Does a College Education Pay?

The value of a college education has been a matter of controversy for sometime. It is often held that a college graduate is little better prepared to earn a living than is an ordinary individual.

An article in the Independent last week clarifies any doubt as to the value of a college education. It was a story of statistics, showing what the graduates of the Morehead State Teachers College are now doing, what they have done and the value of the positions they hold.

It shows that of 248 living graduates, only five are unemployed, and at least two of these has been hired in some school for next year. Eight are county superintendents, 33 high school teachers, 81 graded school teachers, one county superintendent, 11 coaches, 36 (women) married and classified as housewives, and the balance working in some other field besides education.

If a composite schedule were made of the earnings of college graduates, we feel safe in assuming, on the basis of the above, that the college man or woman is earning, on an average, of at least one-third more than is the high school product—the figure might go as high as twice as much.

No Celebration This Year

From every indication Morehead will not have a Fourth of July celebration this year nor any kind of community event that will attract our rural folks and people from surrounding counties.

A few live concerns have been anxious to cooperate in such an event, which would bring thousands of dollars to our city, but others fail to see the advisability of going to some expense and considerable trouble to put their shoulder behind the wheel in such enterprises.

Elsewhere in the state towns the size of Morehead are holding these events. Evidently they find they are worthwhile and financially beneficial. It seems to us that they would go a long way towards bringing business to Morehead, and get people in surrounding communities to coming here instead of going elsewhere.

Crime Does Not Pay

The fact that crime does not pay is amply demonstrated by a glance at the headlines in any newspaper. Never a day passes but that the apprehension of some criminal, or a band of criminals appears as one of the lead stories in any newspaper.

Law enforcement agencies, even in the small towns are adequately equipped to deal with crime. Very few crimes are committed in Morehead or Rowan County that are not solved.

The chief difficulty that stands in the path of justice in communities such as ours are the juries. Everyone knows everyone else, and as a result our juries are too lenient with criminals. Perhaps their father was a good man, and for that reason our juries are reluctant to assess heavy penalties, or maybe the person on trial has done some favor for one of the jurors, and he lets that enter into his judgment. We are compactly grouped together; everyone knows practically everyone else. But, we should not let this interfere with our dealing out justice when we sit on a jury.

Crime does not pay, for eventually every criminal will meet up with justice. But our juries can speed that justice by dealing out unprejudiced verdicts.

Rental Figures On Decline

Rental figures in Morehead are definitely on the decline. Reaching its peak last year, when any kind of a house rented from twenty to thirty dollars, the rental price has fallen gradually. There are several reasons for this.

In the first place, in most cases, Morehead's rent was far above the average—about as high as is charged in the cities, and considerably more than in either the size of Morehead. There was a very good reason for this. The demand was greater than the supply. However, there is fast becoming an adjustment.

To offset the high demand the supply was increased as many buildings were finished and rented out. Then the Morehead State Teachers College let the contract for a new dormitory which will take care of many of the teachers, and a number of married students.

It is an undisputed fact that many small homes in Morehead which cost no more than $500 have been renting for $25 a month. Allowing a maximum of upkeep, taxes, the value of the lot and a one-month non-rental, the owners of these small places were drawing from 20 to 40 per cent interest in their investment. It was natural, therefore, for a number of these cabins and such to be built.

However, the landlord will probably find them less lucrative in the future. The demand will be lessened still further when the new dormitory is constructed.

Rental figures are on the decline, which bodes well for the working man and the college student, but means less for the landlord.

However, there are many places in Morehead that have been renting at a fairly reasonable figure. It is safe to assume that those places will continue to draw something like the amount they have in the past.

Disturbing Religious Worship

Despite the fact that local courts have attempted to stop disturbance of religious worship in the rural sections by inflicting heavy penalties on convicted violators, the practice has not been halted, although curbed to some extent.

There is no crime violation that is more despicable and low as disturbing religious worship. Yet, some people, generally young men with few savings, are John Bartlowers under their belt, persist in breaking up services where the good people of a community have gathered to worship.

It is our suggestion to the June grand jury to make a full and complete investigation of these reported disturbances and render indictments in every section by inflicting heavy penalties on every rural county of Rowan county a favor by returning true bills against this lowest type of criminal.

One Year Ago This Week

A light dotted faces Judge D. B. Caudill when he opens court on June 17. The case of Bill Keeton, charged with shooting and wounding Joe Peed, with intent to kill, is scheduled for investigation by the grand jury.

Miss Bessie Day filed a $10,000 bond at her examining trial in which she was charged with the slaying of her son-in-law, Oscar "Red" Williams. Howard A. Sparlock was named chairman of the "Rheas for Governor" committee in Rowan County.

A large number of Rowan Countians plan to attend Rhee's opening address at Dowling Green. The Rowan County Board of Education yesterday employed teachers for all Rowan County schools. A ruling from the State Department of Education, stating that a 3 or 4 year high school must have at least 45 students in attendance, was read.

The Rowan Fiscal Court appropriated $500 for the continuance of the Health Department. Bertha E. Womeldorf was married this week to Chase Long, 75, of Prospect, O.

Sollie Ralston, Rowan farmer, died this week after a paralytic stroke. Asa Adkins opened a radio shop in Morehead today.

What Other Kentucky Editors Are Saying

What is a Customer? That sounds like a foolish question, but is it? What does the word "customer" mean to you, to all the employees of the business?

We generally think of a customer as one of many who are responsible for making sales go up or down, making the sales department smile or become serious—making the boss jovial or grouchy.

A customer is the fellow who pays the bills. He's the fellow who meets the payrolls. Whether you or I get a pay check next week depends on those customers. So our jobs, not just on our own efforts, but on our customers.

Look at it in that way, and customers are a very, very valuable asset to each of us.

Every time we make a mistake that affects a customer—whether in the office or plant, shipping room or credit department—we are undermining our own job.

Given three months without a single customer, and most businesses will go broke. And when a business goes broke, those working for it are looking for other jobs.

So a customer becomes more than a possible account receivable—he becomes a very personal affair. He becomes someone who is to be served well, whose interests become our interests, who is to be catered to, if you will, because he means so much to us.

No business can prosper in the long run without a customer. Good Will. And everyone working for a concern, from salesman to shipping clerk, is doing himself a service by avoiding anything that will impair that good will, and by doing everything that will enhance it.—(Bindery Talk.)

There was a heavy decline in imports of cigars into France during the year. The shift in French purchases of low-priced cigars from Germany to Italy was noticeable. Cigarette imports also decreased, on the whole, though more American cigarettes came in.

Exports of cigarettes from Japan in 1935, although registering an increase in volume of 71.86 per cent over export in 1933, declined 23.34 per cent in total value.

FARM DEBT ADJUSTMENT Explained in Bulletin Issued By Resettlement Administration

The following answers to questions that might arise regarding the farm debt adjustment program of the Federal Government is answered in the following taken from a bulletin of the Resettlement Administration.

1. What are farm debt adjustment committees? They are committees which have been formed to help debt-ridden farmers readjust the debts they owe and retain their farms. The members of these committees work without pay. They are performing a public service in helping farmers readjust their debts.

2. How were the members of the committees selected? The government of several states appointed State Farm Debt Adjustment committees in the fall of 1933 at the request of the President and the governor of the Farm Debt Administration. The members of each state committee recommended to the governor public-spirited citizens in all parts of the state who in turn were appointed to membership on county Farm Debt Adjustment Committees.

3. Why was farm debt adjustment work started? Many farmers went in debt at a time when prices of farm products were much higher than at present and now find themselves unable to pay all of their debts out of their greatly reduced farm income. For example, a wheat farmer who went in debt $100 for an acre of wheat in 1914 did so with the expectation of paying for it with the returns from approximately 114 bushels of wheat. In 1932, however, the price of wheat had dropped so sharply that it required the returns from approximately 263 bushels of wheat to pay off the debt.

A farmer overburdened by debt cannot conduct his farming operations successfully, and is not a normal purchaser in his community. In cases of this kind, the farmer must obtain a readjustment of his debts if he is to continue farming, otherwise he will struggle along and sooner or later will lose his farm.

4. What is the purpose of Farm Debt Adjustment Committees? The Committees were organized to provide a means of bringing together farm debtors and their creditors in an effort to solve their mutual problems. This generally means the arrangement of the farmer's indebtedness in a way that enables him to continue his farming operations and to retain his property.

5. Can a Creditor as well as a Debtor ask for the assistance of a Committee? Yes. The same assistance will be given both. Committees give careful consideration to the positions of all creditors.

6. What legal status do the Farm Debt Adjustment Committees have? They have no legal power to enforce their recommendations. They endeavor to obtain the agreement of the farmer and all his creditors to a fair and reasonable adjustment, but they cannot compel a scale-down of the farmer's debts or any other settlement.

largely to the cooperation of creditors who realize that a voluntary settlement is the best way of saving the farmer's home and of protecting the creditor's investment.

7. What does Farm Debt Adjustment Service cost a debtor or creditor? Nothing. The services of county Farm Debt Adjustment Committees are available without cost to farm debtors or creditors.

8. Are the Committee members receiving any pay for their work? The Committee members serve without pay. The Resettlement Administration partially reimburses them for out-of-pocket expenses, such as cross-county travel, incurred while actually engaged in farm debt adjustment work.

9. What does a farmer lose if he does not cooperate? Increased imports of passenger cars and a sharp decline in imports of trucks featured the automobile trade of Cuba during March.

Aluminum kitchenware is becoming increasingly popular in Brazil. Germany was the chief foreign supplier of aluminum products in the past year, with the United States following.

NEW FRANCISCO

A NEWCOMER AT 'PARADISE' Chapter One

It was New Year's Eve 1935 in San Francisco. Men and women in the crowd in the middle of the night din of the revelers from the windows of the old Palace carriage made its way amid the din and confusion of hundreds of voices...

A dark man in evening dress and "topper," wearing an ivory-cased watch chain...

As he neared Lotta's Fountain he heard a young man shouting to the crowds of revelers: "There's wine in Lotta's Fountain, folks!"

There was a stampede toward the fountain which carried the dark man, probably in his early thirties, along with it.

"Bring all we've got!" Duane shouted back. "Empty the warehouse! Hello, Blackie!" he cried warmly...

"Hello, Della! Happy New Year!" called Blackie to the large woman.

"The same to you, Blackie!" cried Della, and her good wishes were repeated by the girls in the various carriages.

"You know everyone, don't you?" nodded Duane.

"On the Barbary Coast!" shouted a fireman through trumpet-horn.

"The Coast! Maybe it's my joint!" cried Blackie, as he pushed his way through the throng.

"It isn't hot enough for my joint!" replied Blackie, a shade of arrogance in his voice.

"Who's your friend, Babe?" "It's a little lady named Norton in that fire. Meet Mr. Norton, Miss. He owns the joint."

"I only just moved into the neighborhood. I'm a singer." "A singer?" Blackie became interested.

"Well, I could use another singer." At that the girl raised her skirts a little. Blackie pulled them up to her knees.

"You've got a pretty fair set of pipes," was Blackie's comment.

"Not as long as I'm looking. What'll you have, Mr. Norton?" "Bring me a little water," said Blackie to the waiter.

"You've got a pretty fair set of pipes," was Blackie's comment.

"The singer commented, but his eyes began to roll about the room in search of the bouncer.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

World's Record in Kentucky

For Large Herds of Jerseys
For the second consecutive year a Kentucky farmer has set the world's production record for large Jersey herds, according to the State College of Agriculture at Lexington.

P. B. Gaines' herd at Carrollton last year finished a test with an average of 8,007 pounds of milk and 423 pounds of butterfat. This production was acclaimed throughout the country as the highest average ever attained by Jersey herd of this size, 80 cows. Another year's test, completed this spring, resulted in an average of 8,876 pounds of milk and 465 pounds of butterfat, thus not only surpassing its previous record but establishing another world's record for large Jersey herds.

Two cows in the herd produced over 900 pounds of fat, 18 produced 500 to 600 pounds, and 16 produced between 400 and 500 pounds. Of the entire group of cows in the herd for the full 12 months only six produced less than 400 pounds.

The best cow produced 645 pounds of butterfat in 362 days, at an average of 6 years and 9 months. Another cow, 11 years old, produced 627 pounds of fat in 324 days.

The best cow produced 645 pounds of butterfat in 362 days, at an average of 6 years and 9 months. Another cow, 11 years old, produced 627 pounds of fat in 324 days.

To Pay for Use of Lime and Phosphate

The use of lime and phosphate is included among the approved practices which will qualify farmers for soil-building payments in the Agricultural Conservation program.

For applying ground limestone in Kentucky, payment will be at the rate of $1.40 a ton, says a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. As much as two tons may be used. Payment will be made for lime applied between January 1 and October 1 of this year on land used for the production of soil-conserving crops or in connection with carrying out approved legume seeding or green-manure practices. Payment is made in preparation for seeding a legume or green-manure crop in connection with the annual grain crop.

Payment will be made for superphosphate if used in preparation for seeding a legume or green-manure crop in connection with the annual grain crop. Payment will depend upon the quantity and analysis of the superphosphate. For applying 16 percent superphosphate between January 1 and October 1 of this year on land used for the production of soil-conserving crops or in connection with approved legume seeding or green-manure practices, the rate will be equivalent to 50 cents per 100 pounds. The limit is 300 pounds to the acre.

It is pointed out that there is a limit to the amount of soil-building payment which a farmer may receive. This is calculated by multiplying by $1 the number of acres of soil-conserving crops on a farm this year, except that if this average is less than 10, the farmer will receive $10.

For example, on a farm with 50 acres in soil-conserving crops this year, the soil-building allowance would be $50. The farmer would earn part or all of the $60, depending upon the amount to which he would be entitled for using lime or superphosphate, or carrying out other soil-building practices.

Seven Million Trees Planted in Kentucky

Approximately seven million trees have been set in Kentucky. The Soil Conservation service announced this number in a circular, 899,611 set in the vicinity of Madisonville, 2,618,447 around Paducah, and 3,922,922 around Glasgow. Spring planting work in Kentucky will close when the remaining 1,269,557 trees are planted at Madisonville. Approximately a third of a million seed plots have been made, a quarter of a million at Madisonville.

Sell Lambs When They Are Ready

Selling lambs at the proper weight is stressed by Richard C. Miller, sheep specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The late spring tended to cause lambs to be put on the market before they reached proper weight and condition. Light lambs go into lower grades, which means that lower prices are a lower price. He also sells fewer pounds.

Then there is the mistake of holding lambs after they have reached proper weight. Two weeks later, like light lambs, suffer price reduction. The penalty is most severe in the case of heavy buck lambs.

Except for early in the season, the market calls for lambs weighing 75 to 85 pounds at the time of the yield carcass of 35 to 42 pounds, says Miller.

A drag line was bought by the Henderson County Farm Bureau for use in an extensive drainage program. With the aid of the CCC and the U. S. bureau of agricultural engineering, bonded ditches are being restored by taking out silt and mud bars.

A reading room will be established and kept open on Saturdays by the Nicholas county Utopia club members. The Utopia club which is similar to the 4-H club but for young people 18 or more years of age, also sponsors other educational projects.

C. R. Padon, a Livingston county farmer, is one of the leaders in forming a wool pool for marketing. Padon has a flock of 24 pure-bred Hampshire ewes with 40 lambs. Approximately 100 farmers have entered the pool.

While many peach trees were injured by extreme winter weather in Fleming county, they were not killed and can be headed back in good shape, reports County Agent Owen L. Keaster. Meetings are being held over the county to discuss pruning methods.

Meetings were held in several counties last month in connection with National Negro Health Week. The value of cleanliness and a varied diet was stressed to 4-H club members, and care of home surroundings came in for consideration with adult groups.

Farmers in Boyle and nearby counties are making a determined effort to secure electricity through rural electrification facilities. With 200 names already signed to a petition to obtain the service at least 300 signers are expected in Boyle county alone.

Baby: The Farmer's Steadiest Customer

Who is the farmer's steadiest customer? The baby.

Of course, in a sense the baby is the smallest customer, as far as his size is concerned, but it is steady one in that his needs usually come first, in any family.

At five months of age, the baby should have a whole grain cereal. He says the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He may have one a day just as well as any six-footer. At six months garden products become a matter of intimate concern to the young master, and he needs carrots, spinach and peas.

By the time the baby is 10 months old, the farmer's garden is thought to take care of his food requirements. He wants apples. But that is only a start. He also requires bacon, bread, potatoes and a little well-cooked meat. Along with this should always go a pint of milk, and preferably a quart of it. Butter is demanded at every meal, and leafy vegetables come into their own. Instead of apples, tomatoes may be served occasionally, or a cucumber called naturally, or the few "must" requirements for the baby, butter and milk, probably rank first. With plenty of sunshine from an open, healthy garden, the farmer can care of it. He gets these products which can be supplied on his farm.

They should be given when sweets should be given, at the end of a meal, possibly as a reward for allowing away the essential food. Between meals, they serve to spoil the appetite and do no real good. Sweets should always be used in moderation.

Spraying is essential to the control of raspberry diseases, according to a circular called "Raspberries" (Culture in Kentucky), published by the College of Agriculture at Lexington. Now that raspberries are being grown for diseases, home raspberry growing may be revived.

(Common lespedeza or Japan clover) has become a popular Kentucky volunteer crop in many parts of the state. It is generally as almost as good a pasture as the larger varieties. Tennessee 76 and Kobe are giant varieties of the common. Now that the weather may be said to have turned, it is best to sow it, unless they can be used another way, in which event they should be sown. Fertilizer becomes a unit for food much more quickly in warm weather than in winter.

Spends 20 years in bed, reads the newspaper headline. Since most people sleep a third of their time that is eight hours daily, they have spent 20 years in bed when they are 60 years old. Proper sleep is necessary for good health.

Water forms a part of all body tissue and is important as a regulating substance. Body tissues are made of water. It also aids in digestion and prevents constipation. Six to eight glasses of water are needed a day by an individual.

The cost of installing a pitcher pump in the kitchen will vary from $15 to $40, depending on the quality of the purchased and the amount of plumbing supplies needed. Persons interested in this type of water system should write the College of Agriculture circular No. 125, which has recently been revised.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

With hot weather about to come in good earnest, preparing for next winter may seem unduly forward. But the fact is that winter garden starting time is here, the time to start the garden that is to produce the vegetables for the winter store against the season during which the use of fresh vegetables must be foregone.

Taking the common crops first, surpluses of beans, tomatoes and corn should be arranged for. The two-weeks bean planting schedule should be continued, but the size of the plantings heretofore, should be doubled, during the months of June and July. As for the varieties to use, one may continue with Stringless Greenpod or Full Measure, or the stringless strain of Regatta, relatively new, may be chosen. It is by its odds the most prolific and, with its stringiness removed, is quite ideal for canning purposes. Plant too some "green shell" beans to help out the monotony. Dwarf, horticultural is the variety. These beans may be canned or dried to good advantage. A more usual name for this variety is "Crabtree," though it is sometimes called merely the "fall bean."

It is presumed that tomato plants are coming on, and that tomatoes to can, but if this has been overlooked, there is still time to make a sowing of an early tomato variety. The best varieties where will be feared, Break O'Day is the variety to use. Corn for planting, the best really sweet sort is Stowell's Evergreen, although any of the cross-strains of Golden Bantam recommend themselves, too, for they produce much more volume than did the original Golden Bantam with no sacrifice in quality. Of the strawberries, Hickory King stands alone. Beet should be sown, the variety Detroit Dark Red used, for it is capable of producing large beets with no sacrifice in their tenderness and quality.

Late cabbage should be started now. Two methods offer. One is to sow a seedling bed to produce transplants to be moved into the garden rows about July 1. In gardens to sow the seed now in two or three in the rows where the cabbage is to mature, and to thin to one seedling at a place. This latter is probably the safer method because it reduces the transplanting hazard in hot, dry times. Louisville Drumhead or Flat Dutch are the varieties. Where to put his "second garden" may trouble those who operate on small space, but it may not prove difficult. One will keep in mind that many of the early crops are gone, or will be gone, when the later garden is to be put in. For example, the early mustard, turnips, radishes, lettuce and English peas will have had their season, and the second garden may occupy the space they vacate. In the gaps in the early cabbage rows, tomato plants may be set, and so on.

It must not be overlooked that when an early crop is replaced with a late one, some complete fertilizer along the rows and chop it in, as this ground is being prepared.

The "second garden" will be without its insect troubles, and the pest campaign waged until now, must be continued, perhaps be intensified. Too, it goes without saying that it will behoove every gardener to keep on using Bordeaux mixture lavishly and often, for there is nothing quite so profitable to use as this veritable "garden cure-all."

"COLLEGE" OPERATED BY GERMAN SHOE INDUSTRY
A new and thoroughly equipped building now houses the Technical College of the German shoe industry at Pirmasens, according to a report to the Louisville District office of the Commerce Department. The new college contains an orthopedic and handicraft section where the pupils receive instruction in the production of footwear along anatomical lines. Other sections include all the latest auxiliary machinery required by the handworker.

Two Big Pictures To Be On MC Screen

"Essolube" MOTOR OIL

gives you more for your money

For the first week of the summer term the College brings to the screen two of the biggest pictures of the year. The summer session will start off with a show on Monday, June 8, featuring Walter Huston, June 12, the celebrated young star Freddie Bartholomew, in a picture which will grip you and thrill you entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Cecil Rhodes, The Empire Builder is the story centered around the life of the great English statesman and pioneer Cecil Rhodes. Walter Huston, one of the greatest dramatic impersonators of our time, the man who played the part of Abraham Lincoln, in the story of that name takes the part of Rhodes. If you want to get the thrill of seeing one of the greatest characters in English history, and one of the most dynamic characters in world history, you cannot afford to miss this picture.

Morehead College Grid Hopes Conceded As Better For This Season; 7 Tilts Listed

Most of Varsity Returns; Good Freshman Club Expected to Bolster Chances of Eagle Football Squad

If things pan out for the best, Morehead College has better average prospects for a football team in 1936 that can go out and win games, instead of following the footsteps of the last 3 editions of the Eagles who won but 3 games, those over minor foes.

Beaten by poor material, injuries and a none-too-good attitude from the players and supporters of the club, it is not to be wondered but the Teachers have registered so poorly in the last 3 years.

Things are some brighter now. There is every indication that most of the old varsity will return, graduation's toll was light—and there is an exceptionally strong group of freshmen players from which to bolster the team.

Morehead in 1936 will be no weaker. We can not hope for that. But, it is a pretty good assumption that their lot will carry more victories than it has.

With a team that can win a part of their games interest should return. There is no reason but the fans will again look forward to the Eagles games—provided the Eagles are conceded a chance to win.

Predicting a better team Coach Downing has compiled a more difficult schedule, which includes the strongest SIAA foes in Kentucky and 2 top-notch Tennessee opponents.

Morehead opens here on May 3 against Murray. This should prove one of the season's best attractions, and although the Eagles are conceded little chance to win, they should play the Murray team to a presentable game.

The Eagles continue at home for the next 2 Saturdays, with Georgetown here on October 10 and then here on October 17.

There is a possibility that Morehead may win in these matches. If their team comes along as expected they will be conceded at least an even chance.

The team goes to Transy on October 24 and Eastern November 2. They play Tennessee Poly here November 9 and Louisville at Jayne Stadium on the 16th.

Prospects at most local schools are good in sports for this year. Morehead high plans to do some rebuilding with Roy Holbrook installed as coach, while Breckinridge ably guided by Bobby Laughlin last year should have a fair club.

The Urugusyan motor vehicle market is approaching the level of pre-depression years.

CONFUSION REIGNS IN WOMEN'S HANDBAGS

Thirty-four women carried calling cards, 20 letters from friends. Among some of the more interesting items discovered were an electric light bulb and a quarter of a pound of lump sugar belonging to a woman who likes to feed horses, a flask, a cardcase, sweetener tickets, a toothbrush, and a shoobrush. Cosmetics were by far the most popular items, however. Each woman carried a variety of make-up. Presumably 90% of the purses were found in the purses.

Cosmetics and Slips of Paper Most Popular Items, But Electric Light Bulb and Lump of Sugar Also Found in Survey.

DESPITE all the conflict in the world today, conditions in Midway's handbag are still the most confusing. Cosmetics, money, business cards, keys, combs, and other widely unsorted objects are all in there with the purse, resulting in a scene of confusion. Handbags were found in every walk of life, from shopgirls to dowagers, revealed the following contents: handbags were found in 94 out of every 100 bags, with odd slips of paper being favored in 92. Twenty-five out of every 100 contained driver's licenses, 41 had hairpins, 30 had checkbooks, 45 had address books, and 45 had note-books. Fountain pens were found in 15, combs in 75, mirrors in 65, nailbrushes in 60, and cigarette cases in 20, paper matches in 65, and pins of one variety or another in 56.

The staff offering the courses during the summer session are all teachers and athletic coaches at the University during the regular academic school year.

U. of K. Collegians To Sail For Europe

When the S. S. Aquitania sails from New York for Europe August 5, "The Collegians," a local orchestra composed of five University of Kentucky bandmen will be on board the liner in capacity of tourist class orchestra. The ensemble includes Percy Lewis and Norman Lewis, Ashland; Edgar Boone, Lexington; Charles Countryman, Bowling Green; and John Toohy, Winchester. This is the second consecutive summer that orchestra representing the University have made this trip to Europe.

FISHERMEN FLOCK TO STREAMS ON JUNE 1st

Fair weather and clear water favored Kentucky fishermen Monday as the month's closed season came to an end. Throughout the state fishermen took advantage of it by flocking to the streams.

Herrington Lake, perhaps the state's best fishing spot, reported overflowed crocks. Elsewhere it was the same story.

In Rowan county the "Isa-Walton's" lined the streams and reported they were being "fair." Improved economic conditions in Uruguay were reflected in a notably increased demand during the first quarter of the current year for imported radios.

Morehead Defeated By Paris Merchants

With only three of their regular players in the lineup the Morehead Pirates lost a one-sided baseball game to the Paris Merchants here Sunday. The visitors hit and run the bases almost at will to score 14 times while Morehead was collecting a lone tally.

It was necessary for Morehead to use some Junior League Players as the end of the first semester at the college left the Pirates short-handed. Lawrence Drake, Wallace Fannin and Duck Carter were the only regulars that started.

Morehead had previously defeated Paris 9-2.

SHOOTING THE WORKS

Baseball suffered another let-down here Sunday afternoon. The Morehead club, once one of the best semi-pro teams in the state and 2 times winner of the Kentucky State League put a combination on the field that sent the few fans that had gathered away disgusted.

It was a disgusting performance of poor pitching, weak hitting and a galaxy of misplays on the Pirates part. Little better could have been expected.

The revival of the Kentucky State League and the subsequent placing of the management in hands that will insure a good club. Since the club lost money in previous years, it is doubtful if this is possible.

We hate to doom baseball to a place in the back row, but for Morehead it seems something of the past. It is to be lamented since there are locally some of the best semi-pro performers in Kentucky.

Ligon Kessler, a home boy, won the tennis championship of Morehead College last week. This is the first time that a Morehead youth has captured the title, although they have always had someone in the running up to the finals.

Kessler, whom we can remember as a green inexperienced player 2 years ago has come along fast. He has a good service and plays the game for all that is in it—which is the manner in which all champions perform.

Many cars laden with fishing tackle and generally hauling a boat on a trailer, passed through Morehead Sunday. Most of these people were on their way to Dix River Dam to welcome in fishing after the closed season in May.

Local streams are in fine condition for fishing, and sportsmen are taking advantage of it this week. A few nice catches were reported early in the week, with the bass hitting live minnows better than any other bait.

The Cincinnati Reds opened a stay at home Tuesday night, entertaining Philadelphia in the season's first night game. The Reds
