

CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION NOW TO BE CONTINUED UNTIL ENTIRE DOCKET IS CLEARED SAYS JUDGE

Grand Jury Returns Twenty Two Indictments First Day Of Session; Many Cases Already Tried; Court Promises To Clean Docket Before Adjournment; Murder Cases Set Down For Monday

With a Grand Jury that has already established a record for the number of indictments returned the first day, and with a determination to make a clean sweep of the docket at this term Judge Henry R. Prewitt, opened the June term of the Rowan Circuit Court here Monday night last.

In the meantime the Grand Jury began operating. Before the day was over they had returned twenty two indictments, a record for a first day in this county.

Judge Prewitt, after the selection of the Grand Jury gave him specific instructions as to their duties as members of the Grand Jury. He emphasized the fact that newspaper reports led him to believe that there was crime wave in this county that they could stop if they would fearlessly indict. He said that members of the Grand Jury could do much to eradicate these robberies and murders by sternly returning indictments. He dwelt on the idea however that the Grand Jury is not a jury for the trial of cases. They hear but one side of the case and are not there for the purpose of trying those whom they indict. That is a matter, he said, for the court and the petit jury.

He advised the jury, however that one reason for the widespread crime wave in this county is the fact that juries in the past have dealt too leniently with those convicted. While he has no desire to see a death sentence inflicted, he believes it would put a damper on crime.

The following is the list of those selected for Grand Jury service: Sam Luton, foreman; Oliver Lamb, Sam Robert Thornbury; Cecil Carey; Epp Crisp; Lucy Smith; W. A. Stidham; N. H. Brown; Frank Jones; Lee Kidd; J. T. Howerton; John Reed.

Petit Jury No. One:

Calvin Fultz; John Pennington; John Fugate; Elmer Shaw; Nelson Smith; John Adams; Holts Mabry; Marvin Thomas; Calvin Mabry; J. Sam Slusher; Ziff Davis.

Retri Jury No. Two:

B. F. Foreman; T. H. Caudill; Ben Spackman; Walter Gilkerson; C. M. White; Frank Pettit; Joe Redwine; George Crockett; Harrison Ramey; Ora Hall; Charles Con I. N. Prewitt.

The following were sentenced on Monday afternoon:

- Fred Collins, drunk, $25.00 fine.
- In jail.
- Ollie Adkins, drunk, $25.00 fine.
- In jail.
- Gleba Adkins, drunk, $25.00 fine.
- In jail.
- Moora, drunk, $25.00 fine.
- In jail.
- Ray Gastineau, Possession, $150.
- In jail.
- Harley Boyd, Driving car while drunk, $200. In jail.
- Bert Gilkerson, Assault, $100. In jail.

Among later indictments made by the Grand Jury were five for liquor violations and one against W. E. Proctor charging him with unlawful conversion of property.

Two murder trials and one for shooting and wounding are set for trial on Monday of next week. Pirc will be tried for the killing of Wm. C. Click and Sam Casidy for the killing of De Boyde Sherman Evans, charged with shooting and wounding Joe Coffee is also to be tried Monday.

Other cases tried up to the present are as follows:

George Markwell, Possession. Sent to jail.

Volney Skaggs is home. The boy who disappeared on the night of May 30, and over whose absence constant newspaper publicity, and radio broadcasting was instituted by his father and his brothers without result. The search was continued for several weeks. A court of inquiry was held without result.

And now Volney Skaggs is back home. As silently as he disappeared he has returned. And as yet no one has been able to learn his reason. It is still a mystery.

Morehead Takes Sandy Hookers

With the backing of such old timers as Lawrence Fraley Bob Sandford, young local pitcher, drew the blood in Sandy Hook in a diamond jubilee Sunday at Jayne memorial Stadium. Sandford allowed only five hits, while his team mates were garnering sixteen off the delivery of the Adkins Brothers, Morehead led all the way until on a combination of hits and costly errors, Sandy Hook tied the count at five-all. In the ninth Lawrence Fraley singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Bates' single to unknock the count and win the old ball game.

The feature of the game was the terrific batting spree indulged in by the Morehead team, with sixteen hits to their credit. S. Adkins was replaced in the sixth inning by E. Adkins after allowing twelve hits. E. Adkins finished the game allowing four hits in the three innings.

Morehead's lineup: Carter 2b; L. Fraley cf; Honaker cf; Lawrence Fraley, cf; Fannin 1b; Sandford p; Keeton 3b; Bates rf; Hoge lf.

Neither has been seen or heard of since, Withrow was released when his cries were heard by the jailer, Safford Bowling.

According to the reports, Withrow had visited the jail to make certain that the prisoners were safe and to lock them in their cells for the night. As he entered the door McKinley, who had somehow obtained possession of a gun, stuck it in the deputy's back and ordered him into a nearby cell. He then called Myers and relieved Withrow of his

Will Rogers In "Business And Pleasure"

Will Rogers continues his sensational career on the talking screen in "Business and Pleasure," adapted from the best seller novel, "The Plutoer" by Booth Tarkington, in latest production coming to the Cozy Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, June 29 and 30.

Roger in this newest comedy, has the role of Earl Tinker, middle Western manufacturer, who takes his family on a sight-seeing tour of the Mediterranean and incidentally combines pleasure with a brilliant piece of business.

The story primarily written by Tarkington as a defense of the typical American tourist and as an answer to the satirical attacks on the native son by Sinclair Lewis in his Main Street and Babbalanza, retains much of its delicious flavor in the screen version. Few changes were made to give the production dramatic form as well as to serve as a proper vehicle for the Rogers' brand of humor. We find Roger, then as a safety razor manufacturer, who, through strenuous competition by a present rival, finds himself in a precarious business position. He embarks on the ocean voyage with his wife, his daughter and a deep laid plan to rescue his business and send his trade enemies down to defeat.

Aboard the de luxe liner he meets among others Lawrence Ogle, enacted by Joel McCrea, a playwright, who is enjoying the fruits of a Broadway success in a vacation trip to Algiers. Also among Rogers' early acquaintances is Mme. Momora, a mysterious French lady of unusual charm and brilliance.

And with the nagging wife and his lovelick daughter, Will Rogers in "Business and Pleasure" will be here. Will Rogers is recognized as a show in himself. The play is just another opportunity for a good laugh and a good lesson.

Mr. Bowling is offering a reward of $100 for the capture of the escaped prisoners. The court has also agreed to give a reward. The total rewards will probably amount to almost $500.

Myers was arrested last week on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

At the urging of a great many of their citizen friends in Morehead J. H. Miles, Virgil Flood and Leo Oppenheimer have consented to make the race for the office of sub-district trustee for the Morehead Consolidated school district, in accordance with the new law. So far as has been learned, they are as yet the only candidates in the field. In an effort to learn the things for which they stand, the News has asked that they make a statement to the public so that the voter may vote intelligently when the day of election, July 2, arrives.

The statement follows:

We, the undersigned citizens and residents of the Morehead Consolidated school district, having agreed to become candidates for the office of Sub-District Trustees for said district, wish to state that we are running independently, and that if we are elected, we will act only and solely in what we believe to be the interest of the school. In the selection of teachers we are pledged to no one, and, if we are elected we promise that teachers in the Morehead school will be recommended by us solely on their merits and on their qualifications. Our interest is only the interest of every citizen, to do our share in helping to give this community the best possible school and the children the best possible education.

If the citizens of this district can conscientiously support us on this platform we will appreciate your vote.

LEO OPPENHEIMER

For the benefit of those who failed to read the copy of the new law as published last week, we are again publishing it below. No person shall be eligible to hold office as sub-district trustee who is not a qualified elector in the sub-district and who cannot read and write a legible hand. At each succeeding regular election one sub-district school trustee shall be elected for a term of three years, and he shall hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. Any vacancy or vacancies in any school sub-district shall, upon the recommendation of the county Superintendent, be filled by appointment by the County Board of Education, and the trustee thus appointed shall hold office until the next regular election for sub-district trustees. "Lie down! Let her dream!" called the half breed as the rifle cracked again in the willows and a splinter from the gunwale flicked Jim's desperate face with blood.

Flattening out in the canoe, he groped for his gun lying amidships as the drag of the man in the water headed the bow down stream. Again a rifle exploded and a bullet passed through the wooden wall of the craft close to Jim's head.

What could it mean? Who would ambush them on the woman river?

As the boat drifted out of easy range of the willows, Jim reached and cocked his gun, rose boldly to his knees and rapidly emptied the magazine at the telltale whiffs of smoke against the green of the scrub. Then over the bow rose a dipping face warped with rage as the thick arms of Omar lifted his body from the water. With a lunge the half-breed was in the rolling canoe and his rifle fired at the fast receding shore.

Shortly a bend masked the willows from the sight of the cancing craft and the men swung the canoe in to the beach.

"Well, what's this mean?" demanded Jim.

"Paradees, for sure!" snapped the bowman as they landed. "Come on we hunt for dem!" And Omar plunged ahead into the bush.

They had traveled less than a hundred yards when a familiar yelp, from somewhere upstream, sounded above the rest of the river.

"Smoke, he'll find their trail!" muttered Jim. Then fear for the safety of the dog he loved led him to push on rapidly up the river shore while Omar cut back inland behind the scene of the ambush.

Suddenly deep in the forest a rifle was fired and Jim's heart sank, as he heard the husky's yelp.

"He's shot, Smoke!"

Furious with the thought of his gallant dog gasping out his life with a bullet wound, Jim plunged ahead in the direction of the rifle fire.

Shortly he saw a dark patch through the spruce and threw his rifle to his shoulder. As he lined his sights the dark face of Omar appeared head tilted as if listening.

Jim reached his friends side. "Did you fire that shot? Where is Smoke?" he demanded. "I thought he was hurt."

"I shoot at dat feller! Smoke after him how—in dose cedar. It see so tick you see nodding."

"You saw him?"

"Ah-hah."

Separating, the two men started circling the dense cedar growth. Jim had not traveled a hundred yards when he heard smoke's roar. Followed by a shot, then the sounds of a struggle, plunging through the thick undergrowth, mad with anxiety for the safety of his dog, he saw a running figure turn and with clubbed rifle at the black and white bulk of the pursuing smoke. With a muffled roar the hurt dog again lunged at the Indian, again the clubbed rifle crashed as the husky leaped. Knocked back to his haunches, with a shake of the head the great dog closed with the Indian who was desperately trying to load as he ran. The tusks of Smoke snapped as one hundred and forty pounds bore his quarry to the ground.

Throwing himself on the enraged dog, Jim balked the lunge which would have torn the throat of the helpless man on the ground, then dragged the battle mad Smoke from his prey.

"Throw that knife away of I'll let him have you!" Jim commanded holding the straining husky as the Ojibwa rollin away from the snapping fangs reached for the sheath at his sash. "Now lie where you are! If that shot hit him I'll put him on you anyway." But there was no sign of blood on Smoke's trembling body.

Then, Omar, drawn by the shot reached them.

"Ah-hah so Paradees san you? Wal I tink we camp here tonight while you tell what you know bout M'sieur Paradees, ah-hah."

With the Indian walking ahead prodded by Omar's gun, they returned to the canoe and made camp.

Supper over, Omar began the inquisition of the sullen Ojibwa who had remained dumb to all attempts to make him talk. Lighting his pipe the half-breed freshened the fire, then squatted beside the prisoner whose feet were pinioned with hide, and said quietly to the Ojibwa: "You have woman and children?"

The min-like eyes of the Indian shone, a furtive glance at the lined face of the prisoner flinched from the steel like point of Omar's knife which pricked his chest.

"You speak with a split tongue and the wolves will pick your bones!" Omar's left hand gripped the Indian's throat till the terror haunted eyes of the gasping man were turned from his grey face. Then the half-breed abruptly released him, replaced his skinning knife in its sheath, and resumed his silent contemplation of the fire.

visage of the man who squined into the fire. Jim watched with ury the drama the wily Omar was staging. Then he mumbled a faint, "En-eh-eh, yes."

"If you wish to see the lack of the Sand Benches again, you speak with a single tongue!" went on the inquisitor in Ojibwa, as if talking to himself, his eyes still fixed on the fire. "You lie to me now!" Omar suddenly stormed turning a face distorted with passion on his man, as his iron fingers gripped the Indian's throat, "and I'll feed your heart to the ravens!"

Fascinated by the drama, Jim watched the two across he fire from by moved as he rasped out the question behind a screen of tobacco smoke.

"You like to see de sun rise once more?" The stiff lips of Omar scarce tion in English. But the prisoner was silent.

into the burning birch, was trans-

Again the impassive Omar gazed formed into fury as he suddenly turned with a snarl on the Ojibwa.

"What did Paradees pay you?"

"Flinching from the mottled visage of his tormenter, the prisoner never-theless stoically held this silence."

After a period of motionless contemplation of the fire, the half-breed rose, and taking his ax, stripped a neighboring spruce sapling of its branches. Then he gathered an armful of dry spruce sticks and birchbark and dropped the kindling at the foot of the tree.

Jim glanced at the Ojibwa. Horror filled the Indian's eyes as he watched the deliberate preparations for the last act of his drama.

Going to his pack, Omar produced some rawhide thong, then picking up he visibly shaking prisoner as if he were a child, carried him to the spruce, and binding his arms, lashed him to the tree, and calmly pushed the spruce kindling around his feet.

But gray as was the face of Omar victim, on which stood out great beads of sweat, his stiff lips emitted no sound as his hopeless eyes watched the half-breed lift a red coal between two birch ticks and calmly approach the tree.

THE GARDEN
 John S. Gardner, Kentucky
 College of Agriculture.
TIMELY TOPICS
TOMATOES.— Now is the time to begin arranging for the tomatoes with which to wind up the season.
 An easy way is to sow seed in groups of 3 or 4, where heads of early cabbage are cut. The spacing of these groups should be 4 feet apart, and the seedlings should be thinned to one plant. The variety should be an early one; remnants from this spring planting may be used.

GREENS.— The season for mustard and early kale is almost over,
 but those gardeners who wish to prolong the season for that class of greens may use the comparatively new variety Tendergreen. It is wise to risk at least on planting, now, of Prickley-seeded summer spinach. Except for these two, there will be no summer greens, unless forthright was used to make planting early spinchard and New Zealand spinach.

 These continue bearing until frost, almost regardless of how hot and dry the summer is.
CELERY.— Those gardeners who are fortunate to have celery plants or can get them, will set their celery in what remains of June. A wise precaution is to set in a shallow trench,

having its direction such that it slopes gently. So in a trench the celery can be watered. Set in a trench, the matter of finding soil with which to ridge the row when blanching is to be begun, is made easier. To save watering and trenching a pair of rows of celery to use are Golden may be set in each trench. The variety Self-blanching, or Easy Blanching, is of superior quality is desired, and if extreme whiteness is not demanded, Giant Pascal is the variety. Pascal stores much better than the easy-blanching sorts, and, trenched for winter, blanches quite nicely.

INSECTS.— To keep down insects their breeding places should be cleaned up. As cabbage is being cut, the stubs should be removed, because the sideboots that grow on the stub harbor cabbage worms. Old bean rows, too, should be removed and burned, as soon as the beans have been picked, or when newer planting begins producing. If later potatoes are to be planted, it is well to look at the spring plantings over, and if only a few Colorado beetles are found, to apply poison to prevent their increase. Early squash vines are harbor for both cucumber beetle and squash bug. As soon as all the good fruits are picked, and when the vines begin to go into a decline, they should be pulled up, rather than hope that more squashes may be set later.
 Thus, the campaign of control for those insects may be centered on the plantings from which pickings are to be expected, and it will be just that much more thorough.

CULTIVATION.— The normal season of drought is fast approaching, unless this summer is to be different from those in the past.
 To conserve such rains as we may have, weeds must be kept in check and the garden surface should be maintained in such a way that there is no "run-off". Cultivation does both, but only the top half inch of soil should be disturbed. A wheel hoe or garden plow fitted with scrapers is the best to use, for with it it is no job at all to work up the crust that forms even after a light rain and put the surface in readiness to receive the next shower.

SAYS COUNTY AGENT INDISPENSABLE IN FARMERS COME-BACK

"The county agent is an important and indispensable factor in the comeback of agriculture," declares Dan H. Otis in the June bulletin of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. "Any attempt to save taxes by dispensing with or limiting the efficiency of a good county agent is a serious step backward." Mr. Otis writes as follows:

"When business comes back we cannot expect it to come along the same highway or by the same door it did previously. Necessary readjustments are bound to bring a great new methods and new devices. Those who are alert will profit therefrom; those who are waiting aimlessly for things to just happen may waste up some day to find that the business they have been waiting for is already in the hands of widespread competitors.

"Farming is no exception. To avert disaster and effectively prepare for the future the farmer, like any other business man, needs expert advice. He must have a vital and close contact with his agricultural college and experiment Station. The language medium through which this is accomplished is the county agricultural agent. His service is an investment, not an expense.

"Any attempt to save taxes by dispensing with or limiting the efficiency of a good county agent, is a serious step backward. County agents takes and ability to pay taxes, in counties with and without agents; the evidence is all in favor of the county agent.

THE NEW CHECK LAW!

Under the Revenue Act just passed by congress, there is imposed a two cent tax on all bank checks—the tax is to be paid by the drawers of the checks, and the banks are held responsible for the collection and delivery of the money to the government. Unlike the old check tax law no stamps will be used; the tax to be charged to the account along with the checks. It will be necessary, therefore, for each person, in keeping his own record, to make the stubs show two cents more than the amount of the checks.

In order that those who are not already informed may become so, the act is given herewith.

Act of the Congress of the United States, Section 751.

There is hereby imposed a tax of 2 cents upon each of the following instruments, presented for payment on or after the 15th day after the date of the enactment of this Act and before July 1st, 1934: Checks, Drafts, or orders for the payment of money, drawn on any bank, banker, or trust company, such tax to be paid by the maker or drawer.

"Every person making any of the instruments mentioned in sub-section (A) as drawer of such instrument shall collect the amount of the tax imposed under such sub-section by charging such amount against any deposit to the credit of the maker or drawer of such instrument, and shall on or before the last day of each month make a return, under oath for the preceding month, and pay such tax to the Collector of the district in which his principle place of business is located, or if he has no particular place of business in the United States, to the collector at Baltimore, Maryland. Such returns shall contain such information and be made by regulations prescribed. Every person is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this section."
