A POLITICAL VIEW

By GEORGE C. COURTS

We boast of American Liberty,
We have in days gone by;
But this has been encroached upon
By Trusts with their money supply.

There was once a genuine party
That wore the Republican name
But it has gone off after the Trusts,
Its leaders have joined 'em, the same.

The consummation of the matter was
The Chicago convention will tell,
When Taft and his followers joined the trusts
They joined them singly and well.

So well did they join the trusts
That Col. Roosevelt saw the plan,
And his heart was too honest
To mix with the stealing band!

Thus, up came a turn in Republican ranks!
With honor and knavery, too,
Both striving for mastery—
At split the party in two.

Roosevelt saw the deception and theft
That Taft and his followers did fix;
And so his honest heart went out
With the people large to mix.

So, off by another party name,
Sprang Roosevelt and his followers, too
They say to steal from the poor is a crime
From the people, many and few.

So, for the country he did go
Preaching Progressiveness to be
It means fair dealing to all alike—
Progressiveness, you see.

A race for the Presidency was run,
And with surprise, too,
There'll be another in four years to come,
And the same Roosevelt new.

Thus—"On to victory! On to victory!"
The Progressive cry doth ring,
So jubilant—so joyfully—so free
That birds will join you full of glee,
And sing the song
The whole day long—
The poor man's rights—by the Progressive throng!

TAXS DEFECTIVE

SAYS PROF. PLEHN, TAX EXPERT, EMPLOYED BY KENTUCKY TAX COMMISSION.

FAULTS OF PRESENT PLAN

Recommends Central Control of All Assessments By Strong State Tax Commission.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Frankfort.—The defects and the needs of Kentucky's tax system were pointed out by Prof. Carl Plehn, Ph.D., in a paper presented at the Kentucky tax commission at Commercial club headquarters in Louisville. Prof. Plehn is of the University of California. He is considered one of the foremost tax experts in the country. He was employed by the commission to make a complete investigation of the tax situation in Kentucky and to recommend a new system. The results of the present system, as pointed out by Prof. Plehn follow:

Failure of local assessors to get all property on the tax rolls because they do not have proper maps in their offices; general undervaluation of property; inequalities of taxing different properties of the same class; taxing different classes of property; inefficient tax assessors and yearly assessments. Although Prof. Plehn still is not sure of the details of the new plan, he will formulate his recommendations for tax reform in Kentucky, he unofficially suggested the following remedies for the various defects of the present system in the state by a strong state tax commission; larger assessment districts so that fewer assessors would be employed and so that they would be employed through the entire year instead of for a few months as now; a salary instead of a fee basis in paying assessors, assessors to be responsible to the state; use of maps in making assessments; assessment and equalization every four years instead of yearly, as now; in order to reduce expenses, the assessors should be appointed by the central tax commission to have control of the work of assessing all property in the state; the present plan of having both the railroad commission and the state board of assessments and valuations make the assessors' work more efficient; the same general financial and economic conditions exist in Ohio as in Kentucky. Since the reforms proposed are not being adopted in Ohio, he argued that there should be no hesitancy about adopting them here.

Malone, N. Y.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has certainly done a lot of good. I first heard that if ever had female trouble I would tear my clothes. Legal Opinion

"A cat sits on my back fence every night and howls and yowls and yowls and yowls. I don't want to have any trouble with Neighbor Jones, but this thing has gone far enough, and I want you to let me what to do?" The young lawyer looked as solemn as an old, sick owl, and said not a word.

"I have a right to shoot the cat, haven't I?" "I would hardly say that," replied Young Coke Blackstone. The cat does not belong to you as I understand it.

"No, but the fence does." "Then," concluded the light of law, "I think it safe to say you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."

WOMAN TORE HER CLOTHES

Restifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Malone, N. Y.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has certainly done a lot of good. I first heard that if ever had female trouble I would tear my clothes. One day my husband got the neighbors in to see what the matter was but they could not help me. I thought I was going to die. I had a severe attack of organic inflammation and would have died if I had not used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I sent my husband out for it and took it until I was entirely cured. I am a woman of perfect health and my health and happiness came from Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. You may rest assured that I do all I can to recommend your wonderful medicine to my friends."—Mrs. F. D. STONE, Route No. 3, Malone, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is explained by the fact that it is used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulcerations, tumors, irregularities, periods, bearing down, bearing down, feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

SAW OPPORTUNITY FOR JOKE President Taft's Reply to Request Had Secretary of War on the Anxious Seat

William H. Taft, when he was president, never overlooked an opportunity for a joke. In the closing months of his administration Henry L. Stinson, then secretary of war, wrote Mr. Taft a very urgent request that he give a friend of Stinson's a certain federal position.

Chicago, Ill.—Lake Michigan's deadly undertow, which has been taking heavy toll of human life, spared Miss Eva Howe, 18 years old, and in her stead made victims of Mrs. Frank M. Stinson, 60, and Earl Stinson, her cousin, both of whom dashed into the water to save the bathing girl.

"A cat sits on my back fence every night and howls and yowls and yowls and yowls. I don't want to have any trouble with Neighbor Jones, but this thing has gone far enough, and I want you to let me what to do?" The young lawyer looked as solemn as an old, sick owl, and said not a word.

"I have a right to shoot the cat, haven't I?" "I would hardly say that," replied Young Coke Blackstone. The cat does not belong to you as I understand it.

"No, but the fence does." "Then," concluded the light of law, "I think it safe to say you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."

MARKING the 100th HEALTHFUL by

E. W. PICKARD

Ancon, C. Z.—All the world gives credit to Col. W. C. Gregg and his sanitary officer, and his assistants full credit for the wonderful work they have accomplished in making the Panama canal zone healthful and keeping it so. All the world that knows gives equal or greater credit to those American, Italian and English doctors and soldiers who sacrificed their health and in some cases their lives to prove that yellow fever and malaria, the two terrors of tropic America, are transmitted by the life of mosquitoes. It is not my intention to tell over again the latter story of the devotion of those brave men actually made possible the building of the Panama canal, for their work has been taken full advantage of by Colonel Gregg and his forces, and the zone is now one of the most healthful places in the world.

Before the coming of the American the isthmus was a veritable pest hole. The French canal builders and their workmen and the laborers on the Panama railway died like flies, usually of malaria or yellow fever. Today a fatal case of malaria is a rarity, the more malignant form being almost unknown, and not a single case of yellow fever has originated in the zone in several years.

The Stegomyia mosquito, the yellow fever bearer, has not been exceedingly hard to exterminate because it breeds and lives only near human habitations. When the Americans had substituted a regular water system and underground sewers for the rain water barrels and the ditches in Colon, Panama and the other towns, and had fumigated all the dwellings, Stegomyia was practically extinct. That job of fumigating, by the way, raised a great row among the ignorant inhabitants of Panama. They could not understand why they should be all moved out into the street and their houses filled with evil-smelling fumes, and they were inclined to offer forcible resistance to the men who were taking the matter in hand.

"Much more difficult has been the task of eradicating malaria, for the Anopheles mosquito, which makes a specialty of carrying this disease, is the female only that bites, and she needs blood—preferably red blood—for the development of her eggs. The eggs are deposited in a slow flowing or stationary water and hatch out into little larvae or "wrigglers." At least once in two minutes the larva must come to the surface to breathe, and that is where the sanitary department gets it, usually.

As one wanders about the zone sees at the headquarters of every regiment, ditch or other water course, at frequent intervals along its banks, and at the edge of every pool, a big tin can or keg. From this receptacle there is a constant drip, drip, drip of larvicide, a black, oily-looking compound of crude carbolic acid, caustic soda and resin. This spreads over the water, an Anopheles larva comes up for air he meets a swift death. To replenish these cans of larvicide a small army of janitors is kept traveling about the zone, and there goes around with tanks of the compound strapped on their backs, spraying every pool they come to.

Another measure of extermination has been the draining and filling in of swampy ground and the straightening and clearing of water courses so that their flow will be too swift for mosquito breeding. The work of draining and filling has been extensive and near the Pacific end of the canal has resulted in the reclamation of large areas of land for building.

FORGOT DESIRE TO QUESTION

Chairman's Reception of Would-Be Interrogator Somehow Discovered the Rest of Them.

At a political meeting in a certain New South Wales gold-mining district the chair was taken by an athletic miner. The candidate during his speech was not interrupted by "boys" by assuring them that at the end of the candidate's speech they should be at liberty to put any question they chose. Accordingly, at the end of the harangue he arose and inquired in stentorian tones and in a rich Irish brogue, "Is any gentleman a question to ask?" A stout little Welsh miner, who had been a conspicuous disturber of the peace of the evening, shuffled slowly up the stage to the platform. But at the top he was met by the chairman, who, without the slightest warning, delivered a terrific left-and-righter, and the Welshman sprawling on his back, "Now," roared the chairman, "has any other gentleman a question to ask?"—and there was no response.

Original Sort of Ham.

A lady gave a luncheon recently and explained that she always cooked ham by the recipe used by Thomas Jefferson, which had been handed down in her family for years.

This recipe required that the ham be cooked for about two hours by simmering, but under no condition must it be allowed to boil.

A ham was on the stove, its details presided over by a young coquette woman from up in the mountains.

"Jane," called the mistress of the house, "don't let that ham boil."

"No,um," replied Jane, "I ain't er gwine to allow it to boil. It's on the stove now just a simmerin'!"

The brain cannot work with clearness and accuracy if the food taken is not fully digested, but is retained in the stomach to ferment and form poisonous gases, etc. A clouded brain is likely to be the result.

"A steady diet of rich, greasy foods such as sausage, butter, cakes and nerves that, by inheritance, were sound and strong, and medicine did no apparent good for the relief of my father's clouded and dull and I was suffering from a case of constipation that defied all remedies used.

"The 'Road to Wellville' in my providential way, fell into my hands, and my father's richest blessing fell on the man who was inspired to write it.

The people felt that a new party was needed in Lincoln's day, just as the people had felt the same thing four times before, Lincoln's day. There had been the Federalist party of Washington and Hamilton; the Republican party of Jefferson and Madison; the Whig party of Webster and Clay; the Democratic party of Jackson and Van Buren—and came the new party of Seward and Lincoln. Looking back over our history, all of us now see how good a thing it was for the country that these parties rose and fell. We now see that each of them did a needed work which the others could not do, and then gave place to a new party that better stood for the spirit of the times.

The average life of American political parties has been about thirty years. Jefferson thought that even too long. The only exception was made by the Civil War, which practically dissolved the Democratic party for many years and gave the Republican party an unnatural lease of life. History then, as well as present conditions, shows that the time is overdue for a new party now.

COURT OF APPEALS' PRIMARY DECISION The object of holding a primary election by a political party is to select party candidates and it is so plain for any

To The Carter County Progressives

FELLOW PROGRESSIVES:

Have you been misled by any candidate or worker for the remnants of the emasculated and weak Republican organization? Will you remember that about six months ago, (on January 31, to be exact) the Republican State Central Committee met at the Gal House, in Louisville, Kentucky, and held a painstaking Jefferson County Elephant. The brow-wrinkling diagnosis disclosed the sad fact that the patient was a very sick brute, and that potent medicines were needed to stay the course of its illness. Wherefore, the committee, after much reflection, prepared a voluminous resolution, replete with verbiage, setting forth the condition of the party and the course of treatment deemed necessary to restore its health. The most important feature of the proposed treatment consisted of the appointment of the City and County Committees in Kentucky, all of which were thereupon abolished, including the Carter County Committee.

They then proceeded to bring back into the Republican organization the persons who voted for Col. Roosevelt and the Progressive ticket last year by urging them somewhat in this way: "I believe you voted for Roosevelt last year?" "Yes, sir." "But you voted for him because you thought he was the best man, and that he was treated wrong in Chicago. You did not intend to leave the party just voted for Roosevelt—and are as good a Republican as anybody. Call for a Republican ballot in the primary and vote for me. There is not much opposition in the Progressive primary, so come over and vote for me." You will remember last year they were calling all of you bolters. And if their nomination and election did not depend on YOU, they would not be calling you BOLTERS? What if you should run for office in the future, or any of your people? What would they say about you? "Oh, you must not vote for him, he bolted and voted for Roosevelt in 1912!" You know what they would say, and why they are making the campaign they are now making. Can they mislead you? They have in the past, but can not now. You are beginning to find out things for yourself to investigate and reason, and to do what you think best.

Do you know why various persons were urged to run in the Republican primary this year? You certainly know it was not because they wanted such persons to have offices? Then why was it? It was thought that they had relatives who voted the Progressive ticket, and by having them out, they could influence such Progressives to enter the Republican primary and vote for them. You know why it was done. It was thought that some of them were not going to have opposition, but it was found necessary to have someone oppose them so that the Progressives would enter the primary and strengthen them. All they want is a big vote in the primary, and they are asking Progressives to give it to them, so they can say after the primary that they are the strongest.

Mr. Voter, think well before you act. Investigate these things for yourself. Some of you will remember personally when the Republican party was formed, and when it came out from the Whig party in 1856. They were also called bolters, but they stood together and in 1860 elected Abraham Lincoln President. Lincoln stood then as the Progressive stand now. Let us not repeat the mistakes of the past. Let us vote the Progressive ticket, like men. We now enjoy a strong organization, and are making an effort to get out our vote. Will you stand up like a man? It takes manhood to do right, but Progressives are made out of that kind of stuff. Rally to the flag, boys, in the primary, and we will win in November. The "stand-paters" know they can't win, and are trying to make you believe you can't either.

comment that no voter should be permitted to vote at a primary election of a political party, unless he is a member of such party; and unless provision is made to prevent persons voting at a primary election for a party who are not affiliated with such party, the whole scheme of nominating party candidates by a primary election would fail, because of being incapable of execution.

A primary election is one for the nomination of candidates for office of the respective political parties by the members thereof. If Republicans vote the Democratic party ballot, and Democrats vote the Republican party ballot, a Socialist vote any ballot but their own, then nominations so made cannot be said to be party nominations. It is no argument for the position that to permit electors participating in a primary election to vote indiscriminately by any party ballot they might choose to select, regardless of their party affiliations would be simply putting a premium upon deceit, dishonesty and party loyalty. It is possible for the voters of a primary election to select parties participating to elect and control their nominees. Obviously all of the provisions of the primary election law were enacted by the Legislature to prevent electors from voting any ballot except that of their respective party, and thereby prevent fraudulent pressure, and the intent of the ballot. The constitutional provision of the primary election law provides only for party elections.

No specific provision is made by the primary law for testing the qualifications of an elector as to his party affiliation. The inquiry is, by the general election law, confined to the qualifications enumerated, in which this is not included. Under the foregoing provisions, when an elector demands a party ballot, if the elector is challenged, and the challenger is or has reason to believe that the elector offering to vote is a non-partisan or not a member of the party whose ballot he is attempting to vote, it is the duty of such elector to challenge the elector. If the challenge is on the ground that the elector is not, in good faith, a member of the party whose ticket he is attempting to vote, the duty of the inspector is to make an inquiry as to his party affiliation. An elector who registers the challenge and makes such inquiry, if he possesses the qualifications contemplated by the Constitution, should bear in mind that the usual test is, did the elector vote the party ticket at the last preceding general election?

SUNDAY SCHOOLS HELP EDUCATION

Suggestions by Louisville Commercial Club.

BENEFITS OF CO-OPERATION.

Kentucky Sunday School Association Has Done Excellent Work, and Its Influence Can Be Extended Through the Efficient Aid of Public School Teachers and Superintendents.

The educational wave is rising in our old state. Every child, and every organization that was helping the movement has been working independently. Now there is a desire to get together. The following report of a special committee on the work of the Sunday school association and that of the Louisville Commercial club, will explain itself.

The Kentucky Sunday School Association has a splendid organization. Every county has some form of organization. Many of the people who are interested in all the best interests of the county are numbered among those who are connected with this association. These persons can be of a broader view of what the Sunday school, the public school and the home could do for the entire community, reaching into the physical, mental, social and spiritual development. Not only the city pastors, but the rural pastors, who are in a measure leaders of the communities, are connected with the Sunday School Association, and in many cases the public school teachers, superintendents of the county schools and others engaged in educational work.

The Commercial club is reaching through a wide system of publicity. The press it has been offering, and the correspondence conducted, and who are interested in trust education but whose viewpoint is different from that of Sunday school workers.

Then each could help the other. Therefore we succeed. First—That in the future on all programs of institutes, conventions and rallies there be given a topic relating to the correlation of secular and religious education in the state along definite lines and that this topic be assigned to a person well informed as to both religious and secular education. In such way there might be the opportunity of bringing to the attention of people who have never thought on the matter the value of such correlation. Because of the wide opportunity which the Sunday school speaker has of reaching audiences in the state this would be the surest way of arousing enthusiasm, disseminating information and removing prejudice.

Second—That in the future at all electing conventions—district, county and state—there be chosen superintendents who shall promote the co-operation of secular and religious educational forces along definite lines. Third—That whenever opportunities
