Mrs Ellington Lashed For Six State Nominees

During the final stages of the present campaign there is one man that stands out as being particularly notable with only few candidates seeking the nomination and both of them conducting an honest and above-board campaign with all the usual dignity and decorum of the most primary men taking part. That is the man, between Mrs. A. P. Ellington and S. M. Bradley, both of Morehead, who are seeking the Republican nomination for State Senator.

It strikes us that this is much the better way to approach one of these primary situations. When the lat-estified is chosen—all the votes have been counted—and a winner has been declared there will not remain the odious of party "split" that characterizes so many primary fights.

It is a pretty sound saying that "I don't want to win on my opponent's terms." I don't want to win on my opponent's terms.

Not being very well acquainted with Mr. Bradley, as perhaps many of the able residents of this county are, we are unable to say much regarding him. However, we do congratulate him on his clean campaign and find that if he is in the number the Republican party should throw their full and unqualified support behind him.

However, we do know Mrs. Ellington personally, and can say that she is a competent judge for the position she seeks. Mrs. Ellington has had a number of years teaching experience both in grade schools and high schools. She has a college degree and proper training. Mrs. Ellington is an engaging person to know, with a likable personality.

Rowan county has much at stake in this race, and Mrs. Ellington will uphold the burden fairly, with no least interest for her constituents, if nominated and elected.

The Morehead State Teachers College is an excellent grade and state of livelihood. Her experience in school work should aid her in preparing legislation that will mean most for this institution.

Can Rhea Win in the First Primary?

Lexington Herald Writer Discusses Possibility of Russellville Candidate Winning Without Run-Off Predicts 20,000 Majority For Administration Man

BY TOM R. UNDERWOOD

Following a statewide poll resulting in estimates by political leaders in every district in the state, a number of articles have discussed the chances of each of the three leading candidates, Chas. Chandler and W. C. Weller. The other two State Treasurers, H. H. Haddock and Attorney General H. P. Wootton, are receiving their efforts in the last week and the interest in their candidacies is increasing.

In summarizing the results it is necessary to accept the estimate as they have been received so that the indication as concluded in this article is not given as an individual opinion but as the combined opinion of a number. From indications as shown by this survey Rhea will carry the following districts by the following margins: Second, 20,000; Third, 6,000; Fifth, 2,000; Sixth, 2,000; Eighth, 1,000. This makes a total of prospective pluralities for Rhea of 24,000.

With Chandler maintaining the third place of challenger it appears as probable that he may carry the following: First, 2,000; Fourth, 7,000; Seventh, 4,000; Ninth, 1,000.

No Majority Likely

These it must be remembered are estimates and not judgments over all candidates running. However from such pluralities, Rhea might lead by a plurality of 20,000 in the first primary unless there is a decided change and unless those making their reports by counties have underestimated. The other candidates, however, are likely to receive a combined vote well in excess of 50,000. Of course a seventh round might sweep one of them into second place. Most of the figures on which this is based were made a week ago.

Rowan county has a good organization in some counties, notably Clinton, Wayne, McCracken and Jefferson, and will receive considerable vote in these counties. Wootton is strong in Perry and throughout Eastern Kentucky, particularly the old Fourth congressional district.

As stated before these estimates are not made in the interest of any candidate and in the particular case the summary is published only because of numerous requests to "go ahead and say what the figures show."

There was an unhappy experience in the Al Smith race at trying to carry out the principle of Dr. Syntax who wrote:

"He who at Nature takes his view Must copy and improve it too."

The reporter, in discussing to 50 persons has been undertaken and this resulted in an almost exact forecast as the Chapman-Brown congressional race and in close forecasts in the Logan-Robinson and other state races.

In the Sixth congressional district it is being figured that Weller will run high with the leaders if he does not attain one of the first positions, so that Rhea will fall short of a majority of all votes cast in the Sixth district and will fall short of a majority of all votes cast in the First district by 15,000 where both Weller and Haddock will receive large votes.

These figures, as stated before, are subject to change without notice. No effort is made to claim that they are accurate. They are purely guesswork. They are more than 50,000 votes at variance with the estimate of Judge Earle Clements, Rhea's campaign manager, who says that Rhea is probably the best posted man at the state on what to expect, due to the fact that Rhea has an active organization in every county in the state.

They are not claims in behalf of Frederick A. Weller, because his headquarters says he will carry every county out of Louisville. However, it is recognized that Mr. Weller is gaining every day and may run far ahead of the expectations of factional organizations.

They vary from the Chandler estimate in that he claims every county west of the river in the First district or Jackson, Paducah and that he will be swept into the lead on a tight vote of public sentiment.

These concluding statements are made by explanation, for benefit of those readers who are interested, and by way of apology to any candidate.

J. T. Jennings Writes An Open Letter To The Voters Of Rowan & Bath Counties

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF BATH AND ROWAN COUNTIES:

It would be a pleasure to have the opportunity to appear before the Republican nomination for Representative of the Bath-Rowan Legislative District before you for your fair consideration.

In 1922 I served this district as your Representative. At that time the Sherrill and Nixons were striving to work out a plan of peace and plenty, following the chaos and disorder of the "World War."

Further, at that time the question of establishing and locating a State Teachers College in Eastern Kentucky was before the General Assembly, and in planning for my campaign I worked and fought day and night for the location of said school in this district which was done and is now standing at Morehead.

For the past 64 years I have worked and worked for the interests of the Republic and in planning for my campaign I worked and fought day and night for the location of said school in this district which was done and is now standing at Morehead.

I feel that this is a year that harmony should prevail more than ever among the Republicans of this District if we want to win in November, and further that there is now facing the people of this State and Nation a problem so serious that it will require wisdom and advice of persons who have had the training and experience to be able to distinguish between the right and the wrong method and procedure of placing this State back on a safe and sensible plan of management.

President Roosevelt has out the taxpayers of the United States millions of dollars for the mistakes made by his experimenters and brain trusters.

The Republican voters of this district surely do not want to experiment at the expense of the taxpayers of this district and by placing an inexperienced person in so important a position as that of State Representative.

At the 1922 Session when the question of establishing and locating a State Teachers College in Eastern Kentucky was before the Legislature, I was pronounced the place of location of the State Capital at that time favored by the State would have cost me $18,000, but I lost this place because I supported a measure that favored the location of the State Teachers College at Morehead instead of a location on the Big Sandy River which was at that time favored by the State Administration. I went to Frankfort as your Representative, a poor second man can come back an honest poor man.

Although my efforts were more responsible for the location of this great university in Morehead than any other one man connected with the movement to secure the school, yet, I am at this time unable to even secure employment therein at the humble salary of janitor due exclusively to the fact that I am and have always been a loyal Republican.

I stand for the repeal of the Sales Tax.

I stand for increased appropriations for educational purposes.

I stand for a minimum levy of 5 cents per $100 of assessed real estate for county and state purposes and an increased rate for each individual owner of real estate of a water value but $10,000.

I stand for an old age pension for the needy.

A vote for me will be appreciated on an occasion of your will to elect the wrong that has been done to a Republican because of his fidelity to his convictions.

Not Constitutional Files and Blat Magie Kilkenny Cts, Again Picking for Lawyers In Boston, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals decides, two to one, that the "Deal" process tax on income is unconstitutional. The judges decide that the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce does not authorize it to tax products either of agriculture or industry merely because their production may indirectly affect interstate commerce.

Arthur Brisbane This most important decision, if not upset by the higher courts, will undoubtedly change the plans of the administration in regard to financing bigger incomes for farmers.

The Kilkenny cats, which Mussolini has committed himself to war, and once a dictator speaks positively it is unwise, politically, for him to back down, especially when national interests, as France and England have interfered. To retreat might cost Mussolini his position of Emperor.

Difficult also is the position of Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia. His hold is not firm. Important tribes, leading various Abyssinian chiefs, would like to be seen as the cause of war by yielding part of his territory to Mussolini, as advised by England, retaining complications must include assassination, common in tropical countries.

The United States Chamber of Commerce objects to the income and inheritance tax program, called its confiscation. The question involved seems simple:

Does the property of the United States, result of thrift and intelligence, belong to the people that created it, or is it only held in trust by the government to be used for the benefit of the public use by those that for the time being exercise powers of government?

Owners of stock in Paramount-Public Moving Picture company, once selling on the market at $100,000,000 and more, now worth about nothing, learn that in some window proceedings they are asked for $3,000,000. That seems a good deal, but you must remember that one New York judge has ruled that the object to be mentioned—these years ask for $3,000,000. That seems a good deal, but you must remember that one New York judge has ruled that the object to be mentioned—these years ask for $3,000,000.

Figures do not lie, but they surprise you. For instance, in the year 1901 the government of the United States had 125 employees. Today it has 700,000 employees, an increase of 5,600 per cent. The number of new automobiles risen since 1901 from 125 to 531, a little more than 400 per cent, while United States population has increased 2.90 per cent.

The increase in population is due to mothers, the increase in government extravagance is due to politicians.

Austria seems not quite certain that she has had enough of the Hapsburg royal family, that has ruled and misruled an intelligent people to task for the state council cancels a decree that banished Hapsburgs and took their property. Young Archduke Otto, president of the crown and now crown prince of Austria, he and his mother will find themselves rich, the confiscated imperial properties restored.

Young Otto, a handsome youth, with a somewhat peevishly conceded expression, may occupy the throne. Self-government is not easily conceded. Austria, Germany, have discovered that, not to mention the U. S. A.

Anti-Semitic riots in Berlin included the usual cowardice that accompanies display of religious hatred, no matter by what race or religion. The "proud Aryans" bullied, bent and kicked Jewish men and women indiscriminately.

Washington reports a "whispering campaign" concerning President Hoover's health. It will be a very small whisper if the whisperers stop to facts. The President's health is excellent, never been better since he was elected to office. A constitutionally able to withstand and conquer such a wave of illness as the President has withstood need not worry about a few political annoyances.

Lesson for July 28

AMOS
LESSON TEXT—Amos 1:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—But for judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.—Amos 5:24.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Hero Preacher.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When God Needed a Hero.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing for the Right.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Plumb Line and Our Social Order.

Amos was a herdsman called of God to be a prophet. A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of God. He corrects the people of their sins, pleads for them to get right with God. The only effective way to correct wrong social usage is to bring the people into right relationship with God.

I. The Call of Amos (1:1).
 He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit (7:14). He was not a prophet by succession, neither was he trained in the prophetic schools.
 II. To Whom Amos Was Sent (1:1-11).
 He was from Judah, his ministry was to be primarily to Israel.

III. Amos' Messages.
 A. Sin denounced (2:6-8; 6:1-6).
 a. Avaricious greed (2:6-8).
 b. The Judge, for a bribe of silver, declared the innocent to be guilty.
 (2) Sold the poor for a pair of shoes (v. 6). It doubtless referred to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which he had been sold on credit.
 (3) Pasts after the dust of the earth (v. 7). So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the down-trodden poor cast upon their heads in their mourning because of their misery.
 (4) Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7). These grasping rich men turned aside the meek, that is, those who did not stand up for their rights.
 (5) Licentiousness (v. 7). So notorious were the immoralities practiced that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. How adequately this pictures the licentiousness of our present age.

B. Backless security (6:1-3). They closed their eyes to the approaching judgment predicted by the prophet.
 C. Luxurious ease (6:4). Their luxury expressed itself in:
 (1) Extravagant furniture. They had beds of ivory, which means, beds of luxury.
 (2) Lusciousness (v. 4). Many stretched themselves on their couches, thus living lives of idleness.
 (3) Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). They thought what they desired, regardless of its cost.
 (4) Adorned their tents with music (v. 5). They sang life songs, even inventing musical instruments for this purpose.
 (5) They drank wine (v. 6). They drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking.
 (6) They failed to grieve for Joseph. Many are today indulging in luxury, entirely indifferent to the crying needs of others.

2. The remedy proposed (6:4-9).
 The prophet called upon them to return to God. The time to repent is while divine judgment is stayed. In their turning to God they were to renounce:
 a. Idolatry (v. 5, 6). They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal, and Beer-sheba.
 b. Seeking to pervert judgment (v. 7). Turning judgment to wormwood implies the bitterness of the perversion of judgment to the injured.
 c. Seeking to denounce righteousness (v. 7). "Leaving of righteousness" is thought to mean that upright conduct was allowed to take its place.
 IV. Intercession for the People (7:1-9).
 V. Opposed by Amos the Priest (7:10-17).
 1. Message sent to Jeroboam (vv. 10, 11). The priest sought to blind the prophet by informing the king of the judgment which Amos proclaimed.
 2. He attempted to silence the prophet (v. 12, 13).
 3. The prophet's bold reply (v. 14-17).
 a. He declared that he had received his commission from God directly (v. 14, 15). The one who has heard the call of God must be faithful in the declaration of his message even though opposed by ecclesiastical and political leaders.
 b. Doom pronounced (v. 16, 17). He set forth the shame and disaster of the Babylonian captivity, which came upon them because of their unfaithfulness to God.

Vast Areas Await Explorer

Sections of the United States That Have Never Been Tread by White Men Offer Opportunity to the Adventurous Scientific Surveyor.

Adventurers ambitious to explore territory never before tread by white man can find such areas in the United States. Contrary to the general suggestion that America has been completely explored there are many areas about which little or nothing is known.

Thanks to the airplane, John O. Staack, chief topographical engineer for the United States geological survey, points out there are no sections entirely inaccessible, but the heart of Washington state forests and the Florida everglades can be penetrated only by scientifically equipped land expeditions.

Eastern states have been surveyed more accurately than areas west of the Mississippi because of the early work of Colonists and the familiarity with surveying instruments, but in the forests of northern Maine there are still places seldom seen by man. The least known spot in the East is the Florida everglades.

Traveling westward from the Mississippi, finds virtual wilderness in northern Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin, but these areas are traversed by trappers' trails, indicating that white men have preceded government mapping parties.

The Bad Lands of South Dakota form a sizeable area, largely barren, in which live a handful of people. Live, and similar areas are found in northern Nebraska, eastern Wyoming and in Montana.

Considerable territory in the West has been studied by expeditions sent out by the National Geographic society, the international boundary commission, the land office, coast and geodetic survey and by the geological survey, but some forests in the Puget Sound area still considered impenetrable. Fallen timbers and underbrush cover the forest floor sometimes to a depth of 40 feet requiring surveyors to exhibit squirrel-like skill in advancing.

Deep snow handicaps expeditions, too, and in the summer time hatched blue marks are often discernible at tree trunks 20 or 30 feet above the ground.

Desert lands of southwestern Arizona are surrounding their topographical secrets slowly to automobile expeditions, but the National Geographic society estimates there is a region 200 miles long and 20 to 30 miles wide still unexplored.

In Alaska, nearly one-half the entire area or about 300,000 square miles, is still unexplored, and according to Dr. Pierce Smith, chief of geological survey's Alaskan division, is "absolutely unknown." He has personally conducted expeditions

No Longer Life's Span?
 The roll of reputed centenarians includes Zorro Mohamed, the Turk, 122; Old Parr, an Englishman 122; "Uncle Johnny" Shell of Kentucky, 124; Krasnanski, a Pole, 122; Mrs. Catherine Brickland of Ireland, 123; and "Mother" Stevens, a German, 122. Of these, probably "Old Parr," who is buried in Westminster abbey, is the best authenticated case of longevity, states a writer in London Tit-Bits.

The Centenarians club, founded five years ago by that great student of longevity, Dr. Maurice Ernest, has 120 honorary members, proved centenarians, on its roll; but it exists mainly for the purpose of investigating means by which healthy existence may be prolonged beyond the century mark, and for circulating all available information on centenarianism. It is, in fact, mainly a corresponding association on the subject it represents, and boldly claims that man has it in his power to prolong his life, provided he observe certain simple rules of living. In any case, Doctor Ernest believes frankly that the Famine's span of "three score years and ten" is definitely out of date.

there that traveled over waste lands from March until September without sighting any signs of human presence.

On these expeditions the scientists are required to carry very little food for periods as long as six months. In one instance, Doctor Smith recalls, it was necessary to carry five tons of dog food alone. The party had to travel 600 miles and cross 10,000-foot mountains before it even reached its scene of operations.

Fully aware of the vast areas still unexplored, the United States board of geographers and maps and the nation resources board recently to recommend federal expenditure of $117,521,000 over a ten-year period. This would make possible the completion of a base map of the entire United States, exclusive of Alaska, at a cost of 8 cents per acre—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EXPERT EXPLAINS HEAVY RAINFALL IN CLOUDBURST

Why a "cloudburst" may yield many times as much rain as the water in the cloud when the rain begins and mass up the food alone. Zalmann, well-known meteorologist of the United States weather bureau, in an account for the American Nature magazine from Washington, says the Baltimore Sun.

Even the densest clouds never contain more than about one part of water to 30,000 parts of air. This is far much less than the water in any so-called cloudburst, which has time and mass up the food alone. Zalmann, well-known meteorologist of the United States weather bureau, in an account for the American Nature magazine from Washington, says the Baltimore Sun.

The rapid up-currents of air may break most of these raindrops about for a while, but presently the upward air currents slacken and billions of the suspended droplets fall in a rain of raindrops.

The water in one of these sudden falls may have been drawn from the low air for many square miles around the spot where the cloudburst happens. What may have been the world's record cloudburst is described as 24 inches of rain falling in less than five minutes, but Mr. Zalmann is skeptical. The maximum acceptable record is one of about an inch of rain in a minute, which fell in California in 1920.

Rowan County and The Sales Tax

It is not the policy of this paper to enter into campaign battles and election maneuvers either local, state or national; it has always been our aim to fully support that which we feel is for the betterment of Rowan County, and for that great state institution, the Morehead State Teachers College with which we have so generously been favored and rewarded.

With a full realization from the facts at hand 2 years ago, we knew that unless some steps were taken, the Morehead State Teachers College was seriously endangered by an economic crisis.

The officers of the state of Kentucky were exhausted; bills were even proposed to do away with the college at Morehead; Dr. J. H. Payne, President of the school, and those holding the higher positions in the institution realized the gravity of the situation; Rowan County was burdened down with a debt of $160,000 on which the Fiscal Court could not even pay the interest; County road work was halted and the machinery was lying idle; rural school teachers were being paid $25.00 to $40.00 a month with the result that the better class of teachers were quitting the profession; truly, Rowan County's government and school system was plunged to the depths of the depression and economic chaos.

The same situation existed in practically every county of Kentucky. Unpaid warrants, underpaid and in many cases incompetent teachers and a standstill in the public work program was a general summing up of the situation.

Dr. Payne made numerous trips to Frankfort while the legislature was in session. He realized the approach of darkening clouds that hovered menacingly about Morehead State Teachers College. The Fiscal Court was shuffling bills and buying wherever they might find credit at any cost. The County Board of Education was handicapped.

The legislature was deadlocked over revenue measures. The anti-administration promised a $6 per capita; the administration was for a $12 per capita and sought to pass a bill which we know as the sales tax. The legislature was adjourned and nothing had been done.

Meanwhile the Federal Government delivered an ultimatum that unless Kentucky was forthcoming with $25,000,000 a month to match 3 times that much of $75,000,000, making a total of a million dollars, all relief work in the state would be dropped.

The Governor called a special session of the legislature. The sales tax was passed, despite the opposition of the Retail Merchants Association and anti-administration leaders. During the debate on the bill a huge army of school teachers and students from the state colleges, including hundreds from Morehead, marched in Frankfort seeking enactment of the sales tax.

This newspaper, editorially, approved the sales tax. Since that time we have not changed our viewpoint, and although we feel that there are many features of the sales tax that should be altered, we believe at the same time with slight adjustments that it is an equitable and fair means of raising revenue.

An appropriation that was even more than expected was granted Morehead College. The sales tax, constantly a controversial measure, lended a ray of hope to our county officials. We know the relief rolls continued; we know the college is successfully operating; we know the schools were saved; we know that the state and county government are in better shape than they have been in many years.

Carried in the columns of this paper last was an actual and unbiased statement of what the sales tax has done for Rowan County. We paid in approximately $19,000 an increased back $76,000, or $46,000 more than was actually paid in. This does not include Morehead College's appropriation. The rich counties are hearing the brunt of the attack.

a small portion of the tax; they have paid for building roads; if they did the county would be covered by nothing but roads.

This editorial comment is partly along the lines of a previous one. We have but one argument for the sales tax, but we feel that is sufficient as we take a survey of the government and schools of Rowan County today as compared with 3 years ago.

Voting Befor Wars

An amendment to the Constitution of the United States has been proposed by Louis Ludlow in the form of a joint resolution. It proposes that a declaration of war would not be effective until confirmed by a majority of all votes cast in a national referendum.

ARTICLE

"Section 1. Except in the event of an invasion of the United States or its territorial possessions and attack upon its citizens residing there, the authority of congress to declare war shall not become effective until confirmed by a majority of all votes cast thereon in a national-wide referendum. Congress may by law provide for the enforcement of this section.

"Sec. 2. Whenever war is declared the President shall immediately conscript and take over for use by the government all the public and private war properties, yards, factories and supplies, fixing the compensation for private properties temporarily employed for the period at a rate not in excess of 4 per centum, based on tax values assessed in the year preceding the war."

This would discourage war he would not remove the underlying causes. Eventually the source must be destroyed.

Propaganda loosed before a war creates such a public furor that more than likely a national referendum might result in an overwhelming declaration of war, although now the people of the United States desire that all within the government's power be done to prevent any development that might lead to international difficulties.

KEEP TURKEYS GROWING

CAUTIONS POULTRY MAN

In advising turkey raisers to feed well, Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the Kentucky Experiment Station, points out that it takes only 4 pound of feed to produce a pound of turkey meat, which means that a 16-pound young turkey tom has required 64 pounds of meat which should not cost more than 2 1-2 cents a pound. As a matter of fact, he says, a 16-pound turkey six months old has eaten so much more than an 8-pound capon.

During the first month of its life, a young turkey gains at the rate of a pound each 2 pounds of feed. During the second month it requires 2 1-2 pounds and during the third month 3 pounds of feed to add a pound of weight. The feed requirement continues to increase, and the last month before Thanksgiving or Christmas it may take 7 pound of feed to make another pound of weight.

THE FARM AND HOME (Kentucky Experiment Station)

High grain prices should stimulate the calling of hogs that show a tendency only to lay. Such hogs are their heads off quickly when food is costly. Prospects for good crop prices, however, should encourage keeping of all good layers.

Farmers are giving more attention to weeds in pastures. Weeds use plant food that the grasses should have, in addition to crowding and shading out the grass. They also give off flavors to milk and sometimes poison stock. Mow the pastures now.

Most kitchens, even the large ones, are short of shelf space for proper storing of dishes and other equipment. As a result, dishes are stacked up in untidy manners, adding to the task of putting them away and getting them again.

There is still time to sow turnips, carrots, beets, lettuce, radishes and cabbage and other vegetables. Well-prepared seed beds are desirable and mature and commercial fertilizer may be used to advantage, unless August is hot and dry.

Household garbage is a good hog food, provided it does not contain fly or other strong smelling powders, or glass. Dish water containing soap, lye or washing compounds should not be added to garbage intended for hogs. Glass often is fatal to hogs.

Children under 2 years should consume seven quarts of milk weekly, and older ones at least five quarts. One to three quarts weekly is necessary for growing children, adults, other than nursing mothers, who should have a quart daily.

WHEAT PAYMENTS TO BE 33 CENTS, KENTUCKY $388,000

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has notified the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture that wheat benefit payments this year will be 33 cents a bushel, and that Kentucky farmers will receive approximately $388,000 for cooperating in the wheat adjustment program.

The first payment will be 20 cents a bushel, and the second 13 cents a bushel, both on the basis of the program. Last year's payment was 29 cents less local cost.

The first payment will be distributed as soon as their compliance forms have been checked and approved in Washington. The amount of wheat acreages has been completed in 95 percent and compliance forms from many counties have been received at the state office at the Agricultural Experiment Station.

As rapidly as the forms are received they will be checked for accuracy and completeness, and forwarded to Washington. Returns to county committees if found improperly executed.

PLANNED CELEBRATION OF 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF STATION

Distinguished Kentuckians, scientists, prominent farmers, leaders of agriculture, business and industry of this and other states will gather here September 25 to observe the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, one of the leading institutions of its kind in the world.

A committee headed by Prof. J. D. Turner is arranging an elaborate state celebration in connection with the establishment 50 years ago of an experiment station to further the improvement of all phases of agriculture and through the general welfare of the state.

Addresses by prominent men made a historic review of the establishment and development of the Experiment Station, and an inspection by visitors of the laboratories, plants, equipment, experimental plots, herds and flocks of the Station will comprise the celebration program.

In 1935, more than a year before Congress provided national support for a system of state experiment stations, Kentucky, under the leadership of Dr. M. A. Scovell, established its own Station, to help solve the problems of soil fertility, crop pests, livestock diseases, and to do the largest amount of needed experimentation that could not be done by individual farmers.

The celebration committee is composed of Prof. Turner, Prof. Geo. E. Roberts, Dr. A. M. Peter, Prof. E. S. Good, Henry Clarke and T. E. Bryant.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

A pen of lambs sold at the Washington county stock fair last month for $6.50, one of the highest prices paid on the Kentucky market. Of the 2,200 lambs sold, 70 per cent were ewes and wethers. Purebred rams, parasites control and sanitation brought the high prices, says the county agent.

County Agent John C. Brown headed a committee to establish better playground facilities for Danville and Junction City. Local people furnished $550 for equipment and supplies, and the FEPA the labor for construction. The ground was opened July 15.

Charles Calvert, a Lewis county farmer, has approximately 950 White Jersey Giant chicks eight weeks old. He is copensing the cockerels, and plans to sell them on an eastern market at Christmas time.

It pays to fertilize, Powell county farmers say, after watching a recent demonstration. A farmer used 1,000 pounds on an acre of potatoes, leaving fertilizer off one row. That row made only one-fourth the growth of the rest of crop.

Brockridge county farmers are experimenting with an early maturing variety of corn recommended by the Indiana Corn Growers' Association, and developed by the Michigan Agricultural College. It was planted on 500 acres left free, because of heavy rains.

Terraces constructed by two Henderson county farmers were inspected by members of the soil improvement committee of the University of Kentucky Agricultural College. It was planted on 500 acres left free, because of heavy rains.

Mrs. Milton Evans was hostess at a party given at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ethel Tolliver, on Wednesday, July tenth. The occasion was in honor of the 7th birthday of Mrs. Evans' son, Guy Hubert.

After an evening of games and various other amusements refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were served. The large birthday cake was decorated with 7 small pink candles, which were in keeping with the color scheme. Others present assisting in preparing and serving the children were, Mrs. Minnie Hall, Mrs. J. T. Evans and Mrs. Opal Thompson. The following children were present: Jack and Fred Wilson, Glenn Blanton, Lester Brown, David Thompson, Lester Gene Hall, Virginia, E. M. Crabtree, Christine, Dorrin and Jeannette Thompson, Valda and Ada Dalley, and Meridith Hall.

NOTICE OF RECEIVERSHIP S. M. BRADLEY

Notice is hereby given that in an action in the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Kentucky entitled the Actus Casualty & Surety Company, suing on behalf of itself and other creditors of S. M. Bradley, versus S. M. Bradley, and Clara Anita Bradley, his wife, and H. R. Dypard, trustee, the undersigned W. H. Dypard was by order of said court, entered the 30th day of May, 1935, appointed receiver of all the properties and assets of

S. M. Bradley, who specifically set forth in said order reference to which is here and now made, and that said order vests in the undersigned W. H. Dypard as Receiver all of the right, title, and interest of said S. M. Bradley in and to all real estate owned by him, and in which he is interested in the counties of Morgan, Rowan and Carter, as well as in all other places, and in and to all other property, real, personal, or mixed of every source, site, nature and description, and that the said W. H. Dypard as Receiver, shall have the right to contract with and deal with regard thereto, and to receive monies and other obligations due to the said S. M. Bradley.

CREDITORS AND DEBTORS and all other persons having claims or demands against the said S. M. Bradley or his property, and all persons who are indebted to the said S. M. Bradley or anyone for him are hereby notified that all claims against the said S. M. Bradley must be submitted to the undersigned, W. H. # This Means Everybody In Your County

It Is Concerning Your State Fair and What It Means To You and Your County

Your county is certain to be interested in the thousands of people in attendance at your State Fair in Louisville, week of September 9-14.

It is the great window for displaying Kentucky's leading products to the outside world, and its officials in attendance this year the Exposition Commission of Kentucky, your county to display the products in the various departments, or in the form of a special display booth in the main show building.

Your county might gain in certain types of cattle, horses, sheep, goats, poultry, antiques, needlework, products of the garden, fairly, orchard, or in some other way. Or, you might have a beautiful gift to present to the Fair's Stand or Dram and Trumpet Corps, an athletic team or a boys and girls club. Whatever it may be, get into touch with the Kentucky State Fair at once, for it is your Fair as much for your county as for any other part of your state.

Your County Commissioner, Agriculture, Finance, Education, and State Fair Secretary, Harry E. Wagner, knows so well the needs of agricultural products, so plan the State Fair program now, State Fair at once, for it is the greatest good to the greatest number in your State, and they earnestly ask you to do your part.

OWINGSVILLE '9 LOSSES OPENING GAME BY 5 TO 1

The Owingsville Merchants dropped the first game of the scheduled 5 game play-off series with Mt. Sterling for the Kentucky State League championship, Sunday afternoon.

The score was 5-1.

Owingsville appeared far off form in the field committing four errors which figured in four of the winner's runs. Raymond Rhoads held the Bath Countians hitting force in check throughout except for the first inning when they pushed across a run. With better base running on Owingsville's part this score might have been closer.

Stratper Feaback hurled a "fast to mid-dim" game for the losers, but poor support hurt his chances.

Because of the automobile race at Mt. Sterling Sunday afternoon, the series will not be renewed until August 4, when the teams play at the Mt. Sterling park.

SPORT... SLANTS

With the discontinuance of the Kentucky State Baseball League during the balance of the season and the decline in diamond ball interest, Morehead sport fans are left with little or no entertainment during the balance of the summer.

About the only thing to do now is to sit around, twiddling thumbs, discussing what has been done and what is to come.

Most of the interest right now is centered around the prospects for the Morehead College football team this fall. With few exceptions the general prediction points to better days at the Blue and Gold institutions.

The absence of athletic events will be lessened some during the week of August 6 to August 11, inclusive, when Bo McMillin, Adolph Rupp and a few other celebrities will be on campus at the college for a week of tutoring in the finer points of collegiate football and basketball.

During the past season many members of the state league have wished for the presence of Dr. A. P. Ellington of Morehead, behind the bat instead of some of the officiate that did occur. The Vaneburg club, taking offense at a ruling that Ellington handed down here last year, more or less blackballed him—not that Ellington cared great deal, with a decrease in pay and so forth.

The umpiring this year was not quite up to standard in all cases. However, we do say that J. B. Fugate, another Bowman product was the best official that was on the staff.

Yes, sir, the boys missed the pepper and class that Ellington put into it. When the league lost him they were minus the best umpire they have, ever had.

MAN CONFESS' DROWNING WIFE

WORCHESTER, Mass.: Newell P. Sherman, 26, confessed Sunday State Detective Edward J. McCarthy said, that he drowned his 23-year-old wife, Alice, the mother of two children, last night.

"There is another woman in the case," McCarthy said. He declined to furnish this statement.

Mr. Sherman drowned Sunday night in Lake Slingerland, Milbury while canoeing with her husband.

'BO' MCMILLIN, RUPP, DOWNING, LANE ON SPORTS BROADCAST OVER WCMI

Radio Station WCMI and the Ventura Hotel, located at Ashland, will sponsor a sports party and broadcast Tuesday evening, August 6, at 9:30 p. m. (CST), featuring Alvin N. "Bo" McMillin, All-American quarterback, Adolph Rupp, Head Basketball Coach, University of Kentucky, G. D. Downing, Athletic Director, Morehead College, and Frank Lane, internationally known official and rules interpreter.

These men will be at the Morehead State Teachers College conducting a coaching school from August 5 to August 11, inclusive.

The Ventura Hotel is inviting all sports fans of eastern Kentucky to the roof garden to meet the celebrities and hear the broadcast. It is probable that the broadcast will be in the form of a questionnaire with Brady Clark, Sports Editor of the Ashland Daily Independent, doing the questioning.

Plans are being made to take a large delegation from Morehead to the Ventura for the occasion.

McMillin is head football coach at the University of Indiana, Bloomington. He has had remarkable success in the coaching field, almost rivaling that of his football playing days when he stamped the name of Centre College of Danville, Ky., on the football map. He led the poll that year for the All-American team. Coach Rupp has produced more winners at Kentucky than any court mentor in the country.

PRIESTS IGNORE NAZI WARNING

BERLIN: Priests in Freiburg, Baden, Sunday defied a stern warning against criticism from the pulpit of the Nazi drive to end "political Catholicism" as elsewhere in the tense Reich the Catholic clergy obeyed the Government edict.

The Baden priests read in their pulpits a letter from the episcopate calling the Nazi drive against Catholic youth organizations a violation of the concordat with the Vatican.

BELFAST SNIPERS KILL MAN AS RIOTS SPREAD

BELFAST, N. I.: Snipers Sunday night shot and killed a man in Newtownards Rd. to increase to nine the deaths in rioting since Orange-men's demonstrations July 12.

As sporadic shootings and fires continued to alarm citizens here, anti-protestant demonstrations were staged in many parts of the Irish Free State during the week-end.

The disorders were reported to be here.

RHEA SOUND TRUCK HEARD OVER 5 MILES

Continuing to set the pace in the Democratic gubernatorial primary campaign Rhea-for-Governor Headquarters established another precedent this week for a State political action in announcing that the "Rhea hand wagon" would visit a majority of Kentucky counties before the primary on Saturday, August 3.

The "Rhea hand wagon," it was explained, is the largest mobile public address system in America mounted on semi-trailer, 30 feet long, and pulled by a two-ton G. M. C. truck. The 100-watt amplifier that is part of the "hand wagon" equipment can be heard for 5 1/4 miles and for three years was utilized by the American Air Race Association for advertising and broadcasting purposes.

Located in the front end of the trailer is all amplifying and electrical equipment that is powered with a 250-watt, 110-volt, automatic-lighting plant. The remaining room in the trailer is taken up with four compartments consisting of sitting room, two sleeping rooms and lavatory.

Two speakers, assigned from Rhea headquarters, will travel with the "hand wagon" and will address audiences along the route of the good will tour and discuss the issues in the gubernatorial primary campaign.

SYNOPSIS

The luck that brought the Boston Lawrence to California at the beginning of the gold rush has deserted the present generation. From a 4,000-acre ranch, their holdings have shrunk to a small farm, and the old family home in Clipperville, Pa., now twenty-five, has gone into the iron works. As for the public library and the town department of Clipperville's largest street, San Jose, and the seven team-year-old Ariel, is becoming a problem. Phil is frustrated by "that terrible" Lily Case, whose husband has deserted her. Young Van Marchison, son of a wealthy family, comes from Yale, and Gail has visions, through marriage with him, of the fortune of the Lawrence luck. Dick Dabshin, Phil's best friend, has the run of the house, Ariel is speaking out of the house at night for joy rides. Phil engages in his sister's adventures, and she invites Lily Case to the house. Gail goes with Van for a week, and she returns with the Chipps, his uncle and aunt. She is received coldly by Mrs. Chipps and her guests. At a roadside hotel, she meets a good-looking man helping Ariel into a bus.

CHAPTER V—Continued

She stopped nervously, as Gail merely sat, silent, from a heavy chair and spoke to her as if she were a stranger. She spoke in a lower tone, a tone that had some hint of hesitancy or of apology in it.

"It makes it any—better, we all thought that was a horrible place and that we'd never go there again."

"You haven't been there before?"

"Oh, goodness, no! We just happened, we happened—here, I'll tell you how it was!" She leaned forward, looking her hands, and her knees.

"Mrs. Camp and Dorothy were going in to the city on the ten o'clock yesterday morning, to do some shopping and stay overnight, because Mrs. Camp wanted to hear some one preaching at church this morning. See? So they asked me to go, and I said I was going to see her—went in San Rafael, and she said that Dot and I could have lunch together, and go see a movie. Well, at about five we were back at the hotel cleaning up, and she telephoned and said that her aunt was so sick she was going to stay in San Rafael, and we could have four people on seats and ask two boys to go with us. So we were sort of telephoning around for boys, and we got Buddy Batsch and his roommates. Well, she was about all there was to it. I didn't want to go to a grand show dinner at Mocherick's, but, I mean, if we went to the movie first. But I didn't realize it was forty miles away, and that it would be so foggy."

"Gail persisted, "I'm sure is what—well, it always was—and dignity and self-control. If you turn ourselves into animals, we only have to work our way back to decency, sooner or later. Clipperville in fact isn't any more expensive than—than developing appetites for—for other things—"

"I loved her briefly."

"Surely—surely no man, Gail could think that the sort of marriage that goes on now, with jangling and fighting and divorce—"

Gail began eloquently. "Surely no girl thinks that is worth while! Why, girls like that are burned out at twenty. Their lives are over! They're fit for nothing! They go on for a few years... Ariel, at your age, to go on as you are going on, is a simple risk."

"And if I sit down at home, then what is it? Why, Gail, Ariel said, in a confident voice, "I'm no fool! I'm not taking any chances."

"Taking any chances?" Gail echoed, rolling up her eyes. There was a pause.

"Now, then, Gail," Ariel began again, in deadly earnest, "You had to lie, to get off on this Chippy party, didn't you?"

Gail was checked.

"I'm not proud of it," she said presently, in a dejected voice, "but I did it. Why shouldn't you be proud of it? There was nothing wrong in that party. Only you found out that if it depended upon a formal invitation from Mrs. Chippy you simply wouldn't go. Didn't you? Didn't you?"

"Phil isn't my father, after all," Gail offered suddenly, "and I'm not a girl."

"No, neither," but Gail, Ariel went on, more confidently, aware that she was gaining ground, "we can't get away from the fact that you say that here unless we take chances! Nobody could get away with anything in this town; just as soon as I can I'm going to get out, and I'm asking you to try. Why, what does it matter, she rushed on—what does it matter what Van Marchison shows me? He may be a fool, but I know how much a kid he is!"

This Man Was Far From Thoughts of Marriage.

He's sick, he's going to take his wife back, and ahead. What do you care about the rest? You don't want to change your way of life, do you? Let him be giddy—Phil said he was giddy. Let him be wasteful and frivolous if he wants to be! What is it to you? He can go out of Clipperville and away from these people, old boy bodies!"

The river of words dashed and tumbled. The crowd could not be delicate. Ariel, pouring out this coarse and dangerous philosophy of life or death! Ariel, whom they had all thought young, innocent, protected, confining her determination to grab the first man she could, and escape from Clipperville.

Most terrible of all to Gail was her little sister's easy air of complacency, her casual quick assumption that they were both in the same boat. Gail was frantic with alarm, and she said Philly there would be domestic panderism, and if she did not, she herself must assume a most appalling responsibility. Perhaps if she could get Ariel to promise—to swear—

In the end there was no reproach, no threats. She said to her knees beside Ariel's bed, and locked Ariel's hand in her own and, after a long and solemn talk, they promised each other that there should be no more deceiving, no more changing parties, every thing open and above board, between the two of them at least.

Gail felt, fully, all, exhausted with the weight of the confided in promises of these last brilliant, novel days, weak from the reaction from Ariel's central disease—yet she was strangely, deeply happy, too. Some how, in the confusion of their mutual adventures, the acknowledgment of their mutual disease and clearing the air seemed to have come very close to Ariel today. The sense of her responsibility as Ariel's sister, of her big-sister's trust solemn upon her. She loved it weight.

"Not one of them—Edith, Gail, Ariel, Sam—is a really self-supporting," Gail said. "And Case sends Lily nothing; she doesn't even know where he is! Lily and the three kids—Wuffy and Miles and Daniel, if she came back, I'd be sure she'd be a good deal more like us here, often these three make a day—twenty-seven meals a day—of a hundred—three meals a day. She didn't get Edith and Ariel to fight. But what could they do?"

"I don't see what I could do," Gail said, "but I'm not thinking, but I'm not, was thinking I'll about some of the members of the last 20 hours, and"

Buddy Batsch and his nerve, and that hard, hard line that had been altered against her delicate mouth when she had gotten out of the car at the Fairmount in the drifting, slight fog of one October this morning. She had intended to have nothing to say to do with his resolute or no resolute. But she could not get on living in Clipperville. She hated this town and these jay people and this old house with a bitter hatred. There must be a way out.

Edith told herself complacently that all this was very nice. Here was Phil home at a time when he might have been with Mrs. Marchison, and she would have been with Van Marchison. Ariel had had a lovely little-girl time with Dorothy. Everything was going beautifully.

"Ariel is smart and sensible, but I'm not thinking. Her cheek flushed as she remembered what Ariel had said. Gail herself had vaguely observed some of the same conversation taking place in her friendship with Van. But it had been left for Ariel to put it into marionette words.

Was it true? Well, no, not entirely. There was some truth in it, of course. But if Van Marchison happened to be a high-ranking, distinguished, successful boy, young for his years, and if Gail Lawrence was developed beyond her, matured by responsibility and experience, that did not mean that she could not fall in love with each other. How could she demand more of him than he naturally gave? What attitude would she expect of a man of his caliber, a more dependable man, on which a woman might have real hopes and plans?

Thinking these thoughts, she did not feel quite the usual thrill when he came into the library a day or two later and stood at the other end, with an elbow on the high desk, watching her anxiously as she stamped and scribbled in the stubby old books.

"Here you go, good morning," he said, as the door opened and he looked on the brown hand, but deep underneath she was conscious of change in herself.

This man was far from thoughts of marriage. He had a certain air of a dandy, a girl being her man from such irresponsible gaiety as this to the definiteness of an engagement.

She was so anxious to see him, to see her achievement, something quite extraordinary—a triumph. What a thing a girl accomplished when she could, simply, conscientiously tell her friends that she and Tom So-and-so were going to be married!

Van wanted Gail to lunch with him again, and he reached for the telephone extension and told Edith that she would not come home as usual. It meant a pang to Edith, but it could not be helped.

But immediately after this Van suddenly turned scowling and gloomy and said that, no, hang it, he could not lunch with her after all.

"I'll tell you," he said, with his characteristic chuckle, "I pronounced a man at Bernhardt that I'd go and look at a buggy."

Gail did not know quite what to say, feeling as she did a little dazed and perplexed by the sudden change of plan. She tried to feel fairly independent; he was only a boy, after all. But she had a sense of failure; these seemed no way of catching the slipper substance of his life for August.

"I'm sorry, he said."

"Oh, that's all right?"

"Yes, let's go over and have lunch at Santa Cruz on Sunday, and what can you say?"

"I love it. Yes, we all swim." Mention of Santa Cruz reminded her of Mocherick's and she said she would go. Van would do it if she told him her anxieties about Ariel. Would it develop anything out of it, in respect to Edith, or Ariel? She could not do it now, but she liked to think about it.

He was gone. He was hunting someplace there; that was all he wanted. Van was to be Gail's lover for some one with whom to play. Her thoughts were following him into the Monday June day. What from to be Mrs. Marchison, white and cool and at leisure, and on the third leather seat beside him, and go and have lunch at the country club, and watch tennis, or perhaps play tennis.

Anyway—anyway, she reflected, walking home to lunch, she was a good deal more to be in a central position than any other girl in Clipperville. She had proved herself on that grilling week-end visit to Los Gatos quite the match of the wife of Van's set; she had won them, in spite of herself.

Edith was in the kitchen, ecstatic over Gail's unexpected proposal, and the addition of strawberries to her humble little meal.

They laughed together, grinning the whole time, and Gail, with her mouth, brushing crumbs, drawing shades.

"Did you make any date with him, Gail?"

"Nothing definite."

But nothing could be more satisfying outwardly than his pursuit of her, and Gail had to be content with that for awhile.

In a half-hearted, slightly unconvincing sort of way, Mrs. Chipp had asked Gail to go to the movies again, and this time everything had to be done more breathlessly. There had been a chance once on the Lawrence terrace, where they had had a brief conversation, but Gail had not been so much as to remember Van's little friend from the library in Clipperville, and she had been gone for a week.

SMALL NEED YET TO WORRY ABOUT ICE RECESSION

It appears that our refrigerating plant is breaking down. The matter of the melting polar ice cap has for a long time engaged the attention of scientists. Within recent times the melting of the ice cap has been of such proportions that evidence of it has been observed within the span of only a few decades.

For instance, the Russian Arctic expert, N. G. Danilya, in re-examining areas surveyed 40 years before, found that in Siberia, where his predecessor, Professor Shrenk, found eternal frost at the depth of two meters, there was now no frost at any depth, not even in the marshes.

Other facilities where Professor Shrenk found only shrubland tundra, Mr. Danilya saw new growths of timber.

Only recently, Prof. R. T. Holbrook of the University of Michigan camp upon a pyramid of rocks and a note originally placed at the foot of the Cornell glacier by the late Professor Tarr. The note was dated 1896. In the time intervening, the glacier had moved back three-quarters of a mile from the marker.

R. F. Griggs of the University of Washington tells us that in the Alaskan tundra country the forest line is advancing at the rate of a mile a century. Trees are now growing on land which had been before 1800.

If this keeps on, you say, Finland bay will eventually become a sub-tropical body of water. Well, that's all right. It has been several times before, and, if geological evidence is anything to draw conclusions from, it will be again.

According to W. J. Humphreys of the United States weather bureau, if all the ice of the polar caps melted, the ocean levels would be raised 121 feet! And that's something else to try out on the slide rule.—Bart Crispin in Forum and Century.

Have Worth Catching

The richest hare in the world is running wild somewhere near Bluffton, in the Hatteras Sound. It is said to be a handkerchief containing about $600 in notes. Moximeine, a peasant woman is supposed to have been trying to catch it, and she is in a trap with an improvised net concealing her worldly possessions and succeeding only in setting the animal free.

About Face

BUSINESS GIRLS WILL LIKE THIS

The smart business girl has her own rules for chic-colored, feminine simplicity. And here's the frock that obeys the dictates of fashion and utility. There's a world of youthful charm in that slim collar and flattering curved yoke that cuts into a bodice with the very new "bosom and back" fullness. The puffed skirt breaks into pleats just in time to give you lots of walking freedom. Wear the sleeve puffed or fared—let your "type" be your guide. Because every smart business girl will choose this pattern and run up several in the evenings, the frock pictured has been kept especially simple. Choose a cheery flower print silk or a dark ground—or a washable pastel. Pattern 228 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. She is taken 3 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Send FIFTY-FIVE CENTS (10c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 245 West Seventeenth Street, New York.

Vote your for TOM BEEA a vote for the continuance of the relief. Help our poor and needy. Don't be misled by statements that his opponents have stood for the relief. LOOK UP THEIR RECORDS.

Pol. Adv. Continue the $12.00 per capita. We would not have had it today if it had not been for TOM BEEA. The best that his opponent promising at the last session of the legislature was $6.00 per capita.

Pol. Adv. If Chandler is elected Governor he'll jump over-time Ben Johnson pulls his chain. If TOM BEEA is elected Uncle Ben will be the one shyster that is best.

Chesterfields "go to town"
They Satisfy

—that's just the 1935 way of saying what Chesterfields have been saying for years ...
Chesterfields do about everything a cigarette ought to do.
Chesterfields have TASTE—yes plenty of it. But not too strong.
And Chesterfields are MILD—but they're not insipid or flat.
