

THE Cincinnati Enquirer says that Tolliver, the Rowan County, desperado, when handed into the patrol wagon by the Sheriff the other evening turned to the crowd and remarked: "I didn't expect any such honor as this. Please say to the committee for me that if they ever visit old Rowan the black jug, with the corn-cob stopper, shall paint the fleet-hours with crimson dyes."