A MOTHER'S GRIEF. ch from life. By the Rev. Th

To mark the sufferings of the babo That cannot speak its wo; To see the infant tears gual forth, Yet know not why they flow; To meet the much, uplifted eye, That fain would sak relief, Yet can but tell of agony— This is a mother's grief.

Through dreary days and darker nights,
To trace the merch of death;
To hear the faint and frequent sigh,
The quick and shortened breath;
To watch the last dread strife draw near,

And pray that struggle brief, Though all be ended with the c This is a mother's grief.

To see, in one short hour, decayed The hope of future years; To feel how vain a father's prayers, o feel how vain a mother's tears;
to think the cold grave now must close that was once the chief Of all the treasured joys of earth— This is a mother's grief.

Yet when the first wild throb is past.

Of anguish and despair.

Of anguish and despair.

To lift the eye of faith to heaven,
And think "My child is there!"
This best and dry the gushing tear,
This yields the heart relief,
Until the Christian's pious hope
O'ercomes a mother's grief.

WOMAN.—The best and purest feelings of our human nature are excited by woman; and to maintain the supremacy of her indusence to contrast with, and in opposition to, the more growelling passions of mankind, has employ-ed the pens of the brightest geniuses in eve-ry age—a most fruitful and eloquent theme. "Not she with trait'rone kiss, her Seviour

Not she denied him with unholy tongue: She, while apostles shrank, could danger

Last at his cross and earliest at his grave!" Another writer, (Barret,) in his "Triumph of Woman," very justly and forcibly says:

Ask the gray pilgrim, by the surges cast In hostile shores, and numbed beneath the blast,
Ask who relieved him! who the hearth began

To kindle! who with spilling goblet ran!
Oh! he will dark be spark of youthful flame,
And clasp his wither'd hands, and Woman
