To Let Contract On County Road

In this issue appears the best news that has been published for some time especially to the people who live along the route, the news of the letting of the contract for grade and drain on the Flemingsburg-Morehead Highway.

The contract is to be let in July according to the notice, and work is to be started immediately. The Flemingsburg-Morehead Highway is one of the most important in this section of the state, as it will when completed, furnish an outlet direct to the Ohio River, Maysville and Cincinnati, cutting off several miles over the present route. We are unable to state what route is being used for the road, although considering its length, it is probably the route up Brushy. Then News has been interested in routes, but the actual route is a matter for the Highway Commission to decide. Regardless of route, the new road will be a great thing for this county and for other counties back of it as well.

Expect Large Enrollment This Summer

The first summer school session of 1931 will open at the Morehead Teachers College June 8 and will extend to July 17. The largest summer enrollment that has ever been witnessed here is expected this year. The second summer term will open on July 20th and end August 28. Both summer terms are six weeks in length.

The first summer session promises to register the top enrollment of this semester. At the first summer term last year the enrollment was 815, and the largest number ever in school here except this semester.

Among the special summer school faculty members that will be added to the regular teaching staff is Superintendent D. W. Bridges of Ft. Thomas, Kentucky. Superintendent Bridges is one of the foremost superintendents in Kentucky. He has rendered distinguished services at Lancaster, Richmond, Mayfield and his present position. He has done post graduate work at Peabody, Tennessee, Cincinnati and Chicago.

He holds the distinction of being president of the Sixth District Education Association. He will be placed in the education department.

Superintendent H. A. Babb of Mt. Sterling, will again be an instructor here during the summer term. He has taught classes here three times during the summer terms. For the past eleven years Mr. Babb has been superintendent of the city schools of Mt. Sterling.

Superintendent J. W. Ireland of the Frankfort City Schools will teach English during the summer session. Mr. Ireland has his A. B. and A. M. degrees from Centre and an A. M. from Columbia with Educational Administration as his major.

A. V. Bradshaw, principal of the high school at Russell, Kentucky will be in the department of Biological Science during the summer term. A schedule complete in every detail which should prove satisfactory to all student teachers who will be here has been arranged.

Eighty Six Members Graduate Here

Eighty six students will be graduated from either the Normal School, the College or the Standard Certificate Class next Wednesday. In every one of the classes this is the largest number to graduate in the history of the school for the spring semester.

LARRY FRALEY IS PAPA TO FUTURE STAR

Another star athlete of twenty years hence was born Monday morning in Frenchburg. The infant, who according to his daddy is already making home runs, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fraley. Mrs. Fraley is at the home of her parents at Frenchburg.

William Tussey is visiting at the home of his parents, Judge and Mrs. Richmond Tussey.

El Brendel At Trimble Sunday

El Brendel, the funny Swedish comedian, makes his bow as a bold bad gangster in "Mr. Lemon" of Orange at the Trimble Theatre in Mt. Sterling Sunday and Monday of next week.

Co-starred with Brendel is the vivacious French comedienne, Fifi Dorsay, who has the role of a singer in a night club that serves as headquarters for a dangerous gang of hicksters. Brendel plays two roles in this production, the first that of an innocent store salesman, and the second as "Silent McOee," notorious gang chieftain for whom he is mistaken.

A string supporting cast includes William Collier, Sr., Ruth Warren, Donald Dillaway and Joan Castle. John G. Blystone, who has produced more than 100 outstanding pictures for the screen, directed.

Brendel stumbles into the danger zone immediately after a truckload of liquor has been hijacked and Fifi Dorsay's brother killed. Brendel remarkably resembles to McGee causes Fifi to seek revenge for the murder of her brother on the innocent boy store employee. And with that as an idea, you should see the play and finish the story.

ANNUAL ROWAN COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN METHODIST CHURCH JUNE 12-13

Guy Snyder, President Of Local Sunday School Association Is Active In Arranging Program—Songs and Talks To Feature Two Day Meeting At Methodist Church Here—Basket Dinner Saturday At Noon

Jack Oakie Busts Gangs

The country pumpkin invades the tinapple land and bombards the racketeers with razzerberries! Jack Oakie's back, and funny, funnier than ever! He smacks the underworld with wise-cracks in "The Gang Buster," which plays at the Cozy Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, June 10 and 11. It is destined to keep the audience roaring their approval.

If you've been reading the papers you've some idea of the kind of company Oakie keeps in his new starring picture, but you've no idea of the fun he gets out of it until you see "The Gang Buster." It's bursting with laughs.

Oakie undertakes the highly precarious job of selling accident insurance in a city infested with easy-money desperadoes. Everybody wants Oakie's policies except the insurance company for which he is working. Then he delves into the dives of the underworld and digs up a lot of happiness, including a swell romance. Jean Arthur is the girl, and William Boyd, the same who appeared in "The Spoilers" with Gary Cooper furnishes a large share of the thrills. Yes, there are thrills, too and suspense, but everything begins and ends in a great big guffaw.

Col. Mohr Pays Annual Visit

Capt. in Charles Mohr, field representative of the Salvation Army of America was in Morehead today on his annual visit in the interest of that organization. Mr. Mohr is one of the interesting men who pay this city an annual visit, both from the fact of his personality and because of the highly important work he is assisting in carrying on through the Salvation Army.

Mr. Mohr during the past winter has been working in the drought stricken areas of Arkansas and Mississippi and has many interesting tales to tell of the work in that section. While there he was stricken and for seven weeks was confined to the hospital. He but just recovered from the effects of his work.

Mr. Mohr remained in town but a few hours this time but expects to return later.

President Payne To Address Ass'n

The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

A Dramatic Story Of The Old Frontier West
 By WILLIAM McLOED RAINES

She tossed some newspapers from the lounge and ordered him to lie down.
 Reluctantly, still protesting, he did as he was told. Barbara threw a Navajo rug over him and left the room taking the lamp with her. Through the door he could see her moving about the kitchen with the light grace that characterized her. His lids drooped. He fought against fatigue. "She was a woman to dream about, deep-bosomed and supple limbed, incomparably alive... trusty as steel... Was it any wonder that every fibre of his being had for a year longed for her as he had yearned for Heloise? God must have meant love to fulfill her life." "If so..."

From her throat there leaped involuntarily the thought that was in her mind: "Oh, I wish you weren't sheriff, Garrett."

A wave of emotion flooded him. He dared not let himself hope that her spontaneous cry meant more than friendship. He passed quickly over it lest she explain it away. "I'd rather Quantrell felt that way than you."

"There's something—inhuman about him."

He could see that fear had risen to her throat and choked her. Therefore he spoke evenly, almost negligently. "Not at all. He's just a boy gone bad, as they say. And don't forget that he's at the wrong end of this hunt, not I. He's the one that has to double and twist to escape, the one who has to suspect every man he meets of wanting to betray him. We, on the side of the law, have a tremendous advantage, a moral force that makes a lot of difference."

"What difference would it make of he ever—ever—?"

"Don't worry about me, Barbara. He's not trying to get me but to get away from me." He had moved a few inches toward her. "I understand how you must feel about him—how you fear for your friends. But it really isn't necessary. I'm taking no unnecessary risks. He may dodge me for a while but we'll get him in the end, and I'll not be hurt doing it."

"I'll ever get a chance you ought to, to put an end to him as you would a wolf," she cried with a little flare of anger.

The brown eyes looking into hers were grim. "Listen, Barbara," he said. "I haven't undertaken to fight a duel with Quantrell. He's a killer, an outlaw wanted because of the crimes he has committed. If I can I'll get him at advantage, and if necessary I'll do just what you've said. Our lives aren't of the same value to society. I've been chosen to put an end to his lawless career. That's what I mean to do, one way or another, if I can. I don't intend to be a chivalrous fool about this, if that's what you are afraid of."

"She gathered what reassurance she could from this. "But you will be careful won't you?" she pleaded. "You'll not take any chances you don't have to?"

"Not a chance," he promised. "As the boys said, I'll not throw off on myself."

 Garrett O'Hara had talked to Barbara with quiet assurance of the prospects. There was, he felt, no need to alarm her unduly. But the argument he had used did not wholly convince himself. It is true, in one sense, that the advantage in such a campaign as this lay with the officers of the law. In another sense the odds entirely favored the hunted rather than the hunters, because the former could at one time or another choose the setting for battle, during the two days that O'Hara's posse had combed the Mal Pais for the outlaws there had not been an hour when the searchers had not been in terrain where it was possible for Quantrell to ambush them. That he had not done so was either because the young desperado had other fish to fry or because of the criminal instinct to keep on the dodge as long as he could and avoid an open conflict with the forces of law.

It was all very well to talk about being cautious, but it was an intrinsic part of the game he played that he had to take chances when he did not know he was taking them.

As O'Hara on a fresh horse, plowed through the drifts on the divide between the Diamond Tail and the Circle S O, he knew that there never had been a time when he wanted less to fall a victim to Quantrell's marks than now. For he had seen her lifted within him. He had seen her concern for him and he had not dared to trade upon it lest she qualify her words till they meant nothing. Instead of putting her on the defensive he had edged away from the subject in order that she would not take away the hope that had leaped up in him. It was sheer cowardice. He knew that, while he excused him self on the plea that of all things he must not be precipitate.

Riding through the night he rebuilt the scene, her words and manner, the intonations of her voice. Had she meant more than friendliness? He would not let himself think so, and yet there blazed in him a new and glorious hope.

When O'Hara reached the Circle S O he found that Bob Quantrell had made his threat good. In the darkness he and one other companion had slipped up to the stable and taken two blooded horses that belonged to Smith-Beresford. In place of them they left two leg-weary geldings branded with the sprawling H F used by Hank Ferrill.

Quantrell left also one of his characteristic notes. He had nailed it to the top of the feed bin.

"Only a short visit this time, Mr. Tenderfoot Sheriff. Business in Concho, so I can't stay. Must oblige for the horses. They say an even swap is no robbery. Tail Wee not to feel latched. I'll drop in on him soon, see you later."

"BOB QUANTRELL."
 As sure as he was, O'Hara stayed at the rail but only long enough to have another mount run up and saddled for him. He did not doubt that Quantrell would keep his word and go to Concho. What devilry he had a mind to do there, if any, the sheriff could not guess. In any case it was his duty to follow the young outlaw to town.

He was distracted at the loss of the horses. His partner had imported them from Kentucky with a view to raising fine stock or at least improving the native breed. Loyalph would not be pleased when he returned from England with his bride, to learn that Quantrell has appropriated them, though he would take the loss with characteristic good sportsmanship.

The ride to Concho was a long, cold one, and O'Hara was drooping with fatigue. His hands clung to the horn of the saddle. His head nodded and more than once the jolting of the horse's motion awakened him with a start. It was nearly four o'clock when he slipped into town by way of the pasture back of Concho house. Here he dismounted and hobbled the horse, hesting the saddle in a clump of scruboak bushes. The pasture was a large one and the oddness that the animals would not be noticed. As he glanced, the brand was a P D Bar Smith-Beresford had bought it from a Buck creek nester and the Circle S O riders had not yet re-branded it. Even if anyone observed the horse he felt certain he would not associate it with the sheriff. This was important because O'Hara did not want advertised the fact that he was a town. That was why he had not gone direct to the Longhorn Corral.

THE SMALL TOWN HAS THE ADVANTAGE
 The United Press recently told of a merchant in a small Montana town who had rejected a bill of goods from a wholesale firm. The wholesaler, preparing to sue for collection, wrote to the railroad agent for information relative to the shipment of merchandise; to the president of the bank for information concerning the financial standing of the merchant; to the mayor asking him to recommend an attorney to handle the case, and to the merchant threatening suit.
 By return mail he received the merchant's reply:
 "I am the railroad agent here and received your letter about the shipment."
 "I am the president and sole owner of the bank and can assure you as to my financial standing."
 "As mayor of the town, I hesitate to refer you to a lawyer since I am the only member of the bar in this vicinity."
 "And if I were not the pastor of the only church here, I would tell you to go to hell."

JAPANESE FACULTY SEEKS POLICE POWERS
 The faculty of Waseda University in Tokio asked to have police powers vested in themselves, so they could more easily suppress subversive movements.
 Waseda is a large private university, where there has been tension of late between the faculty and the students, the latter having been dissatisfied with the way the tickets were issued to the annual baseball game with Keio University.
 The authorities at Waseda claim that the difficulties in the institution have been caused by agitators outside the university and that the only way to check the inroads of radicalism, and prevent future strikes and other disorders, is to confer police powers on the faculty.
 At Keio University, Waseda's great rival, this idea does not meet with favor, as it is felt that such an arrangement would defeat the real object of education.—Exchange

MORAY FORE

Of the nearly 99,000 girls they have trained for the stage in their Hollywood studios, Fanchon and Marco believe 19-year-old Moray Fore, blonde acrobatic dancer, is the most nearly perfect all around specimen of piquetude that has come to their attention. They offer her as their contender for the honor of being known as the most beautiful and physically perfect girl on the stage today.

As in the case of the 1921 beauties named recently by Flo Ziegfeld and other eastern impresarios, the western beauty typifies the death of the boyish figure craze and the return to normal feminine curves. Miss Fore is a home girl and goes in strong for tennis, swimming and other outdoor sports. Within reason she eats what she likes, has no faith in what she describes as "stilly disting fads," and includes in her diet plenty of sweets and other energy builders to support her stage and outdoor life.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Now! Please!—Actually put your finger on your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—Do you know you are actually touching your larynx?—This is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE, and so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."
