Convention and Speech of Kansas.
William Kinsie, former a prominent and highly respectable merchant in Kansas, has just acquired an unenviable notoriety within the last two or three years, by figuring prominently in various criminal courts in the United States, has just been in the city of New York, and attended the convention of a society for a change on the Chemical Bank of that city. Kinsie is still a young man, but has had a career which is hardly surpassed by the strange combinations of romance. He is, we have heard, the descendant of a very noble family, and distinguished Irish family, which was driven from Ireland by political disturbances, and whose property was confiscated for political offenses. He came to Canada, where his family lived some time in poverty. At an early age Kinsie came to Kansas, and he found himself without friends or acquaintances in a strange city with only a few dollars in his pocket. He inherited the whole of the money in a ticket to Bartlett's Commercial College for the purpose of learning book-keeping. When he had acquired a competent knowledge of this art, he engaged himself as a clerk in a post establishment, and by his fidelity, energy and manly character, attracted the notice of the proprietors, who exposed him to a clerical office, and not long afterwards set him on his feet in business for himself. He was really a man of fortune and rising in the esteem and respect of the community, when a peculiar prospect of his dishonest practices suddenly arrested his career, and blasted his prospects for life.

A Good Know Nothing Case.
No long ago, in one of the counties of Pennsylvania, the Postmaster General discovered the fact that one of the county postmasters was not only a member but Secretary of a Know-Nothing council. No time was lost in his removal from office, and the appointment of another who is not contaminated. Well, the appointment was tendered to a man, who after some hesitancy, but after very short deliberation, he has accepted, and so the "Know-Nothing" for the new postmaster is the President of the very same council of which his predecessor was Secretary, but Campbell does not know it.

SAD ACCIDENT.
A young gentleman named Moses W. Moore, formerly of Versailles, Ky., a clerk in the store of E. Williams, was killed by a falling load of iron. While engaged in loading a wagon with a load of iron, the load fell on him, and he was killed in a few minutes. The occurrence took place in the counting room of the store, and was a great calamity. The iron was being loaded by the young man, and he was killed in a few minutes.

Through the newspapers,
Through the newspapers, in consequence of the connection with various public meetings, which have excited a wide interest and attracted universal attention, and the events of the last two or three years of his life, are familiar to all who are acquainted with the current events of the day.

It is supposed,
It is supposed, that the Know-Nothing party selected Paul F. East, Esq. of this city, as their candidate for Governor of the State. Mr. A. G. Talbot, of Boyle, is also a candidate.

THE TURKISH REFORMS.
There has arisen a strong opposition in Turkey against the reformatory measures which the Sultan imposes upon the people. An English consular agent, Mr. Murray, in London, is now engaged in addressing a petition to Lord Napoleon, stating that the effect of the reforms would be ultimately to upset the rules of the Koran.

THE SULLIVAN COUNTY INDIAN.
The Sullivan County Indian, one of the candidates for County Clerk was pleased to give one hour to the people, and to explain to the citizens of the county the nature of his views on the election, and to give the reasons for his election, to marry the ladies.

THE PONDING CASE.
A woman by the name of Ponding had been arrested in Whiteside County, Illinois, upon suspicion of murdering her husband. She was held in prison, and she was released on her own recognizance.

THE KIRKBY EXTENSION.
Col. Kinney is in New York, going on, he says, with his expedition against the negroes of the Territory. He expects to return to San Juan, and to carry the enterprise through on his own hook, having dissolved his connection with the Central American Company.

THE MEMPHIS TARD.
The Memphis Tard and Engineer says the mayor at that place was on the 5th instant, by the Sheriff, to satisfy an execution against the Mayor and Aldermen of Memphis.

THE MISSOURI CASE.
