KU Lowers Its Rates By 5 1/2 Percent

Kentucky Utilities Company's $1,000,000 a year rate reduction which will bring savings to more than 130,000 customers in their electric bills was approved this week by the Public Service Commission.

The new rates will go into effect on bills received after July 1, and will result in a saving on all bills for residential customers using more than 100 kilowatt hours a month.

The reduction amounts to about 5.5 percent of Kentucky Utilities' total residential revenue. The rate reduction, which Kentucky Utilities last month filed with the commission, is the company's way of passing on to its customers benefits that the income tax relief given Kentucky Utilities by recently enacted federal and state regulations for more liberalized depreciation allowances under the new "guidelines," W. H. Skinner, vice president, said. Other factors enabling the company to make the reduction include the trend of its customers to greater electric use through additions of appliances and electric heating, he said.

Behind the lower residential rates, the commission also approved Kentucky Utilities' proposed lower rate schedules for commercial and industrial customers. The new rates will be based on the former's outdoor lighting, full electric residential rate for customers using total electric service, including space heating. The "bottom step" in the full electric rate is one kilowatt hour in place of the previous 1 1/2 cents for all use over 1,000 kilowatt hours a month.

Raikes Resigns Post At Baptist Church

J. C. Raikes, pastor of Morehead's First Baptist Church since 1952, has resigned his post, effective July 1. Raikes submitted his resignation to the church board Sunday evening and announced he would assume the pastorate of the Day-Avenue Baptist Church in Xenia, O., Aug. 1. A native Kentuckian, Raikes has three pastorate assignments prior to coming to Morehead Nov. 1, 1952. He is an alumnus of Georgetown College and a member of the Baptist Theological Seminary. Raikes has served in various capacities on official boards and committees of the Kentucky Baptist Convention. His resignation has been taken on naming a successor.

Morehead Triangle Tower Picnic Area Developed By US Forest Service Rangers

This is the second article concerning improvements being made in the Cumberland National Forest under the Accelerated Forestry Works Program.

One of the most scenic spots in all of Eastern Kentucky is on a 1,385 feet, above-sea-level, mound that rises three miles south of Morehead. It has been officially named the Morehead Triangle Picnic Area, and is being developed into a sizeable recreation spot, available to the public without charge. The picnic facilities are about 200 feet northwest of the fire tower, one of those used by the U. S. Forest Rangers as a lookout to detect fires in the national forest. Improvements, and the picnic facilities, are financed through the Accelerated Works Program fund. The park can be reached by traveling through Clearfield, near Morehead.

The winding trail is gravelled, and although narrow, the drive is not dangerous, but slow. Most motorists blow their horns when reaching one of the sharp, almost right-angle turns, as they are about the top of the mountain. Several wide spots have been provided on the trail.

St. Claire Benefit Carnival Set Next Week End

The second annual St. Claire Hospital benefit carnival will be held in Sally Caulfield's backyard next Friday and Saturday, July 12-13, it was announced this week. Sally lives at 347 Wilson Ave., Morehead. Initiated last year by Sally, Mary Jane Hirt, Pam Vencill and Pam Hill, the carnival netted $33.56 from a spook house, penny throw, rides, a fish pond, etc., and all money gained from the affair went to the St. Claire building fund. This year's event will be conducted from 2 p.m. - 7 p.m. on Friday and 1 p.m. - 7 p.m. Saturday. Boys and girls from the neighborhood turned out in such numbers last year that traffic was nearly impeded on several occasions. The sponsors indicated this week that the affair has been enlarged and plans are to have "a bigger and better carnival."

Bath County Girl 1st Negro To IFYE; Is Sister Of Joe Hodge Of Morehead

A former 4-H Club member from Bath County has been selected as an International Farm Youth Exchange delegate (IFYE) to Malaya, according to an announcement today by Boyd Wheeler of the UK Extension 4-H Club Department, who is advisor to the Kentucky IFYE program. Carolyn Hodge, 20, will be the first Negro which Kentucky has sent abroad through the IFYE program. She is a sister of Joe Hodge of Morehead. Carolyn will leave in October to spend about six months living with rural families in Malaya. Her selection brings to five the number of Kentucky young people who are taking part in the 1963 IFYE program. The purpose of the program is to promote understanding on a "grassroots" level among people of the world. Financed by voluntary contributions from organizations, businesses and individuals, the IFYE program is sponsored by the National 4-H Club Foundation and the Cooperative Extension Service. In Kentucky, money for the program is raised mainly by the IFYE Homecoming, Wheeler points out. As an IFYE, Carolyn will learn how the people in Malaya live by actually taking part in the everyday life of her hosts. She also will tell her host families about life in the United States. When she returns to Kentucky, she will give many talks about life in her host country and about her experiences while living "a member of the family" there. This will be the first year that Malaya has participated in the two-way IFYE exchange, Wheeler said. Carolyn has exchanged in 1958, IFYE has exchanged in 1959, young people between the U.S. and 49 countries. Carolyn now is a junior at the West Kentucky Vocational School in Paducah where she is studying to be a secretary. A graduate of Paducah High School in Mt. Sterling, she also has attended Jarvis College in Hawkins, Texas.

Two Boy Scout Groups To Merge

C. R. McAllister, Council President of the Blue Grass Boy Scout Council, announced today with headquarters at Middletown and the Blue Grass Council with headquarters at Lexington, will merge effective August 15, 1963. The Blue Grass Council area includes 34 counties with 8,200 boy members. The Cumberland Council covers the area of Bell, Laurel, Harlan, Whitley, Knox, and Clay counties in Kentucky; and Claiborne and Campbell counties in Tennessee. There are currently approximately 1,100 boy members.

One Of Many Views In Tower Area

This picture was taken from the southwest corner of the Morehead Triangle picnic grounds, looking toward Farmers in Rowan County. Forest rangers say they find many film boxes on the picnic ground and also the winding road leading from Clearfield to the tower. (Other pictures page 8.)

NUMBER ONE—The first patient in Morehead's new $1,100,000 St. Claire Hospital was Mrs. Flora Buckner Gulley, 62, wife of Harvey Gulley, Route 2, Morehead. Mrs. Gulley checked in about 8:30 a.m. Monday, the first day that St. Claire was open for admission of patients. She was referred to St. Claire by Dr. C. Louise Causwell, one of the leaders in the drive for construction of the hospital. The nurse is Mrs. Pat Woolliard who lives in Tivally Hall at Morehead State College. Hospital officials said Mrs. Gulley was admitted for "evaluation for medical services." Two other patients were admitted the first day—Mrs. Grace Ford, Morehead, and Mr. Charles Mauk, Olive Hill.

Democratic Women To Meet Monday

The Rowan County Democratic Women's Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse. The group's president, Court Clerk Otis W. Elam, said all women are invited. Featured will be a discussion of the coming general election.

Colby Speaker At Big Revival

Five states — Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee — will be represented at the eighth annual First Church of God camp meeting at Prestonsburg, July 4-7. Last year's camp meeting, also held at Prestonsburg, drew an estimated 600 persons. Meals and lodging are provided free to visitors, and only a free offering is taken. The Rev. John W. Conley, of Morehead, will be the evangelist for the four-day session. The music program will be led by Mrs. Robert Kitchen, Hope, Kentucky, song director, with Mrs. Millard Geverson, Owingsville, Kentucky, as pianist.

State Police Aide Heads National Group

Kentucky State Police Lt. Spencer M. Payne, a member of the State Police Crime Laboratory, has been elected president of the Harvard Associates in Forensic Science at the group's annual convention in New York. Dr. Herbert A. Harlow, a member of the Harvard Associates for 10 years, served as first vice-president prior to his election as president. Surgeon Employed Dr. Warren Proudfoot has accepted the post of Chief Surgeon. He will come to Morehead August 1. The Coordinating Committee is active at other places — Huntington, N. J. — has the "Profession of Funeral Directors and Undertakers" in operation. The Foundation has been in contact with hospital authorities at Huntington for the past 18 months. Hunterton reported "remarkably fine success." St. Claire Medical Center is Louisville's only one in the United States handling both the "Professional Fund" and a cooperative arrangement with a large medical center as that at U.K. Dr. Hudnut, in addition to being St. Claire Medical Director, is also Chief of Cleveland, O. A "National Medicine" Dr. Hudnut is named in DeWitt, N. Y. Dr. Hudnut is Chief Resident in Medicine at Harbor Hospital in New York City. He was in training at Cooperstown from 1957-59; with the U.S. Public Health Service 1959-61; and served as Resident at Peter Bent

Hudnut To Head Morehead Staff

The "Professional Fund" plan of Northern Kentucky Hospital Foundation, Inc., became effective Monday with the opening of St. Claire Medical Center at Morehead. The Foundation's Coordinating Committee recognized almost two years ago that: (1) Specialists would be mandatory if the Morehead hospital is to furnish all the maximum health care, and also for full accreditation; and (2) The area is a shortage of general practitioners. This committee moved as follows: Created the "Professional Fund" Under this plan the specified assistants are paid from money collected and administered by the Foundation. Met many times with policy personnel at the University of Kentucky to formulate a working agreement with the U.K. Medical Center. Specialists at St. Claire will spend one day each week at the University. The staff furnishes advice and services to Morehead. Changed in effect, the name of the facility from St. Claire Hospital to St. Claire Medical Center. Finalized with Sisters of Notre Dame a working plan for the hospital and the nursing administrative and the nursing staffs seen highly qualified. With these assets, the job is now up to the physicians of the area. "St. Claire is one of the best community hospitals in all the nation," Dr. Hudnut wrote. Dr. Herbert B. Hudnut, 44, at Saint Clair, Brigham Hospital, Boston, Mass., in 1961. The Hudnut family will reside at 117 Second Street. There are two sons — Paul 4, and Kenneth 2. "The Morehead hospital is impressively modern and well constructed," Dr. Hudnut said. "The administrative and the nursing staffs seen highly qualified. With these assets, the job is now up to the physicians of the area." Dr. Hudnut is one of the best community hospitals in all the nation."

Susan Bays Delegate To FHA Affair

Susan Gale Bays, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bays Jr. of Morehead, has been selected to represent Morehead at the FHA meetings in Kentucky at the Homeowner of America meeting in Kansas City, Mo., July 7-12. Her chaperone will be Mrs. Betty High School in Pike County. The Homeowner of America Association, Mayfield, Ky. The 31 delegates will leave Louisville Sunday morning, and travel by chartered bus to the meeting. "Your Home-A-Key to the Future" will be the theme of the meeting. General sessions have been planned around spiritual and moral development and family relations and training for citizenship. Delegates will come from forty-one states including Alaska and Hawaii and from Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. They will be representing the over one-half million FHA members in the National Organization. FHA is an organization of pupils studying home economics in Junior and senior high schools. Miss Bays was selected to attend the meeting because of her interest in FHA. — Turn to last page, this section

Intensified Traffic Scrutiny Planned Here For Holiday

State Police from the Morehead post will keep a close check on traffic through the upcoming holiday period in an effort to hold the number of accidents to a minimum. That was the word this week from Sgt. Douglas Sword, commander of the Morehead post. Anticipated is heavier-than-usual flows of traffic, particularly from the north. State Police will not only be on constant patrol, but will set up roadblocks in various sections in order to check drivers and vehicles over the holiday period. Intensified efforts — including the use of a number of unmarked cars — will begin Wednesday night and continue through Sunday, Sgt. Sword said. Pointing out that Rowan County's traffic fatality toll is already higher than for 1952 than it was for all of 1962, Sword said State Police activity will be "pretty well restricted to traffic" from Wednesday through Sunday. The 1962 total is three deaths, while 1962 recorded only two. In particular, attention will be directed to drivers who are suspected of driving while drinking and drivers whose vehicles appear to be in defective condition. In the only accident investigated in Rowan County from Wednesday through Sunday, a car pulling from the curb on Morehead's West Main Street struck a pickup truck driven by John W. Conley, 31, of Morehead, striking a pickup truck driven by James Woodford Black, 45, of Morehead. Trooper James A. Farley reported that the pickup truck pulled from the curb into the path of the Conley vehicle. Black reported he did not see the oncoming car. There were no injuries. The pickup was overturned near the intersection of West Main Street with Kentucky 519 at 1 p.m. May Wednesday.

New Loan Association Sets Opening

Morehead's newest financial and saving and lending agency has tentatively scheduled its formal opening for Monday, July 1. It is the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, chartered head, Ky., operation of Morehead of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The association has been officially issued, chartering a minimum of 250 original depositors and $200,000. Depositors, generally referred to as stockholders since this is a mutual company operating under federal charter and supervision, will meet early next week to elect officers, approve management and define decision on policy. A formal opening house will tentatively scheduled Monday, July 2. Favors, souvenirs and refreshments will be given at the formal opening. Although not officially open, the association's annual meeting has been held. Applications are being accepted. An interest rate of four percent compounded semi-annually, will be paid. All deposits up to $10,000 are insured by the Federal Home Loan and Insurance Corporation. Depositors automatically have voting privileges up to 50 votes ($5,000 investment) under the mutual plan. The First Federal and Loan Association of Morehead will primarily make loans on residential property for purchase, construction and repair. However, they may approve a percentage of commercial and consumer loans. Offices will be in the former location of the Citizens Bank at James Woodford Black, 45, of Morehead. Precinct Remains Wet By One Vote The Spahr precinct of North-western Clark County remains legally "wet" Monday by the narrow margin of one vote in the 1962 election. Final results of the balloting were announced last week. There are about 730 registered voters living in the precinct and all of Clark County is legally wet with the exception of two precincts, Franklin and Kiddwell, which are in Magisterial District No. 4. They also are outside Winchester's city limits. NEW PRINCIPAL — Homer Williams, a Rowan County native, has been named principal of High School. He had been a biology instructor and head basketball coach at the school. He is the son of the late George Williams, and Mrs. Williams and formerly lived on Route 2, Morehead. Williams is a graduate of Marshall University.

G.O.P. Geared For Hard Hitting November Battle As Cooper, Morton Pace Campaign

The Republican party made its plan during the week they made a hard-hitting campaign in an effort to lure Lou Nunn as Governor in November. Nunn lashed out at Gov. Combs' executive order on integration. He said the Governor should have submitted this to the special session of the General Assembly. He said the executive order carried little weight. Seniors John Sherman Cooper and Thurston Morton announced they would be active on the behalf of Nunn and the Republican ticket. Washington newspapermen believe that Nunn's election in Southern state could result in Morton becoming a dark horse candidate for G.O.P. nomination for President. Morton is the already accepted leader of the national Republican campaign organization. Cooper will head a special advisory committee for the Republican campaign in Kentucky this fall. Making this announcement Larry Layne, Republican State Campaign Chairman, stressed Cooper's plans to advise on strategy and policy. Cooper said in accepting the appointment to head the "re-union team," headed by Judge Nunn, Bemis Lawrence, with his FBI cooperation, and former U.S. Attorney, will give Kentucky the kind of "re-union" that is needed. Morton's appointment as chairman of the all important State Finance Committee was announced today. Morton stated that he could not guarantee to even approach the lavish budget of the opposition. He was also vital to install all Kentuckians to install "New Faces in Vital Places in Frankfort." Cooper and Morton will make several speeches during the campaign, including television appearances.

Employment In State At All-Time High

An all-time high in Kentucky's nonfarm employment was reached in April 1963, State Commissioner of Economic Security Earle V. Powell has announced.

A record 689,000 Kentuckians were employed in non-farm jobs—200 more than the previous peak, which was reached last December.

Powell also said the new record was 25,300 more than were employed a year ago in April and 53,900 higher than in April 1961.

At the same time, he said, the number of workers receiving unemployment insurance payments was the lowest it has been in Kentucky in nine years. The rate in April was 5.6 insured unemployed workers for each 100 persons employed in the covered industries. This is the highest since the nation's unemployment rate peaked at 10.6 percent in 1932.

Rain Mars Law's Opera
Elaborate plans were made to entertain the President of India with an outdoor opera on the White House lawn. Rain was no respecter of persons and the event had to be moved indoors, where the President and his entourage would not fit in the east ballroom and there was no room for the orchestra. However, arrangements were made and the performance of Mozart's "Magic Flute" by the Opera Society of Washington was performed as planned for President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan.

'Let He Who Is Without Sin Cast The First Stone'

One grows tired of the hollow-throat critics of the United States, because of the race problem in the South, and in other sections too, for that matter.

The United States is trying to accept and integrate into its life and culture over 15 million African Americans. None of the self-righteous Europeans who are enjoying criticism of the United States has seen his country undertake such a task.

In addition, every one of the major European powers has a shabby record on colonialism. The Germans certainly cannot afford to speak a word in view of their racial killings and persecutions in World War II.

The French tried to hold on to their colonial empire and its advantages, for the white French over the natives, as late as a year or two ago, and only a bloody seven-year war was for Algeria tardy independence. The French tried but they couldn't maintain their special prestige and special privileges, but they did not voluntarily give up Algeria or many other colonial areas.

The Spanish, with their horrible murdering Inquisition, their present dictatorship, and their continued intolerance of any religion other than Roman Catholicism cannot do better than look to their own house and establish some freedom and democracy there. The Italians, who also practice religious intolerance, also followed dictator Mussolini, a Fascist war maker responsible for the deaths of millions.

The British have had their empire and their "bwanas" and "sahibs" for a hundred years. They still maintain much of it and, only recently had to stop the flood of colonial Negroes in England, quite understandably but nevertheless quite obviously preserving the character of the island race and its culture.

The United States faces the most difficult task of all; it is the great melting pot, now trying to integrate 15 millions of former slave people into a white, predominantly European culture of the South, which is different, the job is staggering and unprecedented; let those who are without sin cast the first stone.

Gov. Scranton May Be Wisest

Of four Republicans who were prominently mentioned as possible Republican presidential nominees a few months ago, the least mentioned name of the four today is that of Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania. And it seems that the way the Pennsylvania Governor is planning it

Many keen political observers do not feel Scranton is playing cool and being hard to get — in 1964. They think he is actually unsealable for 1964. Moreover, they believe he sees a dim future for the Republican nominee in 1964. And that may not be bad reasoning. Unless the political atmosphere in the country changes radically, the Republican presidential nominee is going to be defeated by President John F. Kennedy in 1964. Just about every indication of popularity shows Kennedy to be satisfactory to the great majority of Americans as President.

Former Vice President Richard Nixon has been eliminated. The favorite until recently, Governor Nelson Rockefeller, has encountered some stormy weather over his marriage to a divorcee. Senator Barry Goldwater, of Arizona, was zoomed into the front position, and Governor George Romney has zoomed right along behind him, gaining in popularity. So there are a few enough candidates without Scranton. He is not looking for a "draft," at the 1964 convention, associates say. They believe he is content to wait until 1968, when the Democratic nominee will be Vice President Lyndon Johnson, or some other Democrat.

So it seems that it is not nationally prominent Republicans who are looking for the spotlight in 1964. It could be a shrewd political judgment.

The Old Something For Nothing Game

The latest Gallup Poll on the question shows a majority of Americans now favor state-run lotteries as a means of raising state revenue. A sampling opinion revealed 51 percent of those asked favored the lottery, while 49 percent opposed it.

The issue is pertinent because one state, New Hampshire, recently took action to set up a state-wide lottery. Others are considering such action.

The poll showed 60 percent of the men questioned on the issue favored state-run lotteries. Women, however, opposed the idea. Protestants were split almost evenly on the question while Roman Catholics favored state lotteries by a heavy margin.

The urge to set up state lotteries comes because of the increasing pinch for revenue. Taxed income has fallen considerably if state-run lotteries were established.

Had a federal lottery been established years ago, the national debt could have been held down to a respectable level and there would have been vast sums of federal money available for such things as roads and hospitals and other public projects.

One reason to consider state lottery is the fact that gamblers now take millions from gambling citizens as do foreign lotteries. Some people will inevitably gamble, and laws will not stop them and the state might benefit from it, and this could mean lower taxes for everyone.

Letters To The Editor

Pastor Decries Local Segregation Practice

Editor, The News
In the three and one-half years that I have ministered in Morehead I have been pleased and delighted at the sincere and consistent efforts of the people to be REAL people. However, I have had an experience this week that gives me a great deal of shame and regret.
Our church was recently host to a group of thirty-three people (mostly college students) from one of our churches located in Portland, Oregon. They were with us for two days. Most of their reactions were sincerely delightful; I was a disgrace to our community when in the group with them. He is a Negro. He was my house boy. He is a person of "charge" to the Queen of England. He is a brilliant young man with a tremendous education in the West. He was refused a hair cut by five barbers in town, and refused food at some of our restaurants.
I am ashamed. I was humiliated. It is a disgrace to our community that this should be so. I had thought that this was not true in our community.
It would have made no difference to me if he had been an American Negro, because they are more precious to us than even a distinguished one from another country.
I am proud to say that it has been my privilege to lead some of our colored friends to the forgiving grace of our Saviour; we have some of them in our congregation and I am proud to be their pastor.
Most of the people I pastor were extremely perplexed by this situation. Most of them wanted to boycott the businesses that related to this man, but I am still not sure that this would be a Christian way to help bring about justice and equality.
It is time that our community squarely faced the situation, and began to do something constructive about it. It just may be that if people are afraid to cut a Negro's hair because of public opinion, the church should band together and make them afraid NOT to cut it because of public opinion.
It is my desire that everything we do be Christian and God-like. Sincerely,
John W. Conley

New Hospital Will Bring Business To Morehead Stores

We were privileged over the weekend to sit a spell with our good friend, Dr. E. Carlisle, who learned and recognized physician and surgeon at Maysville. But, when people lose their business places, don't realize the economic value of your new hospital. Dr. Carlisle, who is also serving his second term as a dedicated member of the Morehead State College Board of Regents, said:

He pointed out that members of the family, and friends visit almost every patient and while in Morehead, on foot, will spend a considerable amount of money in local business places. The new hospital, for instance, department stores, furniture houses, filling stations, etc. All seems that several years ago somebody made a survey about the business Haywood Hospital brought to Maysville, and the figures rather amazing and in the millions of dollars.
At the same time, he reported actual expenditures in 1962 established a new record $58 million for newspaper advertising. This was $5 million more than the 1961 expenditure, he said, and represented the fourth consecutive year that Sears newspaper advertising has topped $50 million.
Sears noted that in 1962 the number of Sears stores purchased increased from 625 in 1961 to 748 at the end of 1962.
In the same 15 years, Sears stores have invested more than $600 million in newspaper advertising. And the company's sales have doubled — from $2.3 billion in 1948 to $4.6 billion in 1962.
"This is tangible evidence of our continuing faith in the potency of newspaper advertising," Struthers said.

Sears Spends Ad Dollars In Newspapers

Dr. Carlisle, a strong supporter of the hospital, said that he is in his prime of Northrup Hospital Foundation, a specialist in the line with the University of Kentucky Medical Center, and the arrangement that brought Sisters of Notre Dame here to administer the facility.
"It is rare, indeed," Dr. Carlisle said, "to find a community the size of Morehead can provide such comprehensive medical services."
CORRECT NAME — A reader wants to know if the correct name is "St. Claire Hospital" or "St. Claire Medical Center." Actually, it is "St. Claire Medical Center," but generally will be called "St. Claire Hospital." We'd say either is okay, and will be in the good books.

Correct Name

FRONTIER — For that Fourth of July picnic, the Robbers Recreation Center, a triangle of Morehead, or the Washington Recreation Center, a triangle of Maysville, is not in fact for several hundred, and there should be ample outdoor fireplaces including the new type, tables, etc. Both places are being sprayed today for chiggers and insects. The U. S. Forest Service deserves orchids for these two facilities and a third (Leachery) is in the planning. These projects are something more than a passing fancy with the city. Allen G. Mauld, Incidentally, this is a bad year for the city.

Getting Old

FAST INTEGRATION — Within an hour after Gov. Combs signed his integration executive order of Morehead, a barber shop by the name of "The Barber Shop" was on the grounds that such a hair-cutting special clipper.

Your Doctor Will Recommend This

When we convinced the world is traveling at too fast a pace. Physicians attribute this to the existence of some of many heart attacks and mental illness.
At Princeton, G. M. Pedley, Princeton, mailed us a little pamphlet, written by the Archbishop of Boston, that we appropriately pass on to you. Headed, "Slow Me Down, Lord" it reads —
"Ease the pounding of my heart by quieting of my mind. Steadily my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Amid the calm confusion of the day, the calmness of the everlasting hills.
Ease the tension of my nerves and muscles with the soothing music of the singing stars. Evanescently, help me to know the magical, restorative power of sleep.
Ease the art of taking minute vacations — of slowing down to look at a flower, to chat with a dog, to read a few lines from a good book.
Remind me each day of the fact of the tortoise, that I may know that the race is not always to the swift — that there is more to life than increasing its speed.
Ease me, look upward into the branches of the towering oak and know that it grew great and strong because it grew slowly and well.
"Slow me down, Lord, and in spite of my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Steadily my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Steadily my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Steadily my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time."

Dear Mister Editor:
They ain't nothing no more that I "survived" a "comple" For instance, I see by the papers where the National March 1962 Institute has just completed a "survey" and found that the per capita consumption of noodles and macaroni by Americans in 1962 was 4.24 feet.
I think Americans has got technical in the head over this "comple" we got them Unwax things and electric brain gadgets. Here is another piece about New York outfit making a "survey" on girl watching. It shows the average cost was 6.9 billion in groups stars longer than individuals, it says. And construction workers stars at girls longer than any body else averaging about 8.2 seconds to the girl.
And this company making the "survey" has discovered that 5 percent of the American mates they're looking at are girls. Even look at a girl on the street.
And some of the Commerce Department statisticians making a survey on cigarette smoking in this country. They report that in 1962 the average man smoked the rate of 11 a day for ever American over the age of 14, and the cost was 6.9 billion in groups stars longer than individuals, it says. And construction workers stars at girls longer than any body else averaging about 8.2 seconds to the girl.

Campton Gets Nod To Construct New Water Facilities

Campton Mayor Orville Booth has announced that both the Atlanta regional office of the Accelerated Public Works Program have approved Campton's application for a federal grant of $143,000 with which to construct a municipal water plant and supply system.
The city is borrowing its local part of the construction cost. The federal grant of $142,000 represents 75 percent of the cost of the project.

Evidence On Fags Still Mounts

The American Heart Association Board of Directors recently released a warning to all cigarette smokers. It was even more blunt than recent warnings from cancer organizations.
It stated, among other things, that: "There is sufficient evidence of the harmful effects of cigarette smoking to warrant the American Heart Association and its affiliates and chapters joining with the other health agencies in educational programs to discourage cigarette smoking by the general public."
The warning came only after three years of delay and continued study, of the hints contained in many research projects and tests. The AHA did not offer the specific biological process by which cigarette smoking is thought to increase the danger of heart attack, because it is as yet undeciphered.
But it said that after being on the verge of recommending smokers cease and desist, in 1960, it had wanted to see more evidence. All that has come in since that time, the AHA reported, has tended to confirm earlier findings — that there is a relationship, between heavy cigarette smoking and increased danger of heart attack.
And in that period no information has come to light which would contradict the 1960 report and findings, it said.
Thus, added to the increased danger of lung cancer is the increased danger of heart attack for smokers. While all smokers will not give up the habit on the strength of this warning, some will.
And it becomes increasingly clear, month by month and year by year, that moderation is necessary among cigarette smokers, if they are to protect and safeguard their health. Better still, all those who can stop should stop.
Millions have. It can be done. The first step is to convince oneself that one can stop, after hearing so many claim to be unable to break the habit. All those who want to break it worse than they want to smoke (which is often the case) can stop.

State Colleges Should Offer Academic Graduate Degrees

Unreservedly and without any qualms whatsoever, we are in agreement with a recent Courier-Journal editorial entitled, "Our State Colleges - Partners Or Competitors?"

The Courier assures the postmaster is qualified to offer master's degrees in such subjects as English and history. The editorial stemmed from a decision of the State Council on Public Higher Education in April to lower the state colleges - Western, Eastern, Morehead and Murray, to issue graduate degrees in the arts and sciences as well as in education courses, (educational philosophies, teaching methods, etc.)

If a decision that we feel should have come about a long time ago. One paragraph of the Courier-Journal's editorial practice really admits this, too. It reads:

"In order to grant master's degrees in education, the colleges must offer graduate level work in non-education arts and science courses. And, as Dr. Ralph Woods of Murray College argues, since the college is offering graduate work in arts and science, graduate work shouldn't offer master's degrees in these courses."

Yes, that is absolutely a good point, and is stated by Dr. Woods in two further paragraphs. But the state colleges probably shouldn't even offer master's degrees in education. Supporting this point, the editorial stated: "It is not up to the public schools to issue graduate degrees to the colleges, which in turn feed graduates to the graduate schools at the university. The Council should explain why, if the university is able to accommodate candidates for graduate degrees, there should be any need for graduate work education in the colleges. Why, for example, when the university's college of education could accommodate three times its average graduate enrollment, should the state spend money to establish graduate programs in the state colleges?"

To our way of thinking, the state colleges are better equipped to offer M. A. degrees in education than the university's sole college of education. That is true because these state colleges were established in the first place as teacher training institutions. That has been their main purpose in the system now for over forty years. Teacher training is their specialty. And, if these state colleges are not qualified to issue higher education degrees, then neither is the university's college of education.

When the Courier-Journal paints a picture of only one school of higher learning in the Commonwealth, we are reminded of their ideas on newspapering, which establish a monopoly as far as daily press is concerned, and that monopoly is the Courier-Journal Co.

We do not doubt that the university is the only place in Kentucky to obtain a master's degree in agriculture, that is one of two schools where a law degree can be taken, or one of two situations where a medical degree is awarded. But we doubt seriously if the monopoly should extend to all fields that involve the three.

Not everyone has the desire to attend school in Lexington. And, if the greatest number of Kentucky graduate students (which are teachers) are to be benefited most, geographically and otherwise, then it is not even feasible to concentrate all graduate classes at the University of Kentucky. It would seem fully indeed for an Eastern Kentucky teacher to be required to pass through Morehead or Richmond on her way to UK for graduate study when it could be as easily obtained at either of the colleges located in those two towns.

Instead of rescinding its April order of granting the state colleges to grant master's degrees in the arts and sciences, the State Council on Public Higher Education should go one step further and allow them to offer the Specialist in Education degree which, at this time, is offered only at the University of Kentucky with 30 hours in education above the master's. Practically the same courses are offered at the state colleges, but students taking them do not receive the Specialist in Education degree. Rather, they are only upped in their teaching rank - that is what is known as Rank I. It appears to us that if 30 hours above the M. A. at UK gets the Ed. Specialist (Education) then the same rule should also apply at Eastern, Western, Murray or Morehead.

Partners or competitors? Our answer to the Courier-Journal is that they will be partners all the way, never competitors. . . that they are only asking to be allowed to cooperate with our great university in furthering service in bringing the opportunity for higher study closer home to those who yearn it most - education-hungry Kentuckians. . .

The death of Pope John XXIII may have a profound impact on the future development of relations between the Soviet Union and the Western powers. ## Accidents Rank 4th As Death Cause Among Kentucky People

(Prepared By) Kentucky Bankers Association)

Accidents rank fourth as a cause of death among Kentuckians, says the bulletin of the Kentucky State Department of Health, and more than twice as many Kentuckians died from accidents in 1960 than from the six leading communicable diseases. The principal causes of accidental deaths are motor vehicles, falls, fire and explosives, drowning, fire arms and poisoning.

On the national level the incident of accidental deaths in 1961 was 30.4 per 100,000 population but the farm rate was 58.8. Not only is farming, in itself, a hazardous occupation but chances of accidents around the farm and in urban areas in no other occupation are women, children and visitors so intimately associated with the hazards of their work and environs. Too often farm children and their guests have access to workshops, machinery, electrical equipment and storage places which in the industrial world, are available only to trained adult workers.

Especially on small family farms it is difficult to separate the tools of production from the tools of living. Even farm ponds and creeks may become dangerous, at fractive nuisances. Accidents from fire arms are more numerous on farms than cities simply because there are more places and occasions to use them in the country. Dangerous chemicals have become

HORTON-LAYNE RITES SOLHEMMENT IN OHIO

The Loveland, O. Methodist Church was the scene Saturday evening, June 22, of the wedding of Miss Sylvia Janet Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horton of Loveland, and William Joseph Layne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Layne, Morehead. The minister of the church, the Reverend M. Heininger, performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, stock, fern and lighted tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of silk organza with an oval neckline and embroidery at the midriff. The long sleeves, with rows of tiny buttons, ended in small points at the wrists and small covered buttons highlighted the front skirt was enhanced by Chantilly lace inserts and sprays of seed pearls. The fullness at the back of the waistline was caught with double loops which extended into a champagne train. Her veil of illusion tulle was attached to white flowers, surrounded by seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of carnations, white roses, lily of the valley, and Stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Miss Elaine Catechin Scher of Columbus, O., wore a floor-length dress of organza fashioned with a low oval neckline and a wide band of deep red flowers and pink maline. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations, surrounded by deep red roses.

Simple Test Can Detect Retardation

Over the next several weeks there will be a coordinated campaign throughout the state to detect and correct mental retardation for infants - aware of a simple test that can prevent a heart-breaking life of mental retardation for their babies.

The drive is being coordinated by the WHAS Crusade for Children in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Health, Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, Frankfort. The Crusade's decision to conduct the drive was made when Health Department records showed that over the first five months of this year, less than half the free testing material sent out by state with the baby's birth notification. The test kit is designed to detect the presence of phenylketonuria, a condition referred to as PKU.

Specialty prepared material is being sent to hospital, news-stands, radio and TV stations. Home Demonstration Agents, health clubs, PTAs and church groups. It is designed to focus attention on the problem of PKU and what can be done toward making possible the elimination of this type of mental retardation in the state. The campaign was suggested by Dr. Wetaia Hammond of the Division of Maternal, Infant and Preschool Services, Kentucky Department of Health. Much of the material for the campaign was prepared by WHAS's Phyllis Knuth.

Kentucky's testing program is unique. It is the nation's first on a statewide basis and, since its initiation in January, 1943, has tested 27,322 babies for PKU. Though this is barely a third of the state's live births (about 100,000 per year), authorities know that an unestimated number of those mothers are having the test conducted by their family physicians. It is those mothers who are failing to respond to the free test provided by the state and are not having the test done by a local doctor that this campaign is attempting to reach.

The free tests are conducted at Children's Hospital in Louisville at a special laboratory established for the purpose by funds from the Kentucky State Department of Health, the WHAS Crusade for Children and the Hospital.

The detection of PKU is simple. It is the treatment. But detection can only be made through an early test because mental damage has already been done by the time abnormal symptoms appear in the untested child. Further retardation can only be arrested, nothing can be corrected. On the other hand, if detected early in the infant's life - from four to 14 weeks old - damage can be avoided. Through a special diet that must be followed for the first four to six years of the child's life, he can grow to a normal, mentally alert adulthood. But the parent must see that he is given this chance - and the PKU test.

8,000 Are Expected For Fleming-Mason Annual Meeting

C. J. Ross, manager, today predicted that more than 8,000 members, families and friends of Fleming-Mason RECC will attend the group's annual meeting, Tuesday evening, July 16.

This meeting is of special significance to the 9,300 members of the Co-op in the eight county area it serves, for it was just 25 years ago this month that a group of disgruntled farmers received the first loan and began running the first power lines. Ross pointed out:

Of those pioneers, charter members and directors, Mrs. Lullie Whaley and Bess, and a number of two remaining actively engaged in the management of the Co-op. Ross has served alternately as president, director, public relations counsel and manager during his term of service, becoming manager in 1940. Mrs. Whaley has been a member of the board of directors since 1938 and served as secretary-treasurer until 1961.

The annual meeting will include a business session; the coronation of Miss Fleming-Mason RECC who will represent the Co-op at the state beauty contest; gifts, prizes and entertainment. Two directors will be elected and a new officer of the past year reported by Albert Dickson, president. Ross and James E. Smith, secretary-treasurer. There will be other features highlighting the Silver Anniversary celebration.

The meeting will begin at 6 p. m. and will be held at the RECC grounds on highway No. 22, one mile west of Flemingsburg.

TO WED - Mr. and Mrs. Homer Adkins, Morehead, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn, to Mr. Dennis Winburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Winburn, also of Morehead. The wedding will be at 7 o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 27, at the First Baptist Church of Morehead. Open church will be observed.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

Those who had tried unsuccessfully to hold a convention at Frankfort were now being called "Peace Democrats" to distinguish them from the Union Democrats. They were called Peace Democrats and Southern sympathizers before the war and during Kentucky's period of neutrality. A good many others who had later joined them out of exasperation at Federal interference and resentment of what they considered to be growing radicalism in the North. They had been brought ever since the military had broken up their Frankfort meeting to put together a ticket to oppose the "Union Democrats," but it was not until June 1862 that they devised a means of doing so.

William F. Bullcock, John H. Hays, Nathaniel Welch, William Kayser, William Dudley, Joshua F. Bullitt and others composed a committee that called upon former Gov. Wickliffe and asked him to become their candidate for governor. They were disappointed that they were not endorsed by the United States, saying, "We hold this position to be unjustified as a reason of its inception, and a dissolution of the Union the greatest of calamities." He was suspended a month after this assurance had been given to his aims that the president had respected old citizens consented to make the race.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

By Joe Jordan
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week the Democratic Party had a candidate for governor of Kentucky - Charles Anderson Wickliffe of Bardonia, 75 years old, a veteran of the War of 1812. He had been elected lieutenant governor 27 years previously and served as governor for the remaining eight months of the term. He had been president of the General under President John Tyler, 1841 to 1845, had served seven terms in the Kentucky legislature and five terms in the U. S. Congress.

The Democrats, it will be recalled, had attempted to hold a state convention at Frankfort in February of 1862 to nominate candidates for state offices, but had been dispersed by the Union Army force under Col. E. G. Gilbert, who ordered them to return and refrain from "seditious and noisy conversation."

Meantime, the supporters of the Union effort, who called themselves Union Democrats because of the unpopularity of the tucklers, had conducted a storm convention at Louisville in March of 1862. After taking more than a month to think it over, they had announced that they would accept the nomination of Col. Thomas E. Bramm, commanding officer of the Third Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment, to head the "Union Democratic" ticket. Bramlette took the position that of two evils, the Lincoln administration and a Confederate victory, the former was preferable. "If Lincoln will not change his policy, we have no power to compel him," Bramlette said, "and we must correct these evils or see into others which are far worse."

SHIP PLANS HALTED

The atomic submarine Tinosa - a ship built on the lost Thresher - has been halted on the assembly line. The Navy confirmed that the postponement of the assembly had it declined to give an effect. It is possible the Tinosa program has been suspended for a reason. The findings of the court of inquiry that has been investigating the Thresher loss are completed.

Legislature Gives Its Approval To Bill Aiding Five Hospitals

Kentucky's General Assembly has approved a bill to enable the State to aid in keeping open five United Mine Workers hospitals in Eastern Kentucky.

The House of Representatives passed the measure, 30-2, during the second week of the special session called by Gov. Bert Cobb...

The Senate passed (27-5) and sent to the House a bill introduced by Majority Leader James C. Ware, Covington, to improve the State's parole procedures...

The hospital and poll tax measures were sent to Combs for signature. The hospital bill goes into effect when signed by Combs.

Rowan Real Estate Transfers (June 25 - July 1) Earl Scott Fralcy and Elizabeth Ann Fralcy to W. W. Carr and Jewell Carr...

Army at Glasgow To Cost $278,278

The State Finance Department has awarded a contract to Ernest Simpson and W. E. Cook, Glasgow, to build a Kentucky National Guard Armory at Glasgow for $278,278.

The armory will house the Headquarters Battery of the 4th Howitzer Battalion (Self-Propelled), of the 138th Artillery, Kentucky National Guard.

eligible for parole. "As matters stand now," Palmore said, "the prisoner is coming out more criminal than when he went in."

Under the hospital act, a non-profit, non-sectarian corporation, or authority, will be created to operate the five U. M. W. hospitals. The authority, to be set up by the National Board of Missions of the United Presbyterians Church...

At the hearing on the parole bill, Court of Appeals Judge John S. Falmore said the measure approaches the concept of the indeterminate sentence, whereby the jury sets a maximum sentence and the parole board decides the time when the prisoner is ready for parole.

Because of a decline in coal mining employment and deficits accumulated at the hospitals due to an increased number of indigent patients, the U. M. W. had decided to close the hospitals July 1. This action would have left Eastern Kentucky areas without adequate hospital services.

Rabies Warning Issued In State

Many of Kentucky's approximately 600,000 dogs are not protected against rabies, according to the State Department of Health. Health officials estimate that there is one dog for every six persons in the state, and yet only 30,000 to 35,000 are vaccinated each year.

Many county health departments now help owners to protect pets against rabies by holding clinics where the animals can be vaccinated. Private veterinarians worked in these clinics and receive a minimum fee for their services in this fight against rabies.

Figures indicate that some 1,000 Kentuckians annually take the Pasteur treatment to prevent rabies after being exposed to the disease. There is usually great discomfort and inconvenience involved with the 14-day long treatment which totally costs over $200 per year. This amount could easily be cut in half if current knowledge about rabies control were put into effect.

One of the biggest problems in controlling the disease is that the threat of rabies knows no season. Stray animals present. Stray dogs and cats can be a special menace unless every effort is made to pick up and dispose of such animals.

Family Outings Are Encouraged

The Morehead Triangle Tower Picnic Ground has 10 full family units, plus five portable units, plus a group that found this delightful spot maintained by the U.S. Forest Service. It is about three miles south of Morehead. Camping is prohibited, but is available at Robburn Park, a mile east of Morehead. (Story on page 1.)

Triangle Tower--

Almost all of Rowan County can be viewed from the Triangle Picnic Area. On a clear day one can see Mt. Sterling's water tower, 40 miles to the west, with the naked eye.

Joe Mauk, U. S. Forest Fire Marshal, and one of the men most active in developing the site, terms this "perhaps the most beautiful view in all of Rowan County," or the entire Cumberland Forest.

Many have already found the spot and are using it for picnics, outings and family reunions.

Consists Of 3 Acres

Salient points about the Morehead Triangle Picnic Area --

The three mile route from U. S. 60 in West Morehead will soon have directional markers.

The picnic area consists of about three acres, all almost level on top of the mountain. There is room for expansion.

The three acres have been improved with the clearing of all brush, seeding of grass and laying gravel walks. The grounds are periodically sprayed with DDT, or other insecticides, to eliminate chiggers and bugs.

The picnic area overlooks a natural cliff. Six hundred feet of cyclone fencing has been erected at the edge of the cliff to protect children. A rustic fence is on the west edge of the picnic site. This provides the best view of the Cumberland forest, and mountains.

Toilet facilities, with septic tanks, have been installed. These toilets are kept cleaned and sprayed.

Visitors may enter the forest tower for an even better long range view when a warden is on duty.

Water is provided from wells and is regularly tested. Wells were drilled only 90 feet as the mountain apparently has underground springs and the water rises from the normal watershed. Pumping fish fountain-type drinking water and a special fill container.

The picnic area has 10 outdoor fireplaces. Eight are charcoal type.

The forest service provides piles of wood, cut to proper length without cost. Firewood is prohibited from cutting any wood, picking flowers, etc.

Ten family units are available -- one for each fireplace in available. A total of 3,500 tires damaged March 1 to May 15, he said, topped the spring of 1962, when 2,675 tires damaged 29,829 acres.

The increase this year was attributed mainly to high winds and below average rainfall.

Exhibit Of Library Books Scheduled At Breckinridge

A display of new library books will be held at the Breckinridge Training School gymnasium between 8:15 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. July 8 - 12.

More than 50 publishers, who are chiefly responsible for the annual output of libraries' books are represented. They have combined forces to provide this book selection service to teachers, librarians, administrators, parents and interested citizens across the county.

Library practice students, under direction of Miss Ione M. Chapman, Miss Clara Williams and Mrs. Suzanne Boggs, will be on hand during the book exhibit. Students who will participate in the exhibit are: Bruce B. Brown, Hena Tolson, Anna D. Hancock, Patty Justice, Ada Mullins, Mildred Mullins, Wilma Mullins, Betty and Janet R. Burba. Brown is coordinator of the exhibit.

The overall collection totals 152 titles, each of which is curriculum-related and covers some 70 subject classifications. Included are the new books from picture and easy books at the primary level, to reading and literature titles for intermediate grades, new books for teen-agers, and many selected titles for young adult and adult readers. They cover every aspect of the school curriculum and all areas of interest.

Basic purpose of the exhibit is to make it possible for teachers and librarians to do a thorough and effective job of book selection in a minimum time.

40 Housing Units Are Approved For Flemingsburg

Construction of 40 low-rent housing units including six for elderly persons in Flemingsburg was assured last week with the approval of a $28,214 loan by the Public Housing Administration in Washington.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins notified the Flemingsburg Municipal Housing Commission of the loan approval in a telegram.

The housing units probably will be scattered throughout the community and will serve as homes for widows, elderly couples and low-income families, it was reported.

Spring Fire Season Was State's Worst

Kentucky experienced its severest spring forest fire season this year, according to Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlock reported this week. A total of 3,500 tires damaged March 1 to May 15, he said, topped the spring of 1962, when 2,675 tires damaged 29,829 acres.

The increase this year was attributed mainly to high winds and below average rainfall.

Bypasses Legislation

Combs' Executive Order Banning Bias Is Called 'Nation's Most Sweeping'

Gov. Bert Combs last week ordered racial discrimination ended in all state-licensed businesses and professions.

Julius Rafter, the governor's legal assistant, called the executive order the most sweeping document of its kind by any state.

It affects motels, restaurants, taverns, bars, doctors, dentists, nursing homes, funeral homes, real estate brokers, attorneys, accountants, dairy product outlets and even watchmakers.

By issuing the executive order, Combs bypassed civil rights legislation during the current special session of the legislature. Several groups were pressuring him for a law to ban discrimination in public accommodations.

But the governor told a news conference that the special session was called primarily to keep five Eastern Kentucky hospitals from closing and that lawmakers are not prepared for any integration measure.

"It is my judgment based on contact with key members of the legislature, that no effective bill could be passed at this extraordinary session," Combs said.

Should Wait

Further, he said, Kentucky should wait to see what type of civil rights legislation Congress enacts, then should try to plug any loopholes during the 1964 legislative year, which convenes in January.

In the meantime, substantial progress can be made by an executive order directed to the licensing authorities of the state," Combs said. "I have previously issued directives to guide state

Met With Leaders

A group of state Negro and white civil rights leaders met after Combs issued his order and issued a statement commending him for "employing an effective temporary weapon."

The group praised what it called the order's probability of license suspension and revocation for racial discriminatory practices. It also called for a renewed, civil rights drive in the next legislative session.

Combs indicated the pattern would be this: If a Negro is refused service at an affected establishment — or if he is ejected by police power — he may file a complaint with the licensing authority.

The licensing board then would summon the licensee to a hearing to show cause why the licensee should not be suspended or revoked. The burden of proof would fall on the licensee.

"We're going to use all the persuasive power we can to convince," Combs said. "That's the thing to do. We'll go as far as we can."

The governor's office said it had sought the advice of the attorney general's office on the feasibility of the executive order.

"We got the green light, and then some," an aide said.

An indirect outgrowth of the executive order stirred a hornet's nest in the legislature, whose members seemed otherwise relieved they would not have to deal with the problem of integration at this time.

A Senate resolution commending Combs for the order drew the wrath of Republicans who are trying to elect in November their first governor in 20 years.

The GOP caucused and came up with a demand that Combs amend the special session call to include an anti-discrimination proposal "so he can be either fish or fowl."

Rep. Scott Miller, R-Louisville, labeled the executive order "a feeble effort to do something for a group during an election year."

He said Republicans would oppose the resolution.

A similar resolution was prepared for the House, but not introduced.

Louisville Forbids

The City of Louisville, under a Republican regime, recently passed an ordinance forbidding discrimination in public accommodations.

Louisville Mayor William Cowger has challenged Combs to do as well on a statewide basis.

Kentucky and Indiana are the only states where the governor has banned discrimination in public business by executive order, the Civil Rights Commission said at Washington.

William Taylor, the commission's assistant staff director, said it isn't likely that many states will follow the action of Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs in banning racial discrimination in all businesses licensed by the state.

Taylor said about 30 states already have public accommodations laws which accomplish the same thing as the order, and the remainder are mainly Southern states which aren't likely to take that kind of action anyway."

He said an executive order of this type was likely mainly in a border state such as Kentucky, Indiana Gov. Mathew Welsh issued a similar order almost two weeks ago.

Eastern To Get New Classroom Building

The State Finance Department has signed a $4 million contract with Foster & Craighead Co. of Nashville, to build a new four-story classroom building for Eastern Kentucky State College, Richwood.

The structure, designed by Carluthers A. Coleman Jr., Lexington, will have an exterior of cut limestone. The air-conditioned building will be serviced by elevators. It will house the Commerce Department and the Graduate School.

Two Jefferson County men, R. Willis Scott of Jeffersontown and Sam Gifford of Louisville, have been selected to serve as stage director and master of ceremonies, respectively, of the second annual Kentucky Tobacco Princess Pageant to be held Sept. 6 at the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville.

June Davis, pageant coordinator and a staff member of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, said the contest will be held in Kentucky on the right to represent Kentucky in the national Queen of Tobacco contest to be held at Richmond, Va. October 25.

Scott, who directed last year's tobacco princess pageant, has also directed the Misses Kentucky County Fair contest for the Kentucky Association of Fairs and Amusement Shows for several years.

Gifford is program director of WHAS-TV in Louisville. He produces local talent shows for radio and television.

This pageant is a beauty-talent contest which figures also considered, Davis emphasized. Entrants must be between the ages of 17 and 21, unmarried, and residents of Kentucky.

Girls interested in entering the contest should contact tobacco warehousemen in their area, Davis said.

Such talents as singing, dancing, pantomime, playing musical instruments, clothes design and modeling, poetry reading and monologues are suitable for the talent segment of the contest, Davis explained.

Mass Transit Bill Opposed By Ag Group

By J. E. Stanford

A bill aimed at solving the mass transportation problems of the nation has passed the Senate and is now pending in the House. This measure has about as many objectionable features as any bill that has come before Congress in a long time.

First, it would plunge the federal government heading into a major concern which has always been regarded as the special business of the states and cities of the nation.

Next, in order to get the needed votes, the bill would include every city of 2,500 or more. That probably would double the size of the treasury in providing funds to meet the demands. The truth is that practically all the small cities and towns have not only no mass transportation problem but no mass transportation system at all. The reason that they don't need one.

It considered and tremendously expensive experiment comes from New York, Connecticut and New Jersey where three state governments have failed miserably to provide decent transportation for their citizens who must cross state lines to and from work. No measure has come before Congress in recent years that rocks more with grab-bag politics than does this.

Sen. Frank Lautner (Dem. Ohio) presented some practical alternatives to this shotgun approach before the bill was passed by the Senate. Lautner doubtless knows more about traffic problems than any other 20 Senators combined. He offered a plan which would materially help cities that need help with reasonable guarantees.

It would have prevented monetary handouts. So convincing were his arguments that the Republicans and 18 Democrats supported his point of view.

Instead of the public having to pay out many billions of dollars in taxes, the cost of a good transportation system should come through the fare box. The experience of well-governed cities like Cleveland shows that the public is willing to pay what it costs through the fare box. That is where it should come from, instead of the already overburdened federal taxpayers, including the farmers who will not get a penny from the pile of money spent.

Aides Named For Kentucky Tobacco Fete

Two Jefferson County men, R. Willis Scott of Jeffersontown and Sam Gifford of Louisville, have been selected to serve as stage director and master of ceremonies, respectively, of the second annual Kentucky Tobacco Princess Pageant to be held Sept. 6 at the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville.

June Davis, pageant coordinator and a staff member of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, said the contest will be held in Kentucky on the right to represent Kentucky in the national Queen of Tobacco contest to be held at Richmond, Va. October 25.

Scott, who directed last year's tobacco princess pageant, has also directed the Misses Kentucky County Fair contest for the Kentucky Association of Fairs and Amusement Shows for several years.

Arts, Crafts Chief Has Resigned Post

Paul R. Hadley has resigned as director of the State's Division of Arts and Crafts, James H. Nutter Jr., commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Commerce has announced.

Nutter said that Hadley, who has directed the unique program since formation of the division in Dec. 1960, left the post in July.

Quality Courts Corporation Inc. will establish franchises and obtain sites and new models for Quality Courts.

Nutter expressed regret over losing Hadley's "extremely valuable services" but added that private employment offered Hadley "broader opportunities."

Miss Susan Black, assistant director of the Division of Arts and Crafts, was named to succeed Hadley, and Corbin Meriwether, a division field supervisor, was appointed assistant director by Nutter.

With the arts and crafts unit almost two years, Miss Black, a Frankfort native, formerly held a similar position with the Central Screw Company, Frankfort. She has been active in farm product promotion through the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

Meriwether, a field supervisor since December, 1962, formerly was general manager of three western Kentucky lamp-manufacturing plants of Devena Products Company, Chicago.

In promoting the growth of the art and craft industry in Kentucky, Hadley's agency has established the "know how" for establishment of 30 craft centers, largely in depressed areas where employment opportunities are scarce.

Nutter estimated that currently at least 2,000 persons are at work making craft items, largely through the centers.

Hadley also had a hand in securing donations of equipment for the Guild Train, which was initiated with a $20,000 grant from Gov. Bert Combs. The train, a rolling display of art and craft items, includes demonstrations

Bids Sought On Road To Athletic Area

The State Highway Department this week announced it will receive bids until July 19 on construction of a road to the newly designated Morehead State College athletic field.

The distance will be just over a half-mile.

The new field will be located on the Holbrook property, east of the present athletic facility. The property, some 15 acres, was purchased recently at a cost of about $80,000.

Specifications for the road call for grade, drain and a bituminous concrete surface.

Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said the project is being financed entirely from the state road fund.

School-Prayer Suit Threatened By CLU

The Kentucky Civil Liberties Union said this week it will bring suit if the State Board of Education fails to comply with a recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing required Bible reading and prayer in public schools.

The board voted last Wednesday to instruct local school districts to "continue present practices" in reading the Bible daily to pupils until notified otherwise.

Board members said a new directive would be issued when the court ruling is clarified by the Department of Education and the attorney general.

Mrs. Priscilla Robertson of Anchorage, chairman of the ACLU, wrote State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell Butler.

"We believe that every effort to evade or sidestep the implications of this decision will have a poor effect on the minds of young children whom you are supposed to be training to respect the American form of government and especially our court system with its ideals of justice."

"Please be advised that we are prepared to bring suit if need be to gain compliance in Kentucky with the Supreme Court decision."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ray Corns, who represents the education board, said experts to study the ruling within a week or two.

"The question is now whether the Bible reading and prayer can be done on a permissive basis," Corns said. "But there are several different angles from which

Mental Health Plan Commission Chosen

A planning commission for the Kentucky Department of Mental Health has been named by Gov. Bert Combs to develop a long-range mental health plan for the State.

Stanley Bluestein, 32, has been named director of the Commission which has a $63,100 Federal grant to aid in drawing up a blueprint for all types of mental health service for all areas of Kentucky. In addition, all aspects of administration, legislation and financing of mental health programs will be studied by the Commission.

Bluestein has been a consultant with the Division of Community Services in the State Department of Health. He is a graduate of the University of Louisville and has a master's degree from the Kent School of Social Work, Louisville.

Appointed by Governor Combs to serve on the Commission are:

- Howard East, Ph.D., assistant vice-president of the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington; executive assistant in the Kentucky Department of Finance; Frank M. Gaines Jr., M.D., Louisville psychiatrist; L. O. a n Gray, M.D., superintendent of Eastern State Hospital in Lexington; W. L. Lash Hite, administrator of the Berea College Hospital in Berea; L. # New Library Unit Posts High Average Circulation Rate

The Buffalo Trace Library Region, organized only last February, is turning out some impressive statistics, the State Department of Libraries has reported.

Miss Margaret Willis, state librarian, said that the region, comprised of Nicholas, Robertson, Fleming, Bath, and Harrison counties, circulated 106,000 books during the months of March, April, and May.

Miss Willis pointed out that this is an average of 2.33 books per person for the three-month period, the highest for any newly-organized library region. Older library regions vary widely on circulation per capita, ranging up to 3.07 books per person for a comparable three-month period in a region of small, compact counties, she said.

Caudill and other members of the 31st Medical Group tested their ability to fulfill their missions under simulated combat conditions.

A clerk-typer in the group's 45th Medical Company in Germany, Caudill entered the Army in Nov. 1961 and received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. He arrived overseas in Apr. 1962.

For Fiscal '64

State Highway Expenditures Set Near $100 Million Mark

Kentucky expects to spend approximately $86 million on new roads in the fiscal year beginning July 1. Kentucky highway and bond funds will provide slightly more than $28 million of the total cost.

The disclosure came from the budget of the State Highway Department announced in Frankfort Friday by Highway Commissioner Henry Ward.

The budget contemplates the spending of $90,714,547 on federal aid roads and an additional $7,017,200 of unmatched state funds on state construction.

The federal aid construction includes $60,122,987 for work to be undertaken on Interstate highways with the state's contribution being a tenth of the total. Other federal construction projects call for $13,588,902 to be spent on federal aid primary roads; $11,576,572 on federal aid urban projects. The state will pay approximately one-half the cost of the latter projects or some $15,000,000 from its accumulated bond funds.

The road matching funds on federal projects are provided from proceeds of a bond matching fund which has a balance of more than $60,000,000 in its coffers at this time, with the state planning to spend some $21,000,000 of this sum as its contribution toward the cost of more than $90,000,000 worth of federal aid projects.

Ward announced an operating budget of $65,500,000 for all purposes as ordinary receipts from the state road fund, plus receipts from other sources and a $1,000,000 estimated surplus from the previous year's operations to raise their road total of assets to $100,437,000. The $36,500,000 figure is $10,000,000 above last year's figure.

The law requires the highway commissioner to proclaim an annual operating budget on or before July 1 of each year, based on anticipated income to be derived, and as certified by the State Department of Revenue and approved by the commissioner of finance.

The $36,500,000 normal road fund income includes $71,200,000 from the seven cents a gallon gasoline tax of which $30,300,000 is earmarked exclusively for construction and maintenance of county roads. Sales and usage taxes will account for $11,230,000; license taxes, $2,460,000 and all other taxes, $1,509,000.

The spending side of the ledger shows these items: Maintenance and bridge repairs, $28,179,638; rural secondary roads, $20,260,000; state construction, $7,137,200; debt service on outstanding bond issues, $11,838,853; rural highways, $3,000,000; statutory support of other agencies of government, $7,739,000; planning and research, $2,389,825; construction engineering, $6,231,195; materials, $2,559,743.

Non-participating federal aid jobs, $1,000,000; rights-of-way, $1,833,364; bridges, $364,236; design and location engineering, $1,712,500; real property, and development, $2,500,000; traffic engineering, $2,076,000; workmen's compensation, $200,000; claims, $26,000; toll bridge maintenance $20,419; legal, $467,274; office and engineering equipment, $257,700; roadside development, $178,000; traffic engineering, $3,076,000.

Toll facilities, $75,000; Mountain Parkway and extension, $497,729; Western-Kentucky Turnpike, $64,853; and administration, $5,066,474.

The budget program contemplates a reimbursement of $120,000 to the highway coffers from the Kentucky Turnpike, second reimbursement for maintenance and operation of the toll facility since its opening in August 1956. Last year, the turnpike, slated to become free in 1972, repaid the road fund $825,000.

The budget called for an outlay of $2,000,000 for planning and research, and the federal government is expected to repay $1,241,000 of this sum. It is anticipated that the Division of Planning will become fully staffed and be equipped to perform advanced planning functions.

The debt service item of $11-

Improper Passing Major Cause Of Accidents On Weekends

State Police records indicate accidents caused by improper passing during weekends and holiday periods take an alarming out of proportion to their normal pattern during peak traffic periods. This means that weekends and holiday periods are especially dangerous for motorists who violate highway passing laws, State Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovren warned motorists.

"Read and obey highway passing signs and you decrease your probability of having an accident," he emphasized.

"The majority of no-passing accidents last year occurred on weekends and during dry weather and daylight hours," Commissioner Lovren said. "The facts speak for themselves and they say that a holiday weekend may very likely be a fatal time to violate a no-passing law."

Pointing out that motorists should never pass in a "no-passing" zone and should be certain that in "pass-with-care" zones they have sufficient time to get back in the line of traffic, the Commissioner noted that drivers should never pass more than one or two cars in a "pass-with care" zone.

"Many tourists are on the highways during the summer months and may not be familiar with the roads," Lovren emphasized. "Drivers must use defensive driving techniques by watching the other motorist and his movements."

"It is often possible to avoid an accident by watching other drivers and leaving yourself a way out to prevent being trapped in a tight spot where an accident may occur," he said.

On a Test Ban

The Pentagon officially backs up President Kennedy's move for a nuclear test ban, but some worry is expressed privately about the possibility of a sudden Soviet technological breakthrough. Kennedy announced that Russia has agreed to a conference with the United States and British representatives in Moscow next month for another attempt at reaching a test-ban agreement.
