Nobody Was Frozen

The Empire Has Lions
1,000,000 Tons
 Several have written to this column offering to let themselves be "frozen stiff and then returned to life" in the latest of science, as suggested by a Los Angeles chemist, Dr. W. H. Williams. Dr. Williams is sorry to hear that the American Medical Association calls Mr. Williams' alleged freezing "a vicious hoax."

It accuses Williams of freezing a dead woman and then substituting a live one, supposed to have been frozen and thawed out. Doctor Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, says anybody frozen would surely die. It was an interesting yarn while it lasted.

New York's strike of union men against President Hoover, Gen. Johnson and the WAP ("Works Progress Administration") seems temporarily to have collapsed. Mr. Messy, New York labor leader, said all union men would go out and stay out and nonunion men would follow. The news is that the nonunion men did not follow, and the union men went back to work.

Robert Moses of the park department, who employs 25,000 workers on park projects, reports only 110 deserters.

An interesting photograph from Addis Ababa shows two servants from the Ethiopian emperor, riding on lions, one female, one male, in the palace garden. The emperor's lions are trained in this manner for the "watch dogs." You can easily believe that intruders "keep out."

For war purposes, however, lions are not particularly fierce. They are deadly poisonous gas would encourage the lions, as they would men, and lions cannot jump as high as an airplane.

In Chicago's stockyards half the hog pens are closed, farmers are scolding, men have lost their jobs, and hogs to push around and butcher. The yards are suffering.

And only a little while ago—nearest government determination to help the farmer and promote progress was butchering tens of thousands of "barrow sows" to get rid of them before their little piglets could be born. "Too many little pigs will make too many big pigs," said the government. You can imagine the ghosts of a million pigs floating over the city, squeaking in their baby voices, "We told you so."

War talk continues. Munitions announces a new air weapon "overwhelmingly powerful," but does not say what it is. Plain TNT and poison gas are powerful enough. Hitler, announcing that his country is "ready to meet any outside peril," said: "No power on earth can attack us." That is a mighty overconfidence.

A prosaic financial telegram suggests that the public debt of Germany has been increased by 20,000,000,000 marks. That might represent an interior energy of considerable proportions.

Uncle Sam, with all his spending, means a little something for himself. His money income is about $100 million dollars worth about 50 cents per dollar, which contains less than half their value in silver, has given the treasury a profit of about $3,000,000,000.

And at this moment it does not appear to have hurt anybody. Who understands money?

Stocks are better, prices higher, in London and in Wall Street. The London Daily Mail says the exchange boom seems to do more for world trade than anything. The reason is that it gives confidence everywhere.

Strange and powerful is "confidence." You cannot see it, feel it, weigh it, but you can easily destroy it.

Lovely woman, led by Paris fashion designers, is still trying to find out what the really wants. Universal Service dispatches from Paris the "dresses as transparent as lace curtains from the knee down; skin-tight evening gowns with cut-out designs as big as elm leaves from the waist to the hip-line. Cape coats of white fur, wide open on both sides." One gown is made entirely of "plated gold braid."

When will women settle down finally to some one style, as men have done?

Interesting items in taxation news. For instance, government will collect income tax on "public relief." If your generous Uncle Sam gives you $100 million, the amount that unless you spend, he will take back $13.2 in income tax.

That seems like giving your little boy a stick of candy and biting off the end of it.

ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS—Old McHenry is always writing "Thoughts While Strolling." Well, suppose you are not a "Stroller." I am what you might call a "Stroller." The feet are bad and the legs are worse, so I take mine out riding. So with all due apologies to Odd this is "Thoughts While Strolling."

Away here a week or so back I went out to the Fry's road to catch the plane for Seattle. You see day or night courses all lighted they run schedules in the night time the same as in the day. Bill, that's the first born, and his mother were with me, and I was off on a little sight seeing trip to the Post. When my wife knew it was with Wiley, it didn't matter where it was going and she was mighty fine about it.

Well she is about everything. You can live with a comedian long without being mighty forgiving. The same field a couple of years or more ago she had been off to "Vancouver" to catch a boat to go to the Japanese Emperor, and then fly on around the world and meet her in Geneva, Switzerland at one of those Disarmament Conferences where I used to always go for my amusement. They around South America on 21 thousand miles jaunt one time, and by the way she is no mean aviation enthusiast herself. She will make all the short trips with me. In fact she was flying the next morning after I had caught a plane out to New York and to Maine to see our Mary.

But this has nothing to do with "Al Strolling" as I have started strolling yet. Pretty night, nice stars, I dropped out in Princeton to see some business early the next morning and caught a plane out of there at eleven the next morning, and then to Seattle at five in the afternoon. That's a pretty trip. The pilots in the big Boeing just across the Strait. They all over the world. We flew right up to the top. I think they call the Redwood Highway. Lots of pretty little towns nestled back in little valleys and canyons. First stop out of Sacramento was at Shasta. They all over the world before some ambitious reporter had sent out a U.P. Dispatch that had seen Wiley Post and I flying over there.

When we were at that time crossing Arizona. So this time he is liable to report that I arrived there by horse and buggy.

Say there is some Mountains over that route. South of Medford, north of Medford, Oregon. They all over the world raise the fine pears. I was forced down there on my previous flight to Vancouver and they kept telling me about the fine pears and I afterwards wrote about them, but said they never did get for me any other than telling how great they were. Well sir when I returned from around the World, they sent me practically all they raised in the Valley. They were in a box which a box would come it would be more pears, and better pears. (If possible).

We looked down and saw a big forest fire in the Mountains. Pilots said it had been burning for a long time. The great timber going to waste. Beautiful country northern Cal., and Oregon and Washington, everything green, rivers and forests. Into the West, a beautiful air field on an island, and a beautiful located city. Asked for Ted Han, a flyer that had hauled me over that country in the early days. He was a flyer, and is yet, which means that he is good. If "You" tell me about it, I think you're right, because I know a lot more than saying "You" was a fine flyer.

Some of them come along somewhere in the story here with a fine lunch. It had more dainty little sandwiches, and knock cakes than I had ever seen in any lunch in my life. It was arranged lovely. They say it was made up at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Then into the Puget Sound Country, beautiful Bay Area. I thought I thought who had the first slogan that I can ever remember, it was when I played there in vendette about 1908. "Watch The Sun Grow in an inch in my life. I much sense, but it did. Seattle! That's a whole story in itself. The Gateway to Alaska, to the Orient, to Canada. Have you tell me about it. The story was that big bombing plane they were just finishing for the Army. Biggest in the World.

Yes sir a plane is a great place to see anything, only in any line are right under where you want to look and you can't see anything. Did really see Mt. Shasta. They coincident hide it under the wings.

Uncommon SENSE

By John Blake
 G. Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

From the time of your early childhood you are always engaged in some kind of a competition. If you have broomsticks and sisters, you learn early to compete with them for things that you want. As you grow older, you begin to compete for a job in life. After that, if it is a good job, you have to compete with others in order to hold it.

Now if you are going to get what you want out of existence you have got to work against others.

Many of these "others" are people you never have seen, and never will see.

But they are trying to do what you want to do, which is to gain some of the prizes of existence.

Thomas A. Edison was not the only man who was thinking about the new unseen magic fluid called electricity when men found out that there was such a thing.

But he was the first man to realize its future possibilities, and to experiment with them.

The Wright brothers were not the first people to believe that flight was possible.

Many men had done that. Professor Langley built a plane long before they did. He would have flown it if the gasoline engine had been perfected in his day.

To show how right he was in his belief, after his death other aeronauts took his plane, equipped it with a gasoline motor and flew it.

Today men in America, in England, in France and many other countries are making and developing machinery of all sorts, and from time to time the announcement comes through the newspapers that one of them has succeeded.

Remember as you work at your job that while you are doing it, other people whom you have never known, and whose existence you never have suspected are doing much the same thing, and are matching their wits against yours.

If life were not organized in that way there would be very little progress.

It is likely that we would be still rolling around in ox carts, or sailing in junks as many of the Chinese do still.

It is in this battle, this competition that you men are the most and greatest of the great improvements.

A nation of back slappers belonging to a mutual admiration society would not be of any value to the world.

I know it is fashionable to sneer at the "speakers."

But, since there is no way to put an end to them—and oughtn't to be—why not make the most of them?

It is true that some of them are cheap melodrama.

But even in these, there people who do other things very drab lives, and great enjoyment.

And to the thousands of people who live in the country towns, where the chief occupation used to be to go down to the depot and see the train come in, they have been a positive blessing.

The people of a back woods town no longer gape at high buildings when they come to a city. They have seen them in the "speakers."

They have seen important men and women from many parts of the world, and moreover they have heard them talk.

They have had an opportunity to see the world's best plays, which are often staged with an elaborateness and a dignity to which the world is not accustomed in the ordinary three or four-act drama.

The kind of person called "hiel" has been talked to exist since the films were made to talk.

I admit that some of the films are good, and some of them are bad, but just the same they are, next to the newspapers, a fine means of promoting general knowledge, not only of their own country but of practically all the countries in the world.

I, who in the course of my life had only seen one iceberg, saw at least a hundred of them in the films.

I have seen European capitals and "Atrian's Burning Sands" and the Russian steppes and the pyramids in Egypt.

I have seen the Amazon and the Volga, and the Tower of London, and the Place de Bastille in Paris. With the exception of the two latter I have had no idea of the appearance of any of these.

For the people who live in the lonely forests and on the wide plains the "speakers" are a blessing.

Some of the melodrama is not meant to be easily eliminated.

Some of the best of the story could be cleaned up without doing any harm.

But as a whole they have been a great benefit, and will become more useful and more valuable to the people of the world as the years go by.

As for a dangerous one effect upon children, forget it.

Children are children, and the influence of anything does not materially change their lives.

NEW YORK

BY G. O. MSINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Thoughts while strolling: George M. Coban crowd sick, too. Rarely seen any more. That quick, dry grin as peculiar to New York. Like the flash of coral. Add tatty chewing names.

What a lesson Lindbergh taught of the dignity in when you ask for a reading suggestion, the clerks inquire: "Have you read Tom Sawyer lately?" One book that never fails to satisfy. The last book of the series is "The Sad Irony's Memory: Getting rid of the sad iron, for his signed, an electric.

The writer's motto: writers want to know: Theodore Dreiser. And the artist all artists want to know: Percy Crosby. The priests who sander meditatively curled in St. Patrick's side yard at sunset, heads down, hands folded behind. "When's no stopping that publishing phemon: 'There Rome Burns'."

And in one of the avenue book stores when you ask for a reading suggestion, the clerks inquire: "Have you read Tom Sawyer lately?" One book that never fails to satisfy. The last book of the series is "The Sad Irony's Memory: Getting rid of the sad iron, for his signed, an electric.

It was a not-too-new checker cab curbed in the Murray Hill section, inside the city limits. The driver's car was chancier for the late J. P. Morgan. And was signed Siegfried Blum. He seemed weary of questioning a bit former post. In slightly German accent, he said: "Mr. Morgan is a very fine gentleman. He taught me to be close wounded. Jah."

Martin and Osa Johnson are enroute to Bornea while they will remain for two years in the heart of the forest. Jungles and among the head hunters, for their departure they spent weeks in the decoration of African trophies, at the Museum of Natural History. On this safari their photographic ambitions are to film snakes and modern times. The film crew incidentally, this may be the Johnsons last expedition. They are eager to settle down to the peace of a middle west farm after their exciting stretches in the world's lost places.

One wonders why most seekers of adventures prefer to climb their way up to Arabia, in his Sussex seclusion after probably the most romantic career of modern times. A checkup of the Explorer's club shows that nearly all the international wanderers who have quit the trails now live in isolated spots.

When James Gordon Bennett was running the New York Herald, he had an inviolable rule for his Monday morning editorials: if it is a story, once it was ignored and there was a new managing editor three hours after Bennett saw the omission in Paris. The editorials of course were not to be sprung all food save carter. Bennett never objected to the impossibility of the tales. He did not care so long as the dog was the hero although he was a stickler for accuracy in other news.

Notched in a block on the west side of Third avenue near 51st street is an ancient, well worn antique shop and bearing the name Ardian Court. While much of the stuff is European, it is once rich reloaded there are several early American displays, cabinets and a few about 8 or 10 feet and owners sit out front. The furniture is the best of the kind. It is in a friendly palaver. It is open until midnight.

Another story of George S. Kaufman's lackadaisical reaction to enthusiasm comes from Hollywood. At a luncheon table a returning hunter was telling of taking a big bear. "When we got in," he gurgled, "the entire lake was completely covered with fish." Kaufman, mildly: "Just one large fish, is that all?"

Leprosy Not Contagious
 A leper expert asserts that no one knows how leprosy spreads. It is not contagious, and there is no known way of transmitting it, spreading it from person to person is only known from that when a person has leprosy he also has these bacilli.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
 Professor of Bacteriology, University of California, College of Medicine

A WORD FOR THE PLUMP
 Both overweight and underweight conditions are hazardous to health. But studies have shown that we have placed a premium on underweight. The average boy's figure is a girl with less flesh than she should have to be normal. It is encouraging to note that the New York "Eurocrats" and "Osteologists" and "Association, with five thousand members, has come out for the plump girls against the thin ones. They place more weight on graceful curves than on sharp angles. "The well-curled-around, well-proportioned, well-developed girl has the most health. For plump, rounded girls goes with a round, rounded body.

Painters, sculptors, courtiers and great lovers have always given the plump girls the preference. The esteem for elenderness has been only faddism, just an evanescent idea. Long ears, protruding lips and other local customs are confined only to local areas. Plump girls are more normal than slender, skinny ones. They can think better because they are healthier. Cleopatra, Venus of Milo, Fatima were all plump ladies, even bordering on overweight. The charmers of the Sultan were buxom women; the Renaissance portrayed figures as soft and concave figures as their ideal of feminine beauty. In the early nineties in this country the ideal was a thin, Russell type was in great demand. And West—she may be the style of tomorrow.

The anemic, slender, underweight girl will develop into a plump young woman. She eats the proper food. Directly after birth the baby major part of every little girl baby has to solve in to keep her internal heat regulated in 24 hours. She conquers this without effort. She has another critical problem; namely, to keep her blood pressure normal and constant. A little gland on top of each kidney takes care of the adrenal or supra-adrenal glands. Then she has seven or eight years of smooth sailing. Contagious diseases are all that bother her in this time.

But when she reaches nine years of age she begins to change. She grows faster; she becomes more active in her play; she has more energy. She is self for womanhood. When she is eleven or twelve years old, she is taller than her brother at the same age. She grows rapidly. She puts on weight, angles her curves, curves is deposited around breast and hips; she blooms out like a morning flower. It is just as natural for a girl to be almost overweight. It is for a flower to bloom when it is mature.

Authorities on public health have always been apprehensive about the slender faddism among young women. Young women can keep slender only by modified starvation methods. They eat "diet" foods, moistened with skimmed milk and swallowed with the aid of coffee or tea; they religiously abstain from sweets and eat a substitute for the rest of their meals on salads. Their idea is to keep the normal, immature, puberty figure of a child, and nature never meant a girl to be a child. The slender faddism, though as common as the nourished young people. An angular, concave, linear-shaped, underfed young woman will be an incubator of contagious and propagating various kinds of germs.

Young mothers with plump figures have plenty of vitality-giving vitamins and other necessary substances stored in their bodies for the growth and nourishment of their babies. Undernourished, skinny young mothers are at a disadvantage; they have less reserve stored up for their infants. There will be fewer disabilities among young mothers if they eat what they should eat. They are not satisfied. Fat and muscle will make them healthy, normal, and they will be much healthier and very much happier.

The style-makers talk of fuller skirts for the 1935-36 winter season. That is good news for the health standpoint. Tight skirts make women think too bright or reducing. When they see the girls in the table, butter, cream, whipped cream, all make their heads ache, they shake their heads, and they are not conscious of curves when they look into their mirrors.

And, if you notice, the girls pictured on the board advertisement in its bill-board advertising have curves. So do the girls chosen to advertise swim suits. The attainment of curves means the buying of more food, which will make the farmer happier. And more cloth is required to cover curves, which will make the weaving mill busier. Who knows but that the new style in plumpness is the factor that will lead us out of the depression? Certainly it will make for a more normal womanhood.

A Few Little Smiles

LANDLORD'S DECISION
 The old-logging man in the impudent area learned over the banisters and caught the visitor before she could disappear down a hole in the stairs.

"I wonder," said the visitor, indignantly, "the landlord doesn't do something to repair this deplorable building?"

"Well," said the slum-dweller, philosophically, "he was going to do something about it until he went on a tour to Naples and saw the ruins of Pompeii. . . . Now he thinks this 'slut' too bad." —Tit-Bits Magazine.

HE KNOWS
 "Grocer—Jimmy, I'm coming around to collect a little bill from your dog. What's the name of the dog?"

Jimmy—Just before me sees him.

Go—What's the name of the selection the orchestra is playing?"

She—Go Feather Your Nest.

She—Go Jump in the Lake. I asked for a civil question.

Placing the Responsibility
 "It must be hard to learn to play polo," said the blind man.

"Well," replied Farmer Crotwell, "judgin' from what I have seen of the game, it oughtn't to be so very hard for the man; but it must take a heap of experience an' close attention on the part of the small but active horse."

A Question of Tids
 "After another season," said Farmer Crotwell, "I guess we'll have a chief for the summer business."

"What's a chief?" asked Mrs. Crotwell.

"A chief is a man with a big enough vocabulary to give the soup a different name every day."

One Benefit of a Bargain
 Mr. and Mrs. Barnes had been discussing an arrangement which implied the exercise of the "give and take" theory.

"You know," declared Mr. Barnes, "that it always takes two to make a bargain."

"Yes," returned Mrs. Barnes, "but only one of them gets it."

Fair Enough
 "What was your plump crop like?"

"Well, a heavy storm blew down 50 per cent of it and we'd hardly gathered that when another wind blew down the rest."

"Bad luck! Could you do anything with them?"

"Well, my answer was one odd lot and the other." —Wives Magazine.

IN THE MARKET
 "So Nellie broke her engagement. Did she give you back the ring?"

"No; she said diamonds have gone up, but she would give me what I paid for it."

Mr. Rhea's Opening

Thousands of people from all sections of Kentucky are expected to flock to Morehead Friday for the opening of the campaign in the second primary of the Hon. Thomas S. Rhea, Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

This day should prove one of the biggest in Morehead's history. It should certainly attract the largest gathering that has ever assembled here. Mr. Rhea is bestowing an honor upon this little town in choosing it as the spot for the opening of his campaign.

Mr. Rhea is not opening here because of the votes in Rowan County—he would appreciate all the votes he can get here—but at the same time he is not opening at Morehead because he lost Rowan county in the first primary.

Rather, Morehead is the hub of the wheel so far as this section of the state is concerned. We are connected by good highways with every county in eastern Kentucky. Mr. Chandler's opponent of Mr. Rhea—showed more strength through this section than in any part of the state. Morehead is the logical spot for Mr. Rhea's opening.

The local campaign committee is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to make this a big day for Morehead and Mr. Rhea. Regardless of politics, it is up to the people of this community to give Mr. Rhea a rousing ovation in his appearance here. By opening his campaign in Morehead, he is focusing the eyes of the state on this city. It is well-deserved publicity for Morehead—for which we should feel appreciative.

When Mr. Rhea makes an address it is an event. So far in the campaign he has attracted the largest crowds that ever attended campaign speeches in this Commonwealth.

A huge barbecue will be given to feed the thousands expected for the speech. Sound trucks, a band and the many other features that go to make a successful rally will be on hand Friday. It is truly the biggest thing that has come to Rowan county. Everyone has been invited for the speaking, and it is up to every one that is interested in our community's welfare, regardless of political affiliations or party preference to attend.

Business Marches On

Business not only has made great gains during all the year so far but is likely to maintain its progress. This is the view of economists and business men. Nothing is in sight which might be interpreted as an unfavorable factor or likely to cause a recession. The Courier-Journal recently quoted W. S. Knudsen of General Motors as predicting a better year in 1935. Now Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland banker and economist, declares that business should not only hold its present gains, but add to them before the year is over.

Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, seems to have been a good prophet. Last winter he predicted that the depression would be definitely over in July and that in mid-summer stock market and other prices would begin to rise noticeably. He was right in each particular.

Dun and Bradstreet finds buyers hastening to replenish depleted inventories and consumer buying keeping up at a good pace, with the outlook of continued rapid consumption of fall merchandise. In-ustrial production is from 46 to 60 per cent greater than last year. Roger Baleson is extremely optimistic about the outlook for fall. He sees signs of the heavy industries at last pulling out of the quagmire of low production and auguring generally the uphill march of business which he saw herald in March 1933. The date is significant. It is identical with the assumption of office by Franklin D. Roosevelt. (Courier-Journal)

Town of Palmer Springs Up in Alaska

The town of Palmer, being built in Matanuska valley, Alaska, by colonists from the Middle West, is pictured here on a busy day. In the foreground are the administrative headquarters of the Alaska Rural Rehabilitation corporation. The long building is the warehouse which also houses the telegraph and radio offices of the United States army signal corps. Tents of the colonists are to be seen in the background.

Big Contest for Draft Stallions

The world's first stallion pulling contest offers farm entrants $1,500 in 10 cash prizes, for the best three-year-old stallions. "This will be the greatest pulling contest ever staged," says Wayne Dinmore, secretary of the Horse and Male Association of America, which is sponsoring the contest, for October 12, at Lincoln Fields racetrack, Crest, Ill., 30 miles south of Chicago on the Dixie highway. The practical object of these contests will be to discover the best pulling sires in the country, so that "horse-power" on the farm can be greatly improved, just as it has been in the motorcar. The team of stallions shown in the illustration was last year's pulling contest at the Century of Progress.

Talk about live power! These two doblers look husky enough to pull the country out of the depression. Horse-pulling contests will be seen at many of the country fairs scheduled for fall, and they're always a thrilling sight.

Like a Ceremony in the Middle Ages

This religious spectacle may well have taken place in the Middle ages. Wearing black robes with face-hiding hoods, these penitents are leaving the cathedral at Furnes, Belgium, after the mass. Carrying their crosses, they took part in a religious procession that followed.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for August 25

BARNABAS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 4:36, 37; 11:19-24. GOLDEN TEXT—He was a good man and full of the Holy Spirit and of gifts.—Acts 11:24. PRIMARY TOPIC—Barnabas' Love Gift.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Friendly Barnabas. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Barnabas Used His Possessions. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—In Partnership With God.

The explanatory text given by the lesson committee "Barnabas (A Consecrated Man of Means)," is not entirely satisfactory, as it emphasizes only one of his most excellent qualities.

I. Barnabas the Man (Acts 4:36). His original name was Joseph. When he became a Christian he was by the apostles renamed Barnabas, which designation signifies the change from the old life to the new. This was a common custom, e. g., Simon to Peter and Saul to Paul. The name means "son of prophecy" or "son of exhortation and consolation." This shows not only the nature and spirit of Barnabas but indicates that he possessed a gift of hortatory preaching.

II. Barnabas the Philanthropist (Acts 4:37). So fully had the divine love permeated the very being of Barnabas, that, seeing the need of his fellow believers, he sold his property and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet. He was in no wise obliged to do this as there was no such binding law of a community of goods in the early Church. Private property was not recognized (Acts 5:4).

III. Barnabas the Christian Statesman (Acts 9:26-30; 11:19-30).

1. Betrayed Saul (9:26-27). After Saul's conversion he came to Jerusalem and tried to join himself to the disciples, but they were afraid of him. Barnabas saw that Saul was really a converted man. Being a good man he could see there was good in Saul. To him was to judge personality is the first mark of a Christian statesman.

2. Sent to Antioch (Acts 11:22-24). Violent persecutions of the Church sent many disciples to the regions about the Mediterranean. As they went they preached the gospel and churches were established. The most conspicuous of these was at Antioch, the capital of Syria, becoming the most important center in the spread of Christianity. Everything went well as long as the gospel was preached to the Jews only, but certain of these disciples deliberately preached Christ among the Greeks. They announced to them that God had become incarnate in a man, that man, after a ministry of love and grace, had died a sacrificial death on the cross, and that salvation was now offered to all who would accept him.

Things having reached the ears of the Jerusalem Church that a great work of grace was expressing itself through the Greeks who were preaching the Lord Jesus Christ at Antioch, Barnabas was sent to look after it. Barnabas was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and faith. He, therefore, had spiritual discernment and broad sympathy. Those who have grace to themselves will be able to see grace in others. He exhorted them and urged them forward in their work.

3. Goes after Saul (11:25, 26). The work at Antioch prospered, but help was needed; therefore, Barnabas went after Saul. His great work as the apostle to the Gentiles. The gifts of both of these men were needed on that field. Different temperaments when brought into harmony by God's grace are needed in the church.

4. Disciples called Christians first in Antioch (v. 26). After a year of teaching by Paul and Barnabas the name "Christian" was given to the disciples. Observe that the name was associated with the teaching. Paul taught the vital oneness of the believer with Christ and, therefore, it was natural that the disciples should be called Christians. The notion that the name "Christian" was given in derision has no factual basis.

IV. Barnabas the Dispenser of Gifts (vv. 27-30). Because of the oneness of Christians with Christ and with one another, the distress of the brethren at Jerusalem must be relieved by the gifts of believers at Antioch. The Spirit of God, through Agabus, made known the coming dearth which was to prevail throughout all the world. The disciples were therefore moved, according to their ability, to send relief unto the brethren in Judea. These gifts had a powerful effect in removing the suspicions of the brethren at Jerusalem.

A Strong Will If we have need of a strong will in order to do good, it is more necessary still for us to order not to do evil; from which it often results that the most modest life is that where the force of will is most exercised.—Count Leo.

Oxford Professor Finds Redheads Shy on History

A professor of history at Oxford University, Dr. J. M. Thompson, dismisses contemptuously the redheads of his classroom. He has been keeping tabs on them for years, he says, and has found them a dull lot. "No redheaded man or woman," he avers, "has ever won a first in history at Oxford."

That may be as reported. And it has not occurred to Doctor Thompson, apparently, that students of history, drawing over books and professors, too, had had a scantier fare, but for the flaming topknots of the sties and curricula.

No Oxford don needs to be told that there was a redheaded English queen that gave us the Elizabethan age and the "tongue of Shakespeare" through them the canvases of Titian and Leonardo live forever.

COURT DEFINES SPEED LIMIT

Motor speed law was thus summed up by Lord Justice Scrutton in the Court of Appeals, London, in connection with a court case arising as the result of a motor car accident, says the Canadian Press: "This court has said three times, and I repeat it to be generally known, that if you are going at such a speed that you cannot pull up within the limits of your vision, and an accident happens, you are in the wrong."

Shirtwaist Frock Simple and Chic

PATTERN 2212

It seems that girls will be girls this season—even in the field of sports! And most welcome, too, is the return to femininity in clothes. That flattering quality is most often achieved through the softness of gathers (as you see in this frock) or easy freedom of line (like the pleated sleeve with its casual air) But every important tailored detail is retained making the shirtwaist frock so universally becoming! See how trim the collar—how neat the front closing—how simple the pocket! Make yours of sport silk or cotton. Pattern 2212 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (not preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 245 West Seventeenth Street New York City.

LET'S ALL GO TO KENTUCKY'S GREATEST SHOW

Unquestionably the Kentucky State Fair is Kentucky's greatest show of interest to all Kentuckians. More particularly is it for the farmers and the women of the state. The Horse Show, is the acknowledged World's greatest array of blooded horse flesh ever gotten together. Same may be said of the show of colts known to the American Saddle Horse and Breeders Futurity Event. In every way the State Fair this year will be so fine a show for everyone that all who can possibly do so should attend. There is no place in all the world where so many Kentuckians can get together for annually meeting and greeting their old friends and making new ones. Come, and let's all have a good time together. It's your Fair—Be There!

Garth K. Ferguson, Secretary, KENTUCKY STATE FAIR, In Louisville, September 9-14

Mr. Neville, Fincel, instructor in the Department of Economics at Morehead College left this week for his home at Frankfort. He will go there to Oklahoma where he will spend his vacation.

Friday ought to be a good time for the college to get these long desired pictures of a filled stadium. The Rhea rally, which ought to bring just about the largest crowd ever in Morehead should pack the stadium more than overflowing.

The rally opens at 11 o'clock with a band concert and the serving of nearly a ton of barbecue at the stadium. Mr. Rhea and the large delegation that will probably accompany him, will arrive around noon, and make their headquarters at the Midland Trail Hotel until after the speaking.
