) universities, their open hours, rules regarding open house, when the policies were instituted and information on coed residence halls.

Eastern Kentucky University: Monday and Wednesday nights 7-11 p.m. in male residence halls; Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7-11 p.m. in female residence halls. All residence halls have open house on the weekends; Friday, 4-12 p.m., Saturday, 2-12 p.m. and Sunday 3-11 p.m. The students are limited to one guest at a time. The student visiting must leave his student identification card at the front desk. EKV has no coed residence halls.

Indiana State University: Open house hours are 24 hours a day in all residence halls. The guest must be signed in and escorted to the room. Non-students may visit. ISU has two residence halls which are coed by floor. A person who visits someone of the same sex in a coed hall must sign in. ISU has had coed residence halls and these open house hours for ten years.

Marshall University: Open house hours are 11 a.m.-11 p.m. on Sundays through Thursdays for all residence halls; Friday and Saturday hours are 11 a.m.-1 a.m. One weekend a month there is a 24-hour open house. Everybody — student or non-student, male or female — must sign in and be escorted to the room. These rules have been in effect since 1980. There is one coed residence hall.

Middle Tennessee State University: There are three types of open house policies offered, depending upon the residence hall. Type 'C' has open house on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 p.m. to midnight. Type 'D' has open house hours on Tuesdays and Saturdays, 6 p.m. to midnight. Type 'E' has a 24-hour open house policy, seven days a week. A visiting student must sign in and be escorted to the room. These rules have been in effect for six or seven years. There are no coed dorms.

Murray State University: All halls have the same open house nights and hours. Monday through Thursday hours are noon-7 p.m.; Friday through Saturday, noon to 1 a.m.; and Sundays from noon to 9 p.m. Non-student guests are permitted, but must be signed in and escorted to the room. These open house rules have been in use for the past two years. The Board of Regents prohibits open house hours during prime studying, sleeping or showering times. There is one hall which has been coed by floor for five years.

Pennsylvania University: All halls follow the same open house schedule: Monday through Thursday from 3 p.m.-midnight; Friday and Saturday, noon-2 a.m.; and Sunday, noon-midnight. Guests may be non-students and do not have to sign in, but must be escorted to the room. There are no coed halls.

University of Cincinnati: All halls have a 24-hour visitation. The host must leave his student identification, room key number and his guest's pictorial identification at the desk. UC has had a coed dorm since the early 1970s.

University of Kentucky: Freshmen have open house on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-11 p.m. beginning on the third Monday of October. Upperclass halls have open house Monday through Thursday from 5-11 p.m. All students have open house Friday, 5 p.m.-1 a.m., Saturday, noon-1 a.m. and Sunday, noon-11 p.m. The guest doesn't have to sign in and non-students are allowed. There are four halls which have been coed by floor since 1970.

Freshmen are not allowed to stay in the coed dorms.

University of Louisville: Men have open house 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Women have open house on Sunday through Thursday noon to midnight and on Friday and Saturday from noon-2 a.m. The guest has to be escorted to the room. These rules have been in effect since the beginning of the fall semester in 1983. All halls have been coed for over five years.

Western Kentucky University: All halls have the same open house rules. Monday through Thursday, 6-10 p.m., Friday, 5 p.m.-1 a.m., Saturday, 2 p.m.-1 a.m. and Sunday, 2 p.m.-midnight. These hours became effective this semester. The guest must sign in, leave his student identification card and be escorted by the host to the room. There are no coed dorms. However, there is a proposal going before the WKU

Board of Regents on Feb. 4, that, if passed, will approve coed dorms for fall of 1985.

Morehead State University: Freshmen males have open house on Monday, 7-11 p.m. while freshmen females have the same hours on Tuesday. Every other weekend, freshman males and females alternate open house with the following schedule: Friday, 5 p.m.-midnight, Saturday, 3 p.m.-midnight and Sunday, 3-11 p.m.

Upperclass males have open house on Monday and Wednesday, 4-11 p.m. Females have Tuesday and Thursday at the same time. Upperclassmen also alternate weekends: Friday, 4 p.m.-midnight Saturday, 2 p.m.-midnight and Sunday, 2-11 p.m. These open house policies became effective this semester. Presently there are no coed dorms although there is a proposal before the Board of Regents to consider the possibility.

Responses indicate new survey needed

Reason leads humans to believe that if you ask a silly question you'll get a silly answer. Many of the questions asked in the recent Student Association survey concerning coed residence halls were vague, therefore, following reason, the responses were vague also. Although the responses have not been fully tabulated yet, we believe the results will not include sufficient findings.

Only 50.8 percent of the students living on campus responded. Less than three percent of the off-campus student body responded and less than eight percent of the parents took the time to send their surveys in. This poor head count could be due to the ambiguity of the questions or to the nature of the survey itself.

Read the question, "What degree of need do you think there is for a coed residence hall on the Morehead State University campus?" Such a question automatically leads the mind to other questions: "A need of my own or the university?" "Is it a real necessity or just a new idea to try?" "What do they mean by these answers?" The survey included more ambiguous questions like the sample above. Survey questions answered with questions does not make a reliable answer.

An SA committee member admitted the survey questions were vague but foresight is not as good as hindsight.

We recommend more surveys and polls be taken for accurate findings. One survey is not enough to plan such a residence hall transition. Carefully planned questions in various polling situations will give better results and a stronger ground to stand on before the administration.

'Your own is quite vague!'

Dear Editor,

I searched in Webster's English Dictionary for the definition of vague. It read that vague means indefinite, indistinct, lacking precision, and wandering.

In the Trail Blazer's recent article "Survey, Responses Indicate New Survey Needed," you reported that a recent SA survey contained vague questions which following reason would have vague responses.

After reading this, I turned to the page to see "Focus, Telepoll '84." Vague? You reported who conducted this random telephone poll, what questions were asked, and the final responses. Be still me heart, but this poll was vague!

Who did you call? Which students? Was there an equal amount of females and males surveyed? Did you call off campus students-married students? Were equal amounts of students from each dormitory called? Did everyone take you seriously or did they believe it was a prank call and answer anything just to get you off the phone? survey when your own is quite vague!

Lisa Adkins
314 Mignon Hall

It seemed ridiculous when I read, "Of all the opinions on campus, it is yours, the students' that are most valued." Were all types of students represented by your poll? Why criticize the Student Association's Editor's Note: The reader assumes all polls and surveys are equal. The Trail Blazer poll does not affect the future of MSU. The Student Association survey could.

'The survey also stated: . . .'

Dear Editor,

Last week there was an article in your editorial section concerning the Student Association survey for co-ed residence halls. As usual, The Trail Blazer criticized everything the Student Association has tried to do concerning this proposal.

Had the author of the article done some research, the fact would have been evident that there was better response from this survey than any the Student Association has ever done. The on campus response from this survey was 50.8 percent, whereas the normal percentage of this type of survey is normally in the thirty percentile range.

The article also accused the questions on the survey of being vague. There may have been a few vague questions on the survey, but the letter on the survey also stated: "If you have any questions relating to this issue, please don't hesitate to write . . . or call . . ."

The coed residence halls will not be mandatory, however, it is clearly evident that the author of this article is very biased against coed residence halls. I just wonder how this person will react when she or he someday decides to live in an apartment building and finds out there is a member the opposite sex living next door.

Billy Idol to appear in concert; tickets on sale at ADUC; elsewhere

By David C.L. Bauer
Co-entertainment Editor

Chrysalis recording artist Billy Idol is scheduled to appear in concert at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 15, at the Academic-Athletic Center.

Idol began in a group known as Chelsea in 1976, which later changed its name to Generation X, one of the seedlings of the punk rock movement. The band released a total of three albums, combining "back-against-the-wall" lyrics with a unique pop music accessibility. Generation's last collaboration as a band also became one of Idol's largest selling single releases to date: "Dancin' With Myself."

Pursuing a solo artist career in 1981, Idol moved to New York City and entered the mainstream of American rock music; something which was met with a less-than-receptive response from American and British writers alike. But, as Idol's management firm suggests, he's never been one to cow-tow to authorities.

Since 1981, Idol has released three albums in the U.S. His first, Billy Idol, was met with a not-so-favorable welcome from the majority of music critics. One of the LP's most gung-ho reviews appeared in an article in Musican, Player and Listener magazine, which stated "Idol lives up to the promise most of us didn't know he had . . . (he) shows off an astonishing command of mainstream idioms." Despite reviewer's dislike for the release, a single release, "Hot in the City," in which Idol related I'm a train when I'm hateful, made it safely into the Top 200 charts. "White Wedding," which lamented about the futility of "social securities," such as marriage, climbed quickly into the Top 40 eight months later.

Following his debut album, the mini-LP Don't Stop was released. The album had been recorded when Idol first arrived in the States. The single release from Don't Stop ("Dancin' With Myself") quickly became Idol's most heavily played song.

"Rebel Yell" is Idol's latest single release and the first from the album of the same name. He describes the album as "the constant cry of two completely free individuals not to be held down or to be forced to accept things they don't want to." The single, he said, "has to do with the fact that people aren't being offered very much; they are being hoisted by a lot of things by society and are being made to accept a formatted way of life. They are constantly being told what to do and it has affected American music heavily."

Idol also said he is one of those people "who doesn't want to live outside of society," but he is "not willing to be crushed by it. People are pumping for something that gives them some sort of peace of mind."

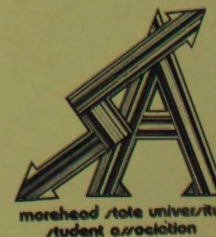

His answer to it all?

"My answer to all of it is the way the two people in 'Rebel Yell' accept it. Even through the agonies of life, these two people band together and keep going."

Tickets for Idol's concert are $2 for students with a valid ID and $10 for the general public.

With a 'rebel yell'

By Mary Scott Offutt

After going to the Billy Idol concert, I considered leaving the space in the paper for this review totally blank, so as not to waste words on such a disappointing event. That pretty much sums up my feelings about it.

All those people who paid the $10 non-student ticket price must feel ripped off. I sure would. I almost did, anyway, except for The Elvis Brothers. Now, those guys were good. It was worth $2 for me to see everybody punked out for the concert, too.

I was disappointed. All of Idol's songs I had heard I liked, and we've never had a concert like that before, so I was really looking forward to it. I went expecting to

It isn't very quiet backstage at the Academic-Athletic Center after Billy Idol's concert; not anywhere, well, with the exception of an out-of-the-way storage closet. In the closet are three chairs, two writers and Steve Stevens, lead guitarist for Billy Idol's band. Stevens is admiring a rather large floor waxer in the corner. The other writer and I sit down. The Brooklyn native seems to satisfy whatever curiosity he may have had about floor waxers and joins us.

Outside of the studio, Stevens is also a very strong part of Idol's stage show, contributing one-fifth of the band's sound and a large part of its energy. His part of the sound he takes credit for. The energy aspect he shares with the rest of the band and the audience.

"The audience is f---g crucial. It helps a lot if they understand what you're doing, or you lose them and then you have to spend the rest of the show trying to build the energy back up."

And it's the energy that's going to continue for a long time, no matter what directions Idol or the rest of the band may take, something Stevens said is hard to predict.

"It's very hard to say. When the band came off the last tour, we didn't even really know what we wanted to do on the Rebel Yell album," Stevens related. "I can tell you that we're going to get more aggressive... more rock 'n' roll. I guess we'll just get back to the roots of rock."

The writers finish and escort the guitarist down a corridor where the band's road manager greets him with a "boy-are-you-gonna-be-pissed" look. The guitarist's favorite axe (Les Paul, no less) was sacrificed in transit on the way to the band's bus.

Stevens turns to the writers: "C'est la vie."

The guitarist walks away.

see a professional, and had to settle for a stumbling, mumbling, egotistical, foul-mouthed inebriate. Evidently the guy never works crossword puzzles. Otherwise his vocabulary wouldn't be so limited.

The only other positive aspect of the concert that I can think of has nothing to do with Billy Idol, really. That is that I went with my mom, who enjoyed it more than I did. I believe. She had been to see Billy Joel at Rupp Arena, so she's a seasoned concert-goer. She kept poking me, asking, "What did he say, what did he say?" "I don't know, Mom, something about cats," I answered.

I really don't understand why he thought the audience would be entertained by excessive profanity and vulgarity. What was even worse was that some audience members were entertained by it, and you know who you are. For shame.

I did enjoy the songs that had gotten radio air play, I guess, but there were only four of them, and they're not a very good representation of his music overall. I was ready to leave before his encore, but Mom wanted to stay till the eardrum shattering, nerve wrenching end. I was kind of curious to see if he could stand up till the encore was over, anyway. Much to my surprise (and chagrin), he did.

I got the feeling that Billy thought he was doing us a big favor by coming here. Favors like that I don't need. I think the real story is that he needed the money. If all his performances (and I use that word loosely) are like that one, word gets around. By the way, he was paid $12,500 to come to Morehead State and insult our town's name and some audience members.

Idol really needs to clean up his act, or else stick to MTV. I've been more entertained at some of the coffeehouses we have on campus, and they didn't cost me anything.

SA introduces
Campus Calendar

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

The Student Association has introduced a Campus Calendar that will allow students to pick up the telephone to find out about the upcoming campus events.

Students will be able to dial 783-4MSU from any phone to get this information.

"I hope students will utilize this service," said David Holton, senior pre-law major and Student Association President. "So often I've heard students say 'I didn't know that was going on' and it is to be hoped that with this new service that will no longer be a problem."

At present the campus calendar is averaging 17 to 20 calls per day.

"I think that the numbers will pick up in the future. I am optimistic about that, after students find out that the service exists," said Ben Iden, SA publicity chairperson.

SA committee

By Lisa Shemwell

The Student Association Campus Improvement Committee will recommend to Morehead State University administration that the sidewalk from Rader Hall to Fields Hall be widened.

According to David Holton, president of the Student Association and a senior government and history major from Louisville, the committee will recommend the proposal next week.

Also included in the proposal is a recommendation to move the tree in front of the MSU sign in front of the Laughlin Health Building so that the sign may be read more easily.

"The committee is concerned with various projects that can improve the campus," Holton said.

New phone line to be installed

By Howard McClain
Staff Writer

According to Student Association President David Holton, a new phone line designated for student use only will soon be installed in the Camden-Carroll Library.

Two years ago a telephone was installed for student use on the second floor of the library. Since the phone was connected to the business line of the library, it caused the line to be tied up constantly, either by students calling out or by library staff trying to conduct business.

However, the new phone line will be a separate line on the same system as that of the dormitories, which is a 3000 or 4000 exchange.

Holton, a government and history major from Louisville, said it will also be possible for students to make long distance calls on this phone in the same manner as in the dorms. Holton added that the system would work best, "if students didn't tie up the line with long conversations."

Idol review was 'backwoods'

What a shame that The Trail Blazer wastes a quarter of a page on the backwoods point of view of Mary Scott Offutt. Maybe I should also use Roget's Thesaurus to write this, but I am too steamed up to do so.

I, for one, was very pleased by the Billy Idol concert mainly because Morehead State University does not often cater to those of us into rock 'n' roll and rarely gets the talent that Billy Idol has to offer. Thank you, Billy, for performing here!

After being here for five years and seeing what Morehead State usually provides, it is nice to see fresh, new and exciting music. I know that I am one of the minority that doesn't get into country-bluegrass and am thrilled to say I have never wasted two dollars on any of the nasal-toned mediocrities we usually get. As for feeling that the $10 ticket holders were ripped-off, Scotty, you should have been in Lansing, Mich., or Chicago, Ill., where they paid $15 in sold-out arenas and enjoyed themselves immensely (just as I did).

As far as the profanity in Billy's show is concerned, when was the last time you walked through ADUC cafeteria and caught snatches of conversation? Try it Scotty and you'll find it's worse than anything Billy said.

For some added insight, Morehead was the cheapest show on this leg of the tour so he didn't "need the money" and by no means did he insult the town's name by his performance. I feel he graced it!

It might be nice if The Trail Blazer could get editorial writers that lived in 1984 — not 1932. At least someone that had a clue to what a band's music is all about. If you would open your eyes, Scotty, you would have seen that the majority of those people in attendance enjoyed themselves — sorry to disappoint you and your narrow-mindedness. If you'd had the privilege of meeting and talking to him as I did, maybe your level of awareness would be uplifted.

A piece of advice, Scotty, grow up. The dark ages aren't in existence everywhere.

Bid sent to pop/R and B band DeBarge has until Friday to respond

Family group DeBarge has been offered a bid to appear at Morehead State University's Academic-Athletic Center, according to Clyde James, Director of Student Activities and Organizations.

James said the group was offered the bid of approximately $10,000 last Thursday, and has until this Friday to respond to the offer.

If the band accepts the bid, it would appear in concert at MSU on either April 3, 4 or 9.

Students would favor coed residence halls

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

The Student Association has tallied the results of the coeducational residence hall survey conducted at the beginning of the spring semester has revealed that there is an interest among students for the living arrangement.

According to the survey, the majority of the students responding were both males and females with a grade point average of 2.0 to 2.9. A GPA of 3.0 to 3.9 followed a close second.

Of those responding 20.9 percent said that a coeducational residence hall is necessary. Other figures note that 16.4 percent said they these co-habitational halls were important, with 21.7 percent saying coed halls would not be very important. Fourteen percent said they were not necessary.

The Student Association developed the survey to determine if there was a need for a coed residence hall, and if there was a need how many students would actually live there.

"It is my belief that there is a sufficient number of students presently enrolled at MSU who would choose to reside in coed residence hall, and to fill that hall if one was established." David Holton, SA president and a senior government and history major from Louisville.

According to The College Heights Herald, Western Kentucky University's student newspaper, an interview with James Morton, MSU's director of student housing, said this university isn't interested in such an arrangement.

The College Heights Herald stated in its article on coed residence halls: "Jim Morton, director of student housing, said coed housing has never been seriously considered by the administration there, and the students are satisfied with the way things are. The feeling of the community toward coed housing could keep the university from instituting a new program. I don't think it is as much of an issue as it was in the '70s."

Holton said that one purpose of college is to prepare students for real life. "When we go out to the real world we won't find single-sex apartments and single-sex neighborhoods. If students want a coeducational residence hall, they should have the opportunity to live in one."

"We are in a time when universities are competing to attract students. The more alternatives that are made available to the students, more students will come to the university," he continued.

According to Holton, the attitudes have been receptive to coed residence halls in the past. Certain administrators have not seen fit to pursue it. They still don't see a need at this time.

Of those who completed the survey, 39.9 percent said they would definitely live in a coed hall. A smaller percentage, 24.7 percent, indicated they would consider living there, but they needed more information. Another 13.8 percent responded that it doesn't matter if they live in a single-sex or a coed residence hall.

Seven percent indicated they were not interested at this time, but might consider living in a coed residence hall in the future. The survey said 14.5 percent were not interested at all.

A majority of men, 53.7 percent, marked they would live in the coed residence hall, but only 27.9 percent of the females said they would live in such a hall.

Students indicated by 42.2 percent that the decision would be theirs to make when deciding to live in such a hall; however, 17.3 percent said their parents would not be in favor of them living in the hall, but the decision would be left up to them.

Most of the male students said a coed residence hall wouldn't effect their grades but if it did it would have a positive effect. However, females didn't show a positive or negative reaction to this issue.

Survey results showed most students said a coed residence hall would provide a greater opportunity to develop friendships with the opposite sex and would make it more convenient to study with the opposite sex.

"The survey was the most comprehensive survey ever done on our campus to determine the level of student demand for the establishment of a coed residence hall, and I hope that the Board of Regents and the administration will be more receptive to the concept now than they have been in the past."

The SA is working to complete its proposal by the end of the semester.

Hank Jr. proving 'a country boy can survive'

By David C.L. Bauer
Co-Entertainment Editor

Country musician Hank Williams Jr. is scheduled to appear in concert at the Academic-Athletic Center tonight at 8 p.m.

Williams, the son of the late Hank Williams, was born in Shreveport, La., in 1949. Growing up in the limelight of his father's success, he began to play the guitar at the age of eight, mostly performing what he referred to as "reincarnations of his father's music."

Disgruntled with the role, Hank, Jr. decided to begin performing his own music. He left Nashville and moved to the town of Cullman, Ala. There he met an old fishing buddy who later became his manager, and in 1975 he released his album Hank Williams Jr. and Friends.

According to a Warner Brothers press release, the album aided in his "proclamation of emergence from his father's legendary shadow and his determination to play music his way."

Shortly after the album climbed the charts, Hank Jr. suffered a tragic accident. While climbing in the Montana Rockies, he fell. The fall nearly killed him; it did kill his spirit temporarily.

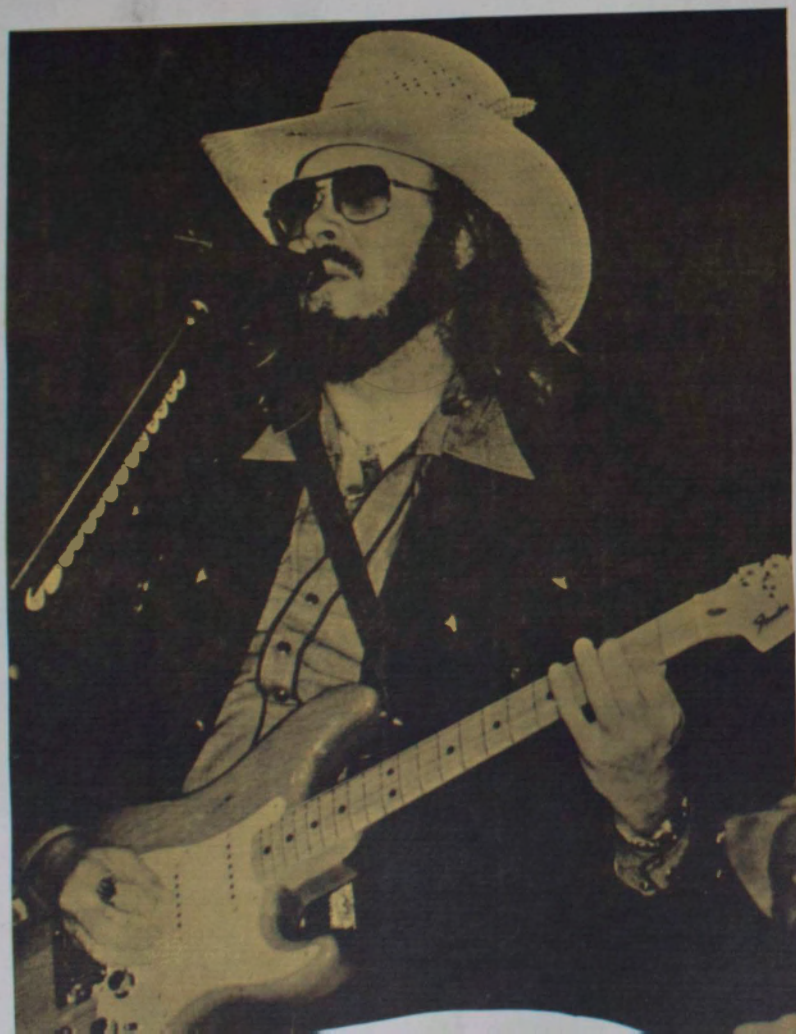

After a brief time, his belief that he would never perform again turned into a personal goal of "I will perform again!" As soon as he could sit up after the accident, Hank Williams Jr. propped a guitar in his lap and set out to prove a point to himself.

He is called a progressive country rocker and nearly anything can be heard or seen during one of Hank Jr.'s shows. As one critic wrote, "... seeing Hank Williams Jr. live on stage is electrifying."

Admission to the show is $10 for the general public and $2 for MSU students with a valid ID card.

Tickets are available at the Student Association office on the second floor of the Adron Doran University Center (ADUC); Underwood Music on East Main Street in Morehead; or D.J.'s Clothier for Men, at the Trademore Shopping Center.

The opening act is the Bama Band.

SA candidates voice opinions about election

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

Three Student Association presidential candidates will seek election in Thursdays' general election in the Adron Doran University Center. All three candidates have different opinions as to what a Student Association president should be and how the organization should be operated.

Candidate Number One

Scott Coburn, junior business administration major from Grayson, said that the president should have an ability to communicate, and have the ability to persuade as well as to inform. He or she should also be able to communicate confidently and clearly the aims and ideas of the SA and be able to get them done.

Coburn has served in various facets of the SA. He has served as a justice on the student court, and has been the junior representative. He served on the Kentucky Intercollegiate State Legislature (KISL), the Campus Improvement Committee, and the Legislative Action Committee this year.

"A president has to set long-, medium-, and short-range goals," Coburn said. As a long-range goal, Coburn plans to begin a study on how the Adron Doran University Center may be remodeled. "ADUC needs to be less institutional looking. It's not appealing to students. It needs more privacy areas for students and places where they can study."

Another long-range goal would be to set up a task force to do an extensive study on what can be done to solve the parking problem. "I will work to implement a plan to create a small car parking area, which can be accomplished next year."

Coed hall possible for fall 1985

By Beverly Cottle
Managing Editor

A coeducational residence hall could become a reality by the 1985 fall semester, according to Student Association president David Holton.

In a meeting Monday, the Committee on Student Life "unanimously approved the recommendation that there be a coed residence hall established on campus by fall 1985," Holton, a senior government and pre-law major from Louisville, said.

A prepared statement by Buford Crager, vice president for Student Affairs and chairman of the Committee on Student Life, said that the committee "approved a proposal from the SA recommending to the president the establishment of a coed residence hall on this campus."

The statement also said the coed hall is to be implemented by the Bureau of Student Affairs and any additional cost to be borne by the SA 1983-84.

"We're closer than we've been at any time in the past (to having a coed hall)," Crager said.

New committee delays election results six hours

By Vicki J. Aleshire
Senior Staff Writer

Information for this story was also gathered by writer Douglas J. Bolton.

The newly-organized Committee for Better Student Government succeeded in delaying the announcement of the Student Association primary election by almost six hours last Thursday.

Committee chairman Brian Cumbo said their purpose was not to delay announcement of the results, but to challenge the SA constitution's exclusion of write-in candidates for the primary election — in particular the position of vice president.

An appeal was filed with the MSU Student Court at 3 p.m. Thursday in an attempt to allow a write-in candidate for vice president, Cumbo said. However, since the committee is a constitution it is not recognized as an official organization and Cumbo refilled in his own name. Cumbo said he withdrew the appeal later the same day when the court seemed to be in favor of calling a new primary.

Cumbo, a senior business administration major from Inez and an SA representative, said the organization had backed Ashland junior Marsha Fields for vice president when she applied April 3. Deadline for applications was April 5. Fields was informed after deadline by Clyde James, director of Student Activities and Organizations, that she was ineligible to run because she doesn't have 27 hours of credit from MSU. Fields is a transfer student from Ashland Community College, where she served as president of the student government.

When Fields was declared ineligible, the committee then readied Steve Burchett, a junior business administration and finance major from Pikeville, for the position.

"We feel that we were done wrong by the administration, particularly Clyde James, when we weren't notified until after the deadline that our candidate was ineligible," Cumbo said. "Granted it was our fault for not checking in the student handbook about the credit regulations but the news just came too late."

Cumbo described the committee as "a group of my friends who got together and thought we needed a more diversified Student Association with people other than those who have been running it up to now." Cumbo maintains the majority of SA members are members of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Ronald S. Bolin, supreme justice of the court, said Cumbo made a mistake in wording when filing the appeal. He had meant to appeal the primary elections but had written general election instead.

Bolin said the court found the appeal to be constitutionally sound and therefore feasible to institute a write-in mandate.

Bolin, a Paducah senior majoring in sociology and pre-law, said he was surprised to hear Cumbo withdraw the appeal.

"I asked him if he realized what he was doing and he said yes. I think he was scared — that someone must have got to him. I was really surprised."

"Sour grapes" is how SA President David Holton, a Louisville senior pre-law major, describes the action by the committee.

"It was a last-minute thing. It was unfortunate for all the candidates that they had to wait several hours to hear the results of the election," he said.

Cumbo said the action was not an attack on sole vice-presidential candidate Ben Iden. "It's not that Ben is not a qualified candidate — our goal is towards a more diversified SA."

However, Iden, a sophomore geology major from Bloomingburg, Ohio, said, "I don't see it as a move against me personally, but it's hard not to take it as so."

ELECTIONS No experience required

The winner of the presidential race for Morehead State University Student Association will serve without the benefits of ever having worked as a SA executive officer.

Scott Coburn, a junior business administration major from Grayson, and Michael Fox, a junior pre-law and psychology major from Olive Hill, will compete for the position. Demossville graduate student Lee Blackaby, majoring in secondary education, lost his bid for the presidency during last Thursday's primary election in the Adron Doran University Center.

Of the three, Coburn, the only one who has served as an SA committee chairman; Blackaby a graduate student representative and Fox, have never been a member of the SA.

However, each of the men have served executive-type positions for other student organizations. Fox is an officer of a fraternity and vice president of the Interfraternity Counsel and Blackaby has previously served executive positions on several student media organizations.

The established norm for SA presidents has been for a natural power ascension. Often they have begun as freshman representatives and progressed until they serve an executive position, more than likely that of vice-president.

The winner of the election on Tuesday in ADUC will operate in a difficult position representing thousands of students without the benefits of those who climbed the ladder of power. This is unfortunate to both the new president and the student body.

The Trail Blazer suggests the new president — whomever he may be — take the proper steps to familiarize himself with the works of the office of the SA president before taking over the position.

Primary voter turnout low; generals expected higher

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

"This year's primary voter turnout was just below last year's total," said David Holton, Student Association president, about the primary election held last Thursday, April 5.

The presidential race was close with Scott Coburn winning with 303 votes. Michael Fox followed with 266, a 37-vote margin. Lee Blackaby received 46 votes.

The vice-presidential candidate, Ben Iden, and public relations director candidate Jennifer Redmer, were not involved in the primary election as they are both uncontested. But both will be on the general election ballot.

Jeanine Kirkpatrick was the top candidate in the secretarial race, winning with 284 votes. Wendie Buchanan was second with 162 votes. Rodney Hamilton received 111 votes.

The top candidate for the office of programs director was Tom Douglas with 203 votes. Bruce Kennedy was second with 175 votes. Tracee Buchanan came in third with 135 votes and Tammy Manley received 69 votes.

Margaret Holt was the top candidate for treasurer, winning with 152 votes and Devon "Devo" James placed second with 139 votes. Dwayne Tutt placed third with 107 votes with Eddie Plummer following closely behind with 102 votes. Mark Kinster received 86 votes.

"We expect a better turnout for the general election," said Holton. "This is normal. Last year we had 200 more voters in the general election than in the primary."

"It is important that students vote because the higher percentage of students that vote in SA elections, the more clout the SA can carry with our dealing with the administration."

The general election will be held on Tuesday, April 17, at the Adron Doran University Center. Students must have their student identification card to vote.

SA has been active in 1983-84 school year

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor

The Student Association has accomplished about everything they've wanted to this year, according to SA president David Holton, senior pre-law major from Louisville.

Holton has participated in the SA since his freshman year when he was elected freshman representative. He was vice president of the organization last year and was elected president by 76 percent, the largest margin in the history of the SA elections.

He didn't make any promises, according to the April 20, 1983, issue of The Trail Blazer because, "The purpose of the SA is to provide effective leadership needed for it to be an effective governing body."

He did want to improve the university's reputation and add more prestige to degrees received from MSU. Holton said he has accomplished this.

During the 1983-1984 school year Holton has managed to do several things, including getting a proposal passed for a 75 percent increase in open house hours.

He was also instrumental in having The Movie Channel proposal passed and The Movie Channel installed on campus.

Holton worked to have a proposal passed that allowed non-university personnel to participate in open house.

Another idea Holton implemented was Reading Day. During the Monday of finals week, students will be excused from classes to allow them to have a Reading Day and study for their tests.

A survey was presented to the student body and to their parents for feedback on how they felt about a coeducational residence hall at MSU. The response showed that students were in favor of a coed residence hall and the proposal will be submitted to the administration later this semester.

The coed residence hall proposal is the only specific project Holton mentioned when he was campaigning for since his presidency of the SA. The proposal has to be voted on by the Student Association, the administration, and the Board of Regents. If it passes, Holton will have accomplished everything he set out to do as SA president.

Holton said was satisfied with his accomplishments in the Student Association, and has done everything he set out to do. The things that he won't be able to complete this year will be on the drawing board for next year, he said.

"My term is not over yet," said Holton. "I will keep working hard until May 15. If I could run for the office again, I would."

In close race

Mike Fox chosen as SA president

By Kimberly Hayes Taylor
Senior Staff Writer

Michael Fox, junior pre-law major from Olive Hill, was elected as the president of the Student Association for 1984-85 by a 48-vote margin.

Fox had a total student vote of 363 while his leading opponent, Scott Coburn, had 315 votes. It was the closest SA race since Donna Totich won by 25 votes in the 1982 SA presidential race.

"I feel great!" Fox said, after he found he had won the election. "If anything is going to get me out of this wheelchair, it's going to be this."

Fox received injuries from a fall from Lochege Rock on April 7, but managed to campaign for the election.

Fox said he didn't know what to expect in the election. "I was hoping for the best, but I didn't expect anything."

One of the first things he said he will concentrate on is the coeducational residence halls; another is to clean up the residence halls "so that people won't be ashamed of them. Not all of them are like that, but enough of them are," he said.

Some other things that Fox has planned is to try to get the library hours dramatically extended, and to see that Alumni Cafeteria study area is more controlled. Parking is another issue he will be looking at.

Fox said that he doesn't feel that his accident had a great factor in the outcome of the election. "I can't deny that my accident had an effect (on the election) . . . the accident hurt a lot, because I wasn't visible this week, but I can't discount the fact that my name was floating around on campus. I don't think I picked up a great number of people that weren't already going to vote for me. I am the happiest I have been in a long time. I feel flattered that so many people had faith and confidence in me. I will do the best job I can. I will not let them down."

Scott Coburn, junior business administration major from Grayson, had this to say about his loss in the election. "I feel very disappointed. I know what the Student Association could have done next year, and I am quite disappointed that it won't be able to reach those heights. This is not out of bitterness, it is out of harsh reality. I'm not discouraged. I never will be, from serving this university. I intend to be the senior representative to the SA next year and am still working towards the needs of the students and the university. I do hope that time proves my disappointment wrong, but I'm afraid it won't."

Ben Iden, the uncontested candidate for vice president, received 493 votes, more than both of the presidential candidates.

Jeanine Kirkpatrick won the office of secretary with 418 votes against Wende Buchanan's 175 votes.

Margaret Holt will be the new SA treasurer; she defeated Devon "Devo" James with 373 votes against his 263 votes.

Jennifer Redmer received 476 votes for the uncontested position of public relations director.

Tom Douglas won the office of programs director with 336 votes against Bruce Kennedy's 275.

A total of 706 votes were cast for the election, and 16.5 percent of the full-time students voted.
