

Girls' Reserve Conference to be Held at Morehead

EAGLES DEFEAT SUE BENNETT; VICTIMS OF WEST VIRGINIANS

REGISTRATION RECORDS BROKEN; MANY NEW MEMBERS IN FACULTY

Dean Vaughan Delivers Address

The annual Girl Reserve Conference for Eastern Kentucky will be held at Morehead State Teachers' College on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 17, 18, 19. About one hundred delegates from the different communities in Eastern Kentucky are expected.

SUE BENNETT GAME
Morehead's Bald Eagles got away to a flying start in their opening grid engagement by decisively trouncing Sue Bennett College of London, Kentucky, by a 19-6 score in a comparatively slow game here.

New Library Building Ready By November 1

With the beginning of the new month it is expected that the library will be serving you in the new library building. That's news to students who have tried to work in the very crowded rooms that the library now occupies.

This $137,000 building will be one of the finest in the State of Kentucky. In architectural style it carries out the Tudor Gothic scheme that is used in all of the buildings on the campus. Material it differs from all the other buildings in that it is built of Bowling Green stone, trimmed in brick of the same color as our other buildings. The other buildings of the campus are of brick trimmed in the same stone of which the library is constructed. As you enter the building the library you walk on a floor of Tennessee marble and see a wainscoted wall of Italian marble and a baseboard of Georgia pine.

Considering the decided increase in the number of College freshmen, it might be concluded that Morehead is a popular school for the college beginner. The college freshman registration increased by more than fifty per cent an unusual increase in any institution. If the number of college freshmen continue to matriculate at the present remarkable rate, it will be necessary to include within the college program a "Freshman Week."

The number taking work in the Normal School Department is probably somewhat smaller than last year, due to the recent legislation concerning certificates. The fact that the college enrollment has more than made up the decrease in the Normal School Department lends strength to the statement that has been made that "Morehead is growing more rapidly than any other college in the South."

Dean Vaughan delivered an address filled with inspiration and challenge. At the beginning of his talk he stated that this College was on the threshold of one of the greatest years in the history of the institution.

He told the students that those who had entered here had entered through portals dedicated to the service of mankind. That they should enter with bowed heads, for the ground whereupon they stand is holy ground.

He continued by saying that in this school one would find many altars. The first is the altar of history's records. The second is the altar of one's own hearts with our own hands. It is a record which is written daily. Day by day opportunity will come. The third altar is the altar of learning; portals dedicated to the service of mankind. That they should enter with bowed heads, for the ground whereupon they stand is holy ground.

The first convocation of the Morehead State Teachers' College for the school year 1930-31 was held in the auditorium Wednesday, September 24. The speaker for the occasion, Dean William H. Vaughan, was introduced by the student body by President John Howard Payne.

Dean Vaughan delivered an address filled with inspiration and challenge. At the beginning of his talk he stated that this College was on the threshold of one of the greatest years in the history of the institution.

The conference is being entertained by the College and is held under the auspices of the Kentucky Christian Association. Miss Lillie V. Cromwell, secretary of the State Committee, will be in charge of the conference. Miss Curralee C. Smith, Dean of Women of the Morehead State Teachers' College, is chairman of the Conference Committee. Miss Cromwell will be assisted by various people who will have discussion groups and talks on subjects of interest to the conference. Some of the most interesting visitors will be Masuda Uno San, a young woman from Japan who is in this country on a visit. She is Young Women's Christian Association. Miss Elizabeth E. Kneeling, who spent last winter in New York at the National School of the Y. W. C. A., is present on the staff of the Louisville Association. She was formerly a Y. W. C. A. secretary in Osaka, Japan. Two other visitors are Mrs. M. H. H. Good and Miss Lois Clayton, who are visiting from the Young Women's Christian Association. Mrs. M. H. H. Good and Miss Lois Clayton are visiting from the Young Women's Christian Association. Mrs. M. H. H. Good and Miss Lois Clayton are visiting from the Young Women's Christian Association.

Early in the first quarter Downs' ankle neckers proved their ability to stop Sue Bennett's charges and at the same time make some nice little gains for themselves. Near the end of the opening cant Morehead poked the visitors' line steadily to carry the ball to the three-yard line, where they lost it on downs. Sue Bennett punted, but Kiddle in returning the punt made the netted run of the game, carrying it to the two-yard strip. Praying over on the next play for a t. d. The try was extra point failed.

The second touchdown was chalked up in the second frame when Eversole, Morehead's midleg back, blocked Sue Bennett's punt giving Morehead the chance to scoop it up and cross the goal line. Morehead also threatened in the final quarter.

FACULTY INCREASED AT THE OPENING OF FALL SEMESTER

The opening of the fall term at Morehead State Teachers' College finds numerous changes in the faculty. Approximately ten new appointments have been made to the various departments of the college. These include the addition of Miss Lillie V. Cromwell to the faculty of English, Miss Elizabeth E. Kneeling to the faculty of history, and Miss Curralee C. Smith to the faculty of physical education.

comes to Morehead with an enviable record as a teacher. She has held positions in Washington, D. C., H. S. Ohio State University and Bryn Mawr College.

She is the wife of Dale Haven, who has accepted a position at the Illinois Observatory of Mass. is Prof. Lewis Henry Horton. Prof. Horton will head the Department of Music, Oberlin College is the alma mater of Professor Horton, who joins the Morehead faculty after having been a member of the teaching staff of Oberlin College and of the State High School at Dayton, Ohio.

The second addition to the Music Department is Professor Neville Finec, who will be Director of the Band and Orchestra. Professor Finec was formerly an instructor at Lexington Senior High School and Clay City High School.

The planning of club programs for the year will be in charge of Miss Elizabeth E. Kneeling, who is the general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in Ashland. Miss Conway and Miss Mary Louise Durham, of the Louisville Conservatory of Music, will have charge of the singing and music interest groups. Other interest groups will concern recreation and sports, race relation, personal hygiene and health, social relations and handicrafts.

Every one will take a chance and say that the final quarter, the guys who get little glory and most of the kicks, showed up considerably better than the backfield. Surely they had plenty of opposing back to bow over.

The honor of being the first librarian of the new and beautiful Johnson Camden Library will go to Mrs. Alice J. Morris. Mrs. Morris is a graduate of Carroll College, later graduating from the Library School of the University of Wisconsin.

Still another altar of which Dean Vaughan spoke is the altar of knowledge. "Knowledge is power. Truth comes by the pursuit of the students. All will have an equal opportunity to grow in the knowledge of God and worship at the shrine of knowledge. This year and all other years in this College will bring the opportunity to every student a great people of all times; an opportunity to get closer to the divine. The students have the advantages of a scientific education and a liberal education, a new library, and an excellent faculty."

Registrations will begin on Friday afternoon. President John Howard Payne of the College will deliver the opening address at the conference, which will be in business session all during Saturday. A dinner will be held on Saturday evening which will be a gala event.

During the entire conference the girls of Morehead State Teachers' College will be placed into the groups of interest which have been formed. The former Girl Reserves will serve as special hostesses.

WEST LIBERTY GAME
After taking their opening tilt from Sue Bennett at Bowling Green and his "spicnik ticklers" dropped a night game to the West Liberty Normal at Wheeling, W. Va., by the rather one-sided score of 33-0, when the game was played on the West Virginia's soil and was the first game which the locals had ever played on their own soil. The boys were in some degree for the score. However, in the first half the Eagles kept the count down to 6-0, but were badly out of the throes of the 33-0 when West Liberty did all the rest of their scoring.

Now we go up another night of the game to the top floor of the building. Here at the department of the College will be temporarily housed. In addition to this department there for the use of study groups who may wish to study as a group and discuss the topic under consideration.

Player Killed In Auto Crash

Walden Spartan, 20, right end of the Sue Bennett Memorial College of London, Kentucky, who played against the Morehead squad here in the opening game, was injured fatally in an automobile accident last Saturday as he and several other members of the team were returning from a game with Eastern State Teachers' College at Richmond. The accident happened in Mt. Vernon. Witnesses said the car in which the youths were riding attempted to pass another car in the center of the road, turned over into a ditch and hit a telephone pole. Spartan's skull was fractured.

Good Old Days Some people are inclined to look back upon the good old days with envy. They can see no workings of political organizations or of Lincoln and Johnson; they believe, are the products of the twentieth century.

These good old days are often referred to in matters of finance and standards of living. Crises and hard times are thought of in relation to the twentieth century and several pieces in our development, such as those of 1857, 1873, and 1893.

More Livings are needed to carry the lamp of civilization to a darkened Africa, more scientists are essential for more practical, constructive development; more men with ambitions are needed to carry "Message to Garcia." In other words, the world is yearning for the truth.

Generosity New is the proper time, it seems to us, to stop for a moment and enumerate some of the outstanding achievements and sacrifices which have been made for the cause of the unfortunate by the American Red Cross in our country.

Last year relief was given in ninety disasters, which necessitated a total contribution of $7,200,000 from this organization. As in former years, the greatest demand was brought about by typhoids. Fire also took toll of life and property in twenty-four communities.

We have noticed where the Red Cross this week has shipped into one county alone, six hundred barrels of coal for the farmers, and plans for this charitable work must be promoted for the same of those in distress.

Dear Pat: Well, Pat I aim to take my quilt in hand and tell you some of the news about my school. They shore all right on going on to school. For the first nine or ten I couldn't sleep a wink, for all the noise at night. But I'm getting used to it now.

"PICTURES IN OUR HEADS"

The second address at conversation during this month was delivered by President John Howard Payne, September 29.

He took as his subject, "Pictures in Our Heads." The thought of the message was that between every man and his real environment is interposed a kind of pseudo environment. The President showed that the stimuli for most of man's acts come from the false environment, yet the action eventually in the real world.

Extension Department Adds New Courses Enrollment Now Reaches Over 340; Bulletins To Appear Soon

The Extension Department, under the new Director, Professor R. B. Judd, is attempting to make some changes in order to serve more efficiently the students enrolled in this department. The following new courses are offered:

Two courses in Geography.
One course in Algebra 21.
One course in Child Psychology.
Education 22, Rural School Management, is being reworked by Dr. Hoke. In addition to these courses, the department will continue to offer other courses which seem to be in demand at the present time. This phase of the Extension Department's work is serving a distinct need in this part of the State. There are over forty courses now offered with the possibility of more being added soon. The most popular courses seem to be History, Agriculture, Methods and Administration in Education, and Health Education.

Miss Virginia Ayres has been the Secretary of this Department for two years and it is due largely to her efficient handling of the records in this office that the Department of Extension has grown to its present proportion.

A gradual overhauling of the Department is now under way, under its new Director, Professor Judd, and it is said that the service rendered to the enrollment will be characterized not only by being broader in scope, but a general toning up of the Department all around.

A new bulletin will appear in the near future, setting forth the aims and objectives of the Department and the courses offered, and outlining the different branches of service offered particularly to the students of Eastern Kentucky. The Department hopes to increase its enrollment to five hundred when the types of subject matter, credits given, etc., are generally known throughout Eastern Kentucky.

To Make Great Schools

We need great buildings for great schools. We want that will stand till time is made of such stone, laid with such loveliness.
That every wall and beam will hold. And achieve more than bring her best. Her newest knowledge, latest lore. But still they may not stand the test.
Great schools must have one great thing more.
Or all our walls were laid in vain. Youth asks for reasons, not for noise. There's more than Latin to make plain.
The road of life lies just ahead, the dawn.
The road of life is here to tread—We need great souls to lead youth on.

We need great hearts to make great schools. Who reach the truth with voice and pen. Not doubtless often, cheating men. But noble women and clean men. We must have teachers who will teach. Who law and justice, right, no lie. However high our roofs may reach. We need great souls to make great schools.
—Douglas Malloch in September "Child Welfare."

A man that sturdily revege keepeth his own wounds green; who otherwise would heal and do well—Lord Bacon.

The Big Game

The third of a punted ball comes through the crisp autumn air. Every eye in those massed stands follows its spiral flight. Nerves are strained to the limit. The spectators are in perfect catch—a dash down the field and that sportsman is through for thirty yards. Scarcely had he started that the spectators are already being victory, before the spectators were rising as a gigantic wave.
Only a football game can present this sort of a spectacle. It is not flaunted before the fans of the opposition—misogones through which comes only a host of cheer-craze and crowd-parents—for the day of the football game and what else matters?
September 2, 1930, a group of over three hundred students enrolled at Morehead. For the next nine months a period of practice and instruction. At the end of that time some will be perfectly conditioned, yet many will be unable to play the game of life. A few in that group will add to their knowledge of the game, and go on playing it in a sportsmanlike manner. Others will be unable to play it at all, and will be the referee. A large percentage of the number who after a practice season will be unable to play the game will suffer the pain of being trampled because they were unprepared.
It would be interesting to know how many students in the first week of school began hitting the line according to your instructors' directions. It is these first few weeks that count. You are getting the foundation for the rest of the year. The teacher, interested, interested will grasp the necessary fundamentals.
Perhaps the slothful and indolent will wait till the last, hoping for a miracle. They will be disappointed. At that time the game will be over. The game may be won. If you do there will be only disappointments, for there will be no time to play the game. The result will be a loss of regard.
Every day while at Morehead the opportunity is before you to prepare yourself for the "game" of life. Perhaps the particular group of spectators watching you now and when you leave this institution is not and will not be large, but their interest, sympathy, love and sacrifice should be a great incentive and goal for your effort. Far too many believe that they will play the game alone, that if they lose they alone suffer. The game will be played largely alone, but the player will feel the sting of that defeat fall back upon those watching him.
Do not let this fear to determine with which you enter into the training. You will be given every opportunity and chance of success. Today you are the debtor of the State, your parents and your culture interested in you. The opportunity is before you to meet your obligations. Are you a sportsman?

Attend Louisville Y. M. C. A. Meet

Dean Henry C. Haggan, Professor E. H. Hollis and Professor Lewis H. Venable represented the College at the State Workers' Meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association in Louisville, Friday, Y. M. C. A. workers from all branches of the organization were present. The meeting was the work of the association during the coming year. The reorganization of the Y. M. C. A. at Morehead is already well under way under the able direction of the above named faculty members. The Y. M. C. A. is now being organized with entire success. President John Howard Payne has pledged his support to the organization and is lined up solidly behind the Y.
Comparatively few of the members of the Y. M. C. A. are present here, but those here from an enthusiastic response to the building of a strong Y. M. C. A. Former campus members who are now on the campus are: J. W. C. A. members are: R. K. Stallard and John Kidway.
The Y. M. C. A. will devote a considerable amount of the time of the social life of the men of the College. A series of stag parties will be held. It is to be hoped that the number of joint socials, co-operating with the Y. W. C. A. will be increased. The Y. M. C. A. will be formed under the direction of faculty sponsorship. These discussion groups are of great interest to the past and they will not lack in this year.
In all of keeping the activities of the Y. before the students, a "Picture Message" in an attractive bulletin board each week. Lessons of industry and business, character and civic betterment and poetry. Each week the student will be displayed before him a "Word Message" in an attractive bulletin board.
To aid in Y. planning and putting through these student activities a Sweet Shop is maintained in the Y. building. Your favorite candy will be found on sale and as all profits is returned to the students in some form of benefit. The Y. is urged to patronize the shoppe.

SPORTS

By "Sandy" Critcher:
"Old man injury" which has crushed many a good football squad has made himself felt heavily in the Eagles' camp, with Frayley and Maggard out of the game.
Frayley received a bad injury in the opening game with Sue Bennett and has since undergone an operation. There is little chance that he will be able to perform again this year. It certainly was a tough break for the plucky little back, who went in playing a great game against Sue Bennett even after injured.
Maggard, one of the regular ends, may not be of service to the squad this year due to his eyes going bad after the clash with West Liberty Normal, which the locals lost. Maggard has had plenty of experience, and no doubt depending expected to play heavily upon this season. His injury combined with Frayley's has caused a complete shake-up of the squad.
Hoffstetter, playing his first year of football here, and playing it like nobody's babe, has been going around with both hands bandaged since the Red Cross at Gettysburg. However, he has been playing and on it is to be hoped that the boys will not be forced to jerk him. Hoffstetter sure has been playing a mean brand of ball since he came here and we feel same in dubbing him a triple threat man.
NOT BAD
The longest putt on record in a regular game is 104 yards, but the longest completed pass is 75 yards.

The longest accounted kick from placement is 89 yards. The largest one ever made has been run up first as we know it 212 to 10. The scooper-keepers not only run out of numbers, but they also have a few more runs of over 100 yards for touchdowns. One team made 16 first downs to their opponents' 3 and still another big time squad made 20 first downs to their opponents' 3 and had the game 6-0.
It is rather a coincidence that Frayley and Maggard, both on the hospital list, scored Morehead's two 6-0's this year against Sue Bennett.

NEW RULES IN FOOTBALL

The rules on the forward passing game have been difficult for the average fan to keep up with. Here's one that is brand new this year. Many are so inclined to believe the old rule better.
Team A has the ball first and ten to go. A choice to pass is incomplete. A line back is then pulled which sets them no gain. Another pass is tried and is knocked down for the second incomplete pass in one series of down. Of course, Team A is penalized five yards. They pass again and the leave is incomplete. According to the old rule the ball went to the opposing team at the place where Team A last had possession. Instead Team A receives a penalty of five yards for another incomplete pass and loses the ball as well. According to this new rule, it is possible for a team to draw three five-yard penalties in one series of downs if their incomplete four consecutive passes.

Runs for a townshew,
Then furnished the ball.

In this age of Hoover parties, ballistics, blindfold tests, miniature golf courses and baby Austins, this column is being revived. Certainly not a very fitting environment, but what do we lack maybe the politicians can make up with still more hot air.

No piece of political work requiring as much skill and accuracy was ever pulled off than when Premier Hoover teased out the first ball at the World Series.

PUTTY OUT OF PLACE

Imagine: The new music teacher punting a football seventy-five yards.

Here's to Morehead, win or lose, may be a popular version here, but Here's to the Eagles, we'd a darn sight rather see them win.' in another folk song.

BRUTE STRENGTH VS. PERSONALITY

Which is preferable, or might ask, "Neckin' the ankles of an opposing player on the football field or just plain neckin'!"

Riddle, the risen quarterback of the Eagles, got a lotta publicity in the West Liberty Normal affair when the announcer got him mixed up with Hinfelder just when Hinfelder was gold' like nobody's business. Horf, grrrr was listening in, too, I think.

SOME DRINKS AND THEN A RUN

On being asked, "What is football's commonest scene in the big games?" we must answer, a guy up in the grandstand toasting an empty plot out on the field. For every fifty-yard run, there are five hundred and fifty drinks taken in order to furnish a lotta sweat following the fifty-yard gallop.

The most unusual incident we can think of just now is the case where the rich guy sent his pampered son off to college with the strict understanding that he was to pass all his courses and, of course (if you haven't guessed it) the son was an honor student.

The West Liberty game was just a case of another good team gone wrong, because they let the bright lights get too good a hold on them.

And that reminds us that the Eagles were in the limelight for at least one night.

If the revision of the popular song, "Get the booze when it rains," was felt in Morehead, it certainly would be like the Republicans' idea of the "Christ enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment."

WHEN I WAS A FROSH I THOUGHT: A pigskin was a sorta diploma.

FOOTBALL PROMINENCE

The saying that "The Americans are naturally a bloody lot, anyway," certainly seems as if it might carry some thought, not only judging from the fights in the Senate, but by the rapid turn over from tamer sports to the rougher game which we know as football.

During the 1929 World Series, which is the premier baseball battle of the year, a football game between University of Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh was played at Philadelphia at the same time of the World Series. The grid tiki drew almost three times as many people as the baseball game. Yet the World Series climaxed baseball, while the Penn-State game was just another big time football battle.

In the college certainly football is recognized as the leading sport. Is it that fans get a bigger thrill seeing a dashing back flash over the turf, eluding tacklers, as to witness a searing homer from the bat of Babe Ruth or some like player? Surely this must be true, yet we believe that the more skillful game is baseball.

So many people miss the finer points of baseball, while anybody can find something to cheer for in a gridiron battle royal. Yet as for me, I prefer seeing the football game and cleaning it under the head of "the battle of giants."

We're sorta puzzled why girls' football teams haven't been popularized, played and been dead long before this. Is it that the members of the weaker sex are in a state of temporary repulse?

WANTED: The guy who said the U. of K. Wildcats weren't one sweet little football team. Ye old sports scribbler saw them smash Tennessee, winner of two Southern Conference titles, to the blaring blast of 37-0. If Kentucky doesn't carry away that Southern Conference title this year, somebody has something that we know nothing about, and that something is a big something if it is to tame State.
