POWER LINE TO BE EXTENDED

The Kentucky Power Co. has contracted with the citizens of Elkaville, Nepton and Ewing to extend their power lines to those places from Flemingsburg, and work is to commence within the next thirty days and be pushed to completion within a short time. The good people of those communities are to be congratulated upon this forward movement, and we think they will have no cause to regret their action. There has been a rumor that work was to begin at once on the extension of the power line from here via Poplar Plains, Hillsboro and Ringo's Mills to Morehead, but while this is in contemplation, we are told by those who should know, that so far no definite plans have been perfected. — Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

Got Something You Want to Sell?

Many people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want. These things are put in the store, or stored in the barn, or left lying about, going to waste and lost value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

Many things which have become of no use to you, can be sold for cash. A verse from the Bible: Do not sell one to another, seeing that ye have not sold the old man with his deeds.

TUSSEY'S LINIMENT

This Liniment is a Perfect Cure. One half pint of faith, one half pint of virtue, one half pint of knowledge, one half pint of patience, one half pint of temperance, one half pint of godliness, one half pint of brotherly kindness, one half pint of charity, one good resolution, well shaken together three times a day with prayer, will cure the devil's rheumatism, evil eye, blasphemy, grumbling, back-biting, tobacco habit, deceit, kill the nerves of prejudice, and purifies the blood, and if we get the worst man there is to use this prescription it will restore him back to manhood and respectability with God and man, and it will make him love his own wife better, he will want to put them under the same treatment. Now if you can get this remedy used in homes of this county and country it will cause the lasses to wear full dresses, stop theater-going, cleanse your heart from lechered corruption, and preserves your soul blameless; it will stop men's wives from joy riding with other men. Shake well before using, rub until it affects the heart, keep this up 45 days in a year, and if it don't cure you, you can bankrupt heaven. The above was handed us by Judge H. Tussey with request to publish, so don't blame the editor if the Liniment hurts.

LADIES NIGHT AT KIWANIS CLUB

The regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Monday evening, at the Classical church, was observed as "Ladies Night." The best attendance of the year being present. The program began with singing by the club led by Luster Blair, after which the Normal School quartet gave two selections. Miss Wilson spoke on "Supervised Play" following the musical numbers. She deflected play to the adult becomes his hobby. One of the finest pages of history is that which records the first athletic contest. But supervision or directed play is absolutely necessary for otherwise there is little room for development, and the natural leader will always be pushing to the front, and there will be no opportunity to develop the latent leadership in the other children. Unless supervised the playground becomes merely a loafing ground. There exists too great a chasm between youth and age, too many don't and, not enough do. Morehead needs such supervised play, and a playground would offer one of the best training places for the youth of Morehead.

A NEW "SPOTLIGHT"

We are in receipt of "Kentucky Power Spotlight," printed at Augusta, Ky., by the Kentucky Power Co. This is a four page pamphlet which contains news concerning the progress of the Co. and the doing of their employees. One page entitled "Static From Morehead," was especially interesting as it contained news from the local plant.

The following editorial by President Waters was in the Spotlight and no interesting to us that we want to pass it on to our readers:

President Waters says:—Probably one of the most familiar proverbs is "He who hesitates is lost." We are not familiar with the reason for this proverb having been written, but we do know that here is no saying carrying as much truth and force as it does when applied to business life in America today.

Procrastination is the besetting of a large number of people, and it is the reason for the majority of people never realizing their ambition "to get on" in life.

DO IT NOW is a motto which can be capitalized by every member of this organization. When you are given an order, DO IT NOW! When you have a report to make, DO IT NOW! When you have a particular job to be done, DO IT NOW!

A man who needs to be told only to do a certain thing is a valuable man and one whose worth the company will recognize promptly. Your own success depends entirely upon the confidence which the company can place in you, and that confidence will largely be based upon ideas which are anything turned over to you will be DONE NOW.

Adopt the slogan, DO IT NOW, as the cardinal principle of your work.

SIMPLIFYING HOME SEWING

If you do much sewing at home for yourself or your daughters, a foundation pattern for each one will simplify the cutting and designing of simple dresses, suggests the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. By that is meant an individually fitted plain pattern with normal seam lines, neck, and armholes, which may be used as a fitting guide for checking commercial patterns and as a basis for designing decorative features. Such a permanent foundation pattern is best made in a firm cotton material. Unbleached muslin, cambric, or gingham is satisfactory for the purpose. The commercial pattern that seems best suited to the individual type of figure should be followed. It must first be carefully tested before the cloth pattern is cut.

SHE ADVISES JUNE BRIDES HOW TO LOOK BRIDE-LIKE

June brides, supposed to be more beautiful than the dawn, are liable to look like the morning after. At least, that's the opinion of Hazel Rawson Cades, beauty editor of Farm and Fireside magazine, who offers suggestions to the bride-to-be.

A strenuous round of pre-nuptial parties isn't going to improve any bride's looks. Miss Cades warns. Every June bride should be made to go to bed and get a good night's sleep the night before her wedding. A warm bath sweetly scented with bath salts, a drowsy rub down, a generous powdering and a glass of milk will prove relaxing.

It's a wise bride who spends the morning of her wedding at a beauty parlor. There's no better way for making sure that you look your loveliest and keeping your mind occupied so that you don't get nervous. If your hair takes a day or two to settle down after a shampoo have it attended to before the day of days. If you want a "permanent" it's best to have it in plenty of time beforehand so that the furziness is softened.

An extra amount of makeup is a safe way for brides to hide their pallor. If you feel pale give yourself a quick stimulating facial just before the ceremony. The bride who finds pure white costumes trying may wear a flesh slip or a soft cream colored veil and gown. Comfortable clothing, especially comfortable shoes, are of the utmost importance to the bride. Finishing shoes have carried many a bride to the altar with a look that might have been interpreted as a slap at matrimony.

Select the toilet preparations that you take on your honeymoon with great care—not too many—they frighten a man. Choose tricky ones with just enough fragrance.

ELECTRIC IRON TRAGEDIES

Invited to suggest "new uses for an electric iron," 500 housewives have written to the editor of the Woman's Home Companion. The matter of trying an egg on the bottom of an iron is a favorite suggestion. One devoted reader burned the baby's coat propping up the iron. Another lady tells of trying to warm a bed with an electric iron, with this result: "Warmest bed you ever saw—or smelled; next time I shall use asbestos sheets."

THE WISDOM OF "AUNTIE"

As I stepped in to see a friend the other day, I encountered "Auntie"—one of those characters we have all met who consider themselves privileged to dispense information and advice by reason of long acquaintance with the family and are "tolerated" by the family for the same reason.

"My friend was saying to her—'Auntie, what do you think the Hills are doing?'"

"I can't imagine, what now?" "Well, Teddy has teased them so long for a pony and rig that they're letting the insurance policy that they have been carrying for his education/lapse, to get him one next Christmas. They have talked it over and think it is the best way to discipline him. They chose that means because they thought he would see the foolishness of it after they told him he could not have both; they thought surely he would see that college would mean so much more to him in the end. He said he didn't care, he wanted the pony."

"Of course he did, any child would. Poor sort of discipline, I call it. It won't help him when he has outgrown the pony and wants to go to college."

"It is foolish, isn't it? I tell you if we could afford to carry insurance for Billy we'd never let it lapse for a silly whim of his."

"Just here Billy came rushing in. 'Now, Billy, I think a nickel is plenty.'"

"'Aw, Mother, that's not being a sport. You said I could be in a sport. You then, here it is, now, run along.'"

"Then to Auntie and me she said, 'Children are getting so these days that they are constantly demanding something and each time more than the last!'"

"I'm surprised that you gave it to him," said Auntie.

"But Auntie, he only buys candy with it and they say a bit of candy is not harmful!'"

"It won't make him any healthier if he gets it at the corner store of his own choosing and eats it all hours of the day."

"My dear, do you know he says you are not a bit better than the Hills you've been criticizing? You are using the very money you say you can't afford for a policy for him to satisfy an immediate desire and rob him of his heritage of good health at the same time. You are failing in discipline, just as they are, and then you wonder why he demands so much. What else can you expect?"

Having given her opinion, Auntie went on her way.

"My friend turned to me and said, 'You must not mind Auntie, she is always offering suggestions, but we never pay much attention to her.'"

"Just the same," I said, in a light manner to soften my words, "she dispenses wisdom. It would be a robbery if every family had such an Auntie."

"Perhaps you are right," she answered thoughtfully.

And I left my friend to meditate.

See the graduates who are going out into the world and finding out how right she was.

PUREBRED-SIRE SPECIAL

INTERESTS 75,000 FARMERS A traveling exhibit in the interests of livestock improvement in Kentucky recently completed an unusually effective tour of the State, according to a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture early in June from Wayland Rhoads, field agent in animal husbandry, University of Kentucky.

The 'Purebred-Sire Special' made 52 stops in 46 counties and resulted in the replacement of 46 grade and scrub bulls with selected purebreds. Three stops were made a day, about two and one-half hours being allotted to each town visited. "A total of about 75,000 people saw this train," Mr. Rhoads stated, "and I believe all of them were able to get the idea of the value of purebred sires. In the end of one car were two steers, one of them a scrub, a 2-year-old and the other a high-grade 2-year-old. The scrub steer sold for $17 and the high grade $85. The sire of the high-grade steer was a purebred best bull."

Interest in extending the use of purebred sires, thus improving the quality of Kentucky livestock, was evident from the large number of public-interest breeders and organizations that consigned registered bulls to be exchanged for scrubs. There were 46 such consignors and the bulls included the principal beef and dairy breeds.

The 'Purebred-Sire Special' was operated under the auspices of the agricultural committee of the Kentucky Bankers' Association over two railroad systems. The United States Department of Agriculture made available a supply of educational literature on animal breeding and the utility value of purebred livestock, supplementing the live-animal exhibits and other features prepared by the Kentucky Experiment Station and the Louisville Board of Trade. In addition to the cattle carried by the 'Purebred-Sire Special,' the train carried the State champion ton-lifter sow.

THE LAW OF HUMAN LIFE
(From the Chicago Journal of Commerce.)
All men, at some period, long to live in a Garden of Eden, and work for years to be able to have means and leisure, only to learn when able to retire on an abundant income that work alone yields them real happiness. The ancient sentence: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground," is found to be not a curse, but a blessing.
If any one thing has been demonstrated in human affairs it is that work makes worth, and that leisure subjects men to constant temptation. Regular employment alone makes men useful and keeps them

In a Bad Fix from INDIGESTION
'I had suffered with indigestion for 6 years,' says Mr. H. C. Dove, R.F.D. 4, Chester, S.C. 'I had gotten to the place where I could hardly eat a thing—everything hurt me. I had smothering spells and fall off 20 pounds. I was in a bad fix.
'I read of Black-Draught and decided to try it. I do not believe that I would have been living today had it not been for Black-Draught. I had gotten to where I only ate milk and crackers, but after taking Black-Draught I began to eat and gradually got my appetite back. I gained in weight and felt better. I had not had a bad spell of indigestion in ten months.
Theford's Black-Draught is prepared in a powder from medicinal roots and herbs. In use over 88 years.

CONTROL METHODS FOR MOLES IN LAWNS

The problem of mole control is rather that of getting rid of individual animals that are giving trouble on lawns than one of killing all moles indiscriminately for moles eat what the creditable gardener feeds large numbers of injurious insects and their larvae. Trapping, according to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, is the surest and most practicable method. The traps in common use which give the best results all depend upon one sort of mechanism for releasing the spring; that is, a broad trigger-pan intended to rest directly over a depressed spot in the mole's runway when the trap is set.

As the mole heaves up the depressed portion of the runway in its attempts to repair it, the contrivance designed to kill him is released. It may be of the spike type or two pairs of adorsorial jaws that close firmly across the runway. As these traps can be set without introducing anything into the runway to excite the mole's suspicion, success or failure in the use depends largely upon the operator's observation and knowledge of the mole's habits. Small steel traps or ordinary snap mouse traps are useless, as the mole will burrow either under or to one side of the trap.

No dependable method of poisoning moles has thus far been worked out. Some degree of success has been obtained with ralsins, grasshoppers, bits of meat, and soaked corn, poisoned with strychnine and introduced into the runways. Caustic lime, introduced in spoonful doses through small holes made into the runway every 8 to 10 feet, has proved effective. The holes should be closed after the lime is dropped in.

Calcium cyanide dust, blown into the burrows with a dust gun made for the purpose, will kill the animal if it reaches it. Repeated leveling of the mole ridges with a heavy roller is advised on any lawn injured by moles.

ARMY PLANE FLIES SAFELY

REAR FLIERS WERE SAFELY First to make the 2,400-mile flight between San Francisco and Honolulu, the U. S. Army Flyers, Lieutenants Lester J. Mattland and Albert Hegeberger, arrived there at 6:29 a. m. Wednesday.

The army flyers who left Oakland, Cal., at 7:39 a. m. Tuesday finished their flight in 26 hours and 50 minutes.

Throuth their long flight they had been reported seen only once—by the steamer Sonoma, when 750 miles from the California coast.

The army flyers came in through bright sunshine that had cleared away the rain gloom of the night that shrouded their landing place.

Thousands who had waited thru the long night had begun to disperse when Mattland and Hegeberger came through the haze to a triumphant landing.

BYRD'S PLANE SPINNING ACROSS OCEAN TO PARIS Richard E. Byrd's giant monoplane, "The America," was speeding across the Atlantic ocean toward Ireland early this morning on the first scientific adventure in non-stop ocean flight.

The America was going strong at 12:30 a. m., eastern daylight time, according to a message received from the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Corporation of America, which reported that the automatic signals from the plane could be heard distinctly. It was estimated that the plane was about 1,400 miles from the Chatham station, but a much smaller distance from the Newfoundland coast, where the plane left sight of land and struck out toward Ireland.

The plane left New York yesterday morning and is expected to reach Paris sometime today. Four passengers are on board.

ARE YOU? GUILTY?

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accused by a local dealer.

"Why didn't you say that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and holds up the locality."

The farmer looked at the merchant in momentary confusion and said:

"Why don't you patronize your home store and advertise? I need it and didn't know that you had the need? I have here."

WHY Inoculation Is Recommended in Hay Fever

Nobody really knows why the tiny grains of pollen filling the summer air affect the nose and throat of some people more than others. But many children and even adults suffer from hay fever every year, and for them the sowing of the grasses is a time of agony.

Application to the nose of fumes or substances sprinkled on the handkerchief gives some relief during the acute stages, and it is generally found that sea air effects an almost instantaneous cure. Recent experiments however, indicate that the complaint is due principally to some obscure chemical in the pollen grains which, when they fall upon the moist membrane of the nose or throat, absorb water, swell, burst and scatter the minute particles of the chemical they contain.

Many doctors now think that inoculation is the most satisfactory treatment for hay fever, but to be successful, this necessitates an examination of the pollen involved in each individual case. A serum which counteracts the activity of the chemical to which the mischief is due is then prepared and a series of injections given to the sufferer. It is claimed that this treatment has already yielded good results.

Why Advent of Whites Has Benefited Negroes

The white man's invasion and occupation of Africa has been very beneficial to the colored native population, asserts Wynant Davis Hubbard in an article in Liberty. "Since the white man's advent," the writer points out, "the negroes have increased enormously in numbers and wealth. Where formerly they hid in their villages and grain patches in remote spots so that raiding parties would not find them and destroy them," the writer explains, "they now surround their huts with acres and acres of grain, pumpkins, peanuts and cassava."

"Their herds of oxen, goats and sheep are numerous. Almost every village has at least twenty cattle and fifty goats and sheep. And there is a village within ten miles of any given point on the plateau of Africa. Today there is land available for every purpose. The natives may graze their herds or cultivate their fields virtually wherever they please."

Why Forests Are Needed

It is estimated that one-fourth of the rain which falls upon a forest is intercepted by leaves and branches of the trees; this water never reaches the ground as most of it is evaporated. Of that water which does get to the ground some is taken up by plants and transferred to the air again, some becoming cloud water, and some trickles away through the soil. A forest cover is important in reducing the surface run-off and changing it to underground seepage, because the underbrush and trunks offer mechanical obstruction, and these, together with duff and litter on the forest floor act as sponges, though the forest covering may act more like a roof. Furthermore, forests help to regulate stream flow by conserving both water and snow.

Why Airmen Chew Gum

"Chew gum and click your ears!" These are two remarkable pieces of advice contained in the latest instruction manual issued by the British air ministry to pilots in training. It appears that flying at high altitudes causes a different pressure on the outer and inner ear drums, and constant swallowing is necessary in order to equalize it. Chewing gum helps to keep the muscles of the head active in this way. Pain, temporary deafness and other ailments caused by the unequal pressure can be cured by "clicking" the ears. This strange feat is performed by pinching the nostrils and breathing outward.

Why Ice and Salt Confront

The presence of a solute tends to prevent the freezing of a solution, for freezing means the separation of a part of the pure solvent in the form of ice. Therefore solutions can be frozen only at temperatures below those of the pure solvents. A saturated salt solution freezes only at 21 degrees, to give a mixture of pure ice and pure salt, both in solid form. Hence ice and salt cannot permanently exist together above that temperature.

Why Nature Bestows Fat

Many people in middle age and beyond are the worst and most serious offenders in the new fad of reducing. Nature intentionally, with most folks, adds weight with years. The layer of fat that becomes most noticeable over the stomach is furnished for additional warmth and protection to vital organs and to compensate for the fact that with age—the body generates less warmth. A little fat, at forty, is no sign of physical degeneration.—American Magazine.

Why Rope Core Wears Out

Unless a rope has been subjected to some very unusual and severe service the core wears out sooner than the exterior, so that the condition of a rope is not always to be determined by a superficial examination. This interior wear and tear is greatly decreased by the application of tar and oil to the rope, which reduces the internal friction.

itled to the following concluding paragraph of the "Short Talks:" "Accordingly, not until they shall be guaranteed to all working women a rate not only covering their living expenses but allowing some margin for dependents or savings for emergencies, and not until shorter working hours for women prevent the expenditure of too much of their time and energy as wage earners, and not until sufficient wage to support families is paid to men, will the economic status of women in shops, mills and factories be improved and their health and happiness as individuals in the community be insured.

NEW DRESS FOR DINNER IS MADE IN AFTERNOON

Modern simplicity in dress has made it possible for women to start blithely on a new garment after lunch and have it all ready to wear at dinner, something unprecedented in home dress making, says Farm and Fireside.

Patterns overcome with ruffles and yokes, irregular lines and fancy plaits, having gone into the discard for the sake of slender effects, made this possible and the resulting simplicity is the real asset that is sought. Large women, especially, have benefited by the combination of simplicity and fast-on. They, even more than slender women, should avoid fanciness in frocks, so, in the prevailing rules, they accomplish, something that not only becomes them but have exactly the same type of garment that the slender woman would want. The ideal dress is full enough throughout to be comfortable, hanging easily from the shoulders and not appearing tight at any point. Another advantage for the large woman is the narrow belt, which is more youthful and more flattering than the wider one.

Fashion's demand for simplicity in silhouette also demands simplicity in textures and subdued color tones, which again works to the advantage of the large woman and relieves her of the air of having arranged for an effect to make her appear thinner than she really is. Soft, limp fabrics, challis or the soft, non-crushable linens, or any of the soft cottons such as voile or a fine qualityingham, crepe de Chine or other crepe materials in the silk family, are adaptable to the simple frock for women of any figure. Of course, the old advice against large and sharply defined patterns still holds good for larger women, but it is almost entirely inapplicable to the slender woman's simple frock for it is likely to spell the effect of slenderness even for her.

"Wages should be established on the basis of occupation and not on the basis of sex or race. The minimum wage rate should cover the cost of living in health and decency, instead of a bare existence, and should allow for dependents and not merely for the individual."

If you want luck I'll tell you how to get it.

Get busy with the task you have to do.

Fortune some day will find you if you let it.

But you must draw the goddess onto you.

Learn this one fact of which there's no denying.

Luck never finds the chap who isn't trying.

If you are very eager to be lucky then first you must be willing to be true.

Must prove in times of trial that you're plucky.

And make the goddess keep an eye on you.

I'll drop this hint and hope that you will take it.

If you want luck, it's up to you to make it.

Most any job will do for a beginning.

The willing youth can start from any spot.

The worker always has a chance of winning.

The one who shrinks his duty, has no shot.

Get this beneath your bonnet worthy reader.

Men never choose a loafer for a leader.

Luck never comes in answer to your wishing.

Who would succeed must venture with defeat.

If you want fish you've got to go out fishing.

If you'd be great, great trials you must meet.

Fortune it seems is drawn by some attraction.

Luck always seems to favor men of action.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

John P. Riffe, Editor of the Corning (N. Y.) Leader, says:

"That American industry no longer is a one man business with room for only a few at the top. It is a hodge-podge affair divided into many specialty departments each one of which offers opportunity of the highest order to men who will think and learn and apply this specialized knowledge."

"That there is no longer any room for second class brains in American business. The rewards are going today to men who reach into a background and project into the future a service that glorifies what has heretofore been a commonplace."

"That restricted immigration and improved machinery provide more work, higher pay and shorter hours for a generation whose principal problem will be how to use this extra time, opportunity and income to the best advantage."

"That the wonderful increase in interest in every form of sport while apparently healthy mentally for the middle-aged carries with it nothing but a spectator's ticket and that was the trouble with Rome. Not until another generation will the full force of athletics be exerted on the nation's nerves and temperament."

"That all the talk about religion is an effect and not a cause. The parents in their forties today are looking for a mooring place and are missing their anchors. The nervous breakdowns of the nation are those who have found material success but found it wanting in the foundations which reconcile and balance the transition from energy to rest. The tremendous amount of life insurance in force will lay the foundaations for a higher "class life" in America just as the life-savings of generation just passed did. There is no reason to throw a fit because of and men of today step some because when they pass on four wheels are put on the old homestead and it appears on the highway as a new model automobile. Dollars here and Now are more important than Maybe.

VACATION TIME IS HERE

"Married folks must sit down and work out proper plans and make suitable compromises on this matter of the annual vacation," writes Dr. William S. Sadler in the American Magazine.

Vacations are made for wives just as much as for husbands, the doctor urges, and wives sometimes need them more. "For men are altogether too selfish about this vacation business," he suggests. "I know any number of men who see to it that they get a vacation once or twice a year, with never a thought about their wives having a vacation. Mother stays at home with the children, while father goes off to recuperate."

"It is always possible to find some place in which each member of the family can enjoy a vacation to his own liking and in accordance with his individual needs. Some can have excitement and change; others can have rest and solitude. They can have the same headquarters, but varying activities."

"The doctor has one or two suggestions that will strike a responsive chord in many a woman's heart. "I can't see the advantage of vacation parties," he says, "where a woman has to do all the work and the man has all the play. How much of an inspiration to the housewife is the view of a trying pant?"

FLOOD SURVEY COMMISSION AT WORK

The Governor of Kentucky, realizing the serious damage done by flooded rivers and smaller streams in the several sections of Kentucky in the past few months, has appointed the undersigned as a Flood Survey Commission. It is recognized that the American Red Cross has been selected by the Governor as the agency through which the people of more fortunate sections not damaged by the flood, may share with their neighbors in distress some part of the loss. The Red Cross, therefore, is the agency which has had, and will have, charge of providing food and clothing, garden and field seed, furniture and housing for those in each of the distressed communities who find themselves unable to make such provision for themselves. This Commission, therefore, urges those who are in need along any of these lines to present their cases to the nearest representative of the Red Cross, who will make a kindly investigation and extend such aid as is possible from the generous contribution of the people.

This Commission has as its duty such a survey of the damage done to the schools, bridges, roads and other public property as will enable it to make recommendations to the counties and towns involved in the disaster and also to the Governor and Legislature and to our Representative in Congress, and will give them the facts upon which they can base wise reconstructive action. We are also instructed to make such recommendations as seem wise in regard to the measures to be adopted for the prevention of future flood disasters within our own state as a part of the watershed in the Mississippi valley, so as to tie up our problem with that of the other states involved in this area.

To accomplish the important purposes of this Commission, it is selecting in each county involved a strong committee of disinterested persons who will make a careful study and report on the damage done, giving as much detail as possible. It is of special importance that these reports will be accurate and that they neither minimize nor exaggerate, as they will be reviewed by engineers trained in such matters before there will be any possibility of obtaining action by any governmental agency for assisting in their relief. The Commission recognizes that every county in Kentucky will want to do all that it possibly can to care for its own problems, but the rest of the State and the Federal Government have a right to a knowledge of the facts in this entire disaster, and where a community or county is minimum requirements for safety comfort and progress, we feel confident that a friendly relief should be extended.

To this end the Commission asks the assistance, for itself and for the county committee which will be selected in your county, of all citizens who have knowledge of relevant facts. The task is so great that we will need the advice and support of our intelligent fellow citizens. If we are to make any recommendations which will be of value to philanthropic and legislative bodies.

"LINDBERGH FLIES ALONE" Alone?

Is he alone at whose right side rides Courage, with Skill within the cockpit and Faith upon the left? Does solitude surround the brave? Does Adventure leads the way and Ambition reads the dial? Is there no company with him for whom the air is clef by Daring and the darkness is made light by Enterprise? True, the fragile bodies of his fellows did not weigh down his plane; true, the fretful minds of weaker men are lacking from his crowded cabin; but as his airship keeps her course he holds communion with those rarer spirits that inspire to intrepidity and by their sustaining potency give strength to arm's resource to mind, content to soul.

SECRETARY JARDINE LOOKS TO CO-OPERATION FOR RELIEF

At a meeting of the Kentucky Bankers Association in Lexington, Wednesday, Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine made a plea to keep the Kentucky Tobacco Growers' Association alive and advocated that co-operative marketing be taught to farm boys and girls in the rural schools, adding that "with a background of early systematic instruction we can hope that the farmers of the future will accept co-operation, not only as an efficient method of marketing products, but as a type of organization which integrates and harmonizes the whole business of farming. It will then be accepted as a way of living that will give to rural life the satisfaction and dignity that it should enjoy."

In regard to the tobacco situation, Secretary Jardine said: "During the last few years Kentucky farmers have improved their marketing methods through the use of co-operative associations, farmer-owned and farmer-controlled. Their two large tobacco associations have been among the largest in point of membership of the co-operative organized since 1920. These associations have rendered significant service to the growers in the establishment of grades for Kentucky tobacco which were acceptable to the trade and to the United States warehouse authorities, so that tobacco could be used as collateral, as was intended under the United States Warehousing Act relating to farm commodities. By means of these co-operative marketing associations have been enabled for the first time to sell their tobacco on the basis of its actual merits after it had been graded by a representative of the grower engaged in his co-operative association.

These co-operative associations have been a very effective agency in promoting education among the growers in the handling and marketing of tobacco. For that reason it is sincerely hoped that the growers will make full use of the experience in management and the knowledge they themselves have gained during the life of these associations for other improvements along these same lines. It would indeed be unfortunate if the growers, at the expiration of this contract, because of a lack of appreciation of the services which the association has rendered, should drop back to the old system of auction and selling without expert trading with all of its recognized evils. It is, therefore, my sincere desire that the new contract which the associations are attempting to formulate for submission to the growers may be so acceptable to the farmers of this state that they will carry on and build on the mistakes and successes a more efficient marketing agency, and benefit by the experience that has been derived during the last five years."

LUCK

By Hal Cochran

I haven't much faith in the little word luck, though it's true I may have some some day. I feel that accomplishment's gained when you've stooped to a thing till it comes out your way.

The fellow who waits for the gift of the fates often waits till he reaches death's gates. His work's been a drizzle with life just a flake because he was willing to wait.

If you want a rep you must bring forth your pep; you must always be up and a-doing. You'll feel a heap better if you're a go-getter and always keep something a brewing.

The fellow who reaches the top seldom preaches. He uses his head, not his voice. Instead of just blowing he's constantly showing the way to get things of his choice.

Don't just be a rover who seeks four-leaf clover. Pick a harder whenever you're stuck! You'll find you can do it, if you'll just stick to it, 'cause work works much better than luck.

It is better to inspire the heart with a noble sentiment than to teach the mind a truth of science.

HIS MAJESTY, YOUNG HUBBY.

TAKEN DOWN A PEG IN PRIDE:

July always has been the time when His Majesty, the American Young Husband, with matrimonial cares dating all the way from June behind him, browses through the magazines and glances over the perennial advice to June brides upon how to be dutiful, docile and 100 per cent pleasing to the lord and master of the household.

But this year he is taken down a peg by finding such comment as this:

"Well, little brides, how do you like being married? Has your husband started to borrow your cold cream yet?"

He gasps, but ventures another glance:

"My grandmother told me," he reads, "that when she was married her mother warned her never to let grandpa see her in curl papers. I guess she was a wise old lady. Grandpa probably would have started using them himself."

The whole article, as found in the Woman's Home Companion, breathes a similar lase majesty over the top to the exact hour when a husband may be expected to push his chair back from the table and be led into saying: "Well, Sweetie, I guess you look pretty nice tonight." Of course there is advice about neglecting any device to keep smartness and beauty, but it isn't told in the old, familiar tone of command that used to be reserved for young ladies. "Just let him see the finished product and go on wondering how it's accomplished, as he would, perhaps, before matrimony. For what they don't know they don't see they can't borrow."
