A DAY OF MEMORIES

Few now survive from among those for whom Memorial day was particularly established. The ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic are shattered. Younger men, veterans of later wars, take the place of those who wore the blue or gray from Bull Run to Appomattox, as symbols of the nation's strength in arms.

Forms of observance change with the times, but the underlying spirit of thankful remembrance remains ever fresh and unalterable. To those who first thought of setting apart a day each year for patriotic remembrance such an event as that now staged annually in various cities, the baseball double-headed or the highway crowded with pleasure-seeking motorists would have been as meaningless as the radio in an aborigine. But one likes to believe that these manifestations of American life do not in the least modify the nation's sense of devotion to the memory of those who have borne her arms to victory.

There is neediest in these diverting and troublous days some special occasion when minds shall turn to the men who have dared to bare their breasts to an enemy in war, who have seen in their country's flag something more than a piece of bunting and been convinced that a nation worth founding was worth defending even at the expense of life and treasure. One hears much in these days of pacifism, of oath solemnly taken never to bear arms in war, of the supposed mockery of popular government, the rise of dictatorships and the smashing of treaty pledges. One hears too little of the innumerable thousands of staunch American hearts which still believe in national honor, the Constitution and the causes for which men in the past have been proud to die.

A people ready to observe Memorial day is not one to give way to despair. Today we honor the patriotic dead and our loved ones. We honor, no less, the living who are inspired by the example of those whose graves they decorate.

THE INDEPENDENT'S CIRCULATION DRIVE

More than one thousand dollars in prizes and cash commissions were paid out by the Independent Publishing Company Saturday evening at the conclusion of a highly successful and interesting circulation campaign. Unfortunately, all of the contestants could not win the first award, but they were all well paid for their efforts.

To the contestants in the Loner Circulation Service of Chicago, Illinois, and to Robert Fitch, the Independent gives its thanks for their valuable assistance in increasing our circulation by more than 1,000 at the same time congratulations are in order—congratulations to the contestants for their endeavor and untiring efforts in selling subscriptions, and to Mr. Fitch and Loner Circulation the admirable manner in which they conducted the Independent's initial circulation drive.

Interest was high in the Independent campaign throughout this and adjoining counties. It was a big campaign, and more important, it was a successful one. Its culmination marks another forward step in the complete fulfillment of the Independent's motto of "Eastern Kentucky's Fastest Growing Weekly."

Today the Independent can boast of probably the largest circulation in Eastern Kentucky; it is paid-up 100 per cent.

In the past the publishers have allowed some subscriptions to run over the expiration date, in the future, it shall be the policy of the Independent to maintain its circulation fully paid-up.

We wish to thank those who have assisted in this campaign by either renewing their subscription or purchasing a new subscription. We feel sure that as they receive the Independent every week—carrying with it all the news of Rowan county and Eastern Kentucky, the more important news of the state and nation, plus timely features and impartial editorials they will know they are getting more than their money's worth.

ATTEND THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Only a small number of people were present in the Morehead College auditorium Sunday morning to hear Rev. S. B. Curry deliver the benediction sermon. It is regrettable that a speaker be brought here for this important occasion to address only a scattered audience, seemingly even smaller than it was because they were gathered in the spacious auditorium.

Morehead College officials will do well to urge and use whatever other means possible, to insure a larger gathering for today's commencement exercises. In the meantime it is up to the people of Morehead and vicinity to add with their presence. Not only will you hear one of the finest addresses of the year, but will also lend your assistance in providing a presentable audience for the speakers and lend prestige for the college to visitors from out of town.

The commencement exercises will start at 10:00 o'clock this morning. Let's all be there!

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE EATING

Hardly a week passes but the Independent has passed upon it a compliment from one of its advertisers. Results from advertising in these columns has become a by-word; not a hit and miss or haphazard proposition.

Many things go into insuring a success to advertisers. Circulation, make-up, news-value and confidence of the public are the more outstanding reasons. The Independent believes it has achieved these so as to practically guarantee results.

One of the best examples of result-producing advertising was from the one-half page partnership sale carried last week by the Shady Rest Service Station. Ordinarily, service stations are not considered in the scope of the best result-producing advertising, but we give you the following unsolicited statement from Mr. Woody Hinton, manager of Shady Rest.

"We certainly obtained results from this advertising," Mr. Hinton declared. "We kept an accurate check on the results and found that we sold 557 customers during the three-day sale, which is something of a record for us; we had an increase of 110 per cent in volume; and contacted 153 new customers."

For every dollar that Shady Rest spent for advertising they received many dollars in return. However, we believe the greatest asset was in the contacting of 153 new customers. If only two per cent of these new customers or three per cent of them come back to Shady Rest and continue to do business, the advertising will be paid for many times over, even if no other sales were made during the sale.

Louisville reported that spring-like weather developed increasing detail buying with sales recording increases 5 to 10 per cent above same period of year ago. Jeffersonville, Ind., reports department and clothing store sales slow, with much improvement in furniture, hardware and drug sales.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

The South Needs Books

Second only to the public schools themselves, the public libraries of the United States are the most valuable educational agency provided by a combination of public funds and private benefactors, and since the South is notoriously deficient in both these fundamental activities, the publication, Libraries of the South, just issued by the American Library Association, contains much significant information.

The book is a report of the regional field agent for the South, Miss Tommie Dora Barker, appointed in 1930 by the American Library Association, under a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, to survey the field and endeavor to lay the foundations for unifying library extension efforts. The painstaking report should have the effect of stimulating these efforts and giving helpful direction thereto.

It is obvious that the South needs books, when it is comprehended that nearly 22,000,000 persons, or 66 per cent of the population, are without access to public libraries, and of these 19,500,000 live in rural areas. There are less than 8,000,000 volumes in the South's libraries, which is only 2 per capita. In Kentucky, only 977,477 of its 2,614,389 people live within service area of its sixty-four public libraries.

Libraries provide an opportunity for adult education and a valuable adjunct to the improvement of educational efforts which must follow the South's economic renaissance, now in its beginning.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

One Cost of Government

The National Civil Service Reform League is responsible for the statement that there are more than 3,000,000 employes of our Federal, State, and Local government. It reports that their salaries, paid by the people of this country, exceed $4,000,000,000 a year.

These are striking figures. They demonstrate the burden of government. There is no escaping the load, and every citizen, whether rich or poor, bears part of it.

In calling attention to the number of governmental employes and the amount of money paid for their services, we do not imply that the money is not well spent. In fact, proper government, purchased for this sum, is cheap. Unfortunately, however, very often the people fail to get the proper service to which they are entitled. This is not to be attributed entirely to graft and corruption.

The fact is that, as any careful student of government realizes, many of our political employes, including elective officials, are bunglers in operating the affairs of state because they lack training. Much better government could be secured in the United States if all employes were required to take a course of training before becoming eligible to serve the public.

This article is written with reference to officials and employes generally and should not be taken as a reflection upon any group of public servants. In this county and state, we have many faithful public officials just as we have our share of the incompetent. Recognizing a state of affairs that is general, the people here and elsewhere, should support any proposal that tends to secure better trained public servants.—Bourbon County News.

Crop Loans Begin To Flow In Rowan From 'Rehab' Fund

Rehabilitation Activities Register Marked Increase, Supervisor Cobb Says

Rehabilitation loan activities of the Restitution Administration which have shown a marked increase each week since the first advances of spring plantings were made some three months ago, shot to new heights Saturday when 31 loans were made for the month.

"These loans are being made for seed, fertilizer, livestock, equipment and other supplies needed for making a crop, to farm families in Rowan, Carter and Elliott counties, deemed eligible for Rehabilitation-in-place," said Mr. Clarence W. Cobb, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor for these counties in making the above announcement.

Each farm family granted a Rehabilitation-in-place loan voluntarily agrees to follow approved farm and home management plans worked out by the aid of the County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisors in cooperation with the County Farm Agent. Plans for food and feed, including a garden, to meet the needs of the family are stipulated, as well as money crops, the supervisor said.

"We feel that every rehabilitation loan made opens the gate of opportunity to some stranded farmer, who, denied such credit, would be deprived of a chance to get on his feet again. However, we must be assured before advancing a loan that the family has suitable land, that sound farm plans are provided and that the loan and supervision extended will provide an opportunity for the family to keep off of relief and reimburse the government for the loan extended.

Responsibility for the selection of families is placed in the hands of voluntary County Advisory Committees, who have a practical knowledge of local conditions, and are better able than anyone else to make the selection. In passing upon the qualifications, not only need, but character and willingness to work are considered. Usually the Rehabilitation client has no tangible asset but if it is considered that he will respond to the loans that the farm and home plan supervision that can be given him plus his willingness to work will justify his selection. If they make good, Rehabilitation-in-place clients who are now tenants may become eligible, far homes of their own, as worthy tenants are among those who will be considered for farmsteads under Rural Resettlement.

Post Family Coat-of-Arms

The son of Lieutenant William Lawrence was granted the above coat of arms. This family lived in Kyo County, Durham, England.

Political warfare caused Lawrence William, opponent of the Crown, to emigrate to America where he settled in Providence, Rhode Island about 1652.

As a lieutenant in the army of King Charles, Lawrence William was taken prisoner at the surrender of Newcastles in 1644. His estates were sequestered and sold by Parliament.

In coming to New England Lawrence was given land grants, was chosen to the General Court in 1673 and died in 1682.

A granddaughter, Ruth, married William Hopkins one of their sons was William Hopkins, Governor of Rhode Island and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; another son East Hopkins was a commodore in the American navy.

Description of Arms: Three gray horses on a blue shield. A gray bar with a black staff. Crest: A unicorn rising from a cross. Motto: Neither for king nor people, but for both.

"The Proof of the Pudding Is in the Eating"

Approaching Memorial Day Recalls Realistic Story Written By Washington Post Writer, 'In France Today'; Published By Independent Eulogizes American Soldiers who Died In War

'They Have Not Failed Their Rendezvous With Death,' Vulliet Says

By ANDRE VULLIET
In the peaceful silence of the French countryside, out where grass is growing where death was in the making and restless cemeteries recall informal battlefields, poppies and flags today are waving over 30,000 American graves, like a gentle beck flung forth in the wind by those who have not failed their rendezvous with death.

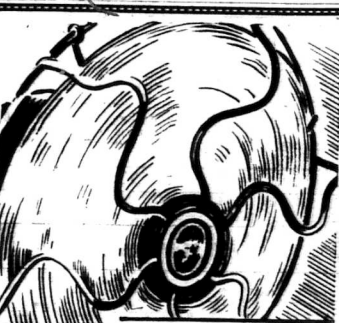

Although Memorial day, or, as they used to call it, Decoration day, seems to be particularly associated with those grief-stricken parents, sorrowing comrades and friendly compatriots who are mourning today in the six American cemeteries in France, might forget that they were in a foreign land when they set the piety and devotion with which small children from the nearby villages scatter wild flowers on the American tombs.

If the city dwellers are prone to forget the dreadful days of 19 years ago, those who live in the invaded sections where the decisive battles were fought and won, the peasants of Thiencourt and Montfaucou, the citizens of Sedan and St. Mihiel keep ever present in their minds the seemingly miraculous arrival of thousands upon thousands of strangers from overseas who, like brothers, were prepared to die beside the sons of France.

The story has been often told of how, when hope had almost fled, when resources were exhausted, suddenly, the whole face of the situation was altered and in the place of France's war-worn troops reduced to the very skeleton of their former effectiveness, the youthful soldiers of a youthful nation appeared, ready to fight for this strange land as though it were their own. It has been often told. But it is a pious duty to say it again every year, on Memorial day.

Every American who visits the numerous French shrines should be grateful to American Overseas Memorial Day association for decorating each of the more than 30,000 graves with a poppy, a carnation and small French and American flags on each May 28.

Morehead, Kentucky

This reverential task is performed by official American superintendents.

About 40,000 bodies were taken back to the United States on their relatives' request, at the government's expense. There also are about seventy isolated graves, the most celebrated of these being that of Quentin Roosevelt, President Theodore Roosevelt's son, who was buried where his plane fell, near Fere-en-Tardenois.

These isolated graves are usually decorated by members of the Paris posts of the American Legion or by local French citizens, frequently the mayor of the locality concerned.

The general locations of the most imposing memorials are enduring reminders of the three historic battlefields where the American forces mostly contributed to the final victory. These are known as the St. Mihiel battlefield, with its Montsec monument and Thiencourt cemetery; the Meuse-Argonne battlefield, and the Romagne cemetery and the Assen-Marne battlefield, with the Chateau-Thierry memorial and the Belleau wood graves. The St. Mihiel area was in Lorraine, that section of eastern France which had been set aside by the French high command as the concentration area for the American army.

At Thiencourt, the third largest American military cemetery in France, the 4,132 marble headstones gleam white as the sun marks the time on a large stone sundial carved in the form of a resting American eagle, with the following inscription: "Time will not dim the glory of their deeds." On the hill above Chateau-Thierry, where Joan of Arc rode by in 1429 and where Jean de La Fontaine wrote many of his immortal fables, now stands a memorial to the glory of the American troops. Commanding a sweeping view of the Meuse valley, the monument's twin rows of majestic columns rise at the right and left of two figures of symbolic size representing France and America.

Down in the valley, not far from the memorial, nearly 2,300 American soldiers rest in peace in curving rows around the base of the Belleau Wood hill while 6,000 others sleep in honored glory in the second largest American cemetery abroad, at Feren-Tardenois.

But the foremost chapter in the history of the American participation is written forever in the French sky, above the Argonne forest and the Montfaucou hill, in the form of a colossal rose granite Doric shaft which towers the ruins of the wartime Montfaucou village by more than 175 feet.

There, between the heavily fortified Argonne forest and the strongly defended Meuse heights, the battle raged from September 26 to November 11, with more than 900,000 Americans participating at one time, slowly and gallantly making headway until on November 1, they neid the heights overlooking Sedan.

During the battle 123,000 were killed, wounded or missing and a little further down the valley, at Romagne-sous-Montfaucou, facing a huge lily pond, a verdant hill and quiet trees, more than 14,200 white marble crosses and stars of David for the Jewish soldiers speak for those who acted the drama and saw not its end.

There, undoubtedly, the most impressive of memorial ceremonies abroad is justly taking place today, as the Meuse-Argonne combat will go down as one of the most glorious pages of American military history.

There, among still waves of graves unfurling in endless wake, a comrade of those heroes, who constantly kept the French high command in touch with their feelings, Gen. de Chambrun evoked the glory of their deeds and paid tribute to those among the dead whose name is "known but not God."

"Was it not one of those very heroes whom we glorify today," he said, "fallen somewhere near Varenne or Maucourt, in Belleau wood or in the Bois des Ferges, whose obscure action and last drop of blood were the decisive factors in the trend of the war?" "Is it the nation that each generation, recognizing in the common soldier the veritable victor of the war, should have consecrated to his glory, its most impressive monument?"

In Paris this evening, if you walk up the Champs Elysees toward Napoleon's triumphal arch, at that time when the sun sinks behind its pillars, you will probably find that the imperial arc opens against the sunset like a doorway to infinite beauty. Yet, there, in the center of Paris activity, an unextinguished flame burns over a bronze tomb and adds new grandeur to the granite vault. And that permanent contrast between the constant flow of Paris life and the unknown dead is one of the grandest achievements of man.

CHISELER IS REPORTED PREYING ON THE AGED
Fayette County Attorney Samuel H. Cole is investigating reports that a chiseler had obtained $1 each from a number of elderly people in Lexington on the pretense of charging them fees for making out their old-age pension applications.
Mr. Cole said he would prosecute the chiseler if he could be located, and asked that anyone approached with such a proposal communicate with him.
He pointed out that no one was authorized to charge for such services.
The set-up for administering provisions of the pension act remains to be worked out at a forthcoming special session of the general assembly. At present there is no agency authorized to receive applications.

singers in authentic and traditional dress appropriate to the era of the ballads which they sang.

The "Ladies in Waiting" who, in Elizabethan costume, appear in the prologue are chosen from among Kentucky's loveliest young womanhood. Leola Margaret Caudill, daughter of Mrs. Lyda Messer Caudill, will be among the "Ladies in Waiting."

The Frances Gieim dancers in traditional dress of early England will dance an early Lincolnshire folk dance to the notes of the flute—they troop down the mountain side at the heels of the puppet who is costumed in rich velvet and plumed hat of Elizabethan days.

An Indian lass precedes the Lincolnshire dancers singing in native tongue the Sunrise Song and the Zuni's typifying the Redman's welcome to the white man, and over the brow of the hill a covered wagon slowly comes into view. It halts before the windowless cabin and two ladies in pioneer dress of lustrous woolenry with slat bonnets make their way slowly toward the rustic stage to join the mountain maesters grouped on backless benches on the rustic stage in front of the windowless cabin. Around about high from rise and above the canopy of heaven—high hills that give back the echo of song—warming and wassail song, frolic and jonesome tunes, sea chanteys, gay ditties, play game tunes to the muted strain of fiddle and dulcimer.

Alumni Achieve Enviably Record

Dudley Caudill, class of '29, S. M. R. Hurt, class of '30, and Cornelious Swann, '32. Mr. Swann died enroute to his home in Maryland the day after he had received his diploma, which he never reached home to proudly display. Some times we hope that a fitting memorial may be erected and dedicated to these deceased alumni, and any others who may have passed away of which we do not know since it was impossible to obtain accurate data on a few of the alumni.

The survey shows that the early graduating classes have made a higher mark in the world. There is a definite reason for this, because they have been out in the world longer—have obtained more from the school of hard-knocks and have had an opportunity to obtain more enviable positions.

It is remarkable how few graduates are unemployed. Less than 10 are without jobs, and these 10 come from graduating classes of 1934 and 1935. With few exceptions, Morehead College graduates have entered the teaching field, for which they were trained, and have made a meritorious mark in education in Kentucky.

Let us check the classes one by one and see just what our graduating class has achieved.

In 1927 there were, as mentioned

Pile them high as the soldiers were Piled on the field where they fought and fell; They will rejoice in their new place there Today, as they walk where the fragrant air is sweet with the scent of asphodel.

Many a time, I've heard it said, They fell so thick where the battles were. Their hot blood rippled, and, running red, Ran out like a rill from the drifted dead. Staining the heads and the daisies there.

This day the friends of the soldiers cheer, And they will keep it through all the years.

To the silent city where soldiers sleep Will come with flowers, to wait and weep And water the garlands with their tears.

that there are many who feel the sting of disappointment because they did not win a capital prize, it is confident that there will be no resentment.

In a campaign of this kind, the hopes and aspirations may not have withered under the onslaught of a heated competition, but have profited. Casual acquaintances have proven themselves to be friends, new friends were made, qualities and latent abilities have come to the surface, that existence of which might never have been realized had the opportunity to enroll as a candidate in this great campaign never presented itself to the legion of workers who participated, and which may prove to be a valuable asset in time to come. It may well be said that the value of this campaign lies not alone in the material things achieved by it.

To those who carried themselves on the way to success are the handsome prizes, The Independent extends its congratulations, and wishes those who have won a prize merited, but award, for nothing worth having is easy to get. The Independent is proud of the fact that this campaign the remarkable success it proved to be and hopes to look the prizes which will, in turn, be proud of their awards.

Large Count Surprise

The fortune displayed throughout the campaign by the workers, resulted in a surprisingly large number of votes counted, which we feel, is literally the voice of the public speaking its approval of the popularity and reader interest of the Independent, and shall ever be our policy to keep the Independent up to standard and improve where the opportunity presents itself.

The Independent wishes to thank and commend the committee of judges, under whose direction the business like methods in making the count of votes was carried out, which assured accuracy and fairness to all.

The popularity of the candidates in every section in which The Independent circulated is reflected in the many letters and personal calls which in every case pay tribute to the way "the campaign was conducted."

and regulations governing the new tax, it was explained, the jobber in order to comply with the law must open each sealed box of cartons, open each carton, place the stamp on each of the ten packages therein at a designated spot, return the packages to the carton, return the cartons and reassemble them in boxes.

The out-of-state manufacturers of cigarettes, the jobber explained, has refused to place the state stamp on the packages at the time of manufacture, the state factories have been exempted from such requirements by state authorities. Due to the heavy demand for the stamps, he said, jobbers have found it difficult to obtain the stamps without considerable delay.

At Frankfort, the state tax commission had no official total of cigarette tax stamps sold, but official estimates were that $100,000 had been received from dealers.

DON'T think we've forgotten even for one instant, those days of 1917 and 1918. Don't think we don't remember your buddies that didn't come back - and that we aren't grateful for the millions of you that DID come back and are working right along with the rest of us today. Perhaps we've been a little long in showing our gratitude—and that's why we're so glad the bonus has come along to make life easier for so many of you. It Isn't a millionth part of what your country feels—but every little bit helps—and it reminds you, at least on this Memorial Day that Uncle Sam does remember . . . and will keep right on remembering!!

Kessler Eliminates Holman On Court

Scoring a victory in straight sets, Kessler advances to the finals of the Morehead intra-mural tennis tournament Sunday by defeating Holman 6-4, 6-4.

Both players showed class at times. By virtue of a decisive victory over Holman, Kessler is conceded a good chance to defeat Roschi in the finals this week.

Roschi advanced through opposition in the other bracket without a great deal of effort, and rules the favorite to win out.

Presidential approval received for 314-bed addition to Veterans Hospital at Lexington, Ky., estimated cost being $800,000.

SHOOTING THE WORKS

Apparently there will be no soft-ball league for Morehead towns-people this year. No efforts, so far as can be learned, are being made to organize the league, even though there are many who would like to participate.

A league will be formed at the college, but no town teams will play in it according to plans there.

Reports indicate that game wardens are continuing their investigation into alleged dynamiting and digging in local streams, but no arrests have been made. It seems that our game wardens are the last to hear and act on these matters.

In more than 10 years of hunting and fishing the writer has never been approached by a warden who asked for his license.

Despite no swimming signs, the boys are taking advantage of the small lake formed by the school's new water plant to hit the water. When Norman Wells head is turned. When Wells arrives on the scene the look-out notices the swimmers and they all take to the water below the dam where there is no prohibition on swimming.

Canoing may be one of the coming sports on this lake, which is a half-mile long, provided there is no objection from Mr. Wells or the school.

With some landscaping this spot will become one of the most beautiful small parks in Eastern Kentucky. We are told the landscaping will be done soon.

Deer have become so plentiful in Pennsylvania that an open season is being declared every year. This country provides an excellent refuge for deer, and if the government carries through its plan to stock the Cumberland National Forest, it should not be necessary for us to go to Pennsylvania or some other state for deer hunting. It is probable that it will be several years before an open season is declared on them—if then.

STRANGE and INTERESTING FACTS

The Poinsettia which has become almost as symbolic of Christmas as Holly was originally a plant of the Spurge family found in shady damp sections of sub-tropical Central America.

The American diplomat, Joel Roberts Poinsett of South Carolina former minister to Mexico, brought the plant to this country about 1825.

With the zeal of a confirmed botanist, Joel Poinsett delighted in the care and cultivation of the Poinsettia developing it into the brilliant decorative plant we know now.

In honor of its discoverer the plant was given the name Poinsettia.

Allie Holbrook To Coach Grayson Hi

ALLIE HOLBROOK

Allie Holbrook, son of Mrs. M. D. Holbrook of Morehead and a graduate of the Morehead State Teachers College advanced another step in the scholastic coaching field last week as he was employed as head coach of Fritchard High school at Grayson.

Holbrook has been coaching for a number of years at Soldier where he has built a formidable team in basketball. This year he went to the finals in the Regional Tournament, and lost a chance to attend the state tournament because his boys had extended themselves in the semi-finals in defeating Ashland High, a school more than 20 times as large as Soldier.

At Soldier, Allie had no opportunity to show his ability to coach football, since the school was so small that it was impossible to have this sport. However, at Grayson, he will coach both football and basketball. He was a letterman in football at Morehead college.

Rev. Kazez Back From St. Louis Trip

Discusses Baptist Convention Which He Attended Annual Meet

The Rev. B. H. Kazez returned last Thursday from St. Louis, Mo., where he has been attending the Southern Baptist convention. He reports a grand trip. While there he visited some of the outstanding places of St. Louis, such as the Shaw Memorial building, the Shrine of the Lindbergh trophies, and other scenes of interest. He became acquainted with Arthur J. Gaines, manager of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and had dinner in his home. He was also the guest of the vice president of the St. Louis Branch of the Fritchard Baptist denomination, such as George Truett, president, and Dr. J. H. Bushbrooke, secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, both of whom had just returned from a six months tour of mission fields in the orient, and Kagawa, great Japanese Christian.

Mr. Kazez states that on Monday afternoon, evening, and Tuesday until evening, the Northern Baptist convention, whose annual meetings were to begin on Wednesday of last week met a joint session with the Southern convention and many great speakers brought inspiring messages. Contrary to the expectations of either convention to bring about a union; that the sessions were purely fellowship sessions. He says that, due to the magnitude of either convention and to the manner of representation, there is no point to their meeting, that it would be more preferable to reduce their size by dividing into still smaller conventions. According to his interpretation of the sessions, there is an optimistic note among the Baptists of the south, and they are rapidly returning to the evangelistic zeal which has always characterized their advance. Debts are being reduced and tithes and offerings are increasing each year. Mission work on all fronts reflects an optimistic spirit.

Morehead Tankmen Place Second In Kentucky's First Intercollegiate Meet

Borst and Morris Win 2 First Places; While Eagles Drop Several Matches By Close Margins; Relay Team Loses

Earl King Senff's Morehead College swimming team proved no match for the University of Kentucky Intercollegiate in the state's first intercollegiate swimming meet at the Eastern Matoratorium in Richmond last Thursday, but were superior to the other entrants.

Kentucky captured four first prizes to two for Morehead. Eastern and Louisville each won one first. The total scores were: Kentucky 49; Morehead 24; Eastern 12; Louisville 6, Berea 6.

Morehead qualified entrants in all matches except the 50-yard breast stroke.

The University team was experienced and ready for the meet. They showed themselves clearly superior, but the prospects for next year point to a Morehead championship, since all but one of their team returns, while Kentucky will suffer the loss of practically the entire squad.

The Eagle swimmers might have compiled a much higher score except that they were badly nosed out for first place in several trials. Morris of Morehead lost to Rents, Kentucky, by only one-tenth of a point in the low board diving. The scores were, Morris 76.3 and Rents 76.4.

The Morehead fans saw their team beaten for the first time in the 150-yard medley relay. The combination of Hofstetter, Jackson, Borst and Morris lost to Kentucky, whom they had previously defeated.

Borst of Morehead won the 225 yard free style and Morris annexed the 50-yard free style.

Closed Season On Fishing Ends June 1

The closed season on fishing in May will terminate Sunday, May 31. Beginning Sunday at midnight, fishing will again be legal in the state.

Game wardens reported there were fewer violations of the closed season law this year, as the public is evidently learning that this is a law that is to be strictly enforced.

Rains last week muddied most local waters, but unless there is additional rainfall this week streams are expected to be clear for the reopening of the season on June 1st.

Sportsmen throughout the state are expected to resume fishing on the first day. Resorts at Herrington Lake (Dix River Dam) report reservations have been coming in fast and they are anticipating another record crowd at midnight Sunday.

PIRATES WIN EASILY OVER OWINGSVILLE

The Morehead Pirates had easy sailing Sunday afternoon in taking a 17-2 victory from the Owingville Cubs, a Negro baseball team jumping on every visiting hurler, the Pirates annexed an early lead and increased the advantage at will.

Sunday's game was played on the Cleardfield diamond, being changed at the last minute after the athletic college of the Morehead State Teachers College voted against the use of Jayne Stadium for Sunday baseball.
