"Beginner's Mind" Student Photography Exhibit

Thirty-six color and black and white photos taken by introductory photography students last fall are featured in the "Beginner's Mind" exhibition at the Camden-Carroll Library.

The exhibit will be on display in the Athena Room from April 1 to Aug. 30.

The exhibition's name is an homage to the Zen Buddhist concept of the same name.

"Through the craft of fine art photography, students express their inherent sensitivity to the world, explore their empathy for others, and create images that embody emotions, ideas, and imaginings both personal and universal," said Dr. Robyn Moore, associate professor of photography and digital art.

The opening reception was Wednesday, April 3, from 4 to 6 p.m. Refreshments will be offered at the reception.

In the fall 2023 semester, Elizabeth Mesa-Gaido, professor of art, was approached by Stacy Scott, acquisitions librarian at the library, about having a photography exhibition in the Athena Room. Mesa-Gaido then asked Moore, who worked with Scott on the details for the exhibition.

"This exhibition will be another example of how the library and Department of Communication, Media, Art and Design can work together to promote student voices and artwork on campus," said Moore.

The exhibit will be on display during the library's regular hours. Visit the library's website for the schedule.

For more information about the "Beginner's Mind" exhibition, contact Moore at r.moore@moreheadstate.edu or call 606-783-2868.

MSPR Spring Fundraiser, Membership Drive April 8-12

Morehead State Public Radio (MSPR) held its spring fundraiser and membership drive April 8-12.

The fundraiser allowed listeners to support WMKY, Morehead State University's non-commercial public radio station at 90.3 FM. Financial gifts to MSPR help fund student work studies and locally hosted programs. Gifts also help achieve goals such as receiving funding grants from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

"The number of listeners who support MSPR improves our ability to meet criteria for grants to purchase national programs such as NPR's Morning Edition and All Things Considered," said Paul Hitchcock, MSPR general manager.

An emphasis on local and regional news continues to be an important function of MSPR. Equally important is MSPR's commitment to providing firsthand training and learning opportunities to MSU work-study students.

"It's an important part of our mission to provide student opportunities, award-winning local news, and to preserve this region's cultural heritage with programming that is educational, informative, and entertaining," said Hitchcock.

MSPR recently added more music programs to the weekend broadcast schedule. Locally hosted music programs include "Bluegrass Diversion" with John Ryster (Class of 2013) and "Pickin' Parlor" with Anabel Peterman, a senior in traditional music from Carlisle. Other newly added weekend programs include "Folk Alley," "High Country Celtic Radio," "International Americana Music Show," "Midnight Special," and "Putumayo World Music Hour."

"MSPR's diverse weekend program schedule features Americana, bluegrass, blues, Celtic, folk, and jazz music with an emphasis on musicians, songwriters, and storytellers," said Hitchcock. "Our Appalachian region has a rich heritage, and we're delighted to feature these master musicians and songwriters."

Financial gifts to the MSPR Fund support student work studies and local programming. There is also an option to designate gifts to MSPR's Enhancement Fund, providing scholarships to students at Morehead State University. Gifts to the MSPR Fund or the MSPR Enhancement Fund may be completed online at www.wmky.org.

WMKY serves more than 20 counties throughout eastern Kentucky from the MSU campus. Listeners can enjoy Morehead State Public Radio through WMKY at 90.3FM, online at www.wmky.org, by phone app, or by a smart speaker ("Play WMKY").

For more information about MSPR, email Hitchcock at p.hitchc@moreheadstate.edu or call 606-783-2334.

Gender Studies Events and Announcements

The following are some events and announcements related to Gender Studies:

On April 10: The Social Work Program conducted a Poverty Simulation in ADUC from 3:30 - 6:00 pm. See below:

Everyone participated in a poverty simulation that challenged them to think about the barriers people face when experiencing poverty in our community. Participants “lived” in poverty for a month with separate 15-minute sessions representing each of the 4 weeks of the month. Participants were assigned a role to play in the simulation and worked with their designated families to interact with community agencies and ensure that they “survived” the month by paying bills, working, caring for children, and having enough food. The simulation included a debriefing session that created a space for conversations about what participants learned from the experience.

On April 16, the student group Green Dot held a Campus Safety Walk where participants walked through campus and discussed locations designated by students as unsafe. Green Dot at MSU focuses on violence prevention and bystander intervention.

The Judy Rogers Creative Consciousness award winners were:

1st Place – Cameron McIntosh for artwork titled “I just wanna dance”

2nd place tie – Gabrielle Mattmiller for artwork titled “Queerness through Different Eyes” and Cameron Jenkins for poetry titled, “Now I Chase after Bugs now Boys”

Annual BFA Exhibition Opened April 15

Eleven Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) seniors participated in the Annual B.F.A. exhibition at the Golding-Yang Art Gallery.

The exhibit was open from April 15 to April 25.

This is potentially the largest group of seniors that has participated in the exhibition in quite some time, if not ever, according to Mike Bowen, Golding-Yang Gallery director.

“This exhibit allows each student the opportunity to showcase a unique and cohesive body of work, which is a requirement for all those earning a B.F.A. at MSU,” said Bowen. “It also prepares the students for putting on solo shows, which hopefully they will do throughout their careers.”

The reception was Wednesday, April 24, from 5 to 7 p.m. The reception was preceded by an artist discussion with the participating seniors at 3:30 p.m.

Pottery, paintings, photography printed on glass, digital art, and mixed media pieces were included in this year's exhibit.

“My favorite part of putting this show together is simply seeing the culmination of all these students' hard work and devotion to becoming better young artists,” said Bowen. “The students in the BFA program have very clear ideas of not only their work but also how they want it displayed and I get to help facilitate those ideas.”

Brooke Butler of Tarpon Springs, Florida, displayed 12 to 15 ceramic teacups, platters and vases in the exhibit.

"I think MSU's B.F.A. program is excellent. I feel well-rounded with my abilities, and I especially appreciate the professors, they all go out of their way to get to know students and make sure students are submitting their work to shows and getting the most out of their time here at MSU," said Butler. "The new addition of printmaking classes and a new graphic design professor are going to make MSU's B.F.A program elite."

The Golding-Yang Art Gallery, located within the Claypool-Young Art Building, is a pivotal educational and cultural component of the Department of Communications, Media, Art and Design, the Caudill College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences, the MSU campus and the community at large. The gallery hosts opening receptions with live music and refreshments, readings and book signings, interdisciplinary events with inter-college and community partnerships, student performances, forums, and workshops. Participatory projects are vital to gallery programming, including live performances and interactive artworks, installations, and mural projects

The gallery is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the exhibit was open to the public.

President's Concert on the Lawn was April 17

A signature musical event of the spring semester took place in April. Morehead State University presented the President's Concert on the Lawn at 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 17, in the Adron Doran University Center (ADUC). The event was free and open to the public.

The concert featured the Morehead State Steel Drum Band, a.k.a. MSU Steel, under the direction of Dr. Brian S. Mason, professor of percussion and coordinator of the percussion studies program.

Mason said MSU Steel will present music from artists like Jimmy Buffett, Santana, and Pharrell Williams while incorporating calypso music. He said the instruments played and the song selections would help concert attendees ease into the warmer months ahead.

"The steel goes really well with the Concert on the Lawn ... It's transformative for a little while," Mason said. "You hear the steel band playing some familiar tunes; you just can't help but think it's spring."

Morehead State Announced Launch of MSW Program to Meet Regional Need for Social Workers

Morehead State University is launching a Master of Social Work (MSW) program next year with the support of a $310,000 grant from the Kentucky Association of Health Plans (KAHP).

"Behavioral health and substance use disorder are major priorities for commercial and Medicaid managed care plans in the Commonwealth," said Tom Stephens, president and CEO of KAHP. "We know this investment in a great institution will help Kentucky in its efforts to enlist more well-trained social workers. To play a role in kickstarting something new is really exciting for our membership."

The grant was announced Thursday, April 11, at a press conference on campus. MSU will receive $145,000 in the first and second years and $20,000 in the third year of the grant while the social work program navigates the accreditation process with the Council on Social Work Education. MSU collaborated with Mountain Comprehensive Care and Primary Plus to apply for the grant.

"The eastern region of Kentucky has a high demand for these services but does not have enough advanced degree social workers to meet the demand. In particular, healthcare providers, recovery centers, community health centers, and other agencies in our region have expressed a need for Licensed Clinical Social Workers," said Dr. Becky Davison (Class of 2023), director of the social work program at MSU. "The intention of this partnership is to build a high-quality master's in social work program here at Morehead State University that recruits and trains social workers to serve our region and enhance the health and well-being of our local communities."

The program will offer two specialized tracks: behavioral health (clinical) and substance use disorder. The MSW program will offer a generalist track for students who still need a Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) and an advanced standing track for students who have earned BSW degrees. In addition, MSU will offer a five-year pathway to allow students to earn both a BSW and an MSW.

The program plans to launch in the fall 2025 semester, pending final approval from the Council on Postsecondary Education.

Learn more about programs in the Department of Social Work, Sociology and Criminology by emailing Department Chair Dr. Connie Hardesty at c.hardesty@moreheadstate.edu or calling 606-783-2273.

Morehead State Voice Students Won Regional Competition

Morehead State music students once again earned accolades for their talents.

Voice students of Professor of Music Dr. Roma Prindle excelled at the Mid-South Regional National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) competition.

Three students progressed to the semi-final round of online competitions, with two winning in their categories. Alura Schaum, a sophomore social studies education major from Cynthiana, Ashley Vela, a first-year music major from Lexington, and Jocelyn Goldy, a senior music education major from Morehead, qualified for the semi-final round of competition. Vela and Goldy placed in the top five singers in their category, qualifying them to compete in the national finals this coming summer at the NATS National Conference in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Erin Grace Rudd, a high school sophomore from Royalton from Prindle's studio, won in two categories (classical voice and music theater) and qualified for the NATS finals in Knoxville.

"It is so satisfying to work with our voice majors. It takes a lot of hard work and courage to enter the NATS competitions," Prindle said. "They all are winners in my book."

Digital Storytelling:
Everyone has a story to tell. In this class, students will develop their own stories as they relate to the culture of Ireland by creating photographic, audio and video projects. We will examine digital media as a tool for seeing and expressing cultural identity while visiting the Cliffs of Moher, the Giant's Causeway, seaside villages and Dublin's vibrant urban culture.
