Circuit Court Convenes Monday With Heavy Docket

3 Escape From Rowan County Jail Sunday

Emercy Conn, Jay Harmon and Claude Hall Effect Release

WERE HELD ON FELONIES

Three men who escaped from the Rowan county jail Sunday remained at large today, and officers said they had no clue as to their whereabouts. The escaped prisoners are: Jay Harmon, held on a charge of damaging property; Emery "Duck" Conn and Claude Hall, charged with grand larceny.

The prisoners effected their escape by prying more and bricks from the wall of the jail next to the WPA storehouse. They went through the storehouse after getting out of the jail.

Conn and Hall were arrested Saturday, charged with stealing a suitcase from a parked car. Officers said that Conn was wearing some of the stolen clothes from the bag when captured. Harmon allegedly broke out 2 windows in the Morehead Dispensary in an effort to steal whiskey on display there.

Politics... Business Etc.

First Candidate Out.
A man who wants to run for office sends me his announcement and platform today. It's the first one of the independent group of these without charging special rates. But as his name does not appear, that won't help anything any more as a model for future candidates.

I'm reading your paper and had a mind I'd like to have you nounce my candidacy for some public office. I ain't keering what kind it is so I get one before they are all run out. It seem as if these days they ain't enough ter go around, and I'm tryin to sit my bid in the first million applicants. If there is anything you kin do fer me go ahead and o it fer you can certainly know where I stand by readin my platform, which is ter-ist:

My platform:
I'm g'olun ter run fer office soon. 'N I'm thinkin jeb how I'd do it. Because ye know I've got ter find The things that'll pue em to it.

Many folks ar kinder foolish like, and I don't think they ar noose; I'll tell em of they'll vote fer me I'll get out thar and expose.

Jest what I'll expose wont matter much
Ses I promise ter begin it—
I'll find lots of faults and sling the mud,
'N whatever is I'm again it.

I'll give my race I'll bet a dime.
It's as easy as eatin pie;
I'll give em hell and whoop it up;
'N want be afraid ter lie.

The reason why I know I'll win is because I'm a hard boiled fighter. Then, too, the inner has Little chance against the outer.

I ain't no in ter lie, yer know. So long as I'm at the nose; Because I know I'll gain repute By bels a downright sinner.

So 'lect me to this office now. I've promised all you've axed; Then we'll holler loud and shout In favor of those who're taxed.

So I ast the outters to cose the inn. 'Nn let me have it awhile. Because I want a chance, yer know 'Taccumulate my pile.

Now as a news paper man, of ye think 'tis worth ter let me know 'a I'll be fer sumple else. Ye know all of us advertisers must stick ter gether.—Ashland Independent.

Retail volume on the whole receded from the previous week, but compared favorably with last year and increased in some cities. That the weather was the restraining factor was shown by the brisk rise in retail trade over the previous and comparable weeks in sections where the cold was not so severe.

Louisville, reported that cold weather continued to slow up retail sales, but generally business is ahead of last year. Volume of wholesale trade continues 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1935 this time. Decline of 2.1 per cent employment.

Bessie Day Murder Trial Is Set For 3rd Day of Term

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

How Wars Are Born

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

HERE'S a lad who says he saw me in Shanghai—and boy, would I have a tough time trying to prove an alibi on that statement. As a matter of fact, any alibi I might try to dig up would be shot to pieces before I started, because this lad sends in a picture he took of Colonel Freddie Barker and me, standing at one of the rifle emplacements in the International Settlement, during the late Sino-Japanese argument at Shanghai.

The man who took that picture is Frank B. Eckhardt. And along with the picture he sends the story of an incident that happened over there, in which he participated—an incident that might easily have started another war—a war between Japan and the good old U. S. A.

This incident happened to Frank and a bunch of his buddies while he was doing duty with the First Battalion, United States Marines, stationed on Sinza road, Shanghai. It was in January, 1932, just about a week after the trouble had broken out between the Japs and the Chinese, and the whole place was in a turmoil.

The officers of the battalion had a Chinese tailor by the name of Feng Kee, and one day Feng Kee came to battalion headquarters and asked for a guard to take him to his shop on Bloomer road, Hong Kew district, to get the officers' uniforms. He couldn't go and get them alone, because the shop was inside the Japanese lines, and an unprotected Chinese in that territory wouldn't stand a chance of getting out with any merchandise.

Guard Is Armed for Any Emergency.
A guard was made up which consisted of a battalion guard and headquarters company commander, two other privates and Frank. They rode in a truck and were armed with pistols and Thompson sub-machine guns.

They got to the tailor shop all right, and the officers and Feng Kee went inside while Frank and one other private stood guard at the entrance. And no sooner had the officers gone in than a Japanese patrol, consisting of 20 men and an officer, came marching down the street. They stopped at the sight of two American marines in the tailor shop doorway, turned and leveled their rifles in a menacing manner.

They stood that way for a moment, then suddenly one of the Japanese soldiers lowered his bayonet and sprang toward the Jap. The Jap pointed the bayonet at Frank's buddy—the other marine private on guard with him at the doorway. He raised his machine gun, knocked the

He raised his Machine Gun, Knocked the Bayonet From his buddy's hand, pulled back the extractor of his gun and yelled at him to stop—that he meant business.

Even a Jap Was Afraid of a Tommy Gun.
The Jap took a step backward at the sight of that deadly machine gun pointed at him. The marine officers came running out of the tailor shop and the officer of the Japanese patrol tried to see what the trouble was.

During the heated conversation that ensued, the Jap officer commanded Feng Kee as his prisoner and expressed his intention of seizing the uniforms that had been placed in the truck. The marine officers finally convinced him, however, that the goods were American property and that they were not aiding the Chinese in any way, and the truck was then allowed to proceed.

When the truck was loaded it started back toward battalion headquarters. They were approaching the Woohching road crossing when another Japanese patrol halted them. They surrounded the truck, ordered the marines to get out, and again came the demand for the truck's contents and for Feng Kee, the tailor.

Major Lets Japs Know He'll Fight.
The second patrol was even more threatening in its attitude than the first. The American major ordered his men to cock their pieces and told the Japanese that if they approached the truck, or even touched it, he would give the word to fire.

The Jap officer's face turned black with anger. There followed a few moments of tense silence with both sides liberating the Japs and the marines could proceed with the truck if they left the goods behind and turned Feng Kee over to them.

Again the major tried to go through that long-winded explanation that the goods were the property of American officers and that he was not seeking to aid the Chinese in any way. After considerable argument, then, the Jap officer accepted the explanation. The truck started for headquarters once more and American patrols out looking for an answer.

Frank says you can't get any idea of how scared he was. Those Japs, he says, looked as though they were spilling for trouble. And although they got out of it each time with nothing more dangerous than a little heated discussion, he never knew when those Japs were going to take it into their heads to open fire.

"If you ask me," he goes on, "I'd say I was looking into the eyes of death twice inside of half an hour. And that's plenty for one day."

What a Troubled World? What Will TVA Do? Schwab Still Smiles Steam Turbine Planes

Will this troubled world ever calm down, supply work to those willing to work and live happily, and enable superior ability to show what it can do?

Spain, waking from long lethargy, is swept by riots, kills starved and ailing. Rife and air rebellion in South America; will our friends of feeling compel us to attempt straightening that out? Rioting in Paris and a sabotage on English men-o-war.

Washington wonders what TVA will do with the Supreme court letting government enter the business of producing and selling power.

Some suggest getting power on every farm, regardless of distance or cost, as rural mail delivery is put on every farm.

If every home is entitled to government mail delivery, every farm should be entitled to government power delivery on the same basis. That would mean business for copper companies, more running water, less dirt, more irrigated garden patches, more electric light after sundown in chicken coops.

Charles M. Schwab, seventy-four, still specializes in optimism, like the man who went to the race track, lost every cent, but escaped death in the railroad wreck. Mr. Schwab says la-bor conditions are the best in 50 years. He should know; he began as a laborer and did not get $5, or $3, or $2 a day. Industry he calls a "three-legged stool": Capital, labor, management are the three legs.

Charles M. Schwab back where he was 56 years ago, the same as then, in age and energy, and he would soon be at the head of a great industry. "We can't believe it does not know Schwab."

Russia, trying everything, experiments with steam-propelled turbine planes for stratospheric flights at such heights water boils at half the temperature necessary at sea level. The scientist claims after testing the plane will be recovered 90 per cent. Two years ago William and George Bealer, in Los Angeles, built and flew a plane with a steam engine. There is still much to learn about flying.

Uncle Sam, convinced that he is his brother's keeper, after all, wants a peace agreement among all American republics. Beautiful. But if any republic decides to fight, anyhow, it is to be hoped the country will not become arbitrator.

"Judge not that ye be not judged," is sound advice.

We can no longer decide the right and wrong of a few between Mexico and England, or Chile and the Argentine, than we could between the two Kilkenny cats.

It is pleasing to learn from George Washington university of a new and refreshing preparation that makes possible childbirth, "during sound sleep," without pain.

More and better children, bigger population, more food, more wealth, with gradual elimination of the most, least, inferior race, by absorption, or voluntary extermination.

Poor Hiale Selassie of Ethiopia, waiting for the rainy season to expel the Italians, suddenly found his army of 30,000 driven hither and thither, and two other armies, under two of his ablest "rajas," sent scattering into the jungle.

Seventy thousand Italians seized a mountain fort that Ethiopia thought impregnable started the Mussolini kind of "rainy season" with bombs from the sky. This Ben Mussolini used his own white, Italian soldiers, not his native troops from Eritrea.

Russia and Japan seem to be approaching war. Recently Russia closed its consulate general at Mukden, in Japanese Manchukuo; no reason given. Japanese and Manchukuoan airplanes are reported prepared for a Russian attack. Japan protests against Russia's huge army in Siberia. Something may happen.

Chancellor Hitler announces: "We have solved the problem of producing synthetic gasoline and rubber."

How good are the synthetic fuel and rubber; how cheap? These things will come, for science in the material world can do everything better than nature can.

Fuel will be created, and flying machines, too, as far above today's products as electric light is above whale oil, and the airplane above the ox-cart.

New Jersey high schools will give courses in "safe automobile driving," a good idea. All school boys should learn about automobiles and airplanes.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

How many persons have been driven quite or almost cuckoo by "The Blues Goes 'Round and Around" cannot be said by this writer who is more or less slack from hearing it. The other evening, after listening to one orchestra play it three times, he moved on, heard it played twice by another band and moved on again. Then Ray Watson, as a special favor, sang it for him. Your correspondent judged it a good time to call it a night and go home. He turned on the radio and, well, you guessed it. Young women in this office, otherwise highly estimable and in fact charming, go around singing it and a young man secretary has an excellent voice and is right cozy in all other ways, gives it a work-out during the luncheon hour. It's just those things that get started and jumped right into a smash hit. No less an authority than Variety predicts that its sales will exceed those of "The Blues Goes 'Round and Around" and "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

No wonder this goofy song is getting so much attention. It has a class start—on the word of Mike Riley, a sandy-haired trombonist. Some time ago, Riley picked up a silly looking fellow in Pittsburgh backshop. One night, he took it up to the Oxy club. A young man who had been doing a good deal of dalliance with snickering cat, sup asked Mike to play it. Riley's contract holder he pushed the middle key down and the music went 'round and around. "Hoo-o-o-o-o," wailed the young man, "I've never heard of it. I never miss Eddy Farley, but I never wrote it. It assisted by Farley and 'Red' had much. But when people get into singing it, Riley sent a buck to Washington and got a copyright. Thus a hit based on an inquiry by a mouse.

The next step was a three-cornered contract with a publisher. Each place was to share the profits. Riley, Farley and Hodgson a cent. Each orchestration brings each two cents. Also they split one-third of the profits from the sale of sheet music. In one day in New York, 13,000 copies were sold. In 10 weeks the total sales reached 100,000. That isn't all. Riley and Farley wrote his own Broadway contracts and their names in lights. H-o-o-o-o-o-o.

Remaining cuckoo, or just plain goofy, there were those two stunts in I. R. T. subway train who, drunks in a car, kept up an argument, the words of which were indistinguishable. Finally, the train for some unknown reason—no one ever tells the sardines why—was stopped between two stations. One of the drunks, who was already dead, drew out his watch and after staring at it optically a while, he said to the other: "Twenty-two minutes late. That's the earliest I ever heard of." He snatched his companion. "How can we be 20 minutes late when we haven't got there yet?"

Quer that that proficiency in killing me about that incident, read later in saving fifteen lives. In making his rounds over in Brooklyn, Patrolman Michael Reardon discovered that a woman had been on fire. Barred from rushing into the front door by a mass of flame, he ran to the rear and burst his night stick through the door. The woman, who was awakened by the noise, obeyed Reardon's orders to give the alarm to other firemen. All came down on the fire escapes safely. Fellow policemen said that the accuracy of Reardon's throw with his night stick was due to the fact that during the World war he was one of the hand grenade hurlers in the A. E. F.

Street scene: A be-jeweled and bejeweled woman leaning on a Tom restaurant leath. The fluffy body of the little animal encased in a heavy and expensive blanket and on its feet knitted socks. The woman, who was not venter trying to warm his blue hands over his charcoal fire.

Has Complete File of Clippings on World War

Munch.—One of the most complete files of modern newspaper clippings in the world has been installed in the famous old "Rehe" here. Called the "Rehe Collection," after its founder, the new museum was started in 1914, in connection with the idea of assembling and collating all available information on the dramatic death of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, and in which he embraced the whole subject of war.

French Women Get Choice of Homes

Paris.—French husbands will have to follow their wives in future, if the new law now before parliament is passed. At present, French law compels the wife to follow her husband wherever he goes, to a home she dislikes. She can be divorced on grounds of leaving the legal domicile if she takes a dislike to the home, apartment, and finds a nicer one for herself. A French wife may not, at present, rent a dwelling without her husband's consent. The proposed law, madame may be tempted to have her own home if she has good reason for requiring to do so.

NO SOURDOUGHS IN NEW MINING CAMPS

Modern Prospector Succeeds Old-Time Miners.
Montreal.—The grizzled "sourdough" of the old West, whose best friend was his six-shooter and whose favorite sports were rum and fero, is nowhere to be found in the new mining camps now going up in the wilder and more remote regions to the north of the Abitibi gold fields in Western Quebec. In place of the new-style prospectors are college-bred men. Airplane and tractor are being used in developing new areas. A road that will enable American prospectors to visit the "fast frontier" is under construction.

An old-time pioneer gold-seeker, coming to one of the new mining camps in this "fast frontier" Quebec, would find placer pans and sluices replaced by modern machinery, smoke-filled bars and gambling dens dispossessed by motion picture theaters and sports parlors. Instead of the clapboard boxes of gold-rush memory, neat, colorful houses line the streets, and there are no more prospectors and geologists, but the friendly, quiet village folk.

Workers, Not Adventurers.
Not only are many of the new miners well trained and fully equipped, but few come with any idea of gold adventure and get-rich-quick results. Rather, they have settled here by their families to engage in a well-ordered, steady occupation. The older, developed section is the seat of the most intense operations, with big smelters and 150 mines working to the tune of $10,000,000 a year.

North of this region new camps are going up. With the high price of the yellow metal in world markets luring many into the industry, geological survey parties from the Quebec bureau of mines worked all last summer mapping promising mineral regions and prospecting for gold. It is the development of mineral deposits.

Moreover, in accordance with a program laid out by Joseph E. Perrault, director of the Quebec bureau for Quebec province, schools for miners are being opened up not only in Abitibi but in Lake St. Jean and at points on the Abitibi and Saguenay rivers and the eastern townships. At such centers those who intend to do gold mining listen to lectures on mineralogy and geology as applied to prospecting and go out better trained for their work.

The new highway will connect the mining area with Montreal and Hull, two great cities and forests where nature is still very much untamed. There are said to be scores of streams and lakes which have never been chartered and whose names even evolved by the white man.

Planes Locate Gold.
Airplanes are helping in the work of locating gold, which even the Indians knew located. In the Quebec records that they told Jacques Cartier that he would find gold in the upper shore of Lake Kenawadick. The older Cartier never was able to mine enough of the mineral to make it worth while. In July, 1911, came the discovery of gold in the Abitibi district, by an American named J. J. Sullivan, and a Frenchman named Hétel Arthier. They first struck it rich on the eastern shore of Lake Kenawadick. However, it was not until many years later, in May, 1923—that mining on a profitable basis was begun.

Today planes equipped with positions in winter land on the lakes that dot the region and are speeding its development as a gold-mining center.

Only Farmer-Controlled Railroad in U. S. Quits

Atlantic, Iowa.—Because they couldn't compete with trucks and automobiles, no trains are running on the Atlantic Southern, only farm-leased railroad in the United States. Permission for the trolley, 17-mile line was given by the Interstate Commerce commission after directors and stockholders of the road announced its owners, the farmers, found it cheaper to ship their produce by truck.

A co-operative venture, the Atlantic Northern was built in 1907 at a cost of $350,000. It was financed by thirty Danish settlers of Elk Horn and Kimballton, Iowa, who made it a source of outlet for their products. At that time, hard-surface highways were few, and Iowa and automobiles were in their infancy. A. M. Pederson, ticket agent for the road, said, "The farmers just found it cheaper to ship their produce. For one thing, if they wanted to ship live stock, it was more convenient to have a trucker call for it than to bring it to the railroad."

College Students Are Given Test on Morals

Toronto, Ont.—University of Toronto students and coeds are undergoing a "purity test." The test is a set of 20 personal questions, which, by delving into the past life of the students, is designed to determine the state of their morals, or character. The test is a multiple-choice type. "Purity" marks are lost for smoking, drinking and for every kiss. Then, after a student has answered all the questions, the total number of unfavorable marks are added, then the total is subtracted from 100. What is left is the student's "purity" percentage. The investigation is being carried out unofficially.

Already nearly 200 students have been tested, with the varying results. So far both the highest and lowest percentages have been obtained by the males, with the coeds holding the more middle course.

ROMERO SWITCHES FROM LADY-KILLER TO SLAYER

One day he is suave, handsome, well-dressed opera star; the next he is a snarling gangster, with a twitching trigger finger and an streak of cowardice.

That is the sort of life Hollywood has been leading popular Cesar Romero, who plays a principal feature role in 19th Century's "Show Them No Mercy" coming Friday to the Cozy Theatre.

In his last previous picture "Metropolitan," Romero was seen as the "operatic friend of Lawrence Tibbett.

In "Show Them No Mercy," Romero is the "brains" of a criminal mob. The picture which depicts America's fight to exterminate this breed of criminal, centers its plot and excitement, about the predicament of young lovers who are trapped in a manhunt. Rochelle Hudson and Edward Norris are teamed in the romantic roles of this new Darryl F. Zanuck production, which was directed by George Marshall. Romero's captions in crime are Bryce Cabot, who will be remembered for his gangster portrait in "Let 'Em Have It," Warren Hymer and Edward Brophy.

Rowan County 5's To Battle Tonight In Independent Meet

Paul Combs' Merchants Will Defend Title At Ashland

Two Rowan county basketball teams will leave here this afternoon for Ashland, where they will attempt to salvage the choice title in the Y. M. C. A. Independent tournament. They are the Morehead Merchants and Haldeman Sharpshooters.

Last year Morehead players took just about everything there was to capture in the meet. The Morehead Newsbards, playing this year as the Morehead Merchants, won the tournament. The Eagles Nest team of Morehead played through to the semi-finals and lost then by only 2 points, while the Soldiers Blue Demins, another of the four teams in the semi-finals, were really composed principally of Morehead College players.

Of the five men selected on the all-tournament team in 1935, four were Morehead College boys, while two of the five on the second team also had played at the Morehead school.

Paul "Mouse" Combs will again lead the defending champions. He is the only player of the old champions who will again appear. The balance of the Morehead Merchants squad is composed of stars of the strong Morehead College Freshman five. Luster Oxley, of Ashland, who came to Morehead to gain recognition throughout the state as a daring and high scoring forward after being a substitute at Ashland High School most of the time, and Lawrence Carter, one of the highest scoring players in the S. I. A. A. this year, will not be with the Combs team.

To offset this the Merchants have a galaxy of stars every bit as good or better than they had last year. Wesley ever beats the Morehead team will have to contend with two of the finest forwards that have ever played on Morehead floors. They are Combs, who dribbles and shoots with either hand, and Arman, a Newport High graduate of several years ago, who is picked as the lad to carry the Morehead College banner in the next 2 or 3 years.

The guard berths are apparently in better care for this year than last. The Merchants will depend on the forwards to do the bulk of the scoring, for in Horton and Smith they have 2 high point-making guards. Horton generally shoots with one hand, besides the ball with the other. Smith generally jumps into the air and lets fly with both hands. The points that these boys registered for Morehead's Freshmen this year numbered well over a hundred.

Combs has one almost strictly defensive player in Ed Jumper. He is not a high scoring player, but has proved especially effective in wrecking the opponents' defense during the year.

Added to this starting group are Thornton and Jones, both outstanding players, who will see plenty of service if the Merchants are not eliminated tonight.

Haldeman also boasts a strong lineup. In addition to Fraley, Riddle and Holbrook, all lettermen at Morehead College, the Haldeman five has a high point-maker and an elusive basketball player in Johnson, a product of Breckinridge Training School and all-Regional performer. Fraley, Riddle and Holbrook all played last year with the Morehead Eagles Nest team, and were eliminated only after a bitter battle with Ashland Warts, runners-up. This team plays a slightly different game than do the Merchants. They use a slower break and work the ball in. Their defense is probably better than that of the Merchants and the team is composed of experienced players who play the game to win. Haldeman may be the team to watch.

Wesleyan Tops Morehead 35-23

Morehead College Never Is Much of Threat

Wesleyan made 7 out of 16 free throw attempts good, while Morehead scored 9 out of 19.

The Eagles played without the services of its 2 stars, Carter and Rosson, who were unable to make the trip because of illness.
