The writer spent Monday night of last week at Soldier. Mrs. Cossie S. Gilliland of Rowan county, had invited me to visit the school recently begun there by Miss Jessie Spencer, of Morehead Normal. R. B. Neal was master of ceremonies. He introduced Mrs. Stewart who read a paper expressing her sentiments in fering to noted men who had attained eminence, pointing out the good to be attained, and encouraging the youth of the community to sustain the work undertaken by Miss Spencer. We were much pleased with what Mrs. Stewart had to say. The writer was present at the conclusion of the address introduced us as one who was interested in the schools. It seems that the S. C. A. of Morehead and Haden Green, were present. They were pleased to speak of encouragement.

We heard of the plan of Rev. Reynolds, of the Central Christian Church at Lexington, three weeks before her arrival at the school, her coming as one of the lodges of the town.

It's too early to tell the extent of the cooperation in the management of the school by the larger towns. Miss Spencer should be encouraged, and this for the nice she has shown in education and the way she has handled the given help. We feel that Miss Spencer & Sons have been responsible for opening the sawmill. When there is no two fire-plants within a mile of the school, it is an important stopping point.

We stopped at the trains at Morehead. The wife of Dr. Wood is a heart warming story of hope, and the outgoing along comes to stay and none...

In the town is making a healthy man, and the outlook among the people is good. During such times, there have always been a wave of hope and would be much increased if facilities for caring for the students were ample.

A change has been experienced in the Rowan county by this school. To stand before the young people that assembled in this school, it is a privilege. They will not have to call at Bracken Academy but that days are shining.

We reached town on Monday, March 14, and met the Circuit Court is now in session, having convened on Monday, March 14.
