ASSEMBLY BRIEFS

The dog law was so amended as to provide for the payment of goats as well as sheep killed by dogs.

The statute of Gov. William Goebel, assented 14 years ago while the legislature was in session, will be repealed March 4.

The measure of Representative Potts, providing for registration of the names of farmers and to prevent the use of registered names was passed.

Free schoolbooks are provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Klette, which provides that a license shall be levied to pay for same.

A bill, creating a commission to administer funds for erecting and equipping county buildings, was the first measure of this session to go to the governor for his signature.

Dry Forces Have Inning. The house passed three bills affecting the shipment of intoxicating liquors into dry territory. The first provides that search warrants may be issued in illicit liquor cases; second, that the penalty for minors visiting saloons be repealed, and third, the bill prohibiting the shipment of liquors for sale into local option territory and prohibiting persons from having in possession for sale liquors in local option territory. The third bill is for the purpose of putting into effect the Webb-Kannan law in Kentucky. The most important feature of this measure is that all railroads, express companies and other transportation companies within this state or doing business within the state are required to keep at each local office in the territory within which the sale of intoxicating liquors is prohibited a book in which shall be entered immediately upon receipt of the liquor a full record of the consignor, to whom delivered, what character of intoxicant and in what quantity, the record to be open to public inspection and prima facie evidence before courts.

The Finn Bill Under Fire. Representatives of railroads poured out volleys into the bill of Lawrence Pinn, chairman of the state railroad commission. This measure is designed to give to the commission power to classify freight, order safety appliances, the railroads for failure to furnish cars and provide regulations of rates and services. E. S. Jones, of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, pronounced this bill the most radical and drastic ever proposed, giving to the commission more power than had been given to the Interstate Commerce Commission by Congress. The passage of the bill, however, would stop railroad building and development in Kentucky.

Appointments Are Announced. The following appointments of extra help were announced by Speaker T. R. Wolfe, of the House: James F. Dyer, C. F. Nace and Newton S. guard for gallery, William Spaw; stenographer to chief clerk, R. H. Berry; stenographers for the House, Mrs. Zilpha Freeman and Miss Lillian Sargent; copyist, Howell Scott; bill clerk, James W. Reed; assistants to bill clerk, Homer Spillman and John M. Callahan; messengers, John Newman and August Vest; messenger to speaker, George Wilson; assistant enrolling clerk, Miss Maud Applepie; messengers, Joseph McCain and Fred Frost.

A Rabbit Tale

A few lines from an Olive Hill boy - We are having a few rabbit drives. Last Wednesday we drove rabbits and killed 1500; on Saturday we killed 2000. They are very numerous here and destroy lots of grain in the summer time. There is strong talk of the railroad being built in the Spring; the grade is ready. The road runs from Burley, Idaho, to Great Salt Lake, Utah. This will be the main line from Salt Lake City, Utah, to Portland, Oregon. About 300,000 bushels of grain and a great number of Potatoes are waiting the advent of the new road, which comes through this neighborhood, in 6 or 7 miles of Tipton. Almost all the homesteads and has been taken up in this part and new houses going up in every direction. Farming proves to be good; last year the average run of grain to the acre was 30 to 65 bushels. Hay, potatoes and all kinds vegetables yield abundantly. This kind is of a sandy loam and deep soil; a splendid fruit country; no timber except on the mountains; land is covered with sugarbrush, grass and clover for cultivation. The valley here is about 25 miles wide and is known as Raft River and empties into Snake River. We have had plenty of Winter; in the valley snow has been about 12 inches deep and in the mountains it is impossible to get thru the snow. The homesteaders have had a fine time sleigh riding. I haven't seen the ground for the winter, though I have enjoyed the Winter very much. The temperature is steady - not cold one day and warm the next, but the wind gets high at times. Marion Brown sold his homestead and went to Wisconsin. He says he came here with $1300 and is going away with $4000. Lots of Kentuckians here and seem to be well satisfied; all have homesteads; I have 160 acres that can be plowed both ways, excepting 10 acres; no stumps or rocks; all use the Sulky riding plow. The 100-acre homesteads that sold a year ago for $1300, are now selling for $4000, and if the railroad is built in the Spring I think the price will go higher. Lots of buyers come here and are offering good prices. The Kentucky boys seem to enjoy hunting; they bring in deer every few days. One boy killed three in one day. Lots of prairie chickens, grouse, and pheasants, also fish. A man caught $125 worth of kioates this Winter.

TAMMANY HALL CHIEF TO RETIRE

MURPHY'S RESIGNATION IS DEMANDED AT NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CLUB MEETING.

Fists Are Used During Gotham Meeting - O'Dwyer Says He is Tired of Charges of Graft.

Western Newspaper Union News Service - New York - A meeting of the National Democratic club ended in disorder after a resolution demanded that Charles F. Murphy be retired from the leadership of Tammany hall had been declared to be adopted on an aye and nay vote. When the chairman announced the result of the vote Murphy partisans and those favoring the retirement started a demonstration against each other. Fists were shaken freely, threats were made and hard names used.

It was fully ten minutes before a semblance of order was restored. Friends of Murphy declared that the resolution had been carried by an illegal vote and said they would place the matter in the form of a protest before the board of governors of the organization.

The resolution was introduced by City Court Justice Edward F. O'Dwyer, president of the club. A bitter speech in reply to the resolution was made by Thomas F. Egan, secretary of Tammany Hall, who demanded that the resolution be tabled was ignored by Justice O'Dwyer.

THE ILLUSTRATED BOOK OF ALL RELIGIONS

THEIR RISE, PROGRESS, PRINCIPALS AND GOVERNMENT

From Earliest ages to Present Time

Comprising all the Christian Penominations, the Jewish and every other known System that has ever had an existence, or that now exists in any part of the World

Compiled from the Best and Most Reliable Authorities

Profusely Illustrated

This work has been prepared as a hand-book of ready reference, and the ecclesiastical student will find it a most invaluable aid in securing information, which without it would require much research and time, and the handling of many hundreds of voluminous works. The information it presents in connection with the most innumerable religions of the world, both of the past and the present, has been carefully compiled from their official reports and is authentic and reliable in every respect.

The ordinary reader will find an absorbing interest in the strange religious customs and methods of worship in the past ages. The illustrations show the customs of dress, an style of architecture in all ages; famous towers, temples and famous paintings, places and people.

The book is octavo size, with nearly 600 pages, is most thoroughly illustrated with nearly 300 engravings, making one in every page on an average, and printed on superior quality book paper, with beautiful emblematic cover designed by Cloth Bound, Elaborate Cover Design in Gilt. The selling price of this book is $1.25, but if you will cut this out and send to us with one dollar for subscription to this paper one year, and twenty-five cents additional for mailing expenses, we will send both the paper one year and the book, for $1.25. THEME: WHEN THE GO.

BY THE REV. HARRY L. EVERETT

Text: Proverbs xiv:14 "The spirit of a man will sustain his infirmity, but a wounded spirit who can bear?"

There is only one way to measure the future history of civilization, and that is to measure the past history of civilization. We have no instruments with us in our journey that are more powerful than the instruments that the prophets of civilization have used, and they have always based their calculations for the future on the history of the past. For the history of the past is the story of the soul of the past. Wherever a race, a nation or an individual has succeeded in history the reason for the success is found in the kind of soul the race, the nation, or the individual has accomplished. The reason that the little nation that was hid in that straggling and lowly valley of the Taurus mountains and Egypt, climbed past the greater nations of Assyria, Babylonia and Persia, is because the descendants of the man, Abraham, had a greater soul than the nations that were neighbors. So no one scans the past, with all its mystery and profoundness, and more than that it may be more than that it has the soul that guided the moving bands. See it as you look down the vista of the ages, the sweep of the nations of great souls. The fragrance of tropical gardens, the fragrance of the great nations, but the souls of great nations move through the gardens, drink the fragrance and breathe the walls, rush on to their destiny. Prejudice weaves a web of threads of iron, conservation uproots trees and leaves the roots and branches to obstruct the way; ignorance digests holes in the path of nations going, but the souls of great nations have broken the web of prejudice and trod the heights again.

Now, this fact is particularly interesting when we apply it to the life of the individual. Here is a young man who has decided to go to school to a worthy object. He has talked to his pastor and his pastor has told him that with an education he can better his physical conditions. A lawyer has pointed out that there is a worthy position in law for him at the end of his collegiate education. A business friend has told him that there are places in the great world of politics for a young man with an education. The young man decides to get the education. He succeeds in finding an institution that will give him a scholarship. He has had a long and hard life, the first week opens well. The next week the instructors call for results in the class room. The man in geometry tells him that he must do better work in geometry. The English instructor tells him that as a matter of fact the most important work he must do better work in English. The instructor in Latin tells him that for mental development and his future vocabulary there is nothing like Latin and that he really should give better results in Latin. In each room that he enters on this particular account the quality of his education he is met by remarks. Each department requires its pound of flesh.

At the end of the day he goes to his room. He has tried to do his best. He certainly wants an education. He will work as hard as he can, but he can work no harder than he has been working. Perhaps it is in his family. Perhaps his family are of those who never could be educated. He has read of that somewhere in a magazine. He remembers that his father never got an education, and surely his grandfather never was educated. I ask you, as this young man is making his decision in this room, "What do you consider that his answer will rest upon?" The answer comes back with a thrill, "It will depend upon the soul the young man has." If he had an answer, it is true that I failed today in geometry, yesterday in Latin, the day before in English, but I know I can give an answer. Perhaps I can give me if I try, I shall do better tomorrow and the next day. I shall do still better, and some day I shall have it all. I know I can win. I feel it in me somewhere. If that is his answer he will win. But what really, then, does his answer depend upon? It depends upon the quality of his soul. If there is something swelling up within him that makes him stay, if he has a great soul that will not let him go, if he soul tells him that because of heritage or environment or absence from school for a period of years, if his soul tells him these things and says then and enough the youth will go down in defeat. You ask me how far his defeat will go, I tell you that he may be as a man, but he will not let his life be defeated until he gets a soul, a great soul, a soul big enough to win.

and will make his future home

Jarrel James and wife, of near Goddard, spent the past week here the guests of merchant G. A. Muse and wife of this place, and attended the big meetings.

The public school here that has been closed the past three weeks on account of sickness of the instructor resumed last Monday.

Rumor has it that there will be two more weddings in this part in the near future and the contracting parties will be four of our popular and estimable citizens. We will call no names but let our readers guess until we come again.

The protracted meeting that has been in session here the past two weeks will continue well up into next week. Rev. Miller and wife, of Chicago, assisted by Rev. Dortzback, of Detroit, Mich., are conducting the meetings, which are well attended; enormous crowds being present each meeting; people attending for miles around. Several have been converted, sanctified and reclaimed, and several sinners have forsaken sin and taken up the cross for the Master. Here's hoping they may hold fast to that which they have and continue unto the end, when a crown of glory is promised: "He that continueth to the end, the same shall be saved."

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr. Hughes Would Die, But One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroy, Ky.—In interesting ad-papers from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good. I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Theford's Black-Draught, and quit Only a quarter."

"I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it."

"I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me."

Theford's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.

New Kentucky Industry

A prominent farmer of Boyle county has placed a herd of Buffalo on his farm. It is claimed that buffalo are superior to cattle for beef and that they can be raised at less expense. He is of the opinion that the cost of living can be materially reduced if buffalo to be grown upon large scale by the farmers of the county.
