A MOTHER'S DEVOTION
 To her children is of the most beautiful things in life. When they are sick, the loving mother, who has taken the pains to study their best interests, promptly gives them Dr. Caldwell's (Iaxative) Syrup Pepsin. It quickly relieves pain and fever, and can never do anything but good. Try it. 21
 At N. M. Hudgins' Drug Store.

Mrs. Dr. J. L. McClung has been ill for the past few days.

WATCH FOR IT
 It will pay you to watch for the very first symptom of indigestion or liver trouble and to prevent the trouble from gaining headway, by quickly taking Dr. Caldwell's (Iaxative) Syrup Pepsin. Nothing is more weakening to the system than chronic dyspepsia, and all its complications. Nothing will cure it so quickly, pleasantly and surely as Syrup Pepsin. 17

UNKNOWN FRIENDS

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much towards making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the house and is widely known for its cure of diarrhoea and all forms of bow-

The discussion of the insufficiency of the President's salary has recommended, and certain facts are brought forward with which it is doubtful if the average American is acquainted. It will perhaps be news to many that, although the President's salary is $50,000, he actually receives more than twice that amount—$125,000 every year. Government appropriations yearly devoted to the executive mansion, in addition to the President's salary, are given as follows: Pay of President's private secretary, $3,250; assistant private secretary, $2,250; stenographer, $1,800; five messengers, each $1,200; two doorkeepers, each $1,200; four other clerks at $1,200; remarked while talking with the telegraph operator, $1,200; two ushers, $1,400; one night usher, $1,200; a watchman, $900. The government also furnishes a man to take care of the fire at $354 a year, a steward at $1,800, and allows two funds of $40,000 and $3,000 a year. Of the $40,000 just mentioned, $12,500 is for repairs and refurbishing the White House; $2,500 is for fuel; $4,000 for the Greenhouse; $15,000 for gas, matches, the upkeep of the stables and various miscellaneous matters. The $3,000 is for stationery, carpets, the care of the stables as distinguished from expenditures for feed, equipment and the like. The grand total, including the President's salary, is given as $125,000 a year.—Macon Telegraph.

Dr. Huff, who made note of last week as intending to locate here, is one among us. He is at present occupying the Cooper residence on Woodside avenue, and is looking around for suitable property when he will purchase the doctor will make a valuable addition to our mass of good citizens and we take the liberty of stating that we are sure he will appreciate the favor if any townsman would cite him some good property that can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

THE VERY BEST REMEDY FOR BOWEL TROUBLE.

Mr. M. F. Borroughs, an old and well known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it. This remedy is almost sure to be needed before the summer is over. Who not buy it now, and be prepared for such emergencies? For sale by M. W. Armstrong, the reliable druggist, Olive Hill.

Among the many possibilities of our town is good Gymnasium and Reading Room for our young men. We spend our evenings loafing around on the Streets or in worse employments, when we could be doing that which would strengthen our minds and bodies and better fit us for the battles of life that are before us. At a cost of a few dollars to each of us and a small monthly stipend, we could rent and furnish a set of rooms in which we could spend our evenings pleasantly, profitably and honorably, think the matter over and let us decide to do something for our betterment and for the upbuilding of ourselves.

HOW TO BREAK UP A COLD
 It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by M. W. Armstrong, the reliable druggist, Olive Hill.

San Francisco's Horror OF Earthquake and Fire

The Beautiful Pacific Coast Rent in Twain.
Immense Numbers Dead

200,000 Homeless

This appalling disaster has stunned the world. In the early dawn the ripping rocking of the earth levels high buildings and tumbles sky-scrapers to the earth. Wrecks shipping and spreads death and desolation in the Garden Spot of America.

FIRE!! Terrible fire follows the earth's upheaval, and San Francisco is to-day nothing but a tangled mass of broken buildings, fire-ridden homes and a scene of dead and dying humanity.

The Most Startling Horror in the History of our Grand Country.

In comparison with this stupendous Calamity' the Chicago Theatre Fire, the Slocum Disaster, and the Eruption of Vesuvius pale into insignificance. Right at our very door, without a moment's warning, the earth trembles and destroys the Queen City of the Pacific Coast. Indescribable terror follows, "King" Panic reigns. The fire fiend follows, and all is desolation.

The reporters for the publishers of this book were right on the spot at the time; therefore, if you want the reliable, authentic, and complete story of the great and awful San Francisco Catastrophe briefly and plainly related

Inklings

From the flourishing little city of Willard promises to visit us each week with latest happenings of that vicinity.

John Deal is firing on the work engine this week.

G. W. Peary is giving his residence and the postoffice a new coat.

Dr. Bartrum, a very successful dentist, of Greenup, will visit our little city in the near future.

M. S. Duke and family have moved from Riverton and are in the Adams property on Front Street.

Rev. Rice, of Asnland, filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Sunday.

Miss Mollie Hoston, County Superintendent of Elliott, was a visitor here last week.

Dr. H. B. Fraley and bright little son Shelly have been visiting friends and relation on Bruin.

Mrs. E. J. Horton is up from Greenup the guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming.

Misses Mayble and Kyon Peay have been visiting in Grayson the past two weeks, but are expected home this week.

Will Rupert, a gallant young man, representing the Union Grocery Co., of Greenup, was soliciting trade here last week.

S. T. Pennington is expected home from Washington, D. C. His Carter friends are ready to welcome him.

Reports come to us that our congenial friend, Ennie Kitchen, was married April 22nd. We wish them just enough clouds to cover a glorious sunset.

The patrons of our district feel very much encouraged to learn that Prof. Jay O'Danals has applied for the principal's place in the W. N. S.

Mrs. W. W. Partlow, who has been under the care of the doctor for some time, we are sorry to say is not any better.

Messrs Murry Fleming, W. A. Kitchen, Will McDavid, George Belcher were four of the eight who received equal parts of the reward for the capture of the Willard bank robbers.

W. McQuay, a leading timber man, of Prestonsburg, will accompany a party of men here this week and will go over the coal field with W. A. Kitchen and Judge Barber with intention of buying.

SATIS VERBORUM

FOLLOWING THE FLAG

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines, health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired Commissary Sergeant U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord, N. H., says: I was two years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines, and being subject to colds, I took Dr. King's Kidney Discovery for Consumption, which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we feel in the best condition in the world for combat, colds, special troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed by Dr. M. W. Armstrong's Drug Store, 50c and $1. Total health free.

Old papers for sale at office.

Willard, Ky., May 27.

Sunday, just as the dawn of day, when everything was beauty quiet and peace, the death angel with his long, sweeping robe, came gently tapping at the door of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hackworth, and took in his strong but loving arms, our pretty little friend Leona, and carried her to the father who gave her, Leona was only a little bud left here for a short time, taken to bloom in heaven.

We know words will not comfort the bereaved family, but God has told us that he would send a comforter. I lean upon Him who is able to heal the broken hearted and bear all burdens.

DEADLY SERPENT BITES

are as common in India as are stomach and liver disorders with us. For the latter however there is a sure remedy; Electric Bitters; the great restorative medicine, of which S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. D., says: "They restored my wife to perfect health, after years of suffering with dyspepsia and a chronically torpid liver." Electric Bitters cure chills and fever, malaria biliousness, lame back, kidney trouble and bladder disorders. Guaranteed by Dr. M. W. Armstrong's Drug Store, 50c. 21

We are having a good Sunday School here with a large attendance every Sunday.

Married last Sunday Earnest Qualls to Lolo' Brickles, both of this place we wish them much joy.

John Ratcliff has returned to Portsmouth where he was married to Beatha Justice of that place. Poor little maud, cheer up the loss of one is the gain of two.

Daisy Ellison returned to her home at Mt Sterling after a long visit with friends and relatives here.

Rachel Goe and Maud Hull have returned from a two weeks visit at Columbus Ohio, they report a pleasant trip.

Delbert Burchett still makes his usual calls at Riley Comptons how about it Lucy?

Lyde you look lonesome since Alfred has left, cheer up absence makes the heart grow fonder.

Mary lowe was calling on Maud Hull Sunday afternoon.

Married last Thursday Andrew Qualls to Roxie Brown of Globe, May their future life be as happy and free as the waves on the sea.

Mrs. Rosie Henderson is quite ill at this writing.

Joseph Bledsoe was visiting home folks at Rosedale Sunday.

Perry Henderson will leave Monday for Hillsboro Ky.

Mont Williams was a business visitor at John Hull's and Henry Henderson's Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Henderson is on the Sick list at this writing.

There is talk of another wedding in our vicinity, how about it Retta?

Clasud Day of Olive Hill was the pleasant caller on Miss Deana Sunday, Ollie says sweetly "I'll be happy in my own sweet home." So we are expecting another wedding soon, answer soon Ollie?

Maud you had better hurry or you will be left an old maid, for they will all soon be married.

The Negro's Vote In the South

By WILLIAM H. TAFT, Secretary of War

DECLARATIONS of equality and popular rights and universal suffrage offer but a feather's weight against THE INEVITABLE IMPULSE OF HUMAN NATURE. It was impossible that with the many diverse elements in the south there should not have been disturbance and fraud and violence and injustice and illegality and oppression. The negro's vote after a long struggle was made to count for nothing. Then the leaders of the south in many states came to realize the dreadful-demoralization of all society if law was to be flouted and FRAUD WAS TO CONSTITUTE THE BASIS OF GOVERNMENT. So they cast about to make the law square with the existing condition by property and educational qualifications which should exclude the negro. The very desire to avoid the fraudulent and violent methods which were wont to overcome the colored vote in the south itself indicates a turn for the better. It is impossible to frame a law which will on its face stand the test of the fifteenth amendment and which will not ULTIMATELY operate, no matter what the qualification or present effect, to permit A CERTAIN CLASS of the negroes to exercise the ballot.

When a class of persons are so ignorant and so subject to oppression and misleading that they are merely political children, not having the mental stature of manhood, then it can hardly be said that their voice in the government secures any benefit to them. Property and educational qualifications are adopted in order to exclude those whose lack of knowledge and lack of stability make doubtful their capacity to decide WITH SAFETY, TO THEMSELVES and the country what their own interests are. Therefore it seems to me that a policy of the southern people in adopting laws which exclude IMPARTIALLY both the black and white ignorant and irresponsible could not be criticised.

If the negro continues to increase in intelligence by the acceptance of the educational opportunities which are being offered him in great institutions and if industrially he becomes a power and this gradually increases the number of his race who are eligible to vote IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW, he introduces into the electorate a body of individuals well qualified to act with common sense and judgment and who by their very position in the community give weight to the vote they cast.

If, then, with the independence of thought and action which economic independence will surely give them, the negroes divide their votes between contending parties, their votes will be sought instead of suppressed, and the votes of the ignorant whites will be more rigorously excluded.

Money Is the Country's Menace

By HENRY WATKINSON, Journalist, Louisville, Ky.

AS slavery was the menace of the Union in 1855, money is its menace now. As slavery built up an oligarchy in the south, MONEY IS BUILDING UP A PLUTOCRACY in the east. Just as it was true that the government could not endure half free and half slave is it true that if the government does not destroy the plutocracy, THE PLUTOCRACY WILL DESTROY THE GOVERNMENT.

We Should Confess

.....All Our Faults

By MAURICE MAETERLINCK, German Playwright and Philosopher

IMAGINE Shylock capable of knowing and confessing his greed. He would cease to be greedy, and his greed would change its shape and no longer be ODDIOUS AND HURTFUL. It is not indispensible that we should correct our acknowledged faults, for there are faults that are, so to speak, NECESSARY to our existence and our character.

MANY OF OUR DEFECTS ARE THE VERY ROOTS OF OUR GOOD QUALITIES.

The purifying force of the avowal depends upon the quality of the soul that makes it and of the soul that RECEIVES it.

Once the balance is established, avowals raise the level of happiness and love.

As soon as they are confessed, old lies or new, the most serious weaknesses change into unexpected ornaments and, like beautiful statues in a park, become the SMILING WITNESSES and placid demonstrations of the clearness of the day.

We all desire to attain that blissful sincerity, but we are long fearful that those who love us should love us less if we revealed to them that which we scarcely dare reveal to ourselves.

It seems to us as though certain avowals would disfigure FOREVER the image which they have forged of us.

If it were true that the avowals would disfigure it it would be a proof that we are not loved ON THE SAME SCALE as that on which we love.

If he who receives the avowal cannot rise to the height of loving us the more for that avowal, there is a misunderstanding in our love.

It is not he who makes the avowal who should blush, but he who does not yet understand that we have overcome a wrong BY THE VERY ACT OF CONFESSING IT. It is not we, but a stranger, who now stands in the place where we committed a fault! The fault itself we have eliminated from our being.

IT NO LONGER BULLIES ANY BUT HIM WHO HESITATES TO ADMIT THAT IT BULLIES US NO LONGER. IT HAS NOTHING MORE IN COMMON WITH OUR REAL LIFE.

A Correction

EDITOR OLIVE HILL TIMES:— I desire to correct a statement in your issue May 25 concerning the Zachary-Riffle Debate which was held at this place. The article referred to is as follows: "The Zachary Riffle Debate as regards the question of the proper method of Baptism—sprinkling or immersion ended Tuesday night resulting in Riffle admitting that immersion by water was essential to salvation. This statement is false in every particular but on the contrary I denied and successfully proved to my own satisfaction at least that immersion was not taught in the Bible and that salvation did not depend upon baptism in any mode whatever."

CHAPTER IV.

IF it be true that love is the great incentive to the useless arts, the number of gentlemen who become poets for the sake of Miss Betty Carewe need not be considered extraordinary. Of all that was written of her dancing, Tom Vanvree's lines, "I Dined With Her 'Round the Lights" (which he certainly had not done when he wrote them), were perhaps next to Crayley Gray's in merit, though Tom burned his rhymes after reading them to Crayley.

As Crayley Gray never danced with Miss Carewe, it is somewhat singular that she should have been the inspiration of his availing verses in waltz measure, "Heartstrings on a Violin," the sense of which was that when a violin had played for her dancing the instrument should be shattered by wine glasses as after a great toast. However, no one except the author himself knew that Betty was the subject, for Crayley certainly did not tell her, and Miss Barraud not to his best friend, Vanvree.

It was to some degree a strange comaraderie between these two in opposite directions. They had rooms to gether in their offices in the "Marillon block" on Main street, and the lights "shone" late from their windows every night in the year. Sometimes they would meet about what the two friends were talking, for they never reached a silent intimacy, but, even after several years of companionship, were rarely seen together when not interested, often eager, conversation, so that they would talk to each other in the world. He still found to say to each other, but they were not talking, but when there was a slight hitch in the talking lamp meant that Tom sat alone, with a brief or a book, or wooed the lone hours with his jangled guitar, for Crayley's eyes were turned about the walls at merry makings and cheerfully counted themselves spectators at all that Crayley Gray held the center of the stage and the center of the plan of the pluck. Wit, poet and seigneur, the small society sometimes seemed the mere background set for his performances, and he was also enjoyed, and from the best seat in the house, for he was not content as the actor, but must be the prince in the box as well.

His friendship for Tom Vanvree was in a measure that of the vice for the oak. It was all of levities at Tom's expense, which the other bore with a grin of sympathetic comprehension or at long intervals returned Crayley with devastating effect. Vanvree was the one studious thing in his life and at the same time the only one of the young men upon whom he did not have an almost unresistible influence. In good truth, Crayley was the ringleader in all the levities of the town and had been so long in the habit of following every impulse, as matter how mad, that he enjoyed an almost perfect immunity from condemnation, and, whatever his friends had learned to say with a chuckle that it was "only Crayley Gray again."

Now and then he would spend several days in the office of Gray & Vanvree, attorneys and counselors at law, wearing an air of masculine virtue, though he did not far overstate the case when he said, "Tom, all the work and gives me all the money not to bother him when he's getting up a case."

The working member of the firm got up cases to notable effect, and few lawyers in the state enjoyed having Tom Vanvree on the other side. There was nothing about him of the floridly present at that time; he withered "oratory" before the court; he was the foe of the grand jury, and his words and the habitual voices dip at the end of a sentence, was nevertheless at times an almost fearfully effective orator. So by degrees both Crayley & Vanvree, young as it was and in spite of the idle appreciation had grown to be the most popular young men in the district. For this eminence Crayley was never accused of assuming the credit. Nor did he ever miss an opportunity of making known how much he owed to his partner. What he owed, in brief, was everything. How well Vanvree worked was demonstrated every day, but how hard he worked, only Crayley knew. The latter had grown to depend upon him for even his political beliefs and lightly followed his partner into abolitionism, though he was to risk unpopular, bitter hatred and war. Fortunately on certain occasions Vanvree had made himself so popular, so respected, at least so far that there was no longer danger of mob violence for an abolitionist in Rouseau. He was a cool, steady young man, ordinarily and possessed of an unshakable fortitude not to be tried with, though he was a quiet man and had what they called a "downy" eye, and, not in the latter, but in his dress, does not wear an echo of the boom, which affected Mr. Gray a point of attack for the

These two young men were members of a cheerful band who feasted, danced, wrangled over politics, danced, sang love and sang the choruses on summer evenings together, as young men will. Will Cummings, editor of the Rouseau Journal, was one of these. Tall, tall man, very thin, very awkward and very gentle, Mr. Cummings proved himself always ready with a word and friendly laugh for the talk with the evils in his journalistic career. He was a man of the permanent of the town when he danced. Another was Tom Vanvree, an exceedingly handsome person, somewhat languid in appearance, dainty in manner with long, offhand with men, almost as reckless as Crayley and often the latter's companion and assistant. In disapproving Young Francis Chenoweth never failed to follow both into whatever they planned. He was short and plump, and the spirit of his nose was evident with the appealing earnestness which was habitual with him. Eugene Madril was the sixth of these intimates, a dark man, whose Latin style and advertised his French ancestry as plainly as his emotionless mouth and lack of gesture betrayed the mingling of another strain.

All these and others of the town were wont to "talk politics" a great deal at the little club on Main street, and all were apt to fall foul of Tom Vanvree or Crayley Gray before the end of any discussion. For those were the days when they twisted the lion's tail in sobriety and bitter earnest, when the eagle screamed in misted light, when few men knew how to talk and many orated, when party strife was savage and bitter, when the first step toward obtaining that would be to help it to realize their absence.

This latter point of view was that of the firm, Gray & Vanvree, which was a unit in such matters. Crayley did most of the talking quite loudly.

Singular little shorts on summer evening.

These were one place to which Vanvree, seeking his friend and partner when the latter did not come home at night, could not go. This was the forenoon of the town, and it was in this apartment of the Carewe couple that Crayley was apt to be deeply occupied when he remained very quiet all day. Strange as it may seem, Crayley Gray maintained peculiar relations of intimacy with Robert Carewe in spite of the feud between Carewe and his own best friend. This intimacy, which did not necessarily imply any mutual fondness, though Crayley seemed to dislike nobody, was because of a further understanding of a sort between them. They had held earnest conversations on the street or in corners when they met, often peevish, always speaking in voices too low to be overheard, and they exercised a mysterious gradation, secret in the hearts of those who were not a part of it, so that those who were not a part of it knew that a question had been asked and answered.

These intimate relations were in the nature of a secret society, though they were observed to communicate across crowded rooms by lifted eyebrows, and of hand gestures, and of a certain look in the eye, so that those who were not a part of it knew that a question had been asked and answered.

Elsewhere in this issue of this paper will be found a short article which Rev. Cyrus Riffle, Pastor of the M. E. Church, handed me an requested us to publish, which we have done.

The article Rev. Riffle deals with was an extract from a short notice which we published in our last issue (May 25) which lines read: "The Zachary-Riffle Debate as regards the question of the proper method of Baptism—sprinkling or immersion—ended Tuesday night, resulting in Riffle admitting that immersion was essential to salvation." He makes his statement of correction in his interest, and upon the grounds that we made an absolutely false statement, or a statement false in every particular.

Now, not as a mere point of contention or that we contend that we do not make mistakes or that we are perfect, but in justice first, to ourselves and second, to our many readers who read the article referred to in our last issue and upon whose minds the article was brought to bear, and also that the latter will not be impressed or rather forced to believe, that we were at all prejudicial in the matter, or materially interested in the result of the debate or in its promulgation, so such an extent that we would be profited, financially or otherwise, in making a willfully false statement to the public, and as a majority of the attendees at the debate are readers of this paper it would have only been very, very foolish for us to have made such a statement with any such intentions, we feel that we should make a short statement of an explanatory nature.

In the first place, he makes the assertion, that the statement "is false in every particular" can not be sustained from the fact that the debate on (in substance) whether or not immersion by water is essential to salvation; did truly end Tuesday night.

Another point which we would not speak of, if it was not that our own protection from the opinion of the public, which, owing to the concession from his article of this point, would wish itself rather give our readers ample room to think that the article was really false in its entirety.

In his admission that baptism by immersion is valid, we construed the word "valid" as we best understood it and in the way that it occurred to us that he intended that it should, we considering the surrounding circumstances.

We would not have our readers think that we printed and circulated the article in our last issue with malicious intentions which the public might be led to believe or favor from the dignity of the statement and the concise manner in which the lines of "This statement is false in every particular," is written.

As best we understand, the word "valid" means, good, sufficient, something without valid (or good) exceptions. We conceived that Rev. Riffle intended the word to be used in this way or manner.

So with this explanation, we trust our readers will understand that "a different construction of the word valid" from that intended by Rev. Riffle would be a better and more suitable line in its instance than "This is a false statement in every particular."
