

How Uncle Sam Is Overloaded

WHAT is happening in every state of the Union today? The state legislatures, the state governments, instead of being virile and efficient, are becoming anything but that. State officials do not want to use the power of their state governments BECAUSE IT MEANS STATE TAXATION to pay for its exercise, which the people have to pay directly out of their pockets, and so you find officers of state governments charged with these matters coming up to the national government to ask it to do WHAT IT IS THEIR DUTY TO DO, so that they be relieved of the burden and the state relieved of the cost. I believe it was intended that the individual states of America should be sovereign states, keeping at home among the people 90 per cent of the things that affect life, liberty and property. I BELIEVE THE SAFETY OF THE COUNTRY LIES IN KEEPING SUCH GOVERNMENT AT HOME. But it is a modern tendency to come to Washington because it is easier than going to the different states; and it has gone so far now that we have the doctrine proclaimed that whatever is big, BECAUSE IT IS BIG, must be solved by the national government. We will swamp our government. We will destroy a REPRESENTATIVE government in the true sense of the term if we go along this road.

"Wealth Should Be Taxed"

I BELIEVE that wealth, which owes the greatest part of its value to the protection it gets from the government without which wealth would dwindle away, SHOULD PAY MORE toward the support of the government than the poor. I believe that every millionaire, say in excess of $10,000,000, should be taxed so that it would be almost impossible for him to accumulate more. The power of the corporations, the power of the trusts, is enormous for STIFLING COMPETITION and creating monopolies. I welcome the movement of the New York bootlicks who have started out to fight the big stores which offer everybody free shins when they buy a pair of shoes. That is part of the bootlick's profit gone. I don't believe in the man with a thousand millions. Think of the power he has, the power to ruin parties and destroy a thousand homes. WHEN WE HAVE FEWER OF THE ENORMOUSLY RICH WE SHALL HAVE FEWER POOR PEOPLE. The time will come then when we shall have an old age pension, industrial insurance, a pension for the school teachers, good healthy free city amusements, shorter hours of labor and in short a world that will be MORE LIKE HEAVEN than it is now.

ROBERT BLANKENSHIP IS SERIOUSLY SHOT.

Would-Be Assassins when called on to halt open fire on Blankenship Bros. who slept in the store.

Last Monday night shortly after midnight, burglars entered the store of J. Stamper & Co., presumably with the intention of robbing the place, but their plans miscarried to quite an extent. An entrance was gained by way of the cellar and up the steps to the store. They were making a good haul and were preparing to get away with a good portion of the spoils. They had large axes and were filing them with shoes, flour, meat and numerous other articles, amounting in all to about one hundred dollars. They were taking a long haul and one revolver were found.

Why the Railroads Dread National Rate Regulation

PROBABLY every proposal for the regulation of railroad rates ever made in this country has been vigorously resisted by the railroad interests involved. Especially has this been true of efforts to secure FEDERAL CONTROL. For many years congressional action, though demanded by popular sentiment, was prevented by the railroad lobby, and the enactment of the interstate commerce law in 1887 was but a tardy triumph for the public. In 1896 and 1897 supreme court decisions took from the interstate commerce commission its power to make rates. Since then repeated proposals to restore that power have been defeated by the inactivity of the railroad interests, ESPECIALLY IN THE SENATE. From all that has been said the attitude of the railroads can mean only one of two things. One is that they are ignorant of our legal and constitutional rights. But this is unthinkable especially in view of the grade of legal talent which they employ. THE OTHER MUST BE THE TRUTH: Their motive is not ignorance, but is one of self aggrandizement. The railroads regard the regulation would not endanger a single LEGITIMATE interest, but only extortionate exactings from shippers and the public. By their determined opposition to such regulation, they have effected a double confession—that they are present at the public rates and that they are ANXIOUS TO CONTAIN THEM. Were these two things not true, the railroads would have had no object in resisting the movements for rate control. THE MERE STATEMENT OF THIS FACT MAKES CLEAR THE EXTENT TO WHICH THEY ARE ENTITLED TO POPULAR SYMPATHY.

The South and National Affairs

THE time has arrived for the south to abandon her policy of acquiescence and self abnegation. The time is opportune for the south to assert herself AND TO PRESENT HER CANDIDATES AND PRINCIPLES equally with those of other sections to the judgment of our common country. After forty years in the wilderness we should pass out and claim our share and part in the land of our fathers. We should neither surrender our equal inheritance nor shirk OUR EQUAL RESPONSIBILITY. We should no longer be disturbed by the scars of sectional passion and prejudice. That frightful nightmare has disappeared in the dawn of the glorious day of a reunited country. The clock of opportunity strikes our hour of work and responsibility. Prudence and patriotism alike demand that we should no longer confine our political activities TO LOCAL MATTERS. Miss Maud Danner, of Grassy, is visiting her parents here at present. Fred Burchett was calling on the "fair sex" Sunday. We still invite our Emerson, Globe and Recorder correspondents to come again. "Grey Eyes." Acute attacks of colic and diarrhoea come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's services in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient before a doctor could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no family should be without it. For sale by W. M. Armstrong, the reliable druggist at Olive Hill.

SUMMER DIARRHOEA IN CHILDREN. During the hot weather of the summer months the first untimely summer loss of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the first M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by W. M. Armstrong, the reliable druggist at Olive Hill.

SOME MISTAKES. If an editor makes a mistake he has to apologize for it, but if a doctor makes one he buries it. If the editor makes one there is a lawsuit, swearing and the smell of sulphur, but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and the smell of vanilla. A doctor can use a word a yard long without knowing what it means, but if the editor uses it he has to spell it. If a doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit, but if an editor goes to see another man's wife he gets a charge of buckshot. When a doctor gets drunk, it's a case of "overcome by heat," and if he dies, it's heart trouble. When the editor gets drunk it's a case of too much booze, and if he dies it's a case of delirium tremens. Any old college can make a doctor. You can't make an editor, he has to be born.—Exchange.

BASE BALL FATALITIES. The base ball season is just about half over. In the past three months twelve men have met their death as a result of the game and over twenty have been seriously injured, some fatally. This is but a partial list, gleaned from the various press dispatches from day to day. And the list of those hurt does not include the innumerable broken legs, fingers, arms and noses received every week.—Exchange. Last Thursday, Frank Black, of Buchanan, was instantly killed eight miles south of Louisa by a stone thrown by a quarry blast, crushing his head. A wife and five children survive him. WANTED—5 or 6 active young men to assist us in selling our limited number of farms we have for sale in Texas. ## QUEER HEAD COVERINGS.

Striking Hats That Used to Be Worn in Olden Times.
Dougha, east of Morton, wears a hat it was termed by the writers of the period a "steepie" or "sugar loaf" hat and possessed a high, cone shaped crown and a narrow brim. The effect produced by such a hat upon the head of a very tall man was more striking than artistic. Strubs uses these words in describing the hats of his day: "Sometimes they use them sharp on the crown, perking up like the shaft of a steepie, standing a quarter of a yard above the crown of their heads. Some more, some less, to please the fantasies of their wavering minds. Some are of silk, some are of velvet, some of taffeta, some are velvet, some of wool, which is more curious, some of a certain kind of fine hair. These they call beaver hats, of 20, 30, 40 shillings apiece, fetched from beyond the sea, whiche a great sort of other varieties to count. And so common a thing it is that every serving man, constable and other, even all indifferently do wear these hats."
In Planché's "Cyclopaedia of Costume" is shown a high crowned hat worn by Howard, earl of Northampton, died 1611, and a decided "chimney pot" hat worn by Thomas Cecil, first earl of Exeter, died 1622. It is turned up behind and has a silk band gracefully bent in front, giving to the contour quite a "line of beauty."
A song by Heywood testifies to the value set on beaver hats in the days of Elizabeth:

The Spaniard's constant is his block,
The French merchant's hat is his cock,
But of all fets that may be felt
Give me your English beaver.
A hat called variously a copotain, capotain and copotane was worn in the reign of Elizabeth and her successor. It is usually thought that there is a strong presumption that they were hats with high conical crowns, in shape resembling those worn by the Welsh peasants of today. If so they were common throughout the reign of James I. and were designated by Hatfield in 1625 as sugar loaf hats, which, according to his account, became fashionable again in the reign of Charles I., being worn both by men and women. He says: "What were our sugar loaf hats so mightily affected of late both by men and women, so innumerable for that every article of wind deprived us of them, requiring the employment of one James had to keep them on?"—St. James Gazette.

LOST LITERATURE.

Fire and Water Have Destroyed Many Great Books.

The fine literature absolutely lost is very considerable. Of classical literature alone books could be filled with the mere names of works never to see the light of day. The cause of loss are few. Fire is the chief culprit. In 1730, by the fire in his library, lost a few volumes of the life of Henry V., with notes, and a number of other works. The fire of London was responsible for the loss of many valuable works of the Elizabethan period and of much early English poetry. A severe blow to lovers of Anglo-Saxon literature was the burning of the Cartesian library in 1731, when a vast quantity of old manuscripts was destroyed. In 1757, by a fire in the British Museum, a large collection of manuscripts and pamphlets, gathered with great labor by Lord Chamberlain Somerset, was lost. About the same time Davison notes on Cicero's "De Officiis" were lost by a fire in Strand, London.

The second great cause of loss is the ocean, whose "greedy maw" swallows all kinds of treasure so ruthlessly. Early in the fifteenth century the Venetian was returning to Constantinople with a shipload of classical manuscripts. The vessel was wrecked and the treasures were scattered. A minor catastrophe turned the scholar's hair white in a few hours. Our own Spenser suffered serious loss by shipwreck of a servant crossing from Ireland. The last six books of the "Faerie Queene" and a number of translations and poems, including "The Faerie Court of Cupid" and "The Hell of Lovers," were thus consigned to watery grave. In 1600, on the death of Vincenzo Pinelli, his library was packed in three trunks bound for Naples. One was attacked by pirates, who flung out the books and papers into the sea and along the shore, some of the latter being picked up by the inhabitants and used to stuff windows with. Toward the close of the last century a servant of Warburton came across a unique mass of manuscript plays, which she used up in lighting fires and making pig sties and trills. And everybody remembers how a domestic of John Stuart Mill consigned to the flames a part of Carlyle's "French Revolution." The interior of Mill at the loss and the "agonies" of Carlyle in recovering the work are now matters of history.
A very curious loss was occasioned in Italy in the fourteenth century when, Raimondo Soranzo loaned the manuscript of Cicero's "De Officiis" to a friend, who pawned it and died before his hiding place could be discovered.—London Telegraph.

DRIFTING TOWARDS BRIGHT'S DISEASE
 Many people who are neglecting symptoms of kidney trouble, hoping "it will wear away," are drifting towards Bright's Disease, which is kidney trouble in one of its worst forms.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
 stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the poisonous waste matter in the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.
 If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder Trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.

How to Find Out.
 You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine pressed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased, and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAID:
 "TEXAS IS THE GARDEN SPOT OF THE WORLD."
SUNNY TEXAS AND SOME OF ITS ADVANTAGES.
 No other state in the entire Union shows such a variety of soil and produce as does Texas. There is nothing grown here that is not successfully grown there. It is first in the raising of cattle, horses, mules, production of peaches and cotton in the United States; second in production of hogs.
 It has more timber than Michigan.
 It has more prairie than Kansas.
 It has more stock than West Virginia.
 It has more fruit than Alabama.
 It raises more corn than Illinois.
 It has more wheat than Ohio.
 It raises more fruit than California.
 It has more sheep than Kentucky.
 It raises more cotton than Georgia.
 It produces more oil than Pennsylvania.
 It has more grapes on all the farms of the United States together.
 It has an annual distribution of 35 for every school child, which speaks for itself, in the matter of fine education. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of iron, zinc, silver, etc. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of coal. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of oil. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of cotton. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of wheat. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of stock. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of fruit. It has more than one billion of dollars of wealth in the matter of everything else that grows in the soil. When the nation grows big and large, more money is made in Texas than in any other state in the Union.

THE TRUCKERS.
 Turkeys are good wanderers. A mother will often lead her brood three or four miles away from home. There they take up their abode in the unfrequented woods. The instinct for solitude and wild life is very strong after centuries of domestication. But a kindred instinct prompts the mother to bring her young finally back to the fall to where she started out with them in the spring. This is not done, however, till the leaves are all off the trees, the beechnuts have fallen and the autumn winds are cold winds and some- times the snow have made the sky retreats inhospitable.

Every one using any amount of any kind of Printed Matter, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Statements, Envelopes, Circulars, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Visiting Cards, etc., no matter how large the job, will find it to their interest to call in person or write for samples and prices. ## CHAPTER XII.

MRS. CAREWE returned one warm day after the 10 o'clock boat, which was sometimes a day later, and sometimes a few hours early, the latter contingency arising, as in the present instance, when the owner straggled. Nelson drove him from the wharf to the boat, where he conferred briefly in an undertone with Eugene Sanderson, after which Eugene sent a telegram to the club, and then to the Madison Marsh. March got up the note and sauntered over to the club, where he found General Tremble and Colonel Barreard.

"He has come," said Tappingham, pleased to find the pair the only occupants of the place. "He was Madrilton, and there's a session tonight."

"Praise the Lord!" exclaimed the stout general, rising to his feet. "I am glad to see you. My fingers have been itching."

"And mine, too," said Barreard. "I'd begun to think we would never have a good time again."

"You must see that Cralley comes. It is a full time to see him if you can't get him any other way."

"He won't need urging," said Jefferson.

"But he can't see last time."

"He won't get tonight. What hour?"

"Nine," answered Tappingham. "It is to be a sitting, and he will be here."

"Don't fear for us," laughed Tremble.

"Now for Cralley," Jefferson said, after long a waiting. "I shall not keep him away if you chained him to the courthouse pillars. He'd rather 'em in two'."

But Jefferson did not encounter the alacrity of acceptance he expected from Cralley when he found him half an hour later at the hotel. Cralley, it is true, Mr. Gray not only refused outright, but seriously urged the same course upon Jefferson. Moreover, Cralley had offered in each good faith that Barreard, in the act of swallowing one of his large doses of quinine, promised to give only half the powder down his throat, giving, nonplussed, at his progressive brother-in-law.

"This is monstrous," Cralley gasped.

"This is monstrous," Cralley gasped.

"This is monstrous," Cralley gasped.

"Nothing," replied Cralley, "I don't think I can go any more."

"Well, you're a beautiful one!" Jefferson exclaimed, with an incredulous laugh. "You're 'em in two'! You talk about being caught."

"I know, I know," Cralley began, shaking his head. "But you've promised Jefferson never to go again, and you've jured Miss Betty will see or hear us and tell her we are here."

"I don't know Miss Carewe."

"Then you needn't fear. Besides, she'll be out when we make it. And she'll see. She will never know we're in the house."

"That has nothing to do with it," Cralley impatiently answered. "I was the more excited because he remembered the dangerous geography of the Capitol house—where he had to be for any one to leave the capitol room except by the long hall which passed certain doors. It will not do, and what's more, I'll be sure to get up and try to keep you on it hereafter."

"Lord, but we're virtuous," laughed the incredulous Jefferson. "I'll come for you at a quarter to 10."

"I will not go, I tell you."

"Jefferson roared. 'Yes, you will. You don't think I'll keep my word to you? And he took himself off, laughing violently, again promising to call for Cralley on his way to the capitol, and he still warmly protesting that it would be a great glory for either of them to go."

Cralley looked after the lad's long figure with an expression as near anger as he ever wore. "He'll go," he said to himself.

"And oh, well—I'll have to risk it! I'll go with him, but only to try to bring him away early—thats, as early as it is safe to be out. I'll be sure to be asleep downstairs. And I won't play. No, I'll not play; I'll not play."

He went out of the house by a side door. Some distance up the street Barreard was still to be seen, lounging homeward in the pleasant afternoon sun. He stopped at a corner and severely poured another quinine powder into himself and threw the paper to a couple of pigs who looked up from the gutter malignantly.

"Confound him!" said Cralley, laughing caustically. "He makes me a million times for I'll keep my word to you, Cralley, but at least, I'll look after Jefferson tonight. Ah, I might as well be off. Tom Vanverre, indeed, he'll be here while Mr. Carewe had taken possession of his own again. His daughter's up to the door to see him. She was trembling with a cold, and blushing and smiling, held out both her hands to him, so that Mrs. Tanbury sawed this was the loveliest creature in the world, and the kindest."

Mr. Carewe bowed slightly, as to an acquaintance, and disregarded the exclamations.

At that the blood fled from Miss Betty's cheeks, she trembled so, and a sensation as if her father's hand were on her shoulder, she was returned to him. He bent his head down over her and she, a black beauty, stagnant oval mirror of her bureau, she unclasped the brooch which held her hair in place, and, as if by herself, began to unfasten her hair. Suddenly she paused, her uplifted arms falling mechanically to her sides.

"What was I doing coming through the long hall with a soft, almost inaudible step, a step which was not her father's, she knew at once, with a negative certainty, that it was not he. Nor was it Nelson, who would have shuffled, nor one of the other servants, for their lids would sleep in the house. It was a step more like a woman's, though certainly it was not Mrs. Tanbury's.

"She was a friend, and I would lay down my life to make him whom he could be. He has always thrown everything away, his life his talents, at the rapid and turbulent whippers he poured out the words upon the girl in the doorway."

FELL DEAD.

A man fell dead in Chicago the other day from heart trouble, and of thousands every day. But the cause of nine out of every ten of such cases of heart trouble is indigestion. The cure is Dr. Caldwell's (taxative) Syrup Pepsin. The explanation is that the swollen, inflamed, and engorged stomach, presses right up against the heart and prevents it from working, your heart flutters, palpitates, pains you and you are short of breath; some lose it for ever. Just try for those symptoms, a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and see how quickly it will cure you. Sold by N. M. Hudgins at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

There is considerable complaint of the unevenness of the growing tobacco. It can not be accounted for. Fine, large, thriving plants and small, slow growing plants stand side by side in the row, with no apparent cause for the great disparity in size. — Boone County Recorder.

STOP BABIES' TEARS.

"Ninety per cent. of babies' troubles are caused by disordered stomach or bowels. They can be quickly cured by a few doses of that great digestive medicine, Dr. Caldwell's (taxative) Syrup Pepsin. It digests curdled milk, sweetens the breath, relieves fever and restores the bowels. Absolutely harmless to mother or child. Give one or two teaspoonsful to N. M. Hudgins at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails."

BEAR OF DEATH.

Often haunts the miserable, dyspeptic, bilious patient, who suffers from heart palpitations, chronic cough, melancholy, nervousness, headache, colic, indigestion, and bowel trouble. Try Dr. Caldwell's (taxative) Syrup Pepsin, you will find a safe, pleasant and perfect cure for all this pain, distress and worry. It clears the brain, purifies the blood, and cures all forms of indigestion and bowel trouble. Try it. Sold by N. M. Hudgins at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

HINTS TO HOUSEWORKERS.

Nothing is more important to the bare-working housekeeper, than to keep her liver properly working; otherwise, that pale, sallow look and tired feeling, will mark her look and feel as if she was sick. Nothing will keep you up to the mark, without injurious stimulation, so well as Dr. Caldwell's (taxative) Syrup Pepsin. It is a pure liver tonic—a cure for constipation, biliousness, and indigestion. Sold by N. M. Hudgins at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.
