Bud Hawkins Players Are Coming

Annually the Rowan County News makes this announcement, and just as regularly the citizens of the entire section know when they see it, that "Spring has come," the announcement to most is just as welcome as spring. It is simply this: "Bud's coming."

And it is hardly necessary to add that we mean Bud Hawkins and Mrs. Bud Hawkins and the Bud Hawkins players. Bud and his players are one traveling institution that is not only welcomed in Morehead, but one that is looked forward to by old and young.

The Hawkins Players this year plan on making only a three day stop instead of the usual week's bill. They will open here this year on Monday of next week and show Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

For the past three years the Bud Hawkins Players have played under the auspices of the American Legion. This year the Legion offered to let the Morehead Athletic Association take over the show for the three days and reap the benefit of having the visitors play under their auspices. So those who attend the show will know that they are getting double value for their investment. They are being entertained by one of the best amateur companies on the road, but will be helping the local athletic association to make a sum to help finance the high school athletic program.

Bud always has a clean show and that draws the crowd. Both he and Mrs. Hawkins are delightful people to know and to have around. Don't forget, he will be here on Monday for three days only.

Morocco At Cozy Saturday

Gary Cooper who appeared here a few weeks ago in "The Spoilers" is again to be here next Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6 in what is said to be his greatest role, in the play of the French Foreign Legion, "Morocco." In addition to Cooper a new star, a hotelmaid will appear, when the German actress, Marlene Dietrich comes in the feminine lead playing opposite Cooper. Just to make the list of stars complete our old friend, Adolph Menjou is also included in the cast.

Those who remember Beau Gust of a few years ago, will recall the dramatic type capable in such a play of the foreign Legion, Morocco is a similar type of play with even greater possibilities which are fully met to make the one outstanding production of the year.

Morocco is said to be one of the best Cozy's yet made.

Morocco will be at the Cozy on Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6.

Miss Dusha Caudill who is taking nursing training at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington, returned to her work Sunday after a visit here.

Eagles Take Games From Marietta

Morehead Teachers College's baseball team closed its season last Saturday with their second straight shutout victory over Marietta, Ohio College of Marietta, Ohio. The score was 3-0.

The teachers played errorless ball behind the fine pitching of Edgar McNabb to turn in their most striking performance of the season. McNabb held the Big-Keyes to five hits. Friday Charlie Williams pitched the Eagles to a 6-0 shutout over Marietta.

Triples by Heaberlin and Queen featured the hitting department of the game, while Queen turned in the hitting sensation with a jewel of a catch of Dandee's long fly. The Eagles gained their only earned run in the third inning when Fraley singled and scored on a terrific triple to left by Heaberlin. Heaberlin attempted to stretch the blow into a home run and was cut down at the plate by some fast fielding.

In the sixth Maggard led off with a single, but was forced at second by C. Williams. Fanning grounded to him who threw wild to second in an attempt to cut Williams off and the runners advanced two bases. K. Williams died out, but McNabb hit to the shortstop who muffed the ball and allowed both runners to score. Charlie Williams pitched brilliantly for Morehead in the first game of the season's closing series, to de-

East Lynne Show At Trimble

If the Trimble Theatre of Mt. Sterling establishes a new record for attendance Sunday and Monday of next week, it will be because Frank Lloyd's Fox Movietone production of "East Lynne" not only represents the fulfillment of the management's promise, but because the lovely Ann Harding, assisted by Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Beryl Mercer, Cecilia Loftus and other notable players, gives the finest portrayal of her career.

There is undoubtedly a fact that Ann Harding in "East Lynne" attains the highest mark reached by any emotional actress, by her characterization of Isabel. Certainly "East Lynne" of the Movietone era is one of the most gripping entertainments the cinema has presented primarily because it furnishes entertainment that, while making it almost an appeal to feminine theatregoers, cannot help hold, undivided, the attention of every type of movie fan.

Pat East Lynne down as the season's most powerful drama, one that will grip everybody—a picture that is the new screen at its very best.

Last Friday evening proved to be the hot spot in a week of feverish activities for the Seniors of the Morehead High School, when the Commencement exercises were held in the Public School Gymnasium.

Leppin, Director of the Training School at the Teachers College and former principal of the local high school. Mr. Leppin talked on Citizenship of Tomorrow, giving his conception of what makes and promotes Ideal Citizens. He discussed the efforts of nations in reaching out for the privileges of citizenship and the struggles peoples have made in the past to obtain them.

The musical part of the program was furnished by the Morehead High School Band, while the vocal numbers were given by the Glee Club. As a climax to the evening's program Roy E. The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

A Dramatic Story of The Old Frontier West
By WILLIAM McLOED RAINES

"Are you aimin' to capture the Quantrell gang? Or to run em down an' wipe 'em out?"

"To capture them if possible. We want men with us who will do to take along. What do you think of Buckskin Jack?"

"Don't know him very well but he's got a good rep. Fought Apaches and I've heard army officers speak well of him."

"I've thought of Amen Owen too. Good man. He used to be right friendly with Bob, though."

"So did you and for that matter I've known three in with us he'll go through."

They discussed others as possibilities for any posse that might be recruited, though both of them realized that the personnel, any posse would be a measure to be determined by the man available at the time.

Quantrell did not keep them waiting. A buckboard driver brought word three days later that a bunch of horses had been stolen from the Mal Pais in the western part of the county. Hastily O'Hara gathered a posse and rode to Ferrall's place. With him he had Wheeler, Owen and two brothers named Brown.

It was a long ride and the weather was bitter. The snow was five or six inches deep and the wind swept it from the ground in whirling gusts that drove it into their faces when they stung of sleet. All day they rode and it was after dark when they reached the ranch which was their destination. Miles hatted the beads of the two Browns, and depended from the manes of the horses. A dozen times the riders had been forced to amount in order to get circulation into their legs by walking along side the animals.

"Well, be nice easy marks if Bob Ferrall's crowd happen to have come back to spend the night," crumbled Owen as they drew up outside the house.

The sheriff slipped from the saddle and landed on the door.

The rancher called "Who's there?" then after a moment opened without waiting for an answer.

He invited the half frozen men into the house and they thawed out in front of the fireplace while Ferrall and his son stabled the horses and fed them.

Mrs. Ferrall was a bouncing, round faced young woman with snapping black eyes. She was twenty years younger than her husband and was the step mother of the lad. As once she set about making supper for the self-invited guests. While she worked she flashed smiles at them as they talked.

The sheriff asked questions until to direct her conversation. It appeared that Phil, her stepson, had ridden up out of an arroyo in time to see the rustlers at their work. They had caught sight of him and one of the men had fired at him before he could realize that this was a raid. Phil was almost sure that the man who had fired at him was Deever. He had not been near enough to recognize any of the others.

"Which way did they go after leaving the ranch?" Owen asked.

"Toward the Mal Pais," she said.

"Hank followed them for several miles. He couldn't miss their trail in the snow. They have a hangout there in a cave. The story is that they have a bunch of kettles rounded up in a valley two times about now. There's the men of the posse sleep on the floor in their own blankets, which they first dried out before the fire. In a few minutes they were all dead to the world. It had been an hour when the door opened and the men were tired. None of them were exhausted and the start of the raiding party renewed the fire that had been banked the night before.

"Well out an' roll up boys," he shouted as he fitted action to word by doing so himself.

They stamped out to the washpan made themselves clean, and combed their hair. By the time they had fed the horses, breakfast was almost ready.

It had been agreed that Hank Ferrall was to ride with them. He did not want to go, but he could not resist their will. The stolen horses were his and he knew the Mal Pais country better than any of the others.

"They're a tough layout, an' I don't want to go with 'em," he said while he was saddling.

"Why, of course, if you're raising stock for Bob Quantrell's benefit, Hank," said Owen with obvious sarcasm.

"Not a chance in the world of getting my stock back. Amen. Like hunting in a needle in a haystack. If Bob wants us to find him we will, if he won't see him now he'll be because he's got the deadwood on us."

Ferrall's prediction was a true one. Forty-eight hours later the posse, a crowd of weary men on saddled horses, dismounted at his ranch and bowed-legged stiffly to the house from the corral. For a day and a night it had been snowing steadily.

"No luck?" asked Mrs. Ferrall of the sheriff.

"No luck," replied O'Hara. "Bob wasn't at home when we reached the cave but he left a note for us. That's thoughtful of him."

He handed a torn fragment of a newspaper to her. On it was scrawled "Make yourself comfortable, sheriff. Flour under the ledge. Quarter of beef hanging from the cotton-wood by the spring. Cans on the shelf. Sorry can't stay and say howdy, but I've got a hen on at the Circle S O ranch. Meet up with you and cheer over old times later, Adios."

The pencil note was signed "Bob Quantrell."

Mrs. Ferrall showed strong white teeth in gay laughter. "He's sure a case, that boy. Never saw his beat of him for impudence."

"He's certainly got the laugh on us this time, the sheriff admitted. "Bob must have had a scout out for he hadn't been gone a half hour when we reached the cave. The fire hadn't died down at all."

"What will you do now?"

"Get back to the Circle S O ranch as fast as a horse will carry me. I'll probably be too late."

"You may be lucky if you get there too late," she warned.

He agreed that there was something to that.

It was late when O'Hara dropped wearily from the saddle at the Diamond Tail and was hailed from the house. He wanted to see Jack Phillips, who had since Ingram's death been foreman of the young widow's ranch.

Barbara answered his call. "Who is it?" she asked.

"Garrett is Jack here?"

"No, he isn't. He went over to see Dad and said he wouldn't be back. He hesitated. No use worrying till late. What is it, Garrett?"

"I had a talk with Barbara. I'm on my way to the Circle S O and stopped to have a word with him. "Wait just a minute and I'll be here," she said and drew back from the window.

Presently a lamp was lit. After a minute he saw the light pass from her room to the hall. She opened the front door, "Come in," she said holding the lamp high to light the way.

"Come in, Garrett," she insisted. "I want to see you."

He followed her into the house. She led the way into the sitting room and put the lamp on the table. One swift glance showed her that he was travel worn.

"I'm not very presentable," he apologized. "I didn't mean to waken you."

"I wasn't asleep. Hadn't gone to bed yet. What is it, Garrett? Something important?"

O'Hara did not want to speak of Quantrell to her. The man had murdered her husband. Even the mention of his name might stab her.

"I just wanted to tell him to keep his eye out for rustlers. I've reason to think some are heading this way."

"You mean the Quantrell gang?" she asked quickly.

"Yes. Probably they'll nos show up on your range. More likely the Circle S O country."

"How do you know? Tell me all about it. Against her gasp swept up from his mucky boots by his unglazed face and sunken eyes. She interrupted herself to fling at him a question. "How far have you ridden to-day?"

"From Mal Pais?"

"When did you eat last?"

"This morning. I was in a hurry to get through. Don't bother about me. I'm all right."

"You'll eat here," she told him firmly. "Lie down on that sofa while I make supper for you."

"No. You're not strong enough."

"I'm perfectly strong. David is 3 months old today. How-long do you want me to be an invalid?" She tossed

Morris Harvey Wins Last Game
 For the second time this season, Morris-Harvey College baseball nine knocked Edgar McNabb out of the box and defeated Morehead Teachers College 6-5 there, May 16.
 Four successive hits in the first inning drove McNabb to the showers. C. Williams took his place and buried good ball the balance of the game, but received wobbly support. Fraley's circus catch in the eighth featured. He stabbed Hoff's line drive with one hand when two were on and two were out, saving what looked like a sure triple or home run.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"
 Now! Please!— Actually put your finger on your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple— Do you know you are actually touching your larynx?— This is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE, and so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."
