MOREHEAD GAME JOKE

Giants are Easy Winners in Face at Morehead Sunday with Record Breaking Score of 26 to 6. Harry Stulting hurt

The game at Morehead Sunday between the Giants and the Morehead nine was a fiasco—the local cleaning up with the mountain lads to the horrible tune of 26-6.

That old bearcat, Nichols, pitched his usual masterly game and the Morehead muffers didn't have a chance. The game was a joke. Doc Nichols, a brother of our sphere slinger, and Little Boy Robinson occupied the mound for the mountaineers and it must have been an off day with them for—to put it mildly—they were punk; but they can say this much, they had no support. Cobb Anglin, who is the only ball player on the Morehead team, connected with one of Nick's sizzlers and drove a beautiful hit over the left field fence, which netted him a home run—the only play Morehead made.

Harry Stulting was the victim of a disgustingly malicious and uncalled for piece of dirty ball playing by Bert Proctor, who had been allowed in the game by the Morehead players to give him some practice after they saw they couldn't win anyway.

Proctor was running from first to second and Spitting was standing in front of second base making an attempt to catch the ball to tag the runner. There was plenty of room for the Morehead buffoon to slide without hitting Stulting, but in a cute effort to make a grandstand play, he jumped over Harry and landed with his heel on his foot. A singlet severely. If Proctor had happened to be wearing spikes Stulting would have been very seriously hurt. Players who lack either the wit or the courtesy to play like gentlemen and sportsmen should be barred from the diamond.

BOY BURNED TO DEATH

Ever Cheek Threw Lighted Match Into Supposed Empty Powder Can and Is Burned So Badly That Death Results.

Ever Cheek, ten-year-old son of John Cheek, a miner employed by the General Refractories Company, and who lives on Henderson Branch, was so badly burned by powder last Friday afternoon that his death resulted.

The boy had been to the store with a young companion, a son of Wm. Bond, and, as they came down the road, the Cheek lad saw a powder can and, no doubt, believing it to be empty, he carelessly tossed a lighted match into it. The powder flashed up, the flames enveloped the boy and in an instant's time he was a mass of fire.

Henry Henderson, who was sitting on the porch of his home near by, saw the lad's predicament and ran to him. He put out the fire and carried the little fellow to his home. The unfortunate boy's body was one mass of horrible burns, he being especially badly burned about the abdomen. Every effort was made to save the boy's life but Sunday morning he died. He was connected at all times after being burned and suffered horribly until death relieved him.

John Cheek, the boy's father, was at Grayson attending the fair when the sad accident occurred and was hastily summoned, arriving home Friday night.

$100 Reward, $100

The maker of this cure will be pleased to learn that there is at least one cured disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. This Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing his work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Culebra, C. M.—"The strongest defense of the Panama canal, in my opinion, is the fact that a hostile vessel must come into a 500-foot channel before it is within striking distance of the vital points of the canal, the locks, and in doing so must pass within easy range of the forts that are being built to guard the entrances."

Mandy's Gentle Little Hint. "Mandy" said her mistress, "that bean of yours shouldnt wear white clothes. He is so black when he comes out, you give him a hint?"

Made Daddy Gasp. A certain small Chicago ladie had picked up a handsome, and quite an adult in comparison with his baby brother, that he now and then talks and acts in a manner so different from the uncomprehending he judged himself to be. Not long since at the family table he attempted to relate a recent experience.

So spoke Colonel Goethals when I asked him as to the vulnerability of the canal in time of war. Continuing, he said: "The naval power of the nations is so nicely balanced now that no one of them would be willing to risk the destruction of a single battleship by attacking those forts, which will be equipped with powerful guns, and of course the accuracy of guns on shore is much greater than that of those on moving vessels. I do not believe the forts would be attacked from the sea before the enemy had fought and won a naval victory."

The forts of which Colonel Goethals spoke are nearing completion and the employment for many of the heavy guns already have been constructed. No one not officially connected with the work is permitted to approach them, but I venture to say that in case of urgent necessity the guns could be buried down to the isthmus and mounted ready for emergency service within a very short time.

Two forts protect the Atlantic entrance of the canal. One is on Toro Point, at the land end of the long breaker that shields Colon harbor, and is on a considerable elevation. The other is on Margarita Island, a low lying islet close to the shore about a mile northeast of Colon. Both these fortifications are shielded from observation by the palms and other tropical vegetation.

At the Pacific end of the canal, a little more than three miles out in the ocean and close to the eastern side of the deep water channel, lies the famous little islands of Naos, Perico, Culebra and Flamenco. These the United States acquired with the Canal Zone. On Culebra is the quarantine station and at the end of the canal. Both of them are being built strong fortifications.

DEFENSES of the CANAL by E. W. PICKARD. The intention for this article is to show the defenses of the Panama Canal. It describes the forts, the ships, and the strategic importance of the canal. It also mentions the role of the United States Army and Navy in the defense of the canal.

Meantime the army has not been neglecting its part of the defensive work. For some time the Tenth Infantry has been encamped in the zone and its men, in small detachments, are doing guard duty over that part of the isthmus. The possibilities of landing a hostile force on the shores of both the Atlantic and the Pacific have been investigated, and also the chances that such a force would have of finding sustenance. The little groups of soldiers have been started from various possible landing places with instructions to make their way as swiftly as possible to the forts along the canal, mapping the country they traverse, in order to determine what an enemy could do.

One result of this sort of investigation so far, largely and wholly unofficially stated, is that the shores of the Atlantic ocean, within a good many miles of the zone, are impracticable for landing a hostile force because of the nature of the country; that a landing could be made easily on the Pacific side some distance west of the zone, but that between there and the jungle is so dense as to be virtually impassable; that the dangerous district is that lying immediately east of the zone; that the best ship landing place mentioned shows an enemy could well land an army, and the semi-open, rolling savannas between there and the canal would give easy access to the zone.

The army officers on the isthmus make no secret of the fact that their investigations are being carried on in this way by the Japanese. How those islanders could land there and what they could do if they did land are the problems engaging the attention of Colonel Greene and his men of the Tenth.

One defensive measure that has been adopted is the clearing out of practically all the brush which has been done, except at the ends of the canal and in several of the larger towns, which, as I have said, may be kept as quarters for the soldiers. All holdings of land are being valued by a mixed commission and the residents moved away. When the canal is completed cleared cut will be allowed to grow up again, for the experience of centuries has shown that that jungle itself is a powerful defense against an invading army. The practicable roads through it are few and far between, the streams not navigable, and the growth of trees, brush, and great vines so dense that it is virtually impassable for a body of men, to say nothing of cannon and supply wagons. A rapid dash through the jungle would be entirely out of the question, and the zone is deserted all food supplies will have disappeared.

Some fear has been expressed that a few men could land, make their way across the canal and blow up the locks. But it seems unlikely that they could get ashore and transport to the canal, undetected, enough explosives to do any great harm.

On the whole, the canal will be quite adequately protected—provided it is not attacked too soon.

The battle was between county authorities and the Industrial Workers. The latter has been complaining for some time in county, score being killed, suffering from gunshot wounds. Three hundred armed men, in charge of Chief of Police Charles McCoy, of Marysville, are at the scene of the trouble, and a company of regular soldiers from the Presidio at San Francisco has been asked to rush to the scene to quell the riotous demonstration.

The trouble was first brought on an acute siege by the efforts of members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who are said to have been given considerable work had been Japanese employed in the fields, and whom the employers refused to discharge.

AMERICAN SHRINE

S. Margaret's Church, Westminster, Dear to U. S. People.

In the Language of Canon Hensley Henson, in his Farewell Sermon There, it is a Link Between England and Republic.

London.—In his farewell sermon in St. Margaret's church Westminster, Canon Hensley Henson said: "This church is a link between ourselves and the great American republic for reasons partly historical, for here is the grave of Sir Walter Raleigh, the most romantic of these Elizabethan heroes who first laid the foundation of the English-speaking nations in the new world; here worshipped the Puritan statesmen who broke that tyrannous power which had driven the founders of the United States across the stormy and unknown Atlantic, and here sleep the wife and daughters of Milton, the poet who, perhaps more than any other, has impressed himself on our American kinsmen, and partly personal for it is the case that my predecessor, Donald Farrar, who is well known in America, and that I myself have formed many friendships in that country. St. Margaret's beyond other English parish churches is dear to Americans in worship here during the summer in considerable numbers and who come here almost as by natural right when they seek a place for religious self-expression."

You will remember how the American colony in London came together here for a memorial service for those of their countrymen who had perished in the lamentable shipwreck of the Titanic.

Canon Henson might have amplified his remarks considerably. The American associations with this church, which is one of the best known, most popular and most fashionable in London, is dear to Americans. Sir Walter Raleigh's grave is beneath the chancel, unmarked, and the precise spot is not known. Dean Farrar has left on record on the great west window one of the chief features, that the £600 was subscribed in America for the west window without a word more than a casual reference.

Square Meal. Jones, who is somewhat of a philanthropist, went to his favorite restaurant at noon for lunch.

"Sally" he began, addressing the manager, "a poor fellow came to me this morning asking for food, as he said he was starving. I gave him my card and sent him to your restaurant and told him to get a good square meal and I would pay for it. How much is the bill?"

"Fifty-five cents, sir."
"What did the poor man have?"
"Nine beers and a cigar."

What They Told Her. A group of old ladies were talking and knitting. Each one was telling how much or how little she weighed at birth.

Well, I weighed just three and a half pounds. The others gasped and one of them asked, "And did you live?" She answered, "They said I did and done well."

PANTRY CLEANED. A Way Some People Have. A doctor said: "Before marriage my wife observed in summer and country homes, coming in with families, that she, at dinner, tastes and discriminating tendencies, that the families using Postum seemed to average better than those using coffee."

When we were married two years ago, Postum was among our first order of groceries. We also put in both tea and coffee for guests, but after both had stood around the pantry about a year, untouched, they were thrown away, and Postum used only.

Up to the age of 28 I had been accustomed to drink coffee as a routine habit and suffered constantly from indigestion and all its relative disorders. Since using Postum, all the old complaints have completely disappeared, sometimes wonder if I ever had them."

Some eight miles away, nearly two miles, the larger island of Taboga and timid souls have suggested that it would form a safe shelter and recuperating point for a hostile fleet, for its hills rise to a considerable elevation and on its south side there is plenty of deep water. To The Taxpayers of Carter County.

Owing to the new law regarding the collection of taxes, the Sheriff necessarily must be more strict and push the taxpayers, requiring them to pay their taxes promptly.

I sincerely urge each taxpayer to inquire about their taxes now, ascertain the amount due from them for the year 1913, for if there is any wrong in their assessment, the matter must be adjusted by the Court. And, for the protection of the taxpayer, as well as that of the Sheriff, no taxpayer should overlook this matter.

My office in Grayson is open every day in the year, and, for the benefit of any taxpayer writing me who will inclose a stamp for reply, I will be only too glad to furnish them any information desired relative to their taxes.

All taxpayers should know the amount due from them before it is too late to take the matter before the County Court at its October term, where adjustment is necessary.

Remember that my term of office expires this year, and all taxes must be paid before the expiration of my term. Any sum sent to me in payment of taxes, if too much, will be returned with your tax bill.

Your neglect to inquire about your taxes may cause you to pay an over-tax with a heavy penalty.

Yours very sincerely,
W. D. GEE, S. C. C. N. B.— Watch for paper and posters giving dates of collection.
