CLEARFIELD MEET HELD

Approximately seven hundred and fifty parents, citizens, teachers and pupils assembled at Clearfield last Friday for the last annual school picnic and program of the year. Mr. L. B. Porter and the other teachers had made special preparation to entertain their guests from the neighboring schools: Dry Creek, Crix, Mt. Hope, Lower Lick Fork, Upper Lick Fork, Slab Camp, Craney, Bratton Branch and Morehead. Mrs. Caudill had charge of the program which was opened by singing school songs. Music was furnished throughout the day by local talent. Mr. Goff gave a discussion of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair. The declamatory contests, the spelling contests and the athletic events proved to be a big success. Roy E. Holbrook, athletic director at Morehead and L. B. Porter had charge of the athletics.

The list of the winners in the various events will be published next week.

PIE SUPPER AT MINOR

The pie supper held at Minor Saturday night ended with great success. The house was crowded with jolly boys and girls all anxious for a good time. Music was furnished by three guitars and two harps. All enjoyed a talk from our county Superintendent, Prof. Baley and Lewis Fraley. Miss Norene Hunter received a box of candy for the prettiest girl. The pie supper and contest amounted to $38.10 which is being spent for the benefit of the students.

ATTENDANCE AT MT. HOPE

Pupils who have attended the Mt. Hope school without loss of time during the second month are: John Paul Ellington, Arnold Stator, Eugene Martin, Elwood Cornett, A. J. McManey, Gradis McKinney, Bernice Johnson, Ruby Ellington, Elizabeth McKinney, Ruth Ellington Virginia Perry, Eula Utterback, Stella Utterback Ruby Tackett, Pauline McKinney Gladys Utterback.

The percentage for the month is 92 percent in daily attendance.

COGSWELL SCHOOL NEWS

We wish to announce that a pie supper will be given at the school house Saturday September 14, at 8 o'clock. There will be a prize for the prettiest girl. We also hope to have some old time music. Republic is cordially invited to attend.

A marked improvement has been made in our school grounds since the patrons cleaned them and the cemetery west of the school.

We are using the "Library of Knowledge in connection with our everyday curriculum and are finding it a most helpful reference.

We have found a small bulletin board to be very helpful in creating interest in various subjects. It is made of a heavy piece of building paper. Topics of interest, calendars, mottoes, best examples of seat work etc. are posted on the board.

Say "Tomato Juice" To the Waiter!

WATCH the waiters as they pass your table in any big restaurant. See how good the food on their trays looks! You will note a touch of red on nearly every tray. That's tomato juice—our national beverage. In this restaurant, it gives the color to nearly every meal. A big percentage of America's best citizens always start their instructions to the waiter with the words, "Tomato juice—". Yes, they do, and there is a reason. What is it? Well, you try the slogan for two or three days and you will see. You will find that every item on the menu tastes better after more pop. Tomato juice is chock full of vitamins—and vitamins are one of the things we need in a big way. Serve It At Home Tomato juice is just as good at home—here is one particularly easy way to serve it. Serving Tomato Beverage: Add the juice of one lemon, one tablespoon sugar, and salt to taste to the contents of two 10-ounce cans of tomato juice, and chill thoroughly. Add one-half pint White Rock, ice cold, and serve at once in small glass cups. This makes six glasses, but we miss our guess if some of the family

A Laxative that costs only 1¢ or less a dose

NEXT TIME you need medicine to act on the bowels, try Theodore's Black-Draught. Under Frozen Skies

The friends dropped a mile down river, and cutting back in to the timber, made a small fire and ate. To avoid a possible ambush, they waited for the moon, then, hugging the shadows of the shore, traveled, until stopped by the churn of broken water ahead.

At dawn they carried around the white-water that seemed impassable and all day lay hidden in the bush below, watching the river and wondering what chance two voyagers who had beaten their young men would have with the wild Ojibwas of Sturgeon lake. Since the meeting of Paradis and his men. The mission to Sturgeon lake in search of Jingwak seemed but a forlorn hope to Jim Stuart. The presence in the country of LeBlond's man had put a new face on things. As the best the Indians would refuse to listen to them unless they had heard of the fight on the portage. At the worst, it looked as if the prediction of the old Ojibwa a the lake of the Great Storks would be fulfilled. The petterboro would never return up the Sturgeon.

Of course, Jim knew that he and Omar could not disappear off the face of the earth without a search by company men and the provincial police. The first sledding snow would bring dog-teams from the south into the Sturgeon valley—clean faced trackers who would follow Indian or white man, wanted for murder, into the uttermost north—clear to the frozen sea, and beyond. There would be trouble in the Pipestone and Sturgeon river country if the fact of Sunset House and his head man did not come back. But unless Paradis was betrayed, how were these grim men hunters from the south to prove that the missing man had been shot out of their canoe from ambush or stabbed as they slept? Whom could they accuse? Unless by some miracle Esau returned to Sunset House, all that men would ever know would be that three men and a dog had, like thousands before them, faded into the north, leaving no trace.

Yes the two friends agreed, having hewn his hand, there was no doubt that Paradis, for his own personal safety, would hunt them down when he found they had continued north to Sturgeon lake. In keeping on and attempting to find Jingwak, supported by LeBlond's man, they were padding into certain disaster, for after the lesson on the portage, Paradis would never again try to take them with bare hands. And yet as he planned, while they waited for darkness, and the deep stary eyes of the factor of Sunset House met the knotted squint of Omar's smart face, no suggestion of turning back was voiced by either. Instead of them they hoped against hope, a dauntless old man still traveled on his lonely mission to Sturgeon lake—a mission which would mean if he were met and recognized by Paradis, the swift disappearance of Esau Otebig. They had let him go alone, on this mad search for the sorcerer. They would follow and find him if alive, and make the fact be known. Jim would have as soon deserted the old Ojibwa in his present need as he would have left a wounded man between the lens in Flanders.

As the moon rose and they pushed off into the shadows of the thriver shore, the words of Auror LeBlond, "You'd die for love, so you say, but your duty—" haunted Jim's thoughts. Had he played fair with this girl who had so frankly shown her heart? He had allowed a sense of duty—a loyalty to the company—to cheat them of priceless hours together before she went south. And now this loyalty was to rob them of their birthright. For even the masterful Omar admitted that Jingwak and Paradis would never permit the petterboro to return to Sunset House. And now that he felt in his heart that he had said good-bye forever, Jim lived again and again each treasured moment he had spent with her. Once more as the boat slid past the shadow-packed river shore, he felt the warm caresses of her lip, heard her low whisper, gazed into the dark depths of her eyes and crushed her lithe body to his heart.

THE GARDEN

The gardens are waning; only the last tomatoes and peppers, the root crops and cabbage for storing, and the planting of green manure to be gathered. The fact that the end of the garden year is at hand need not mean that gardening for the season is over; far from it, for now that the books are to be closed, as it were, is an excellent time to go over the season's work in retrospect, making particular note of the difficulties and failures there were with a view to avoiding them next year.

Every gardener encountered some trouble. In some instances, insects were particularly troublesome; in others, diseases. Some gardeners were caught unprepared to cope with these pests; others forgot to make preparations for pests that had given them trouble in previous years, or hoped that in 1932 these troubles would not come. No gardener should be optimistic to that extent, for, as has been said in these columns earlier in the season, garden pests do not grant moratoriums.

The fact that trouble did come and perhaps overwhelmed the garden need not make the gardeners pessimistic, however, for controls are available, and some of them are exceedingly simple, needing simply to be kept in mind. Some of them should be administered at seeding time; for the others just a little planning is needed. It is hoped that the notes that follow this article, and that for next week, will stand gardeners in good stead for 1933.

INSECTS, in general. All insects were numerous this year, because of the mild winter of 1931. Obviously, to change the season is impossible, but it is possible to cause the over-wintering insects enough inconvenience to prevent the survival of at least some of them by disturbing their places of hibernation. This is done by breaking the garden in the fall, burying some of the insects that normally lie shallow so deeply that they cannot emerge in the spring and at the same time turning up those that go deeper in the soil, and exposing them to what freezing and thawing may take place. There will be more of this in a later article.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

...David McEwin, of Robert McEwin and Sons, London Ontario, recently delivered 41 Southdown rams and 17 ewes to Boyle county farmers. This was the eighth importation of McEwin sheep by farmers of that county.

R. B. Kincaid has obtained two cuttings of high quality red clover hay from Lee county land treated with limestone and phosphate, and Logan Thomas, of the same county, has secured two cuttings of alfalfa from land treated with limestone and super phosphate. Soybeans are also promising in Lee county.

Three Jefferson county 4-H club boys have completed six months' records in a state butterfat production contest. William Garwood's Jersey produced 4,470 pounds of milk and 246 pounds of fat, Harry Baldwin's Jersey produced 4,356 pounds of milk and 238 pounds of fat. Bonnie Lynn Miller's Guernsey produced 5,661 pounds of milk and 261 pounds of butterfat.

Henderson county homemakers have organized a club to sponsor the Farm and Home Week movement and encourage attendance of a larger number of women from that county. It has been the custom of Henderson county Homemakers' club to send three delegates to the convention, but through the new organization it is planned to have a much larger attendance.

HARLEQUIN CABBAGE BUG. This orange and black, three cornered hardshelled bug was present this year in numbers never before experienced in Kentucky. Although a certain percentage of these were those that survived our own mill winter, a vastly greater number came here via shipped-in plants. To make the Harlequin bug war lighter for 1932, all "frost-proof" plants should be treated in just the way described for plant lice.

TIME

go much farther

"If I only had time . . ." How often you have said that—and thought it, with a sigh. How many interesting and profitable things you could do—if you only had time!

Here's a way to have more time. Let your electric appliances do more of your housework. Make them earn their keep in time saved for you.

Clean carpets, rugs, curtains, upholstery more quickly.

Speed up washings and ironings.

Cook more conveniently—the breakfasts are far less trouble, pleasanter, if you use your waffle iron, toaster and percolator. And the electric range works perfectly whether you're there to watch it or not.

Electricity is so inexpensive you are giving your own time too cheaply if you work without electric appliances. Don't under-value your time, energy, health, recreation.

SAVE WITH SIX CYLINDERS

—with more than six you sacrifice economy
—with less than six you sacrifice smoothness

IF YOU'RE careful about the way you spend your dollars for a low-priced car, you'll be extra-careful about the way you count cylinders. Because if you count more than six, you're not going to get the lowest all-round motoring cost that is saving so many thousands of dollars for Chevrolet owners every day.

And if you count less than six—you won't be any better off from a dollars-and-cents standpoint. Six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have, and still get Chevrolet's built-in smoothness. And built-in smoothness saves you money. It guards against the insidious workings of excessive vibration. It holds repair bills down to rock-bottom. So—if the car is a Chevrolet Six—you'll SAVE!

Best of all: you can save with six cylinders, and not sacrifice one important advancement. You enjoy Free Wheeling, Synchro-Mesh gear-shifting, roomy Fisher bodies. Considering these facts—do you honestly think it's wise—or economical—to keep that old car any longer?

Why Do It Yourself?

A PERTINENT inquiry comes from Portland, Oregon, where they must know a great deal about canning, since salmon, apples, beans, peaches, cherries, plums, pears, berries, milk and several other products in lesser quantities are all canned in that state. This inquiry or rather this temperate discussion of a subject of interest to all housewives, came from Jeanette Crainer, Home Economics Editor of the Portland Oregonian.

"About this time of year," she writes, "many a homemaker naves a sh and makes ready to can fruits and vegetables of all descriptions. Often I wonder if it is really wise. Is it true economy to buy jars, replace covers or rubbers yearly, buy cherries or peaches or pears, pay fuel bills for extra hours of cooking, and invest whole days of time and energy in canning?"

Make Your Own Comparisons

"I don't question the wisdom of saving what the home garden or orchard produces. That is just good common sense. But I do wonder if many women don't go on canning every year from force of habit rather than because of any real saving made.

"So this year, before those canning days come, I suggest that stock be taken and comparisons made of the actual cost of home-canning and that of a similar grade of commercial product. It may prove that the home canning is very much worth while, but on the other hand it may show that some supposed economy to be really expensive. Either way, it is a good thing to know before starting in."

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulus need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh, inactive, active senna, and pure, pure. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's senna pills. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. Add so unnecessary.

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from stomach ick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's senna pills today. Use of an agent to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue and breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of those medicines that rob their strength. It isn't expensive.
