U.S. Sets Another Good Example

The United States recently set the world a good example and ceded part of its territory another nation. to another mation. The action granted 437.18 acres of Texas to Mexico thus past December.

The dispute over the land admittedly dragged out over a 99-year period, but the late Presi-dent Kennedy, after visiting Mexico, said the 1911 American decision against ceding the land should be reversed.

The changing of the Rio Grande River's course brought about the original conflict, but that fact is not really important.

What is much more significant is that the U.S. Senate ratified the treaty, 69-1, with the lone dissentir appearing only half-heartedly opposed, and then only to allow the Texas legislature. Oecide the issue. (Sen. John Tower was the holdout).

The transition could cost this country $6 million or more in relocating some 2,560 fam-ilies to other areas of El Paso and to help straighten the Rio's boundary line. But maybe that $6 million sum should not
