

TO HOLD FIRST DISTRICT MEET AT CRANSTON

The first annual district meeting of parent-teachers will be held this year at Cranston on Friday, August 19. It will be an all day meeting of which the program is published below.

This district meeting has been inaugurated last year with such success that they are being repeated this year at the request of the patrons of the various schools of the county. There are to be a number of these district meetings held within the next two months, ending up with the big county school and agricultural fair to be held in September.

Each district meeting will include a number of sub-districts and will consist of a program of educational events held during the morning, a picnic dinner at noon and closing with a program of athletic events in the afternoon.

Patrons in the Cranston district are making great preparations to make their meeting the best meeting held in the entire county this year.

In spite of the fact that it is to be the first one held, they are preparing to entertain a crowd of at least one thousand during the day. Teachers in the various schools included in the district are preparing their pupils to take part in both the educational and athletic events and to bring honors to themselves and to their schools.

These events while held primarily for the people of the districts have gained a rather widespread popularity in the county to such an extent that people last year traveled from one district to the other, many of them attending every meeting held in the county.

The following is the program of the Cranston meeting:

PRESIDENT PAYNE AT SALYERSVILLE

President John H. Payne spoke at the Teachers Institute at Salyersville, Monday. A majority of teachers in Magoffin county of which Salyersville is the county seat, are holding degrees or certificates from the Morehead college. This is the only teachers' meeting that President Payne will appear at this year.

Morehead Wins From Kenova 16-4

The Morehead Independents unleashed a flurry of base hits against Kenova errors, and behind the hurling of Baldwin easily defeated the West Virginians here Sunday 16-4 for their tenth straight victory.

Jimmy Maggard, Fraley and Baldwin divided honors in Sunday's battle. Fraley and Maggard connected with four hits apiece, two of Maggard going for three bases.

The locals hit S. Hatter and Wilson for eighteen safe blows, while Baldwin held Kenova to nine hits all well scattered except in the ninth inning. Morehead scored in every inning except the fifth but the second, fourth and seventh cantos were their big moments, scoring twelve runs in these three frames.

Kenova was held scoreless until the ninth inning, and they tallied then through a plate of luck. Kuppahl batting for E. Hatter, who had struck on him, two men on base and two out, in attempting to dodge a pitched ball, accidentally hit for a roller between second and short, that went safe. The two following batters hit safely also with the result that four runs crossed. Two of the visitors scoring chances in the early innings were nipped by fast double plays.

The Independents played well in the field while Kenova was credited with six errors, five of which figured in the locals scoring.

Irons was the only visitor that could do anything with Baldwin's wickets, and he got three safe blows in five trips.

Russell Lambert the small son of Dr. and Mrs. R. Lambert of Cris, five miles from Morehead, suffered a broken arm Sunday when he fell from a wagon and the rear wheel passed over his arm, midway between the elbow and shoulder. The limb was reset by Dr. G. C. Nickell.

SENIORS TO RECEIVE DEGREES

Sixteen college seniors will receive their degrees at the Morehead State Teachers College at its annual summer commencement exercises on August 19, the close of the second summer term.

President M. P. Shawkey of Marshall College, Huntington will deliver the commencement address, at eight o'clock, August 19.

An even larger number of Normal grads and Standard Certificate students will be awarded diplomas and certificates at the commencement exercises.

FATHER OF WATT PRICHARD PASSES

Two o'clock Saturday morning saw the close of a long and useful life when L. C. "Bud" Prichard, 85 died suddenly of apoplexy, at his home near Greenup. Mr. Prichard moved to Greenup from Elliott county several years ago, after purchasing the old Worthington farm, which is located Sandy Fork. Who a resident of Elliott county, he was elected to the senate on the Democratic ticket, being a very ardent member of that party. However, he was never known to take active part in politics after moving to near Greenup, his farm claiming most of his attention, but was never too busy to take part in an action that might further the welfare of his countrymen.

Mr. Prichard was affectionately known as "Bud" throughout Greenup. His death will come as a distinct shock to his many friends and admirers.

Mr. Prichard is survived by his wife, Mrs. Belle Kitchen Prichard, and the following children: Mrs. Laura Turner, Lexington; W. A. Prichard and L. N. Prichard, Sandy Hook; G. W. Prichard, Morehead; Charles Prichard, Mrs. E. C. Green, Wrigley; Mrs. W. A. Caskey West Liberty, and Georgia Kitchen of Greenup.

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist Church at Grayson, at eleven o'clock Monday morning.

ARTHUR FIELDING DIES FOLLOWING INJURIES

Funeral services for Arthur Fielding who died in the United States Veterans' Hospital at Lexington Sunday morning, were held at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hogge on Tuesday afternoon. The tragic facts surrounding his death, together the prominence of his family here, combined to make the funeral one of the largest and most impressive ever held here.

Mr. Fielding was injured Saturday evening about 8:30 while on Railroad street. He is said to have fallen and struck his head on the pavement, fracturing the skull at or near the base. He was rushed to the offices of Dr. G. C. Nickell, where examination disclosed the extent of his injuries and he was taken to the veterans' hospital immediately. No hope was held for his recovery and he passed away the following morning.

The remains were brought to Morehead Sunday afternoon and funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. Dr. F. C. Button preached the funeral sermon and was assisted by Rev. T. F. Lyons and Dr. R. L. Ridgell. Interment was made in Lee Cemetery.

Mr. Hefflin had been a dairy man in Ashland for a number of years.

Is Killed At Salt Lick Saturday

Lack of medical attention caused the death of F. E. Wells, 45, of Moore's Ferry, late Saturday night when he was shot near the hip in the left leg, allegedly by Mrs. Felix Spence about 40 years old, at Moore's Ferry, two miles from Salt Lick and seventeen miles from Morehead.

Domestic trouble and jealousy was blamed for the shooting. Mrs. Spence's husband was an eye witness, it was reported. The trouble happened at their home.

According to officers, Wells was shot at almost point-blank range through the window with a 12-gauge shot gun. The blast tore his leg off, and he died at 11 o'clock, two hours after the shot was fired.

Mrs. Spence is being held under guard at Owsingville, pending examining trial. She was not placed in jail.

Saturday's shooting marks the third killing in or around Salt Lick during the past three months. Curtis Norman was slain last week, and Ernest Kercheval, a prominent merchant, was shot late last spring.

Among those from away who attended the funeral of Arthur Fielding were, his cousins Enoch and George Raybourne and his aunts, Mrs. Fannie Raybourne and Mrs. Day of Olive Hill; Mrs. Ralph Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Laken Peters and Mrs. Robert Carnell, Mrs. Jas. Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Qualls of Olive Hill.

HAYES FUNERAL HELD LAST WEEK

The deceased died last Friday. She had been in failing health for a number of years.

She is survived by a number of brothers and sisters and her father, J. W. Hayes.

Mystery Show At Cozy Friday

The adage that there is a silver lining in every cloud is strikingly demonstrated in the case of Wynne Gibson, who plays the most vigorously dramatic role of her career in Paramount's "The Strange Case of Clara Dean," coming Friday and Saturday to the Cozy Theatre.

She began her theatrical life in a succession of "Flop" shows, and became a close friend of the sheriff who came to close them. In fact, she opened and closed in so many shows in Boston without ever reaching New York that she used to regard herself as a "stranded citizen" of that town.

Although the long series of unsuccessful plays did not bring her work to the attention of the public, she had excellent roles which gave her invaluable training. Her parts changed so frequently that she gained in a short period of time, the same experience ordinarily obtained through years in tock.

Despite the fact that misfortune dogged many of the stage shows in which she appeared, Dame Fortune smiled on Miss Gibson's green career. She played her first part for Paramount in New York in "Nothing But The Truth," and following several seasons of both stage and screen work, came to Hollywood.

Her performance as a gunnyp's "Moll" in "The Gang Buster" with Jack Oakie, brought her a Paramount contract.

In "The Strange Case of Clara Dean," Miss Gibson plays an unusually dramatic role, portraying three different periods in a woman's life. Featured with her are Pat O'Brien, Frances Dee and Digges.

VINSON, MARTIN LEAD PRIMARY IN THIS COUNTY

Although the election returns are not in, it is a probability that the contest for the Democratic nomination for Senator Barkley will be the Democratic ticket for Senator winning out over Former Senator George Martin of Cattlesburg by a large majority, while Fred M. Vinson of Ashland is the only candidate from the 6th ninth district, is leading the entire field of 26 candidates for nomination for Congressman. Mr. Vinson incidentally piled up a huge complimentary vote in this county, gaining a total of 1069 votes while his nearest competitor, Jock May of Pikeville, received 680 votes.

In the race for the senatorial nomination Martin Lead Barkley with 660 votes to 193. Dr. Wright received 64 votes in the county.

The three Morehead precincts piled up an almost normal democratic vote, while the voting in the rural precincts was the lightest cast in years. In the three Morehead precincts Martin received 468 votes against Barkley's 100. Barkley however ran better in the rural precincts.

Vinson received a practically unanimous vote in this county. He carried the vote with him. It will be remembered that due to the ruling of the federal judges, the Congressmen this year are being elected from the state at large. With twenty six candidates in the field, it was decided by the incumbents that a slate with one candidate from each section of the state would be the best.

According to present returns it appears that in every instance except one the slate has carried. That one instance in John Young Brown of Lexington, who gained considerable publicity against the proposed sales tax. Mr. Brown appears to have been defeated by F. W. Hamilton of London or Charles Peasley Farnley of Louisville. The nine candidates receiving the highest vote in the primary are the candidates in November.

In case Mr. Brown wins out over Mr. Farnley, it will leave the democratic party in Jefferson county without a candidate for congress and give the old sixth district two candidates in Virgil Chapman who is second only to Fred M. Vinson and John Young Brown.

The Democratic vote in this county is fairly indicative of the state wide vote so far as candidates for congressmen are concerned. The order of voting so far as the first ten are concerned follows:

Fred M. Vinson, 1069; May, 680; Chapman 471; Gregory, 453; Hamilton, 383; Spence, 264; Carden, 334; Carey, 328; Sneegegar, 293; Brown, 57.

Nine of the above ten will be finally selected as Democratic candidates from Kentucky in the November election.

The Republican vote was the lightest ever cast in this county, a complete lack of interest being indicated. This was undoubtedly due to the fact that only candidates for Congress were offered. An indication of the lack of interest shown will be found in precinct 10 in Morehead which is regarded as the strongest Republican precinct in the county. In this precinct 45 Republican votes were cast for Trumbo Sneegegar of Owsingville, who led the ticket for nomination.

Leaders in the race in this county were: Lewis, 158; Thatcher, 157; Sneegegar, 145; Ferguson, 123; Phillips, 114; Ellison, 111; Elliot, 106; Blackburn, 80; Manning, 66.

In another county of this issue will be found the complete precinct returns of the election in this county in both the Republican and Democratic primaries. Owing to the number of candidates we have listed only the first ten on each ticket.

Under Frozen Skies

Aurore's laughter echoed from the forest behind her. "He said that he had beaten you with a stick and you had promised never to look at me again."

"You believed him?"

"What, believe Pau l'Paradis?" she protested. "I happened to know that Mr. Jeem Stuart, having looked at me once, would desire to look again, and our Pau would not stop him. Beat you with a stick—our pretty Pau! Absurd!"

"Thank you. I did want to look again." And he again sat beside her, now steeled against the wiles of her sorcery.

"Now will you tell me why you go away?" She asked quietly. Her dusky eyes were serious.

"Because my duty to my employers demands it. Have you ever heard of that word—duty, Miss Aurore LeBlond?"

"Yes, I have heard of it Mr. Jeem Stuart, but I am wondering if its demands are greater than those of love."

He turned on her in amazement to find her troubled eyes seeking the distant ridges. Here was a new mood.

"My place as you're doubtless heard your father say, has not been successful. This is my last year here—unless I can make it pay. There's no room for failures in the fur trade."

With mouth set stiffly, Jim Jeem, who had made her a failure at Sunset lake, Stuart, he mused, the man away across the rippled surface of House. One, all the trade would know; the other—only Aurore LeBlond and his heart.

He filled deep chest with spruce sweat air; then expelled it as something warm touched his hand. He looked down. It was the hand of the girl beside him and the dark eyes which met his shown, but not with mockery.

"I understand," she said. "It was just to pass the time away—until your duty called you away."

Wide eyed with surprise he met her dark gaze as she withdrew her hand. But in the depths of her unwavering eyes lurked no trace of glint. Content, electrified by her touch but suspicious, he passionately rejoined: "You accuse me of that—you, who are going so soon—who amused yourself with a poor devil of a fur man?"

Her face flamed as he choked out the words. With a little cry she faltered: Ah, you do—you do love me—Jeem Stuart?"

"As the sun destroys mist, her clouded eyes—her voice banished the suspicious of the bewildered Stuart. With a quick movement he had her in his arms.

"And you love me—Aurore!" he murmured, breathing in the fragrance of her hair as he crushed her fiercely to him.

With a deep sigh she turned in his arms and flung back her head. Taking his bronzed face between her hands, the glowing eyes of the girl lifted to his.

"I look, you doubtler! are you satisfied?" His hungry lips crushed back her words.

A Tribute to Kentucky

Bruce Barton, author of "The Man Nobody Knows," has written this tribute to Kentucky, published in the "Parade of the States" Monday night programs of the General Motors Corporation, part of an educational plan to make the country of a whole better acquainted with the individual states—their history, scenic beauty, industries and people.

"O H, the sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home," sang young Stephen Foster to his bride on his honeymoon long ago. His words have echoed around the world. And ever here hearts to thrill in kinship with the romance of Kentucky.

For people love to go back to Kentucky. One visit is never enough. Daniel Boone crossed a barrier of mountains to hunt and explore and reconnoiter them all by his own hand and discovered them to induce others to return with him. James Harrod followed to put up the first cabin in Harrodsburg; the town so stubbornly maintained that it established the Ohio and Mississippi as American trade-ways, to which all our west owe a debt.

It was in Kentucky that George Rogers Clark planned his conquest of today's Middle West, and Henry Clay grew to fame, and Jefferson Davis was born and married the daughter of another Kentuckian, President Zachary Taylor.

A noble monument in the heart of old Kentucky enshrines the lowly cabin where Lincoln was born. Here he returned to work out his life's he married a daughter of Kentucky, Mary Todd.

There is a thrilling modern Kentucky of industry and agriculture, the Kentucky of rich coal and mineral resources, of the Burley tobacco, of busy factories and broad roads and inland waterways. It well deserves a tribute of its own.

But tonight we prefer to speak of the Kentucky of beauty and of memory. The Kentucky where Lafayette delighted to linger and Louis Philippe, Citizen-King of France, lived and endowed the Bardston cathedral with priceless paintings of Marlin, Robens, and Van Dyke. The seen . . . the Eden, the paradise of oaks"; the Kentucky of John James Audubon, friend of all the birds.

This is the Kentucky of Mammoth Cave, of the Trail of the Lonesome Pine, of rivers and streams and terraced green hills. Here are woodlands where the flowers never die and one may hear the music of the mocking bird. And here are the cabins of that pure Anglo-Saxon, the Kentucky mountaineer.

They are all part of the magic that draws us back. Back to the rolling green of the blue grass, to the blood-stirring thrill of the Derby, to the hospitality that knows no bounds.

Is it time for you to go again? Go now, while the woods and waters are loveliest, while the horses are running in the sport of kings, while the sun shines brightest on all Kentucky hills.

Kentucky's sons and daughters know no sweeter place to live. Her guests can find no friendlier place to visit. To Kentucky, gracious daughter of the Old Dominion, General Motors have in courtesy solicited.

There they sat on the shore of the Lake of the Sandy Beaches, the man turned and passionately flung her self into his arms. "This is my recollection of hte girl which separated them; forgetful of the fact that long months would intervene before their return of Aurore to Bonne Chance. Hours were but minutes to the two who had found each other only to separate.

"The miracle of your wasting your lovely self on a fur trader!" Jim was repeating.

"My father is a fur trader," she proved. And I thought I was being rescued by a Viking that day you lifted me into your canoe. Oh," she said with her contemptuous smile, "will you rescue me again sometime, Jeem?"

"You're in great danger right now, where you are," laughed the enraptured Jim. "I'll have to rescue you from the sand." And he swung her to his lap, that he might run his fingers through the raven ripples of her thick hair; marvel at the moldering depths of her changing eyes; touch with his lips, the satin texture of her skin.

So they spent the golden hours, hardly stopping to lunch from the basket Aurore had brought. And then as the sun swung toward the western ridges, with a pang like the stab of steel, Jim realized that his dream was near its end. For it all seemed unreal, imaginary—this lovely, headstrong creature caring for Jim Stuart, fur trader.

"It's been so beautiful," she said wistfully. "If I never meet again, We've had this day."

"Never meet again?" he gasped. "Don't even think of it! Meet again? Why, I'll only exist until you come back. It's all I have to live for."

"But you have your duty," she mocked with a toss of her black hair. "We might have many days like this day."

"I'd be sure to have trouble with your father. He'd find out." He shook his head gravely. And you'd not really want me to forget my duty, would you? You wouldn't have me throw up my work an d follow you to Winnipeg?"

"I could not love thee half so much, loved I not honor more," she taunted. "Oh you men! You'd die for love, so you say, but duty—well that's a cat of another color—well that's a great toad stood on her lashes. With a man her arms found the neck of the man beside her. "Oh, Jeem, I love you so. I just can't think of your going away."

"You'll write very often and send them all by the Christmas mail?" he said stroking her thick hair.

"But a canoe may go south in the fall."

"Yes, and I'll go to Expanse on the first leading snow. The last canoe from the railroad might bring your letters."

"Jeem Stuart what have you done to me?" she suddenly exclaimed holding rim at arm's length. I've never felt, this way before." She touched her heart—"It's as if I'd been stung, right here!"

"I know sweetheart. I'll carry that longing through the short days and the long winter nights—that hunger for you." And the factor of Sunset house held the sobbing daughter of Louis LeBlond, as he kissed her hair, her eyes, her throat.

A mile away a canoe slowly approached, following the shore.

"There comes Omar."

"It's over, Jeem—our golden day," she sighed. "There's Marie too. Come over here in those sleds!" she commanded. I can't bear to share you with these people, and I've a great secret to tell you."

BORDEAUX MIXTURE

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The article about Bordeaux mixture is repeated at this time, because of its importance in the control of foliage diseases of vegetables. It is a check for the bean pod-spot and a general anthracnose, troublesome diseases, particularly in cool, moist seasons. Blight of tomatoes and potatoes is also controlled, or at least warded off for a time, by spraying with Bordeaux. Celery leaf-spot, of the general rots that interfere with trenching and storage, may also be guarded against by timely spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Bordeaux serves as an insecticide against the black flea beetle, the small lively insect that plays havoc with potatoes and tomatoes, particularly in their early stages. Combined with calcium arsenate at the rate of a tablespoonful to each gallon, the result is a control for chewing insects and spot diseases on any vegetable.

Bordeaux mixture is a combination of bluestone of "Blue vitriol" and lime. The usual formula is 4-4-50, by which is meant, 4 pounds of bluestone, 4 pounds of freshly-slaked lime, or 6 pounds of hydrate, and 50 gallons of water. Those who wish may use the prepared form purchasable from most druggist and seedmen. To make 4-4-50 Bordeaux, the directions are to dissolve 1 pound of it in 6 gallons of water. There's economy, however, in making it of original ingredients: home-made Bordeaux, too, is better.

Because the equipment most gardeners mean to use is the 3-gallon knapsack sprayer, the directions to follow have been worked out on the basis of making two gallons of Bordeaux at a time. These are the directions:

In a wooden tub or bucket or in an earthenware crock (never metal) place 6 quarts of water, and in it dissolve 1 pound of bluestone. An easy way to do it is to put the bluestone in a gals sack and suspend it over the water in such a way that the bottom is just submerged; thus it will dissolve without stirring, and in about 3 hours. This is the "bluestone stock."

Now, in the sprayer tank put 1 gallon and 3 quarts of water, add a smelt handful of hydrate lime, and shake it well to dissolve it. Then, pour in one quart of bluestone stock and shake again, so that the whole thoroughly mixed. This is a two gallons of 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture ready for use, except in the event chewing insects are to be guarded against, 2 teaspoonfuls of calcium arsenate should be stirred in.

No more Bordeaux mixture should be made than it to be used immediately, for it will separate on standing. The bluestone stock will remain good indefinitely, except that water may need to be added to take care of evaporation. The bluestone stock should be stirred every time any is taken out.

It has been intimated above that metal containers should not be used for the bluestone stock; Bordeaux mixture is not so violent, but it corrodes the galvanized iron of which the tanks of the sprayers are usually made. The tank should be thoroughly washed out each time the sprayer is used, or better, the tank should be brass. A brass tank raises the price of the sprayer, but the extra expense will be warranted.

Only the NEW NuGRAPE Has Their Delicious Flavor

You'll admit there is a goodness in the flavor of grapes—and that's why the New NuGrape is different from all artificial flavors—different as gold and brass.

In a certain valley, made rich and productive by reason of the moisture, in season, from surrounding hills—a famous brand of grapes is raised. The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. And it has been our obligation to YOU, to transport that natural delicacy of flavor—to your home—to places where soft drinks are sold.

The New NuGrape — made exclusively with Welch's Grape Juice — costs no more than any artificial grape substitute. It's now on sale everywhere for 5¢.
