A Rogers Highway Our Policy? Here It Is Why Go to Town? To Discourage Vice

From Tulsa, Okla., in which state Will Rogers was born, J. D. Underwood telegraphs suggesting as "the highest tribute and a lasting memorial to Will Rogers," that Highway 68 which runs from Rogers' new home in California to his old home at Claremore, Okla., be extended on to New York and the whole road named "Will Rogers Highway."

If every American highway were named after friends of Will Rogers living on both sides from one end to the other were named for him, there would be many "Will Rogers" highways.

These run the headlines: "ITALY RAISES ALL PEACE TALK," "BRITAIN WEIGHS SANCTIONS, WANTS TO KNOW OUR POLICY."

If he wants to know the policy of 3 out of a 100 ordinary Americans, and 100 per cent of all common sense Americans, it would be this:

To mind our own business; let European nations, presently murdering each other and robbing interior nations, attend to their business, in their way.

Our policy now, with Italy swallowing Ethiopia, should be exactly what it was when our British friends were swallowing the Italian empire, absorbing that country with its valuable gold and diamond mines. We did nothing then. Why should we invent a special policy for Mussolini now?

France and England "fear Mussolini may involve three continents in the Ethiopian war." Has Europe heard of the New England farmer who said: "To me on my way to town to get drunk, and Lord, how I dread it! He need not have gone to town. European nations need not be dragged into a continental war if they don't want to be dragged."

A very old poker player of the New York Press club, when he raised the pot remarked, meaningly: "The only way to discourage vice is to make it expensive." That idea seems to be wounding in Germany. Doctor Schacht, head of the great German bank and leading financier of the Reich, warns Germany that Nazi individuals indulging themselves in the pleasure of treating defenseless Jews brutally, are endangering Germany's prosperity. Such wanton brutality constitutes a great menace to German trade everywhere, according to Doctor Schacht, who knows.

Republicans report greatly increased demand for the nomination of Senator Borah, since the announcement that, if nominated, he will run. It was mournful news for some Republican corporation best minds, for whether they have to be lashed with scorpions, or with something else, would make little difference to some of them who consider Senator Borah distinctly in the "scorpion" class.

An old gentleman of eighty-one strolled into a New York police station, remarking: "I have walked from Kansas City and shall walk back again tonight." He was removed to a hospital for a "heart" attack. He had substituted the verb "to" for "was" and the police would not have disturbed him, for he could have flown in from Kansas City during the day very easily, and down back again at night. It is 22 years ago he had said, "I just flew from Kansas City," he would have been sent to the dangerous ward.

So there is progress.

At Sverdlovsk, Russian government engineers, digging sewers under the city, find gold ore that indicates a rich gold field underlying the town. The government works practically all the city, and can hardly take the time and a further increase in Russia's gold production, already more than three times as great as that of the United States, may be expected.

Those that believe in the wickedness of Russia may ask:

"Why does Providence allow such wicked people to do so much good?"

One answer is, "The quickest way to make them stop their wickedness is to make them rich, and gold would do that." Gold might not change the existing government of Russia. But another generation will see another kind of government, and ownership of such a lump of gold, as we possess, might make that next Russian government consider Lenin and Stalin "old fashioned."

Physicians at St. Vincent's hospital in New York report the extraordinary case of a baby, that could live for 27 days appearing almost normal but possessing no brain.

Disgraced "best minds" will tell you there are "babies" in Washington, some of them full-fledged professors, that have lived longer than 27 days "without any brain."

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake
A. Bell syndicate—WVU service.

When I was a youngster in a little town I rarely saw men play in the day time.

Outdoors True, the well-to-do men of the village pursued horses and carriages, but if one of them had been seen driving such a rig around town on a week day, people either would have thought he had suddenly come into a fortune or else that he had gone crazy.

Most of these men knew little about the town they lived in beyond the streets that took them to and from their shops or offices.

Thirty years after I left the town I went back to look it over.

I found that most of the fairly prosperous men of the town had motor cars, and used them.

They would knock off work Saturday afternoon, drive one or two hundred miles to and from some other town, or take their wives and children out for a drive around the nearby countryside.

They did not neglect their business, but they had learned how to use their idle time, and that was a fine thing.

More and more the people of this country are learning to do that.

In England, Germany, France and Italy I have not visited any other European countries—I saw crowds of people whose day's work was done, sitting around in cafes and sipping light wine or beer, talking and getting rest.

There was none of the rush and the hurry that you see in many of the cities in this country.

But we are learning, over here. Men knock off work over week ends and play golf or take their wives and children out to see what the adjoining country looks like.

They are learning that out doors is the best place to be in. They do not catch your death of cold if you go out in it.

They are learning about their neighbors—and their neighbors now, since the automobile is in use, may travel 10, 20 or 30 miles away and still be within easy reach.

Today the well-to-do man who used to be contented with going to a big city once in five years, makes trips to many big cities, and makes them drive or four times a year—just for fun.

Life was meant to enjoy. For a long time this never occurred to the man of moderate means.

But he has discovered that he feels better and works better and understands life better if he takes it easy now and then, and gets a look beyond the range of the windows of his home.

A little while ago a few persons won considerable sums of money on the Gambler's other side of the ocean.

It is possible, now and then, to get rich without effort.

It is possible to do this about once in 10,000 times.

To do it seems too bad that the newspapers did not have white paper enough and the interest in losers was not general enough so that the names of the winners and some of the bonds, tickets for this lottery could have been printed right after the drawings.

By and by, if you follow the lives of the people who won the big prizes, you will find that the money they won has done them no or little good.

Gambling in the market, or on races, or on anything else is a proof that one is either lazy or weak minded.

I can understand why a person who isn't "getting along" can be tempted to take a flier on this or that gambling device.

It is not pleasant to lack money when others around you have it.

It is easy to dream of big winnings, made without effort.

But if everybody indulged in that kind of dreams there would be no work done, no progress, and honest effort would be regarded as rank foolishness.

Bear in mind that for every man or woman who "is in it" money" when lottery results are declared, there are thousands of others who get nothing.

"By the sweat of your face shall ye eat bread."

The men who made this country were not gamblers.

EVERYDAY NEW YORK

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK—Thoughts while strolling: Good word for sets in the neck—carbuncle. The soap box orators are now up to 72nd street. What because of the brown straw hat? Country boy's notion of a city-slicker: Charles I. Scott, the insurance man. Bang-up name for an ash-can concern: Tip Top.

A 44 meringue name: Radcliffe Holman and Claire St. Noble. For the next letter: Lester.

In "Tobacco Road"—"Ewing Galloway. Walter Dammrosch seems always lost in abstraction. Memory: Walking on the picket fence to show off before The Only Girl. Next writing name: Bob Wagner.

Sing alike: Helen Morgan and Winifred Shaw. And Glenn L. Martin, aviation pioneer, is a ringer for Gerald Breitling. One thing about him, no one ever heard him whine. Hal Payne and Jack Dempsey have the same cat-like glide. The Times book critic, Robert Van Gelder.

Those feet-footed, fanned young men who cross town to the tennis courts before sundown. No one can hang on even for food like Bruno Long. So even the great Patton had to hang up his shutters in Paris. Strong faced men: J. Aubrey Smith and the late Ernest Torrence.

Lonest eye-bashes: Jim Flagg, Morton Downey and Peter Arno. Those oxygen service shops open 24 hours. The chiropractors now three sheets their virtues on bill-boards. Hope Jane Cowell never becomes a blonde. Never saw a night watchman reading nor met a man named Cedric.

The most commercially successful modern poet is Arthur Guiterman. He has an office where he turns out in a workman-like manner sonnets for all who pay the price. In his 60's, he is a vigorous exponent of out-door life, a woodsman, canoeist and mountaineer.

His summer home is in the Green Mountains of Vermont. His most widely quoted poem is "Death and General Putnam," an effort Lloyd George reportedly reads when fatigued.

At 14, when Joe Killey was attending boarding school near Chicago he was editor of the class paper. A poem Killey wrote about a kitten inspired a 13-year-old in another class to poetizing. Killey printed the first effort. The years rolled by. Each almost forgot the other until a recent day on a Washington, D. C. street when they collided. Killey had been chasing around the country looking for health and winding up in hospital. He had touched his leg in despair when he came upon his long-ago friend.

He was whisked to that friend's Virginia estate where, after two months of complete rest and care, he recovered. The friend was Jay Jerome Williams, known to the radio and newspaper strip as Edwin Alger.

Joe Cawthorn is last of the spattering dialect comedians and one remaining steadily baritone. Contemporaries, such as Kolb & Dill, Weber and Fields, Sam Bernard, Louis Mann, Bickel and Watson and Cliff Gordon have passed from the scene by death or retirement. I am wondering what a modern audience's reaction would be to Cawthorn's most hilarious caper that brought down the house in Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller." It was a couple delivered in German gutturals: "I had a little bird and his name was Enns; I opened der cage and infuss-s-s-s." People shrieked and beat the backs of neighbors pawed in front.

Another roll in the state was provoked when he tried to pronounce "riciculate," growing so impatient that the orchestra solemnly raised umbrellas in sudden defense.

One of my erudite correspondents stumbles in the spelling of two comparatively simple words. He spells "proud" and "despair" as "proude" and "despaire." He is a brave man; I called his attention to the derelictions, curious as to the why. His answer is direct with simplicity: "I just like my way better."

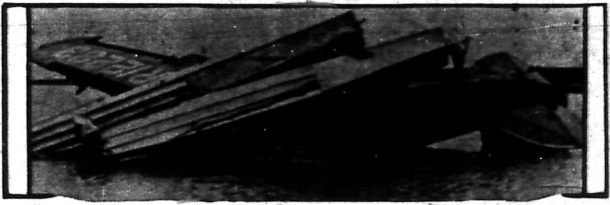

O, yes, it was Cawthorn, an expert angler of striped bass in real life, who first perpetrated a gag that still bobs up in the funny papers. Over a stage meal was mounted a stuffed and shell-baked fish, 10 feet long. Gas was injected. "Whoever caught that fish a liar."

Western Australia is a great agricultural state, larger than a dozen of our middle western states combined. Its principal products are those of the farm, such as wheat, cattle and wool, and for these it needs foreign markets.

Wreckage of the Rogers-Post Death Plane

Bombed in Illinois Miners' War

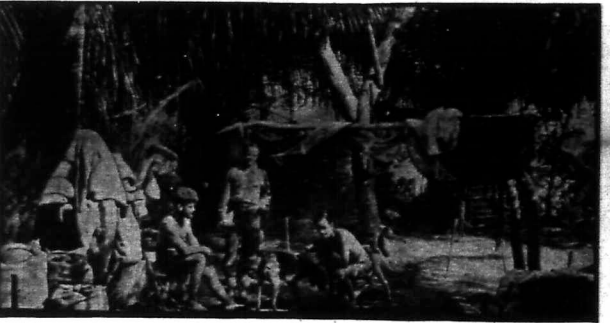

Two rival unions of miners in Illinois had been at war for a long time, and the bombing of trains is a not uncommon incident in the conflict. The photograph shows the wreckage of a train that was blown up near Springfield. Three trainees were badly injured.

Post-Rogers Crash May Cause Russia to Postpone Hop

The wreckage of the plane in which Will Rogers and Wiley Post crashed to death in the shallow waters of a river lagoon a few hundred yards from the Arctic ocean and 15 miles from Point Barrow, Alaska. Post's body was extricated from the splintered wreckage which appears under the forepart of the plane. Rogers' body was found outside the fuselage. Since the tragedy became known, it has been rumored that plans of three Russian aviators to hop from Moscow across the Arctic to San Francisco may remain in abeyance. The Post-Rogers flight was expected to confirm the location of an uncharted island off the coast of Siberia.

Connecticut Claims Man Is Real War Hero

Determined to obtain for Sergt. Bernard J. Early, shown here, of Sgt. Haven, the credit given to Sergt. Alvin C. York of Pall Mall, Tenn., for smothering a German machine-gun battalion, the Connecticut department of the American Legion adopted a resolution calling on congress to award the Congressional Medal to the Connecticut veteran. Sergeant Early is totally disabled due to war injuries. The resolution asserted that the capture of the Germans in the Argonne forest was effected by Early and that he turned them over to Sergeant York, then his corporal, to take back to the lines.

Prince Ready for Conflict With Italy

Prince Matkonen, son of Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, is being trained for a part in the expected war with Italy. Although he is still at the age when most kids are concerned only with games and studies, he is preparing for the conflict which many believe inevitable. He is shown at the left wearing an officer's costume and his helmet is trimmed with the mane of a lion. Such sights as this inspire the native warriors to fight to the death for their country.

He may have a real job on his hands, for there have been fears of a world-wide race war.

The Power Plant Situation

There has been so much political comment regarding the manner in which employment has been given on the quarter million dollar power plant which the Morehead State Teachers College is building that it seems time for the actual facts in the case to be stated.

A quiet but accurate and complete investigation has been made to ascertain just what is being done; to find out if possible if any discrimination is being made between a "Chandler" supporter and a "Rhea" supporter. The investigation showed that the work is being handled in a high-type manner—the employees taken from the unemployment and relief rolls without discrimination as to present or past political status.

"That is the way it should be handled. The money that is being spent to construct this plant comes from the Federal Government. Every man is entitled to a fair and impartial effort to obtain a job.

Always in a case of this kind, where employment cannot be given everyone, a certain class of people who are continually "trouble-makers" attempt to besmirch and give a "black-eye" to those in charge who are attempting to be fair with everyone. Others who are not among those who do obtain employment, start wholly untruthful "whispering campaigns" that so and so was hired because he is for Rhea or is for Chandler; or that the Rhea bunch got him his job; or the Chandler group obtained this for the other fellow. As each telling the tale gets bigger until it obtains such proportions that even the thinking people believe there must be something wrong.

Speaking impartially, and leaving whatever personal interest, political or otherwise, that we have, out of the question we compliment Mr. Rice, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds at the College, and the other men who are in charge for their fairness in giving out these jobs. Whether you are for Chandler, Rhea or King Swaps, we feel that the list of men who have already been employed, and the manner in which they have gone about giving employment, indicates that politics have been completely ignored, and the college is building through the Federal Government a structure, without dictating as to whom shall get the jobs.

Thinking and Acting Ahead

Ashland and Boyd County is making a belated effort and rush to secure appropriations from the WPA there this winter. Col. B. F. Forsgy, editor of the Ashland Daily Independent started this forward move to provide employment for their needy during this winter. It is an admirable movement on the part of Col. Forsgy and the newspaper he edits.

Thinking and Acting Ahead

In Rowan county it was not necessary for any newspaper or interested person or persons to seek the proper officials to obtain our share. Much as they have in the past our county judge and fiscal court had 6 projects, calling for almost half a million dollars appropriation submitted before anyone else thought of it. They were doing their duty, and the people of this county can compliment themselves on the efficiency and promptness shown by the county judge and the court in seeking approval for this county's share of the great works programme fostered by President Roosevelt.

The Rowan Fiscal Court went even further than this. In their regular August meeting, sufficient money for the county's share was appropriated. Amounts to be paid the foremen and engineers, who are hired and paid by the county, were set. A road engineer was employed. This is a pauper county. However, it will be necessary to put up around twenty thousand dollars to see this programme put through here. The Fiscal Court has already drafted their plans for meeting Rowan County's part.

In the approval of the works project, Rowan County should draw commendation. In fact, they thought ahead of the other fellow.

FAMOUS FAN DANCER WILL BE HERE WITH TENT ATTRACTION

"Daphne" queen of Fan Dancers, will visit Morehead on the evening of Tuesday, September 10 and accompanied by her entourage of more than eighty people, traveling on a fleet of thirty-five huge trucks, cars and busses, will appear for one performance only at the Bradley lot on Mill Street, being presented there by the popular producer, Billy Wehle, manager and producer of Billroy's Comedians. This is his 12th Anniversary Tour and is reported to be by far the most impressive touring he has ever placed on a tour.

While press agent adjectives may be ignored, the fact remains that reports and reviews from other cities show the show is "magnificent" and is undoubtedly the most massive attraction of its kind ever to appear under canvas. A huge tent recently purchased houses the show and provides comfortable seats for more than 4,000 patrons. Charming upholstery sets the comfort of the public and popular prices, always a feature of Billroy's, will, as usual prevail.

During past seasons Manager Wehle has featured the fact that many familiar faces would be seen on the show, but this year is an entirely new offering produced in Miami, Fla., instead of the north. By so doing he secured the pick of the talent which had been appearing in the Florida clubs during the winter season among whom are a score of the most beautiful dancing girls ever to appear on a show. One of the big features on the show is the Palais Royale Orchestra, offering a dozen of the peepiest, hottest playing musicians ever seen anywhere. A number of them were featured during the past winter at Bouche's Villa Venice, at Miami, where they were an outstanding attraction.

New shows, new faces, new vaudeville acts, new specialties, new features and everything, is the Billroy motto this season. The engagement here will be for one night only, but here will include a three-act production, will include a three-act production, the Palais Royale Orchestra, "Daphne" and her dream girls, many of unusual novelties. Doors will open at 7:15 o'clock at 7:30 and the curtain rises at 8:15 sharp. Continuing his well-known policy of the past, Manager Wehle is offering this massive production at popular prices and for this engagement will admit ladies FREE, provided each is accompanied by one adult paid admission.

LOST RADIUM TRACED TO STOMACH OF PIC

SIoux FALLS, S. D.—A $3,000 vial of radium, accidentally thrown away, was back at Moe Hospital after an uncanny precise search by two University of Minnesota scientists who traced it to the stomach of a squalling pig.

When the loss of the tube was discovered, Dr. A. J. Moe called in Dr. J. W. Buchta, and Dr. H. H. Barber of the university. They devised a detector from gold leaf and started for the dump grounds.

For an hour the scientists quartered the grounds while 500 pigs were led over the rasped refuse. Then their gauge jumped and they stood nearby hogs away to dig. But the gauge returned to normal when the hogs moved off.

That meant the radium was inside one of the hogs, now lost to the zoo. So the searchers divided the drove into five sections and by eliminations reduced to 3 and finally to one the likely pig.

"The radium is inside that pig," Dr. Buchta said to F. L. Tibbles, garbage hauler, who scratched his head in disbelief.

"Isn't," said Tibbles with conviction. "Bet you the price of the pig it is," offered Dr. Buchta.

Tibbles declined, but called a butcher who owned the animal.

The tube, measuring 2 1/2 of an inch in diameter and 3-4 inch in length, was in its stomach.

GOTHAM JAIL OR WORK

The Fair's slogan, adopted by Secretary Garth K. Ferguson—"The State Fair is your Fair, so be there," should make every true Kentuckian, says he, want to go.

...prevented soil washing or erosion by covering the land with a growth of vegetation. Men have not been able to improve upon this system. Cover crops still offer the best solution to the problem of controlling erosion on land left bare when the crop season is over.

A statement issued by B. Hutson, director of the AAA division of tobacco, sugar, rice and peanuts, says food costs are 14 per cent below the general level of living costs, and still the best bargain in living with the exception of rent.

That alfalfa depletes fertility is indicated by top-dressing tests at the Western Kentucky Experiment Station. Top-dressing with superphosphate increased the yield by 6.493 pounds in three years, and adding potash to the phosphate jumped the yield still more.

Excessive use of hot water tends to destroy the fiber in tooth brush bristles. They should never be boiled. Soaking in a strong solution of cold salt water for two or three hours will help make the bristles flexible and pliable.

The revival of work horse and mule breeding is said to be the greatest in 10 years, with an estimated production of 800,000 sales this year. Even this is 200,000 less than the yearly death-rate of farm work stock.

In a program to remove surplus dairy products from the market and also to provide food for relief purposes, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has begun the purchase of more than 8,000,000 quarts of butter, cheese and dried skim milk.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Lee county farmers who used the spray program have a good grape crop despite heavy rains.

Henry county farmers have signed for 1,250 tons of limestone for the soil improvement program.

Three Russell county farmers used certified seed potatoes reported a 50 per cent increase in yield.

Breathitt county homemakers are canning beans instead of pickling them, following demonstrations by the county home demonstration agent.

Seven probred trams were bought by Livingston county farmers at prices ranging from $22.50 to $36. The potato crop in Harlan county is yielding from 250 to 300 bushels an acre.

Grayson county farmers marketed a railroad of beef cattle at good prices.

Many Kenton county farmers are keeping farm account record books, reports the county agent.

A delegation from Hart county visited the farm of C. N. Walton, South Christian, to observe his production methods.

Six hundred acres of tomatoes are being harvested in Christian county, reports county agent W. E. Wiedburg.

Field agents of the Pet Milk Company and the Illinois Central Railroad judged in the soil improvement campaign in Graves county.

Seven hundred ewes were bought by Union county farmers through an Evansville, Ind., livestock agency.

Members of the Boyd county dairy committee are selecting 50 high-grade animals for demonstration purposes.

SAYS SOUTH FAVORED FOR POULTRY RAISING

The south is an especially favorable region for the development of poultry raising, Prof. C. L. Morgan, head of the poultry department at the South Carolina Experiment Station, told those attending the 11th annual poultry show at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington.

Many southern markets for poultry products are under-served by local producing areas, he said, therefore giving farmers and poultrymen local outlets for eggs and poultry at good prices.

An ample supply of locally grown feeds for poultry can be produced throughout the South, thus reducing feed costs.

Climatic conditions are favorable for maximum egg production by the time of maximum egg prices.

Adequate building and equipment for poultry can be provided at a minimum cost.

Parasite troubles respond to the same control measures in the South as elsewhere, while certain poultry diseases are less common or less destructive.

Good breeding stock is available in practically every section for establishing flocks or for flock improvement.

The nearness of large eastern markets and possibilities of cheap transportation provide a satisfactory outlet for any surplus production.

EXPERIMENTS SHOW THAT FERTILIZERS INCREASE IODINE

That the iodine content of vegetables and other foods and feed crops may be increased by the application to the soil of certain fertilizers is the conclusion reached by Dr. J. S. McFarlane, D. W. Young and R. K. Caifee in the department of research chemistry at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Due to the interest in the effect of iodine on health, the Kentucky scientists tested the effect of applying to plant growth certain chemical fertilizers known to contain relatively large amounts of iodine.

The results of the experiments, published in the Journal of the American Society of Agronomy, indicate that the iodine content of vegetables and other forms of plant growth may be materially increased especially when potassium iodine is used on the soil. Grade phosphate, raw rock phosphate, and limestone rock contain enough iodine to influence the iodine content of forage crops and vegetables.

Not only is it possible to increase the amount of iodine in food and feed, the investigation states, but the iodine is present in a suitable form for assimilation by livestock and man.

Analyses of the iodine content of the soils in the six principal geological areas of Kentucky showed the greatest deficiency in the Eastern coal fields, and the experiments were confined to corn, wheat and vegetables grown in eastern counties.

COLLEGE STUDIES UNION HOG RAISING METHODS

Profits were markedly increased by 20 Union county hog raisers who followed improved practices last year, according to a study made by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Thirty farmers in Kentucky's largest corn and hog county cooperated with the county agent and the college in keeping records of their hog raising operations.

Net returns increased from a loss of $1.24 to a profit of $1.91 for each 100 pounds of grain as a measure of the following practices were used:

1. The raising of a large percentage of the pigs farrowed.
2. Having a large number of sows per herd.
3. Full feeding the pigs from start to marketable age.
4. Taking fewer days to produce 100 pounds of pork.

Farmers who raised 8 out of 10 pigs farrowed made a net return of $1.12 in contrast to a loss of $1.71 for those farmers who raised an average of only a little more than 4 pigs of every 10 farrowed.

Net returns increased as the number of sows per herd increased due largely to the fact that the big hog raisers are better equipped and give better care to their herds. Eight farmers who owned an average of 20 sows made a net return of 83 cents per 100 pounds of pork produced compared with a loss of 41 cents per 100 pounds where herds averaged 4 sows.

Eight farmers who practiced full feeding had a net return of $1.12 per 100 pounds of gain compared with 22 cents for 22 farmers who followed limited feeding.

Full feeding, sanitation and generally better care and management considerably reduced the time required to produce 100 pounds of gain.

Full feeding, sanitation and generally better care and management considerably reduced the time required to produce 100 pounds of gain.

YOUTH TEARS HEAD FROM RATTLESNAKE.

Ramsey, Va.: Singing, swaying, their eyes aight with religious fervor, 500 followers of George Honley, who handles snakes in proof of faith, staged a near-rout on the highway Sunday.

"All sinners and children stand back," shouted the "holiness" preacher and his assistants as they began passing a three-foot mountain rattlesnake from hand to hand. As the rattlesnake Clifford Grear, 12-year-old mountain youth, the tension reached its pitch. Seizing the squirming snake in one hand, Grear, bitten, tore the head from its body with the other.

The faithful, pressed close around him, raised their voices in a shout and sang and county officers forced their way into the throng to restore order. In the confusion the boy was knocked down, still clutching the headless snake.

The affair followed an hour of prayer, preaching and song.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

By DR. LLOYD ARNOLD

AIR CONDITIONING

Almost everyone has had the experience on a hot summer day of going into a movie picture theater...

The purpose of air-conditioning is to make you comfortable and if you are comfortable when you go from the outside hot air into the inside cooled air...

The skin is the largest organ of the body. If it were spread out on the floor, it would be the size of a rug...

When you go from the street to an artificially cooled room during a warm summer day, your skin has to change in a moment's time from refrigeration to a radiator...

The only health problem in artificially cooled theaters, restaurants, office buildings and homes is the difference in temperature and comfort between the outside and the inside air.

Some restaurants and theaters maintain a 20 to 30 degree Fahrenheit difference in temperature between the inside and outside air.

The internal temperature rises in spite of all the skin's best attempts to change itself instantaneously from a radiator to a refrigerator.

We do not know enough about air-conditioning of rooms in the winter to make to know rules as yet.

And Miss Olson looked into his green-cruel, ugly hanger, thinly but bravely coated with lip stick and rouge, and capped with a saucy green beret—said with a saucy grin to the red-headed youngster's pluck in face of deprecation: "You've made an excellent choice, Mr. Adams."

The Girl Who Knew Men

By VIRGINIA MILLER

"HERE'S a job open" the red-headed girl leaped for over the low railing which guarded the office proper to ask the woman firmly established on the pay envelope side of the railing.

"Yes, there's a position vacant," Miss Olson had to tell the truth, however much she disliked the red-headed green beret set saucily back over her curls, her touched-up lips and short tight little green checked dress.

"Then the job's mine," the girl grinned and gave the curls a pert toss.

Miss Olson frowned at that I-know-men phrase. She critically inspected the card the girl had handed her.

"The employment agency has sent over this girl," she said. Her tongue called one strike on the redhead before the youngster ever got a chance to swing.

"I am sure the agency will send in a more suitable applicant before the morning is over," Miss Olson called a second strike on the redhead.

"Watch my technique," she murmured. "Good morning," she said cheerily. "What a nice sunny office you have here!"

"I've not had stenographic experience," she said. "But I've just completed ten weeks short-hand study at night school. So you can understand, this being my first real position, I think I shall give you a chance to choose it," the girl said calmly.

"Across" in her desk, Miss Olson snorted. "Sort of, dear," she said.

"Well, it sounds as if your position may be what I'm looking for," the red-headed girl said eagerly.

"This girl's eyes were shadowed with a terrible necessity. Miss Olson saw that necessity first. Then she saw that the girl would be a good one to put down on her head sensibly and that she used no lip stick."

"The agency urges you to talk to this girl before you decide," she said.

"I've had some experience," the girl said nervously to Mr. Adams. "I've got to have this position. I've got to. I've an invalid mother."

"Hurry called the third strike on the redhead. Miss Olson nodded to her to move to the other side of the railing. But the redhead was staring wide, startled eyes at the other applicant, so that she did not notice Miss Olson.

"The redhead shook off Miss Olson's hand and got to her feet. She straightened her shoulders and said with a fairly bright smile: "Sorry, I understand, though. Just the wrong approach on my part. And I thought I knew better."

"Gosh! Mr. Adams exclaimed. "Gosh, redhead! Don't clear out. I'll—Miss Olson! Help the agency find another job for this girl, want you for my secretary."

"The redhead's hand closed on Miss Olson's arm. "I know you. You do like color and a cheerful grin. And they kinda' like to be hunted!"

New Autumn Woolens Are Striking

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Woolens to "suit" the smart woman this fall are that fascinating we are not going to be able to resist them and you wouldn't if you could after once glimpsing them. From every inch of their roof and their wrap the woolens brought out this season radiate a beauty of coloring, of texture, of novelty in patterning and weave which is simply taking the world of fashion by storm.

Seeing that the American mills and the mills abroad are giving us the most amazing, the most beautiful woolens fancy can picture, it is to rejoice that the English habit of wearing sporty or tailored costumes for all daylong occasions in contrast to most resident and glorious formal fashions for evening has spread to America.

One of the most dramatic features which has to do with this sweeping rage for great woolens is the costume which goes fifty-dirty gorgeous cloth and high-colored suede. That is to say, a skirt of rich woolen is topped with a jacket or sweater of suede or leather which carries the key color of the plaid or striped material. To climax the scheme of design, the newest thing in the blouse which is knitted of the identical yarn in which the wool material is woven. Thus a perfect color harmony is achieved.

Another thing likable about the new woolens is that they are so delightfully soft and caressing to the touch, and give ear to this bit of good news—they are so woven in combination of yarns, they do not wrinkle.

They are more deceptive. They look as innocently pleased and pained as you please, while in reality they are concealing skirts which allow for perfect freedom of action. Such a skirt is to one the right in the picture. "Swaggee colleagues" describes this elaborate and fiery. It has a mug color and stock scarf and is worn with matching sweater.

The new skirts are marvelously built. They are more deceptive. They look as innocently pleased and pained as you please, while in reality they are concealing skirts which allow for perfect freedom of action.

Inspired by Oriental and period influences fabric manufacturers have outdone themselves in producing beautiful and luxurious metals on every type of silk ground.

In addition to being important for afternoon and evening gowns, the new metals are widely used for millinery notably turbans—scarfs to be worn with wool as well as silk suits, blouses, waists, coats, bags, and accessories in super evening sandals and evening jackets that have a decidedly new look.

Metals with solid burnished faces in silver, gold—and newest of all—copper are shown in the market and coveted, especially good for jackets and accessories.

Silk crepes with double borders in metallized broche show distinct traces of Persian, Hindu and Chinese influences in their rich colorings and delicate patterns.

Sheer silk gauzes, completely metallized, form many of the newest and loveliest of the metals.

Pink Rates Coolest Shade and Looks Most Expensive Pink, fashion's favorite color this summer, is the coolest-looking and, incidentally, the most expensive appearing shade you possibly can wear.

Paris Loves Blue Blue is a favorite color of Paris this year. Smart women seen at the races and many of them gowned in navy with white relief; also navy and white prints. Pale, misty blue crepe dresses are worn with darker blue hats, bags and shoes.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

ALL OUT It was 2 a. m. when the club telephone rang and a bachelor member answered it.

Angry Feminine Voice—Is my husband there? Bachelor—No, he's gone home. Voice (snapping)—How do you know? I didn't even tell you his name!

TIME TELLS Mrs. Frank—My only fear for the future is from the fact that my fiance is just a little younger than I am. Miss Frank—Don't worry. After you've been married a year he'll look old and careworn enough for anyone.

He Should Know Motorist—I've had it a whole year and I haven't paid a cent for repairs or upkeep on my car since I bought it. Friend—Yes, so the man at the service station tells me.—Santa Fe Magazine.

Appreciation "You have some remarkable paintings." "Yes," replied Mrs. Cotmore. The art dealer said they were old masters, but to his eye some of them look as good as new."

Reason "It says the man was shot by his wife at close range." "When there must have been powder marks on the body." "Yes; that's why she shot him."

Sings Blue Song Young Lady (after singing before the stage manager)—Do you think I can do anything with my voice? Stage Manager—Well, it might come in handy in case of fire!

Securing a Job Manager Dress Goods Department—Yes, we are looking for a pretty, neat, well-curved girl who wears a smile, has a friendly handshake and can wear her clothes well. Modern Bond Applicant—No clothes?

Absent of the Period "Don't hear of any horse thieves and cattle rustlers around Crimson Gulch," said the man who had returned after long absence.

PICKED OFF TREES "Worried" replied Pinta Pete. "The place has been progressed" right along with other towns. Now we have to organize fellows that repair automobiles and change the numbers on 'em."

"Good fishing around this summer haven't?" "Must be. The farmer feeds us mainly on salmon and sardines."

Anticipation "I'm happy and all that, of course. Old chap; still I wish my wife wouldn't talk so much about her last husband. It worries me."

Amazement "Forget it. Mine's always talking about her next one."

Friend—You will soon forget her and be happy again. Jilted Suitor—Oh, no, I shan't! I've bought too much for her on the installment system.—Answers Magazine.

Just Tossed Them Aside Oliver was careless about his personal effects. When mother saw clothing scattered about on chair and floor she inquired: "Who didn't hang up his clothes when he went to bed?" Mother—Wife from under the blankets murmured, "Adam."

DYES IMPORTANT AGENTS IN WAR AGAINST DISEASE

The same dye that gives vivid color to a woolen silk or cotton garment, in the hands of a physician, protects the life and health of human beings.

Among the several dyes used daily in medical practice are phenol red, to test the degree of efficiency of the kidneys; eosin, for the blood count; scarlet red, for indoluria, and methylene blue for the treatment of carbon monoxide poisoning.

An assignment to make synthetic quinoline from the cheap workable product known as coal tar unexpectedly made the youthful William Henry Perkin the discoverer of the synthetic dye.

Perkin's discovery started the chemical world to deriving other dyes and chemists from the lovely coal tar. A synthetic indigo was the goal. To Adolph Beyer goes the credit for establishing the structure of the indigo molecule and the completion of the process necessary for its production from coal.

Party Prize Frock for a Little Girl

PATTERN

"They all liked my new frock!" this little girl will be certain to say when she returns from the party—a triumphant little miss. For this dress is different. It boasts a double yoke. The second yoke is cut all in one with the pleats. And puffed sleeves are a deliciously youthful fashion. Moreover, young mothers will find this pattern no trouble at all to follow—they'll probably make it up in several cotton prints. The coat will be nominal. We suggest a apric print or possibly a small polka dot pattern—in gay colors! Bloomers are included in the pattern. Pattern 9259 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric. Complete diagrammed sew chart included. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE. Send your order to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

"George Washington Tubbs," said the judge, sternly, "you're entirely no-account and shiftless—and I'm going to send you away for a year with hard labor." "Please, Judge," interrupted Mrs. Tubbs from the rear of the courtroom, "will you Honah Jes kinder split dat sentence? Don't send him away from home, but let dat hard labor stand." Convenience "Do you read everything that is said about you?" "Yes," said Senator Sorghum. "It saves me trouble. When I want to use bad language I find it before my eyes. I don't need to bother with a book of synonyms." Terrible! Terrible! Did you hear the joke I played on my wife?" "Not unless you refer to your getting her to marry you."
