

COOK HUMPHREY.

---

He Returns to His Old Home in Rowan County.

---

A special from Flemingsburg says Cook Humphrey arrived there yesterday from the West on his way to Rowan County, from where he was driven by the Tollivers.

In the latter part of this dispatch the correspondent is slightly in error. Humphrey left Morehead about one year ago in accordance with the terms of the patched-up peace between the factions of Rowan brought about by Hon. Asher G. Caruth, of Louisville, who was then at Morehead acting as a special Commonwealth's Attorney. Our readers are perhaps familiar with the terms of that compromise. Certain indictments against the late Craig Tolliver and Humphrey were filed away on condition that both should leave Rowan County. Humphrey went West and has kept his part of the compromise ever since. As Tolliver, the other party to the contract, has been forever removed from Rowan, Humphrey, perhaps, feels that its terms are no longer binding on him, and that he has now the right to return to his old home.
