

Chandler Bills Are Given O. K. By Legislature

Adjourns Saturday After Putting Administration Measures Through

AWAIT SPECIAL SESSION

The abbreviated 1936 regular session of the Kentucky General Assembly closed at 2:55 a. m. Sunday, five weeks earlier than regular sessions usually end, and with as complete a legislative program as former assemblies have bequeathed the State.

In the closing days of the session the assembly completed action on all but one of Governor A. B. Chandler's thirteen-point program outlined in the executive message. The exception, as liquor control regulation, which was included in the original message, but was sidetracked later so it could be included in one of the calls for a special session.

A special session for the sole purpose of reorganizing State Government will be called to convene next Monday, February 24. Other special sessions are expected to be called later.

Prominent among the proposals for legislation that the governor passed bills to elect county school superintendents by popular vote, to prohibit the pay of deputy sheriffs by private industry, a plan to increase the pay of sheriffs out of the school funds, and an effort to reorganize a state court, consolidating the office of jailer and sheriff.

Merged with the thirteen points of the Governor's original suggestion were various other pieces of legislation sponsored by the administration as the session went on. These, in the end, became part of the administration program, which went through the legislative bodies with perfect ease.

Administration-backed legislation

Repeal of the sales tax, which has been enacted in June, 1934.

An occupational, single-barred primary law for the nomination of State officials.

A statewide registration law which brings rural sections of the State under the same general policy of registration as is imposed in urban centers.

Authorization of a State audit and survey, with an appropriation of $120,000 for the study.

Abolishment of all taxes on real estate for State purposes, and return of the assessment power to the counties of the State.

A model fish and game law, identical with that sponsored by the Isaac Walton League and already adopted in several States.

Reduction of the price of automobile license tags to $4.50. This was in lieu of the Governor's original suggestion for reduction in the tax on gasoline for relief of automobile owners.

Submission of two constitutional amendments, one to permit Jefferson county and Louisville to merge their governments, and the other to permit submission to the people of more than two amendments to the State Constitution at one time.

Authorization for old-age pensions of $15 a month.

Diversion of $2,000,000 from the State primary road fund for maintenance of county roads.

Authorization of the use of convicts for construction of public highways.

A measure to permit the State to carry its own insurance on the State buildings and property.

A bill to prohibit assessment of State employees for political campaigns.

A measure providing for advance opinions from the Court of Appeals on proposed legislation, later held invalid.

Ten measures backed by the administration in Louisville, designed to aid the city of Louisville in local governmental problems.

The Jefferson county bill which placed control of county patronage in the county with the E. Leland Taylor group of the Democratic party.

The administration went through the session without a defeat, even on minor legislation.

For Sunday, Feb. 23, the College brings Charles Bickford and Raquel Torres in a stirring drama titled "Red Wagon" with an excellent selection of short subjects, including "The March of Time."

Interest-Penalty To Go On Taxes After Mar. 1

Interest and penalty will go on all taxes unpaid on March 1, Sheriff Mori said this morning. The Rowan Sheriff stated that collections had been slow, and warned all taxpayers of the fact that the interest and penalty will be deducted under no consideration if the taxes are not met by the first of the month.

Supreme Court Upholds T. V. A.

The United States Supreme Court, in an eight-to-one decision, Monday held constitutional the main principles of the Tennessee Valley Authority, upon which President Roosevelt based his program to provide cheaper electricity.

The decision rested on the right of Congress to improve navigation in the interest of commerce and national defense, and not on the more far-reaching humanitarian objectives repeatedly associated with T. V. A. by Mr. Roosevelt. The sharply-challenged right of the Government to dispose of all surplus power developed at Wilson dam, on the Tennessee river incidentally to other T. V. A. activities, was upheld.

It was a smashing victory for the New Deal at the hands of the nation's highest tribunal which decreed the death of AAA and NRA. The ruling said, in effect, that if Mr. Roosevelt's power program is developed along the lines of TVA, it is well within constitutional limitations.

Rowan County Youth Sought

Has Been Missing For Last Three Months

The state police in Anderson called yesterday in a search for Roy Miller, 19, of Rodburn, Ky., near Morehead, who has been missing since he left San Francisco, Cal., three months ago for his home, Chief of Police Charles F. Howard said this morning.

Chief Howard said that three months ago Miller left the home of his sister, Mrs. B. K. Gunlick, in San Francisco, apparently for his home at Rodburn, but to date he has not arrived and no word has been received from him.

Police there were asked to seek information regarding Miller by his sister, a Mrs. Fields.

Any information regarding Miller should be communicated to the police.

Senate Passes New Farm Bill

Adopts $500,000,000 Measure Designed to Repeal the Invalidated AAA.

The Senate Tuesday passed the new administration farm bill, designed to replace the AAA, invalidated by Supreme Court decision January 6. Cost of the program is estimated at $500,000,000.

The vote on final passage was 55 to 20. The new measure, which precipitated extended Senate debate over the question of curbing the powers of the Supreme Court, now goes to the House, where debate is scheduled to start today.

The farm measure was the first major legislation of the session to receive Senate approval, except the soldier bonus bill.

Intended as a substitute for the invalidated AAA system of benefit payments to farmers contracting to control production, the farm bill provides a dual plan of subsidies to those who "conserve soil" by retiring land from commercial crop production. For the first two years the Government would grant the subsidies direct to farmers.

CHARLIE PRATER DIES

Charlie Prater, 93, one of Rowan's oldest citizens, passed away last week at the Peoples Hotel, where he had made his home for many years. Mr. Prater had been in poor health for many years and his death was not unexpected.

Saturday Is Washington's Birthday

The two hundred and fourth birthday of George Washington will be fittingly observed in Morehead Saturday with the closing of schools, postoffice, court house offices and other public buildings. The Father of our Country died in 1799, but his memory remains fresh in the minds of our people, and the glowing example of achievement he set as our first Chief Executive stands as a model to this day. The memory of George Washington will live as long as free Government exists and will not perish until this great United States of ours, which he helped to give us, ceases to exist.

Funeral Held For Elliott Resident

Mrs. Emily Skaggs Passes At Her Home

Mrs. Emily Caroline Skaggs, widow of W. J. Skaggs, died on February 11 at her home, Culver, Ky., of double lobar pneumonia. She was 81 years of age, having been born in Kentucky Tuesday morning. Mrs. Skaggs was one of the finest women in the county, ever doing all she could to help the betterment of the community in which she lived. She was a life member of the United Baptist Church, and attended regularly until death. She is survived by the following children: Mary Boggs, Isonville, Ky.; Leonidas Skaggs, Isonville, Ky.; Kate Boggs, of Sandy Hook, Ky.; Parish Skaggs and Ella Lane, Portsmouth, Ohio; Paul Skaggs, Culver; Cornelius Skaggs, Culver; Lester and Lydia Hay, Martha, Ky.; and Dr. M. H. Skaggs, Baltimore, Md. Funeral was conducted by Rev. J. W. Bricker at the home and burial was in the family cemetery near the home.

Burns Adkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Adkins, a former sheriff of Elliott county, was seriously wounded by a knife stab in the neck, allegedly inflicted by Howard Flannery, according to C. Pennington, sheriff. Flannery waived examining trial and was put under $1,000 bond to await action of the grand jury.

Allie Yung Died 1 Year Ago Tuesday

Judge Allie W. Young, national committeeman, one of the staunchest figures in Kentucky politics, died one year ago last Tuesday (February 18) in a Louisville hospital at the age of sixty-nine years. Tomorrow (Friday) will mark exactly one year from the date the impressive funeral rites were conducted in the Auditorium of the Morehead State Teachers College, and the burial in the Macchapel cemetery at Mt. Sterling.

With Judge Young's death Kentucky lost a great statesman; Morehead lost a true friend and benefactor.

One year has passed since the death of one of Rowan's most illustrious citizens, but akin to the simple statement made about George Washington, which appears on this page, his deeds and achievements remain as a standing monument to the unflinching service he gave to the people of Morehead and Rowan County.

During the past year Morehead has keenly felt the loss of this able friend in Kentucky's legislative halls.

On this day—marking one year and two suns since the passing of Senator Young, we pause in high regard for his work and lifelong effort he rendered to we people of Morehead and Rowan County.

The appointment of Mrs. Young was expected, but the name of Mr. Bennett had not been prominently mentioned in political speculations regarding the appointments.

Other members of the Board are Dr. A. O. Taylor, Maysville; Senator J. M. Rose, Olive Hill, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Harry W. Peters, who is ex-officio chairman by virtue of his office.

Mercury Drops To 10 Below As Cold Wave Hits

Warmer Weather Predicted For Remainder of Week; Many Die In Nation

WATER PIPES FREEZE UP

Winter blasts held Morehead and Rowan County in its grip today, as a severe cold wave that swept from the northwest brought a temperature that almost reached previous low marks of the year.

At Morehead Wednesday unofficial readings showed the mercury had reached a low of 10 degrees below zero. Once before this winter it was 15 below.

A shortage of coal prevalent in Morehead during the last cold wave has, apparently been remedied, with local coal dealers reporting they are fortified to take for any but an extremely heavy demand. Most residents took advantage of the rising temperatures between the two cold waves to lay in an ample supply of fuel.

Fair weather, with slowly rising temperatures throughout the nation, mercury to 10 degrees below zero, was predicted Tuesday night by the weather observatory at Lexington, Ky.

The frigid wave which swept South as far as the Gulf and East to the Atlantic coast, has left little under a brilliant sun. Freezing temperatures extended as far south as Texas.

Fuel shortage and the inability of school buses to travel forced the closing of thousands of public schools throughout the nation. Fire and automobile accidents continued to exact a heavy toll throughout the country. Many froze to death. Relief agencies reported that suffering was acute in many rural sections of Kentucky.

In Rowan County are without sufficient food to last through another extended cold wave. Clothing has been distributed during the past two months to many of the more needy families of Rowan, relieving the situation some.

In Morehead, pumpers and gauges are overtaxed. Many radiators have frozen and bursted. Water mains in the city remain frozen, while pipes in fully 50 per cent of the homes have frozen and bursted. Many families have been without running water since December. Plumbers admit they are helpless to cope with the situation.

In many parts of the northern section of the country the mercury fell as low as 40 degrees below zero.

COAL SHOULD BE WEIGHED

Residents of Morehead have had a continuous complaint this winter about coal dealers shorting them in weight; the complaints have not been registered against reputable concerns in Morehead who handle coal, but rather the truck dealers and fly-by-night salesmen.

It seems that much of the complaint is justified. It is known that there is not only one but several instances where the purchaser has been given three-quarters or less for a full ton. Naturally, when one buys from a reputable Morehead house he can be assured of honest weight, for their businesses are not founded upon such principles as cheating the public. However, the truck dealers, as a general rule, have a lower price on coal, and many families are unable to meet prices for the better grade which Morehead houses handle.

A sane remedy for the situation seems to lie in the proposal that has been heard on numerous occasions—that is, for the City Council to construct reliable scales for the benefit of the public. The plan would call for one official weigh master, possibly the chief of police or another city employe. By charging a nominal weighing fee the scales could be made to pay for themselves within a short time, while hundreds of Morehead residents would benefit each year by getting full coal tonnage.

MCGLOTHEN AND PREWITT FAILED AGAIN

The bill introduced by Representative McGlothen of Menifee County, side-kick of Henry R. Prewitt of Mt. Sterling, which would have restricted this section of Kentucky, so that Rowan would be a part of the Elliott-Morgan Judicial District, never did get out of the committee room and on the floor of the House.

The former Judge Prewitt, already in the field for the Circuit Judgeship race, was canny enough to know that Rowan will voice its resentment to the court procedure he has practiced in the past here, when the next election rolled around. Consequently the bill was introduced—not as a profitable measure for the people of Eastern Kentucky, but rather as a political move for Judge Prewitt. It would have implied additional expense, and caused undue turmoil in our courts. The fact that it got no further than its introduction is ample evidence of the weight Representative McGlothen and Judge Prewitt do NOT have in Frankfort.

THE MARIONETTE SHOW

The Beaux Arts Club of the State Teachers College brought one of the season's cleanest and most-appealing performances to Morehead with the appearance of the Marionette Show this week. This was high-type entertainment, and such that it is a welcome treat for both youngsters and older persons.

The people of Morehead are fortunate to have shows of this type in our city. The attendance at these really worth-while performances has been such in the past that there is no reason but that they should be continued in the future.

Old-timers like to tell of how low the thermometer got when they were in their 'teens. Fortunately, the youngsters of today can truthfully tell their grandchildren a tale of 20 below in 1936.

Coach Dewey Downey's Quint Takes Measure of Favored Cardinal Outfit 40 to 35.

Coach Dewey Downey's Morehead Teachers registered what was probably the biggest upset of the K. I. A. C. season here Saturday when they turned back the University of Louisville Cardinals, 40 to 35.

The two teams battled on almost even terms in the first half, a spurt by Morehead in the last three minutes giving it a 23 to 22 advantage at the rest period. After the first five minutes of the second half, the local Teachers controlled the ball consistently and began to register a high percentage of their shots. They pulled away gradually until the score was 37 to 25. They eased up at the end and the Cardinals, who had enjoyed one of their best seasons, rallied desperately and outscored Morehead in the remaining minutes, 10 points to three.

The game was rough and free throws decided the battle in Morehead's favor. The Teachers counted on 18 free tosses out of 25 opportunities, while Louisville got but seven out of 16. Louisville out-poured Morehead on field goals, 14 to 12.

Saturday's battle was Morehead's final tilt on the home floor and the last local appearance of our seniors. Players who headed their basketball careers on the home court were Rossen, Ryan, Leslie and Francis. Leslie, making 11 points, played a sparkling game at center. Carter, a sharp-shooting sophomore, made 15 of Morehead's points.

Freshmen Soar Over Pikeville

Eaglets Take 49-16 Decision From Invaders

Captain Bill Scroggins and his Morehead College Freshmen moved another step closer to a clear-cut title as the best first year team in the Commonwealth Tuesday night by easily brushing Pikeville Junior College aside 49-16.

Grabbing a 10-2 lead in the first five minutes of play, the Eaglets increased it to 29-5 at the half, and with substitutes playing most of the time after intermission was going away.

It was Morehead's tenth victory in eleven games.

Ishmael and Horton, former Mt. Sterling High School players, led the point making for the winners with 19 to 9 respectively. Arnsen accounted for 7. Stratton was the whole show for Pikeville, scoring half of his team's points.

The lineup:

Morehead (49) P (16) Pikeville
Arnsen (7) P (10) Trivette
Ishmael (19) F (8) Benedict

Breckinridge Students Receive Music Ratings

"A great improvement over last year in musicianship, was the combined opinion of the judges that functioned at the annual High School solo and small ensemble Music Festival, held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, last Friday and Saturday. According to the judges, the improvement was notable from all sections of the State, and credit is due the contribution made by Morehead. In the E flat bass, Billy Black, Breckinridge, received the rating of "excellent." In the cello, Marion L. Oppenheimer, Breckinridge, received the rating of "good." In the trumpet, J. W. Blair, Breckinridge, received the rating of "good."

Morehead High Pulls Surprise

Vikings Soar Over Catlettsburg In Upset

With Murrel Caudill and Foley Hayes leading the way, Morehead High School pulled the major surprise in the Ekay Conference this year by defeating the highly regarded Catlettsburg team here last week, 29-23.

Morehead gained a 4-1 lead the first quarter and built it up throughout the game. The Vikings played an excellent defensive game and unleashed their best point-making attack of the year.

It was Morehead's second victory of the year—they having previously won from Haldeman. Last year the team did not capture a victory.

BRECK BEATS HALDEMAN; LOSSES TO SOLDIER QUINTE

Bobby Laughlin's Breckinridge Training School team divided 2 games during the week, losing to Allie Holbrooks' good Soldier team by 3 points and defeating Haldeman there 29-14.

Haldeman's Leopards, coached by Lawrence Frasley, made the going difficult for the Morehead boys during the first three quarters. Going into the last period, Breck was leading by only 14-12, when Long and Tatum started a scoring drive that netted them a decisive victory. Long accounted for 10 points during the last 8 minutes.

Independent 5 Enters Tourney

The Morehead Merchants (formerly Morehead Newsboys) through their captain, Paul Combs, announced this morning that they had entered the Y. M. C. A. tournament at Ashland February 27, 28, 29, in defense of the title they won in 1935.

The club's roster this year is even stronger than last year's championship team. Besides Combs, an outstanding college player at Morehead, the Merchants have Arnsen, Horton, Ishmael, Kiser, Smith and Jones.

Kentucky dairy farmers enter the year with abundant feed supplies and prospects of steady prices.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has her guest, her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. A stranger, exultant and full of life, Marcia's niece. Secretly, he asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery by the "stranger." Marcia, who has been at Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewelry, and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but for Marcia's sake, decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has altogether too much to tolerate in her guest, but is powerless to over-see. Her heart yearns to see her niece. She writes Mrs. S. C. Heath, who orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, who has been talking herself with the Jewels. At Marcia's approach she tries to bring them. They are gone! She makes light of the matter. Sylvia, however, is not so easily deceived. She searches for their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the Jewels, he makes plans for attracting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. At Heath's suggestion, Currier investigates. He finds a hidden box and finds the gems. He returns to New York, but has his niece, Mrs. S. C. Heath, who has convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Heath are in league. Heath Marica is indignant, and unwillingly reveals the truth to Marcia of her love. The Jewels, of course, are not to be found.

"Oh, for heaven's sake don't do that," Elisha pleaded. "Artie Nickerson would be ragged mad if he had I'd told you. If you must know, when the Jewels were, I can repeat it near 'pough,' I reckon. It ran something like this—

"Safe on Cape with my lady. Shall recur with her later."
 "And that was all?" inquired Marcia calmly.
 "All! Ain't that enough?" Elisha demanded.

As she rechecked to reply he presently continued:
 "I don't want you should think I'm doing this, Marcia, with any unfriendly motive. It's only that those of us who've seen you marry one worthless villain don't want you should marry another. You know that well's!"

"The woman raised her hand to check him. "I'm aware 'tain't pleasant to hear me say so out loud, but it's God's truth."
 "Marcia!" Sylvia burst out.
 "Hush, dear. We'll talk this later. Elisha, I think I must ask you and Eliezer to go to tell me where the Jewels are."

"I don't know where they are."
 "Nor north!" "bust—"bust—the telegram."
 "Nothing except to thank you for your kind intentions and say you quoted it quite correctly," said Mr. Hren merrily. "But I think you have apparently forgotten, is the name of Mr. Heath's box?"

"My hand!" So "th," faltered Elisha. "I'm afraid so," said Sylvia.
 "I'm afraid so," said Sylvia.
 "It's all right. Just leave us now, please."
 The door banged behind the discomfited officials.

CHAPTER IX

The torrent of words Sylvia had until now held in check broke from her—"Was it true, Marcia—that they said about Uncle Jason I mean? Was it true?"

"I'm afraid so, dear."
 "But you never told me, and you never told Mother, either. Of course I see why you didn't, but you should have told me. It would have broken her heart. I hate him! I hate him for making you unhappy and spoiling your life!"

"Hush child, Jason has not spoiled my life," contradicted Marcia with a grave and sad smile.
 "But he has hurried it—dashed to pieces all the dreams you started out with—those beautiful dreams a girl has when she is young. I know you had such fanciful ones, for you are the sort who would. And Jason came and trampled on them—"

"He made me see life as it was. Perhaps it was better so. As it was, Marcia? Was Jason as bad as they said, Marcia? Ah, you don't have to answer. There is no need for you to try to reconcile your feelings, for you are apart from him with the truth. He was as bad—probably much worse. Dear, dear Marcia," impulsively Sylvia bent her lips to the girl's cheek, and said in a low voice, "I cannot imagine," she rushed on, "why, when one of my family had made you as wretched as he did, you should have wanted another in the house. Had I suffered so I should never have wished to lay eyes on any more Hoves as long as I live!"

"I have tried not only to forgive but to forget. The door on the past and begun a new life."
 "And now into it has come this Stanley Heath," the girl said.
 "For the fraction of a second Marcia did not reply, but almost inaudibly she murmured:
 "Yes."
 Sylvia slipped one of her strong young arms about the bowed shoulders.

"Just seems as if I could not bear it," she burst out passionately.
 "Sylvia, look at me. Tell me the truth. Do you, too, love Stanley Heath? Was that the reason you fought against Elisha's finding the Jewels? Tell me, I must know."
 "No," she answered without hesitation. "At first I thought you fascinate me, I changed my mind, though, later on. Not because on acquaintance he became less charming. It wasn't that. It's because I became what I just—changed my mind. As for the Jewels, I could not bear to let that little runt of a sheriff win them. I see, I thought that there were three under the brick and that when you urged him to search, you did not know it."

"I don't know," she said, "I was in the accident one day when I was here alone, but I had no idea who had it. I thought it was the Jewels, and I determined Elisha should not find them."
 "You think Mr. Heath took the Jewels?" asked Marcia, slowly.
 "Certainly I do. Don't you?"

"No."
 "But, Marcia, can't you see how plain it all is! I know it is terrible for you, dear. It almost breaks my heart. It is an awful thing to believe anybody—harder on a person one loves. Nevertheless, we must face the facts. People do not carry such things about with them—especially their jewelry—harder on a person one loves, you may be sure of that. He is guilty, Marcia—guilty."

"I do not believe it," was the stubborn protest.
 "I realize, dear, it is hard for you to own it," she said. "We hate to admit the faults of those we love. But I must not be misled by remaining blind to them. Perhaps Mr. Heath was horribly tempted to commit this sin. We do not know. We are not his judges. The thing for me is to help him out of the mess he is in. Aid him to escape."
 "You're giving him money—you would do that?"

"Surely I would."
 "You mean you would help him to evade the law? The punishment such wrongdoing merits?"
 "Yes. To give him a sporting chance, the start of those who are after him. You love Stanley Heath, don't you? Don't you want to see him go free?"

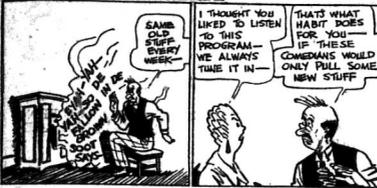

"Not if he is guilty."
 "Well, nobody is going to round up Mr. Heath if I can prevent it. He is Sylvia, throwing his head back, "You won't help him get away, I will. He must go in the boat—now—today."
 "The boat has gone. Mr. Currier arrived this morning after you had gone and took the boat back to New York with the Jewels!"
 "Yes, the Jewels, too."
 "Humph! So that's where they are."

"Pretty cute of him to make so neat a getaway! What sort of man was he? A gentleman, was Mr. Heath?"
 "The older woman smiled.
 "Well, no. At least he—no, he was polite and had a nice manner—a quiet voice."
 "But he was different from Mr. Heath—an inferior—one who took orders," interrupted Sylvia. "In other words, he is the brute of the team."
 "How can you say that?"
 "Because I must, Marcia—because he is. Confess the circumstances are suspicious."
 "They seem to be," she owned with reluctance.
 "Have you considered them?" Sylvia inquired.
 Marcia drew her hand across her forehead.

"I—yes, I have thought them over. I don't understand them at all. Nevertheless, I do not believe Stanley Heath is guilty," was the proud retort.
 "You are making a great mistake, if you will pardon me for saying so," Sylvia responded gently. "You are deliberately closing your eyes and mind to facts that later are bound to cause you bitter unhappiness. Let alone the man's guilt. He has a wife. You seem to forget that. As Elisha Winslow remarked, you have already been miserable once. Why be so a second time? Help Stanley Heath to get out of Wilton and forget him!"

"I cannot do either of those things. In the first place, I have given my word to hand Mr. Heath over to the law. As for forgetting him—why ask the impossible!"
 Sylvia's patience gave way.
 "Go your own way then, she snapped. "Go your own way, and if by any and you regret it—as you surely will—do not blame me. Don't blame me, either, if I do go with you. Stanley Heath shall never remain here and be betrayed to the law. Stick to your grim old puritanism if you must. I'll be damned if I'll do otherwise!"
 She started toward the stairway.
 "Sylvia, come back here!" Marcia cried.
 "I shall not come back!" the girl said. "I have said my mind, and I will stick to it. Marcia shall never remain here and be betrayed to the law. Stick to your grim old puritanism if you must. I'll be damned if I'll do otherwise!"

GINGER ROGERS is a girl to be pitied, though you may not think so when you consider those gay, glamorous pictures that she makes with the nimble-footed Fred Astaire. But it's because of those same pictures that Ginger has a grievance.

For it's as a result of all that dancing that Ginger's feet hurt. She has to practice the various new routines for days at a stretch, and then do them over and over again for the picture.

To'd think that would make her feet that, when her feet was done, she'd had enough dancing. But not at all--when she arrived in New York Ginger Rogers recently for a vacation she announced that she was going to see a lot of act plays--and do a lot of dancing! As for her partner, Fred Astaire, he's so happy these days because of the arrival of his brand new son that he doesn't know whether he's on his head or his heels.

Kay Francis has a lot of fun when she deserts Hollywood; she is one of the few actresses who doesn't look actressy when she's not working; as a result of that fact, few people recognize her and she can go to theaters and night clubs without being mobbed by admirers. She doesn't depend on dark glasses, either.

Here's good news for all of us. Ed Wynn and Jack Pearl are to be heard over the air waves again, and it's quite likely that B. Roy and his son that he doesn't know whether he's on his head or his heels.

If you have sat and suffered through some of the shorts that supplemented feature pictures, and decided that you could think up better ones yourself, here's your chance. Century Films, a new organization, would like to have the public submit ideas for short subjects--and they'll give away an automobile each day for the best idea presented!

Errol Flynn, who became famous overnight as a result of his looks and his acting in "Captain Blood," is one of the few movie stars who have really written a book--written it all himself. I mean, A good publisher has accepted it. Which is a miracle everybody of all those announcements of the novel that Jean Harlow was said to be writing, ever so long ago, and of the reports that it never came to anything because she had a quarrel with the person who really was writing it for her. Elissa Landi has written several novels that have been published, of course; they're good enough so that she can abandon the screen for the typewriter any time she wants to. She returned to the stage briefly not long ago, but the play was not a success, and now she's going to make some more pictures in England.

Mary Pickford just can't stop working. As if producing pictures weren't enough, she's going to broadcast again--this time from the projection room of her home, Pickfair.

Isabell Jewell is finally getting the breaks that she has wanted. She did very well, indeed, in "A Tale of Two Cities." Then she turned in an excellent performance in "Celling Zero." So she was given a test for the role of "Lillian" in "The Good Earth," for which practically everybody, including Anna May Wong, has been tested, and so far hers is the best. They're going to get on the making of this picture at last, and a good thing it is, too--planning and discussing it have been going on everlastingly, it seems.

Popular football players used to sell bonds after they were graduated from college. Now they go into the movies. If they can, Nick Lokals, a Notre Dame star, is the latest recruit.

ODDS AND ENDS... This weekly program of Bing Crosby's has become one of the most popular on the air... "The Ghost Goes West" to the pictures you really must see... Margaret Sullivan, who is too, too temperamental, was actually ordered to throw things--a scene from "The Moon's Our Home"...

Status of Alien Who Has Taken "First Papers"

The "first papers" are simply a declaration of the intent of becoming an American citizen. The declaration gives him no right, privilege, or duties of American citizenship, but it does give him any of his rights as a citizen of another country. He cannot be conscripted by the United States, but he is under the protection of his mother country until he renounces allegiance to that country at the time his petition for naturalization is granted--that is, at the time he gets his "second papers."

Remedy the "Pain" You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE, to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store--simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this--and see that you get what you want.

Ann Harding Plays Lead In "The Lady Consents" At College on Friday

For Friday the College Theatre brings to the screen Ann Harding in a soul-stirring drama, "The Lady Consents." She is supported by Herbert Marshall and Edward Ellis.

In the development of the plot Miss Harding, when told by her husband, Herbert Marshall, that he loves another, Margaret Lindsay, agrees to give him a divorce. This brings unhappiness to Ellis, who is the father of Herbert Marshall, and who makes his home with them. Ellis is deeply devoted to Miss Harding, loving her as his own daughter. Marshall marries Miss Lindsay, only to realize in a short time that he has made a mistake. She plainly tells Ellis that he is not wanted before he goes to a camp out west. Here the accidental death through his gun sends a bullet through his heart. Marshall and Miss Harding rush to his bedside. Bed-fore death comes he gives them his blessing and prays that they may be brought together again.

On her return, Miss Harding informs Walter Abel, her persistent suitor, that she can never marry him. Marshall calls to see her and the old love is revived. He asks Miss Lindsay for a divorce and she refuses for the very frank reason that she has a luxurious home and plenty of money and does not intend to give it up. Miss Harding, realizing that the only way to get at Miss Lindsay is by lessening her income, notifies Marshall in Miss Lindsay's presence that she is going to sue him for back alimony and for possession of the home, the deed for which was in her name. This angers Miss Lindsay and she gives Marshall a divorce with heavy alimony, and Marshall and Miss Harding are happily reunited.
