person. If he could not find time to do this duty, Mr. Adams and all his predecessors did, then it would have been better to have a chief clerk, whose salary was $2,500 per year...

Another office specially created is that of the "Smithsonian agent," with a salary of $2,500 a year, and furnishing a convenient return for a gentlemanly salary, who is to be discharged by ordinary correspondence, but at all events they are such as could justly be required at the hands of our government...

Let us next compare the Navy Department. Mr. Southard, who was Secretary of the Navy in 1828, employed in his Department seven clerks, besides the chief clerk...

The committee also condemn the practice of extra clerk hire. We find Mr. Dickerson not only employing extra clerks, but what is far more dangerous, paying extra hire to one of the regular clerks in the Department...

The Blue Book of 1837, shows the Navy Department, under the former Mr. Dickerson, to have paid 9,557 22 for printing in two years!

The committee also reported that a "considerable sum, varying from 100 to 200 dollars, was annually expended by the Secretary of the Navy in the purchase of books for his office, most of them having no appropriate relation to the naval service of the country...

Here is a display of the "fashionable literature" in which Mr. Secretary Dickerson has indulged himself, and which he has paid for at the public expense. I wish the gentleman would send to New York, Mr. Cambreleng, who sided in justifying the report from which I have just quoted...

were sinful. The notice was rugged and the gently whispered the words "bugger" and "damn" in the Address, in her distress, urged casual and she may be well satisfied by taking half, and leaving the rest, or by taking it all, and anxiously having it best...

By this time, I think it is apparent that the duty devolves on the gentleman from New York (Mr. Cambreleng) not only to account for his voting against the measure in regard to the composition of members, but also to explain the State's position in regard to the Executive officers themselves, whereby the country might realize what was promised by the gentleman's report—a reduction of expenditures by dividing its amount among the Departments, with safety to the public...

We understand the Commissioners for this county, Col. Wm. Rodes, Thomas A. Russell, Esq., Josiah Gay, Esq., and Dr. Joseph Komar, have had a meeting at the assistance of the county, and the assistants appointed by the county court, are now laying off the county into districts as required by the law. It is proper that Fayette, possessing a large portion of the intelligence, wealth, and influence of the State, should be thus favored...

IMPORTANT FROM SOUTH AMERICA. Buenos Ayres.—By the ship Josephine, Capt. Merry, and the barque Dyrno, Capt. Upton, the Editors of the Journal of Commerce have received Buenos Ayres papers to April 7th.

The undersigned having become the purchaser of SIR FRETFUL, with circumstances that will justify it, he will send to Philadelphia, on the 15th inst., upon such terms as will justify every farmer in procuring blooded stock. He is aware, however, that it is usual for many of those having horses of any description, to send to Philadelphia to find a good one, and thus improve upon the farming community—and by such means there is little real place in such statements; he will only submit for the present his pedigree; and he desires any gentleman who professes to know the quality of the blood in Kentucky, to point out a specimen in his blood, or to allow an inspection upon the character of the individual who signs it, being well known in Virginia, as one of high standing as a gentleman and a stock breeder.

We learn verbally from the vessels which bring this news, that the blockading squadron of the French naval force, on the station, that the Fort of Buenos Ayres and the Argentine Republic, are in a state of rigorous blockade by the French naval force. That Merchant vessels actually in port, or in the roads of Buenos Ayres, will retain the right to depart therefrom until the 10th May 1837.

In our last we notified the blockade of this port by the French squadron. As it regards the despatching of vessels, the business of the port has not been interrupted. The only precautionary measure we have heard of, is that the Captain of the Argentine force, requested as a matter of course, that the Masters of Merchant vessels will hold a communication with the blockading squadron.

The American citizens along the river coast to much of the neglect of their interests by the United States Government. American vessels having been there since September. So at least it is stated.

By land also, as well as by sea, the Buenos Ayrenes are in trouble. Some time last year they sent an army against Santa Cruz, Protector of Bolivia and Peru, under the command of General Urquiza. This was a great accumulation of power. Chile was already in a war with him, and Buenos Ayres was in a war with him, and Buenos Ayres was in a war with him, and Buenos Ayres was in a war with him...

It was rumored that an English brig bound to Peru with arms and ammunition for the army of General Santa Cruz, had been captured by the Chilean government. The Chilean government had detained the brig, and had ordered the Commodore to return to the British Consulate. [Letters received here by a commercial house, state that the Commodore had left Callao, March 10th, and was to sail on the 17th of April. This throws some doubt upon the correctness of the preceding rumors. Nevertheless, they are so circumstantially detailed, that it is difficult to believe them entirely without foundation.]

The BRAGA ORIENTAL. The struggle between the government and the revolutionaries continues with various success to either party, and runs to the country. Business is at a stand. No sales could be made, nor money collected.

IN THE RIO GRANDE. In this Province of Brazil, where a revolutionary movement has been going on for some time past, things remained in statu quo. It was reported that many of the revolutionaries had been taken by the Brazilian Government, the insurgent General in the Banda Oriental.

NATIONAL CONVENTION.—The National following authorized notice in relation to a Convention of the States.
