

ROWAN COUNTY DEMOCRATS ENDORSE JUDGE YOUNG FOR STATE SENATORSHIP

Over Five Hundred Democrats in County Mass Meeting Approve Resolutions—Mason, Bath, Fleming and Menifee Also Endorse Him For Office—Resolution From Menifee Particularly Strong

The Democratic convention in Rowan county, held at the call of County Chairman, E. Hogge, in response to the call for a state convention held in Lexington Tuesday, was one marked by a complete absence of discord. The convention through the resolutions committee, strongly endorsed the work that has been done for this county and community through the efforts of Judge Allie W. Young, State Senator from this district and requested that he declare himself a candidate for reelection this fall. Incidentally, four other counties in the district adopted similar resolutions with regard to Judge Young's candidacy, the four being Mason, Fleming, Bath and Menifee counties.

County chairman, E. Hogge was unanimously elected as chairman of the convention Saturday with Madison L. Wilson as secretary. Following a motion by James Clay, Mr. Hogge appointed Lester Hogge, Dr. T. A. E. Evans and Riley Cline as a Committee on Resolutions to draft resolutions to be submitted to the Convention.

The following set of resolutions was adopted without a dissenting vote:

"BE IT RESOLVED by the Democrats in Rowan County in Convention assembled:

1. That the call made by the Democratic State Central Executive Committee for a Democratic State Convention to be held in Lexington May 12, 1931 be and same is approved.

2. Resolved, in view of the fact that since the establishment of this county over three quarters of a century ago, there has never been an appropriation of any kind for a public purpose secured for said county until Senator Allie W. Young was elected to the Senate, and since his incumbency in office he has secured for the roads and schools of this county over two million dollars which has been spent upon our people, we feel that we should endorse his acts and now call upon him to be the standard bearer for the Democratic Party in this district for the Senate at the next election, pledging him our unqualified and earnest support. We earnestly request the Democrats of the District to see to it that he has no opposition to the nomination.

The resolutions were adopted by the convention without a dissenting vote.

The convention adjourned after selecting the following delegates to the State Convention: Lester Hogge, A. W. Young, John Howard Payne, Madison L. Wilson, J. W. Riley, and James Clay with the following alternates: Chiles Van Antwerp, Herb Christian, Arthur Hogge, Riley Cline, John Manning, A. H. Parry, Taylor Young, James Holbrook, J. M. Butcher, Mike Flood, U. S. Sparks, Roy E. Graves and W. J. Fletcher.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Rowan County Democratic convention with regard to the candidacy of Judge Young:

The Democrats of Menifee county desire to publicly acknowledge their Revellers To Give Play On May 27th.

The Reveller Dramatists will present a revival of the season in "Food," a clever, humorous one act play, Wednesday night, May 27. The play will be the final production of the club for the year.

"Tempest and Sunshine" in four acts, depicts a plot laid around Civil War times intertwined with a love story that is characteristic of the period.

The play was probably the most popular on the stage around 1910 and its remarkable revival during the past year has given it a place among all stock companies' current presentations.

Costuming elaborate, brilliant, entertaining and a beautiful love story are the high lights of "Tempest and Sunshine." Humor and pathos have been cleverly interwoven in a story that is both interesting and amusing.

A clever, humorous one act play, "Food," a Cecil de Mille production will be given by the club in chapel, preceding the big production. The plot of "Food" is laid fifty years from now. Critics class it as one of the cleverest of modern one act productions.

The plays are being coached by Mr. Neville Pmel, sponsor of the club and Miss Virginia Ayres. The characters from the two productions include the best talent here.

Reserved seat tickets for the play may be purchased from the business manager of the club or from several local places where they are on sale.

STAR AUXILIARY TO GIVE BUTTERFLY LUNCH WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY

The Star Auxiliary of the Christian Church will give a Butterfly Luncheon in the church basement on Friday, May 15 from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. The price is 50 cents per plate and the public is invited.

J. A. Anglin was aided in celebrating his birthday Tuesday when the members of his family surprised him by gathering at his home for a family dinner. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lapping, Mrs. Waltham Gullett and C. E. and Robert Anglin.

Senior Play Last Friday Excellent

Well they did go crazy after the Senior Play given in the High School gymnasium last Friday night before an enthusiastic audience. The play, "Who Wouldn't Be Crazy," lived up to its name and then some, and if one could judge by the roars and gales of laughter that shook the building there was scarcely a note of hearing distance who "wouldn't be crazy."

The play centered around the love affair of Jack Marshall for Lola Meredith. He had followed her over Europe and back home and when he found her doing charity work in a sanitarium for feeble minded kids he immediately decided to become an inmate. The developments led to the final winning of the girl. So much for the plot which was not so important except as a vehicle on which to hang an uproariously funny play.

The entire cast of characters were unusually good in their parts, and it may be a bit unfair to them to mention a few whom, in our opinion stood out above the average. Any thing of this sort is purely a matter of opinion and anyone is at liberty to disagree. The three outstanding impersonations, were those of Ralph Cassidy as Pluribus, Ruth Holbrook as Pensive, short for Appendicitis, and Arthur Barber in the role of the hardboiled cop.

Ralph Cassidy was as nearly perfect as the amateur gets, and played the colored porter and handy man as well as the colored lover of Pensive in a manner that kept the house in laughter continuously. Ruth Holbrook was equally good at drawing laughs. Arthur Barber as the hardboiled cop, strutted in a manner that Pink Alfy in his palmist days could never equal. He was McCafferty in person, which after all is the art of acting.

Others who deserve special mention are Charles Adams, Eloise Young, and Fred Caudill.

The play was both a financial and entertaining success.

The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

A Dramatic Story Of The Old Frontier West By WILLIAM McLOED RAINES

Even Bob Quantrell, in spite of his jaunty inebriation he assumed, was daunted by the storm he had aroused. It was not so much his enemies that he feared as those whom he had to trust. From half a dozen trees at lonely cross roads he tore down placards which described him and announced that he was a wanted man. When he rode to a cabin near the head of a creek, one far from any neighbor, he could never be sure that a bullet would not greet him before he swung from the saddle. He walked suspiciously the nesters who supplied him with food, and they in turn eyed him and his followers nervously. They sensed his mistrust of them and could not be sure that in a moment of acute doubt he would not resort to the six shooter. Their apprehensions were increased because they knew, two or three of them at least that they would have betrayed them had they dared.

Deever drifted down to Concho and oined the group of bad men who still hung around. He relied on the fact that there was little definite evidence that he had been one of Quantrell's men. That he had been with them now an dagger he did not deny, but never while the gang had been engaged in rustling or any other lawlessness. O'Hara had adopted much more than Smith-Bepesford the habit of life of those about him. He wore coruroy trousers thrust into the tops of cowboy boots, a pinched-in Stetson hat, and a gray flannel shirt. A .45 calibre Colt six shooter sagged from a belt fastened above his hips. His face had become as brown as coffee. His muscles were hard and plant as those of the tough buckskin peg pony he rode. But the change in him was more than physical. It extended to his mental reactions. Two months earlier, for instance, he would never have taken with Deever the high-hande course he took now.

At no time could Quantrell escape from a haunting dread of treachery. It was present with him when he and his men were camped far up in the hills close to the jagged peaks. He could not look into the eyes of any of his fellow outlaws without seeing the last see of the three thousand dollars which he had given to get jumpy. This was a new and disturbing condition. One night he spread his blankets a little way from those of his companions, on the edge of the camp. After they had gone to sleep he rose very quietly, packed his horse and carried it into the brush. He found his hobbled horse, saddled it, and tied the blankets back of the saddle. Five minutes later he was winding his way between two of the thousand precipitous hills that surrounded him.

It was evening when he drifted in to the Gold Nugget. The place was full of activity. A poker game was in progress near the back door, by which way the sheriff had entered. Some young cowboys were trying their luck with a pair of professional gamblers. One of the Mexican night-men were lined up at the bar drinking. O'Hara nodded to one or two of those he knew. He was on friendly terms with a good many citizens. Most of the honest men liked this quiet amiable young man who had proved unsmakably that he had nerve.

When Deever woke in the morning he found a pencil scribbled note, weighted down by a stone beside his saddle. It read: "Adios, boy. See you later. I'm comin' for Mexo. This country is bad medicine for me. It's hotter than hell on a hot day right now." BOB Quantrell "The outlaws dispersed. It was just as well," Deever said. "He's afraid of a scared wild shot for, for the record, I could see by the way he's been actin' lately. I'm plumb glad he's out." "Me, too," agreed another known as Sandy. "Sove enough, Bob's been o' hook lately—kinds mean actin' an' you know how good natured he usually is. I don't aim to get into any jakepot with him if I can help. Well, I rickon the rest of us better scatter too. Trinidad for me. I got a friend up that way with a cow ranch." "I aim to be an absentee for a spell myself," the rickon said. "If I ain't too late I'll take a job with a trail outfit in the Panhandle. A friend of mine's brother is foreman. Anyways I'll shake a hoof for Tascosa an' glad to get away at that. I be nright uneasy ever since Bob bumped off Ingram."

"So it happened that within six weeks of the appointment of O'Hara the Quantrell gang was dissolved and several new ones were formed. Some of these were nesters in the hills. Others had their headquarters in Concho and against these O'Hara waged continuous warfare if he could prove that they had lifted a hand to overt lawlessness since the end of the war.

showdown and shot O'Hara very close. He would never leave town alive. He would be glad to die around the room, looking for the man who might be expected to stand with him. What he saw gave him small comfort. A score of men were watching him but what they were thinking behind those steady eyes he could not tell. "You're the big man" round here now, as Deever heard the outlaw. "Because Wes Steelman got you appointed to a two-by-four job. Say, fellow don't get too heavy with me. It ain't supposed to be safe." "Safe for you?" asked O'Hara, his brown eyes never lifting from the outlaw's face. "Listen, Deever. Here is the layout. Don't try to crowd your luck here. You're bucked out in this county. Get out, or I'll throw you into jail." He turned on his heel and sauntered to the bar. Steve Worrall was there taking a drink. He asked O'Hara to join him, then added as a postscript to his invitation a remark intended to reach Deever. "Some of these scallawags will learn after a while to hit the pike when you say the word," he said, clapping his fingers on the back. "By the great jumbler horn! Toad, you're sure one bella firma! Betcha my hair face mare against a dollar Mex that Concho will lose one of its sure-nut bully puss warriors right soon, say within twenty-four hours."

Ohio Wesleyan Nips Morehead

Inability to hit in the pinches and some rather loose fielding behind Edger "Curly" McNabb brought Morehead's Eagles their second defeat of the season Saturday afternoon, Ohio Wesleyan gaining a 4-3 decision. McNabb pitched a good game in being so good tonight as to keep the bases empty. Support was touched for seven hits and struck out nine. Verzie led the route for Wesleyan, coming back strong after getting in trouble the first two innings. Lawrence Fraley was the hero of the contest, the Morehead leadoff man turning in a home run and two singles in five trips to the plate and driving in all of Morehead's runs. His home run was a long clout to deep center, the ball rolling to the fence in centerfield. It came in the first inning on the second ball thrown by Verzie and was the only extra base hit of the game. Carroll and Magzari got two blows each in four trips for Morehead, while Dickerson was the only Wesleyan player to collect more than one hit.

FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE

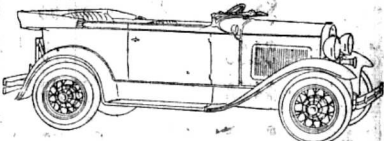

Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

LICE AND MITES

ON POULTRY

...This is the time to fight lice and mites that cause heavy poultry loss every year. Lice may be controlled by dipping all mature hens and roosters. Dip in a solution made of one pound of sodium fluoride and 40 gallons of water. Be sure to get all feathers wet even on the head and under the wings. Dipping should be done early in the morning of a day that promises to be a warm sunny one. This remedy is a very effective one that is not expensive. It should be used as often as lice are found but is not safe to use in winter months.

Mites, the tiny parasites scarcely large enough to be seen, give much trouble at the time of year. The best known remedy for them is "spray or pour" the outside interior of the poultry house with a mixture made of equal part of kerosene oil and crankcase oil. The house should be given a thorough cleaning first, however.

SEED SOWING

The depth of seed sowing depends on the size of the seed. Parsnip, carrot, salsify and turnip seed should be covered no deeper than one quarter inch, but beet seed may be sown one half inch or deeper. Parsnips and carrots come up slowly, but the row may be marked by sowing a small proportion of radish seed with them. The radishes aid the others in breaking through, and if a "button" type is chosen, they will not in any wise compete with them.

CULTIVATION

The root crops, as a rule, will not bear cultivation close to the row. Deep stirring should never be given within at least an inch of the row. Such weeds that do start in the row can be removed if taken in time, by a narrow bladed knife. Thinning may be done at the same time. The stand of parsnips, salsify and beets should be two inches; that of carrots and turnips one and one half inch.

PESTS

Turnips sometimes suffer from onsets by plant lice; the control is tobacco extract spray. The flea beetle occasionally attacks the seedlings; applying Bordeaux mixture is the control. If arsenate of lead is added to the Bordeaux at the rate of 1 tablespoonful to the gallon, the combination spray will check the caterpillar worms that sometimes invade turnip plantings.

Beets, parsnips, carrots and salsify are usually free from insect pests but salsify sometimes suffers from a black blight. Although cloose cultivation may be a contributory cause, the trouble may be due to disease, particularly in moist, muggy seasons. It is well to anticipate its coming by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Two sprayings, the first when the seedlings are about 5 inches tall and another two weeks later, will usually take care of the trouble.

VARIETIES

The best Kentucky varieties are Parsnips, Quernsey; salsify, Seed with Island; beets, Crosby's Red Tians; carrots, Chantenay; and turnips, Purple or Strappedale, and the new Louise resistant (white head) is a fouse resistant.

TEST 1200 SAMPLES OF TOBACCO SEED

A record year is being tobacco seed is reported by the seed laboratory at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky at Lexington. More than 1,200 samples of seed have been tested since last October, most of them since the first of the year. Despite the dry season seed produced last year made high germination tests, some of it 100 percent and much of it better than 90 percent.

LISTS FARMERS WITH SEED CORN FOR SALE

The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, has assembled a list of the names and addresses of farmers with seed corn for sale, for the benefit of farmers in need of corn to plant this year's crop. The list contains the names of farmers in 25 counties with a total of 30,000 bushels of corn suitable for seed. Farmers in need of corn should call at the office of their county agent who has this list, and from there the location of the nearest available corn.

Chevrolet

has struck a popular new note in motor-car styling

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably widespread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile. Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlamps and arched tie-bar—all gleaming in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-swinging body lines, sweeping fenders and massive wire wheels strikingly suggest the car's fitness and power. And the appeal of Chevrolet's beauty is made more pronounced by the fact that all models are available in a variety of colors.

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

This emblem—Bdy by Fisher—is a symbol of superior body craftsmanship associated with Chevrolet in the low-price field.

Morehead Plays M-H; Marietta

Coach Downing will send his Morehead Eagles against the only team that has defeated them this year when the locals clash with Morris-Harvey College of Barboursville, W. Va. next Saturday in Morehead's only game away from home.

Morris-Harvey defeated the locals Teachers 11-7 in the first meeting of the two teams. The West Virginians got to Big Edgar McNabb for eleven runs in one inning and handed him his first setback since 1928 when Uppan College defeated Morehead 1-0. McNabb held Morris-Harvey to five scattered hits in the meeting of the two teams last year as Morehead defeated them 8-1.

Charlie Williams the boy who held the West Virginians to four runs in seven innings and kept them scoreless may get the hurling assignment Saturday. Carroll may pitch. Downing will stake his all on a win over the West Virginia outfit. With the exception of the one big inning they had here, the locals probably showed more class.

Following the Morris-Harvey game the locals will play a two game series with Marietta College of Marietta, Ohio on May 22 and 23.

Marietta has always boasted a strong team and will come here with a hefty bunch of sluggers. Marietta according to this season's schedule would have opened the season here in April but the condition of the grounds caused a postponement of the games.

STUDENT

Of Morehead College Winner Of Atwater-Kent Award In This District

Miss Marcella Hayes, a student of the Morehead State Teachers College, carried off first honor in the thirteenth district trials of the Atwater-Kent Audition Contest held in Ashland on the evening of May 2. Competition in the contest this year in the thirteenth district was unusually strong. There were fifteen contestants in the audition meet. Miss Hayes, who is well known on the campus, is a lyric soprano. She studied in the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and has taken an active part in musical organizations on the campus.

In October of this year, Miss Hayes will compete in the state meet at Louisville with other district winners. The winner of the state meet will compete in Washington, D. C. with other state winners. From this group the national winners will be named.

Miss Maggillie Holbrook and Ida Patton visited in Olive Hill Saturday and Sunday.

Chorus Receives Congratulations

widely separated points. The following morning, Thursday, May 7, the chorus sang before the assembled delegates to the Kentucky Federation of Music Clubs and was given a very enthusiastic ovation.

Several telegrams and letters were received giving favorable comment on the radio program. Mrs. Arthur W. Walker, a former student of Morehead now living in Bloomington, Ind., the seat of Indiana University, says, "I am writing to tell you how much I enjoyed your fine program which I just heard broadcast from Louisville. It was indeed wonderful and made me wish I could be back at Morehead again." Mrs. Walker, who was formerly Margaret K. Oldham, formerly lived in Montgomery county near Mt. Sterling.

Miss Josephine Mitchell, president of the Kentucky Music Teachers Association, and chairman of the Choral Committee of the Kentucky Federation of Music Clubs writes: "I want to tell you again that your chorus gave to the Federation one of the finest demonstrations of beautiful ensemble work that I have ever heard. You established a very high regard for that type of work, and I can't too strongly express my appreciation."

"Miss Mason said very, very complimentary things... not only about your singing, but about the fine appearance of your boys and girls."

"At our dinner last night your chorus was praised again, and appreciation of Dean Hagan's remarks was expressed by some of those present."

Miss Mason to whom Miss Mitchell refers, is a representative from the National Society for the Advancement of Music. Miss Mason was present at the Thursday morning concert and at a luncheon given Thursday noon in honor of the chorus.

appreciation of the valuable services of Senator Allie W. Young, of Morehead, who has represented our Senatorial district for the past eight years; we sincerely believe he has done more for the people of this district than any other man in it could or would have done. He has always championed the cause of the great common people and we believe that it was through his untiring effort that the Garrett Highway and the Fields Highway were completed. We believe that it was through his effort that the Morehead State Teachers College was born and this institution will grow to be the greatest living monument of any of his past achievements for our senatorial district. This institution being located in this district and almost in our door will give untold educational advantages to our coming generation, who would otherwise have grown up in ignorance and illiteracy, and we wish to express our thanks and gratitude. A survey is now being made from Owingsville by way of Olyn pla for a graded road and we believe that he will be able to bring this to completion.

Therefore be it resolved that the Democrats of Menifee County in convention assembled endorse the action of our Senator, the Honorable Allie W. Young, while representing the people of this district and call upon him to again represent us in the State Senate; we pledge to him our hearty support and call upon the voters of this senatorial district, regardless of party affiliations, to do likewise.
