E. HOGGE, JAMES CLAY ARE BOTH NOMINATED

Dean Vaughan Elected Chairman; Laughlin Called 'Republican'

Rowan county's factional politics fight cropped out here Saturday afternoon.

When County Chairman E. Hogge asked for nominations for present chairman, D. B. Caudill, circuit judge of this district, said that he would not vote for Senator Alle W. Young, rose simultaneously, both claiming the floor.

As Laughlin took his seat, Charlie Hogge, Democratic precinct worker, declared that Laughlin was not entitled to serve because he was a Republican.

As soon as this was ended, Judge Caudill and Z. T. Young again rose almost simultaneously to demand the floor.

After a few minutes wrangling, Hogge ruled that Young had the floor.

After the meeting had again been quieted, Tilden Hogge gained the floor and asked that harmony prevail since it was not right for Democrats to fight Democrats.

Let's compromise and elect Wilburn as chairman.

Delegates from Elliott county to the state convention were J. T. Mobley, Mary Vansant, Ollie Keeton, Mrs. Harve Mobley, Dr. M. L. Lyon, Emmett Spencer, G. W. Howard, J. A. Keady, V. H. Rowan, J. B. Fannin and Logan Woodbridge.

A web of circumstantial evidence was woven around the father of the little girl, but the court is seeking an admission from Ruby that her father committed the heinous crime.

SAFEGUARDING OUR LIBERTY

The Lee-Clay Products Company at Clearfield is giving to their employees each week a leaflet designed to present industrial truths, to present pertinent information in a simple manner and entirely free from political taint and to promote a better understanding of the American system of private enterprise.

This employee information service is designed to counteract the dangerous propaganda constantly being disseminated among our people. M. S. Ewme, manager of the Lee-Clay Company states:

The first leaflet, carrying the heading, "How does the Constitution safeguard the individual," is an interesting and timely not only to industrial employees, but to the public in general that we quote in its entirety:

"The Constitution guarantees for all the individual liberties of the people of the United States, and while it stands the government is required to recognize the following rights of the individual:

- 1. The Writ of Habeas Corpus safeguards the individual against false arrest and imprisonment. 2. A man cannot be jailed for some offense which was committed before the law made his act something wrong to do. 3. Trial by jury for every individual. 4. Limits upon what can be called Treason. This protects the individual from being shot at or disagreeing with those in power. 5. Religious freedom. 6. Freedom of speech. 7. Freedom of the press. 8. Freedom of Assembly. 9. The right to petition the government to right wrongs. 10. The right of a person to the security of his own house, which can only be searched on a court warrant.

- 11. The right to an indictment so that if a man is arrested, he can know the nature of the crime of which he is accused. 12. A man cannot be arrested twice for the same offense if he was once declared not guilty. 13. An individual cannot be forced to testify against himself. That protects him from torture, which is still, liberty or property.

- 14. An individual cannot be "deprived of life, liberty or property" without due process of law. 15. No one's property can be seized without paying him for it. 16. A person is entitled to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury in the state or district where the crime has been committed. 17. Excessive bail is forbidden. 18. The right of citizenship or of equal protection of the law cannot be abridged. No political group can pass a law removing the right of citizenship of any class or group. 19. No one can be enslaved.

If you will look about the world today, where almost everywhere there is political confusion leading to dictatorships, you will realize how important these rights are to you. Now, these rights cannot be taken from you as long as the Constitution stands. These rights cannot be changed or abridged except by a slow and difficult process. No one wants to be enslaved by the loss of these rights.

JUSTICE MUST BE DONE

The criminal or criminals who attacked little 10-year old Ruby Wilburn, deserves no mercy. There is a crime so low in the morals of society that our law-making bodies have decreed that if a jury returns a verdict of death, that they shall be hanged in the courthouse yard so that all may see. Full details in the case are lacking. However, there is no question but that the little girl was criminally attacked. It is unfortunate, but nevertheless true, that she will carry with her to the grave, a remembrance and a blight for which her attackers should be punished.

The statement of the County Judge that it is the most horrible crime committed in Rowan County within his knowledge, is, in itself, sufficient to show just what this little girl underwent.

in the place of the mother and father of this girl. What would your feelings be if a similar attack was made on your daughter?

WASTE AND NEGLIGENCE SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED

In an isolated part of the county stands a steam shovel, the property of Rowan County. Every wheel, bolt and part that can be removed has been taken off.

A judgment has been rendered against Rowan County for almost twelve thousand dollars—which is in favor of the manufacturers of the steam shovel. It will cost an additional three thousand to put the shovel back in running condition.

The records of the Fiscal Court show that this steam shovel has been in the spot where it now rests for several years. It also shows that very little use has ever been obtained from the shovel. This is a perfect example of waste and negligence. Someone should be taken to task, if possible. An investigation should be conducted and the blame placed on the guilty party.

STIMULATE THE TRADE-AT-HOME POLICY

In an effort to stimulate the same principles of "trade-at-home" merchants of Morehead will give away fifty dollars in cash prizes to their patrons.

There is no charge made to the customers in order to be eligible for the prizes. For every 25 cents that is traded in 26 Morehead business firms, a ticket will be given.

This is a worthy enterprise on the part of our business men and civic-minded individuals. Naturally, if it goes through, as expected, it will mean much to them, but, at the same time, it will mean equally as much for Morehead. Rural people should come to Morehead Saturday to help share in the prizes.

Many places are offering special bargains through Saturday. Tickets given up to 2:30 Saturday afternoon will be eligible for a prize in that day's drawing. Tickets given after 2:30 will be good for the following Saturday.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

The Bonus Marchers' Debt

Members of the bonus armies who annually trekked to Washington from the summer of 1932 to the summer of 1934 now will have to reckon with the expenses of their sojourn in the National Capital and their trips back home. A generous Government cared for them, fed them and gave them transportation when they left, but it also took what in effect were I. O. U.'s. These were in the form of liens on their bonuses. The visitors on leaving signed warrants in which their expenses were charged against their certificates. These expenses will be deducted from the payments which will be made a week from next Monday.

The amounts are small, ranging from $3 to $50, but news of the take-outs for debts owed the Government is not well received. There will be deductions in some 4,000 cases by the New York regional office of the Veteran's Administration and bonus marchers suddenly realize that their "free food" and "free rides" will have to be paid for out of their bonuses.

Pre-payment of the bonus has given the veterans the impression that they can have their cake and eat it too. In the case of the bonus marchers it is different. Debts to the Government must be paid just as income taxes must be paid. The little slips signed by the bonus marchers were in effect an adjusted compensation certificate being collateral to them. The "free food," "free shelter," "free rides" were not charity.—(Louisville Courier-Journal)

THE DETOURING SEASON!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Independent.

The attached is a true statement of one school in Rowan county 65 years ago, when Rowan was less than 20 years old. That district is now listed as Sand Gap, bordering on the Elliott county line.

I was trained near that school house and lived there until 1932, 17 years old. There are very few now living that attended this school, and I feel the people of our community would be interested in this bit of history as they will soon be no one living that can give it.

E. S. MONTGOMERY, Germantown, Ky.

Mr. Montgomery's story is as follows:

"I want to show the people of today the difference in the chances for schooling and mine, 65 years ago—1871—when I was 12 years old.

"A large new log schoolhouse in the woods and for the first term it had neither fire place nor floor. We built a fire on the ground in the middle of the room, set the benches in a circle around it and the smoke went through the board roof. Sometimes that did not seem to drive good, and the smoke would get in our eyes and we could hardly see our lessons and our nose would drip until it was hard to keep our books dry. Our teacher was a good old Methodist preacher—Andy Porter—but he knew no more in figures than I did. We would both stall on a problem in the third part of Ray's arithmetic. Father said, 'Don't worry about the way through it, and he would often take my book home with him at night to work out problems that we had both failed on.

"Those days we seldom had shoes on our feet and our road was mostly through woods. At the first frosts in the fall we were barefooted and when we were at a clearing in the woods we would get on a stump so the sun would warm our feet.

"One morning as I was going to school very late I fell in with the teacher where our roads met and he was puffing and blowing and said, 'I'm very late this morning but it looks like I can never get to school in time. I have to walk cliffs and the chestnuts to fall out. We were both on the hand mill for a large family.

"Some of our patrons began to grumble about the old man being so late every day so they asked my father about it (he being a trustee). Father said, 'Does he generally come in the forepart of the day?' They said, 'Yes,' and father said, 'That's all right. The difference is our rules and the way we kept them; their rules were written out by the trustees and were as following: The last one was the one that gave us boys the most trouble.

"One day as we were playing in the woods all found a small chestnut tree that was just bent with chestnut-burs that were opened ready for the chestnuts to fall out. We were both and knocked out many, but oh, how we did want to climb that tree and shake it. But we were afraid of those rules so interested in a game of marbles (all the game we had) that we would often play over time at noon, he got little for teaching and more interested. So you can see how we were handicapped from all sides in our schooling. I love to travel over the same country and see the change now in the country and its people. Now all of them have good schoolhouses and good teachers and plenty of books. I am speaking of Rowan county. My school is now listed as Sand Gap district. Four miles from there, at Elliottville, they have a high school. They don't have to walk through the front barefooted, but have a school bus

FORD V-8 ECONOMY MEANS HIGH "Dollar Mileage" (MORE MILES PER DOLLAR)

NO MATTER how you classify your expenditures for car up-keep—it's your total expenditure that counts. How much "dollar mileage" is your car giving you? Dollars do go farther in the Ford V-8. Modern improved carburetion gives you unusual gasoline mileage with brilliant V-8 performance. Most owners of today's Ford change oil only every 2000 miles and add none between changes.

And after the first few thousand miles you begin to understand what Ford V-8 "dollar mileage" really means. It gives you more miles per dollar because it gives you all-round economy—low first cost, low up-keep cost, low depreciation and long life—as well as low gasoline and oil consumption. All these are big items if you aim to buy the most economical car.

strong. They may be planted between June 15 and July 15. Still another sort that has come to the fore in the past few years is the so-called French variety. Although a trifle more difficult to store than Peachblow, their quality in every way is so much better to make this an excellent potato for all parts of Kentucky. Their planting time ranges from June 15 to July 1, and, in extreme southern counties, to July 15. Another variety suitable for planting now is Jersey Red, or more correctly, Dakota Red. Although this red skin operates somewhat against its selling, it is unexcelled as a potato for the winter home supply. "Reds" should be planted between June 15 and July 10. There remains one other sort of late potato, the "second-crop" Cobblers, planted with seed that has been kept on cold storage. Usually the final cost of the seed makes a late crop of Cobblers a table stock a hazardous proposition, but growers of spring potato crops may grow a crop of "second-crop" Cobblers for their seed. They may be planted from July 15 to August 31. Space is lacking here to go into complete detail, as to the culture of late potatoes, but Kentucky Extension circular 202 adequately covers the ground. Any person may procure a copy of this circular from the College of Agriculture, at Lexington. Sufficient to say, now, is that late-potato ground should be deeply plowed and the soil firmed, so that moisture is held against the dry season. In fact, those growers who have had their land broken for six weeks or two months, and have harrowed and dragged it to keep the weeds down, and the surface broken, are fortunate for they have stored enough moisture to make the crop. The growers who have not so prepared their land should lose no time, for the longer before planting the land is prepared, the better.

Laymen Will Take Pulpit At Church

Unique Services Planned By Methodists On Sunday June 14

By REV. H. L. MOORE
There will be a unique service at the Methodist church Sunday morning, June 14. The preacher expects to be in the pew while the layman will be in the pulpit. An excellent program has been planned with talks by Mr. C. P. Caudill, Dr. J. D. Falls, and Mr. Dudley Caudill. Special music has been arranged. Come and see how the layman of the church would conduct a service and hear what they have to say about the Kingdom of God and its purpose. Bring the entire family and let us worship together.

No Evening Service
During the next three months there will be no evening service at the Methodist church. We want every Methodist and friend of our church to unite with us and make the morning service the high service of the day. Put your right

Some boast that they dwell in the city of God when they only live in the suburbs. The church in this community is striving to serve, but unless man gives it a rightful place in his life it will fall short of its mission. Let us manifest our loyalty by attending some church in the city and then we can rightfully make our boast in the Lord.

HOLC Lending To Cease On June 12

Over One-Million Loans Made During Three Years of Activity

In accordance with provisions of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, refunding of distress mortgages by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation ends at midnight June 12, three years from the date the Act was signed. No more loans will be made by the Corporation. Up to May 28, the Corporation had closed 1,016,142 loans through out the country and its territories to a total of $3,011,832,559. Practically every eligible application for relief received has been completed as a loan. The original past-due mortgages of the borrowers were taken up by the Corporation through exchange of its bonds with the mortgage holders.

To some 290,000 of the borrowers from the Corporation, the approval of June 12 means that they will be required to make monthly repayments of principal and interest on their loans instead of interest only. Their mortgages were made in the early months of the Corporation's work, before Congress passed that portion of the Act which allowed borrowers an optional moratorium on principal payments until June 13, 1936. These borrowers will have a period of 12 years in which to pay off their loans and own their properties free of debt.

Loans made to the remaining 728,000 borrowers extend over a 15-year term and are repayable at the rate of $7.91 monthly per thousand dollars of loan, including principal and interest at 3 per cent. This amounts to about $24 per month on the average loan, which was $3,023. The long terms and the low rate of interest make these loans the most liberal and convenient ever granted to American home owners up to the time the Corporation began its activity.

ed harmoniously, with Vaughan appointing half of the members on the resolutions committee from both factions.

Resolutions were adopted instructing the delegation of 14 to vote for the nomination of President Roosevelt, for Governor Chandler as temporary chairman and Senator Barkley permanent chairman of the state convention. The administration of Governor Chandler was lauded, and the nomination and election of Fred M. Vinson for Congress was urged. Rowan's delegation was instructed to vote as a unit.

Joe Sloan had told him that the girl was no more than a hundred yards ahead of him; (3) Failure of the father to summon medical aid for his daughter although her condition was critical and she was unconscious for a long time after being found by neighbors; (4) Failure of Wilburn to summons officers or report the case to authorities, and (5) testimony of two witnesses which was taken before the court of inquiry, who Jennings said, established the fact that Wilburn was home when the girl was ravished. Judge Jennings said he would not reveal the names of these witnesses, because they were in fear of their lives.

Confiscate Whiskey
Sheriff Mort May and Deputy Jess Caudill brought in 18 gallons of whiskey Monday evening when they said had been found in the attic of Wilburn's home. During Junior's testimony he said there was a barrel of whiskey in the attic. Mrs. Wilburn was asked, when she was on the stand, if there was any whiskey in the house and she said there wasn't.

Harley Puckett, 23, who was identified by Ruby Sunday as being one of the men that attacked her, is being held in the Rowan jail as a material witness. Judge Jennings said that Puckett had established an almost impeccable alibi, but that he would be held pending further investigation.

Despite the fact that the little girl denies it was her father that attacked her, all the evidence points to him, and we shall continue the investigation until every angle is ironed out," Judge Jennings stated.

The little girl fainted as she was being led from the courthouse Monday afternoon and medical aid was summoned.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

U. S. Offers Aid In Forest-Tree Or Terrace Practices

The planting of forest trees and construction of terraces, if carried out to meet specified requirements, are included in the list of practices which will qualify cooperating Kentucky farmers for soil-building payments under the Agricultural Conservation program.

For planting forest trees in 1936 on crop land or non-crop pasture land, between January 1, 1936, and October 31, 1936, the rate of payment is $3 per acre.

For terracing cropland between January 1, 1936, and October 31, 1936, with properly constructed terraces sufficient to give adequate protection against erosion, the payment is 40 cents per 100 feet of such terrace up to a total payment per acre not to exceed $2.

Although the above specified rates have been approved for soil-building practices, there is a soil-building allowance, or top limit for the soil-building payment. This top limit is calculated for any farm by multiplying by $1 the number of acres of soil-conserving crops on the farm in 1936, except that if this average is less than 10 acres the soil-building allowance is $10. For example, on a farm with 60 acres in soil-conserving crops in 1936, the soil-building allowance would be $60. The farmer would earn part or all of the $60, depending upon the amount to which he would be entitled for terracing and planting forest trees, or carrying out other approved soil-building practices on his farm in 1936.

Explains Lack of Adjustment Payment for Burley Tobacco

Last year's burley tobacco crop sold more than 2 cents a pound above its fair exchange or parity value, which is the reason the AAA made no adjustment payment on the 1935 crop this spring, according to a letter from W. G. Finn, assistant director of the agricultural conservation program for the East-Central region. Copies of the letter have been sent from the College of Agriculture to county agents and county committees.

"The determination of adjustment payments is not an arbitrary decision," says Mr. Finn, "but has been made in accordance with provisions of the burley contract and the notice of the continuation of the contract for 1935. The contract provides that the rates of the adjustment payments shall be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture and shall be such as will tend to give producers a fair exchange value for that portion of their 1935 production which is equal to domestic consumption.

Figures to date indicate that the prices paid by farmers for commodities bought by them during the current year 1935-36 are only 76.87 per cent as high as they were on the average during the base period, specified in the Act, 1919-1928. In other words, to buy the same amount of goods with the proceeds of the sale of 100 pounds of burley tobacco of the 1935 crop, tobacco prices would have to be 76.87 grades in chickens and turkeys. Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington, and E. A. Baute, representing the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association, attended.

The improvement plan will have considerable effect on Kentucky, according to Dr. Martin, as there are 25 hatcheries in the approved and certified grades in the state, with a total capacity of 1,500,000 eggs. There also are several Record of Performance breeders.

The conference went to include turkeys in the poultry improvement program, and Dr. Martin was made chairman of a national committee which will have to do with rules and regulations for approved and certified grades of turkeys. Other states represented on this committee include Oregon, Utah, North Dakota, Texas, Wisconsin, Maryland, Connecticut and Kansas.

The 1935 census shows that turkeys are being raised on 25,499 Kentucky farms. The big bird is thought to add approximately $1,000,000 annually to the income of Kentucky farmers.

per cent as high as in the base period.

"The average price of burley tobacco during the 10-year base period was 22.3 cents a pound, and 76.87 per cent of 22.3 cents equals 17.1 cents. Therefore, the fair exchange value as defined in the Act for the 1935 crop of burley tobacco is 17.1 cents a pound. The average net sale price of the 1935 crop as computed from the official record of sales is 19.2 cents a pound, which is 2.1 cents a pound higher than the fair exchange value.

Careful consideration has been given to the possibility of making an adjustment payment in regard to burley tobacco in 1935, but we have been informed that, according to the terms of the contract, and the provisions of the supplemental appropriation act, fiscal year 1936, it is legally impossible to make any such payment.

Gives Treatment for Chick Disease

If chicks stand around half asleep and appear in a generally run-down condition, with sharp, thin breast bones and drooping wings, the trouble is usually contagious, says J. E. Humphrey of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Sometimes blood is found in the droppings.

The first thing to do, says Mr. Humphrey, is to remove all hopelessly birds from the flock. Dry clean the brooder house at the same time every morning. Give liquid milk, but no water, to drink at all times for a week to 10 days, along with grain. If liquid milk is not to be had, add 40 pounds of dried buttermilk or skim milk to 60 pounds of mash and feed for a week or 10 days. Give epsom salts after the milk treatment at the rate of a tablespoonful to a gallon of water to chicks up to four weeks of age. After this age give according to maturity. A chicken is considered mature when 24 weeks old, at which time a pound of salts if given per 100 birds.

Some people have used blackstrap or sorghum molasses instead of the milk treatment, with good results. A pint of molasses is used in each gallon of water for three consecutive days. One day is then missed and the treatment used again for three more consecutive days.

Four County Utopia Clubs Attend Camp

The first of three Utopia club camps in Kentucky for this year was held recently at Clear Creek Springs near Pineville. Boys and girls from Clay, Bell, Harlan and Pike counties attended. Handicraft, recreations and discussions comprised the program. Carl W. Jones, field agent for the college, was in charge, assisted by county agents and home demonstration agents and Jesse Brooks and T. R. Bryant of the college. Camps will be held at Brown Meadow Lake, Madison county, in July, and at Camp Daniel Boone in Jessamine county in August.

Prof. J. R. Smyth, head of the poultry department at the University of Maine, and Dr. A. J. Durant, head of the department of veterinary science at the University of Missouri, are among the speakers on the programs of the 12th annual poultry short course to be held at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture June 22-26.

The course, which usually attracts 100 or more farmers and poultry men and women, gives an opportunity to learn about the essential principles in the proper care of poultry, and is offered primarily for the practical man who is unable to attend the regular college courses. Scientific facts are stated in simple terms, and principles taught that are applicable to both small farm flocks and large commercial hatcheries. Many hatchery operators as well as poultry raisers attend.

IN FRANCISCO
Blacksie Norton, owner of the Paradise Music Hall, San Francisco finds his houncer at a table with a pretty girl who had been knocked over by a drunk that had just been thrown out, and learns that she had been burned out in the Bristol fire. When she said there was a singer looking for work; Blacksie asked her to sing, and then asked what she would say to $75 a week. Her answer was to faint.

"ORPHAN CHILD OF A COUNTRY PARSON"
Chapter Two
Jow Lee, Blacksie's Chinese servant, was removing dishes and remnants of food from a table in

"No, but..."
At her hesitation, he exclaimed: "Well, get it out. I don't sing very well if I don't eat and... I haven't any money." "Well, now, isn't that tough?" His tone was insistent and suspicious. He patted her shoulder familiarly. "What's your name, babe?"
"Mary Blake."
"That's catchy. You picked a good one! Just make yourself at home, honey. I'll be right with you." He went into the bedroom adjoining the parson's study. He called: "Where'd you hail from?"
"Benzen, Utah. That's from Salt Lake."
"Benzen here long?"
"No. Only a few weeks."
"Where've you been working?"
"In the Benzen public library."
"Singing?" His short laugh put her on the defensive.
"Oh, no. I sang in church Sundays—my father's old church, and—"
"So, you sang in a church choir? And your father's a preacher?"
His mocking voice betrayed his thoughts—she believed she was by no means a singer.
She burst out resentfully. "He was. He died four years ago." "I got you. The orphan child of a parson."
She controlled her exasperation at his disbelief in her story, but desperately wanted the job he had promised her. "After all, Mr. Norton, there are such men as country parsons and sometimes they do have daughters."
"Well, now that sort of puts me in my place, doesn't it?" And who brought you to Frisco?"
"My mother helped me get here."
"I see." He came out of the bedroom in a dressing gown. Mary jumped up, a new wave of fright sweeping over her. "I suppose your poor old mother needs an operation."
"You don't believe me, do you?" she asked backing away in a panic. "Why, sure I believe you. You're all right Mary." He slid his arm about her.
Needling work, she risked a last appeal. "You're stronger than I am. So is a gorilla."
He gave her a long look, then removed his arm. She grabbed her valise and moved towards the door, but Blacksie blocked her way.
"Wait a minute. What do you take me for? I'm Blacksie Norton, you know. Blacksie Norton! Why, I write that spiel you just pulled—parson father, sacrificing mother—years ago! But I guess you did get burned out in that old trap on Dupont street." Again, Mary started for the door; again he intercepted his own body between her and escape. "Say, what kind of a game are you working? The last poor little choir girl I met was up in Alaska. She had a diamond in her tooth."
"I'm not working any game. Will you let me out, please?"
"Just a minute. Where are you going?"
"I don't know."
Her eyes did not quail at the longstomach—all big shoes, dressed in their best self-conscious and full of importance. As they greeted him effusively, Blacksie sank back on the floor. A middle-aged, rugged, sweaty man acted as spokesman for the group.
"Blacksie, we've looked you up to complain about the Dupont Street fire."
"Why, they pulled that off like old time circus performers!"
Another visitor cut in: "Mr. Norton, you ain't got no kidding. But look at me! I got Fritz and Hans on."
"Well, boys," interrupted Blacksie, "put me down for a hundred dollars."
"That ain't what we came for, Blacksie," said the spokesman. "We want you to let us run you for Alderman! We want to make 'em tear these traps down and put up brick buildings. And you're the only man on the Coast with the authority to do it."
"Look here, Alaska, you and the boys all know Jack Burley's the biggest landlord on the Coast. I've talked to him and he's made out of granite."
"We've never put up a fight before. We've never had a real leader."
"I think it's a great idea," said Blacksie's sparring partner, who had just returned, dressed in his priestly robes.
"That's right, Father Mullin. We'll back him. We'll put up the dough."
"You like a fight, Blacksie," said Father Mullin. "Go on!"
"Can you see what that big, cheery Nob Hill swell's gonna do when he hears he's got Blacksie to deal with?" asked one of the visitors.
"Yeah, that's what I'm thinking of," said Blacksie. "I think you fellows have all blown your tops. But come over to the joint and we'll have a drink and talk it over."
Mary Blake was singing "San Francisco" when Blacksie and his friends entered the Paradise—singing it for its music and rhythm, not as the Barbary Coast was accustomed to hearing it sung. "Blacksie," said Alaska, "ain't she singin' a little slow? How you haven't gone and signed her up."
"Why? So you can grab her off for your joints?" Alaska's laugh had a tone of glee in it. Blacksie cut in roughly on Mary's singing:

length she lay down upon the uncomfortable sofa. After an hour of vainly courting sleep, she stretched out on the floor, resting her head on an embroidered cushion inscribed, "Welcome to San Francisco."
Blacksie was boxing in the gymnasium with a tall handsome young man of about his own age the following morning, when his singer, Mat, came up to the ring to speak. "Say, Boss, the Professor's over at the joint waiting to rehearse that new girl and she's never showed up."
"That so?" asked Blacksie casually.
"Guess we can forget her, can't we?"
"Yeah. Forget her."
"Am I relieved?" cried Mat, and began a cheery whistle.
"No good, eh?" asked Blacksie's sparring partner.
"I'll say she's good," laughed Blacksie sarcastically. "Why, her father was a preacher."
"A preacher? Gee, that's an old one," guffawed Mat.
"Well, maybe her father was a preacher," said Blacksie's partner. "I'm still believe in Sanky Claus, Mat."
"The trouble with you is you don't believe in anything."
"That's where I'm smart, Tim."
"Smart?" The man gave Blacksie a blow which knocked the breath out of him and sent him to the floor. Blacksie remained there, looking up with a grin.
"I'm sacker! If I ever learn anything! For twenty years you've mauled me about, you big mug, and now you're chumpin' out on me. I always come back for more! I'm not going to move from this spot

"Wait a minute! What do you think I'm running—a funeral parlour?"
At Mary's look of distress, the Professor, playing the accompaniment, went to her defense. "But, Blacksie, with a voice like hers it ain't so easy to—"
"Get up," interrupted Blacksie, sat down at the piano and played the piece to hot rhythm. "Put something into it! Heat it up! Give it that!"
"I can't sing like that, Mr. Norton," said Mary.
"Well, that's the way you're going to sing—or you don't sing for me."

Be Dime Circus Is Here For One Week

Many New Concessions, Rides Added To Popular Attraction

T. G. McDaniel, purchasing agent for the F. H. Bee Shows, Inc., is here this week billing the town and making final arrangements for the Bee Dime Circus to fulfill its engagement of six days and nights at the Bradley show grounds in Morehead during the weeks 8th to 13th, inclusive. The Bee shows have been coming to Morehead for years and are well known to the people of this vicinity for their cleanliness, morality of all performances as well as of the personnel.
This year Mr. Bee has augmented ed the system and attractions in to Dime Circus, which within itself is a feature to be proud of, and is not an experiment with this seasoned show man.

Everyone attending the shows this season will get big money's worth and be highly entertained. The slogan of the show, "You Won't Get Stung," is quite popular with young and old, and one can attend these shows without the constant fear of gnats and danger of petty nuisances, such as gambling machines and immoral attractions.
There is always a variety of high class riding devices, including the new Upside-Down, the Sky Ride, Ferris Wheel, Tilt-a-Whirl Chairplanes, and small automobiles and airplanes for the children. Legitimate concessions a plenty, including eats and drinks galore. Plenty of bright lights, insuring a beautiful white mid-way.

Local merchants are giving Free Ride tickets and nothing but inclement weather can prevent the people of this section from spending six enjoyable evenings at the Bee Dime Circus at the Bradley show grounds in Morehead next week.

Protection Beauty Economy

The three things to expect from paint.
Protection—Kurfees 80% Lead and 20% Zinc—100% Pure Paint protects the surface with a film that is weather-proof, hides the surface and keeps out dampness as on half lead or adulterated paint can do.
Beauty—Kurfees 80 and 20 is made in numerous colors and tints and a glance at the color card will convince you of the beautiful color combinations possible.
Economy—There is no other paint like 80 and 20. It is the purest, best and finest house paint that money can buy. Cheap paints contain clay, chalk, adulterated oils and water. Cheap paints are cheap only in price per can.

until you're out of the building."
"All right, kid. See you later."
"I got looked after the boss, an admiring grin on his face. "Father Mullin sure packs a wallop!"
"Has he gone?" Blacksie peered around cautiously, then he stepped up when a delegation of fellow proprietors of amusement places in the Barbary Coast filed into the gymnasium.
"Blacksie, we've looked you up to complain about the Dupont Street fire."
"Why, they pulled that off like old time circus performers!"
Another visitor cut in: "Mr. Norton, you ain't got no kidding. But look at me! I got Fritz and Hans on."
"Well, boys," interrupted Blacksie, "put me down for a hundred dollars."
"That ain't what we came for, Blacksie," said the spokesman. "We want you to let us run you for Alderman! We want to make 'em tear these traps down and put up brick buildings. And you're the only man on the Coast with the authority to do it."
"Look here, Alaska, you and the boys all know Jack Burley's the biggest landlord on the Coast. I've talked to him and he's made out of granite."
"We've never put up a fight before. We've never had a real leader."
"I think it's a great idea," said Blacksie's sparring partner, who had just returned, dressed in his priestly robes.
"That's right, Father Mullin. We'll back him. We'll put up the dough."
"You like a fight, Blacksie," said Father Mullin. "Go on!"
"Can you see what that big, cheery Nob Hill swell's gonna do when he hears he's got Blacksie to deal with?" asked one of the visitors.
"Yeah, that's what I'm thinking of," said Blacksie. "I think you fellows have all blown your tops. But come over to the joint and we'll have a drink and talk it over."
Mary Blake was singing "San Francisco" when Blacksie and his friends entered the Paradise—singing it for its music and rhythm, not as the Barbary Coast was accustomed to hearing it sung. "Blacksie," said Alaska, "ain't she singin' a little slow? How you haven't gone and signed her up."
"Why? So you can grab her off for your joints?" Alaska's laugh had a tone of glee in it. Blacksie cut in roughly on Mary's singing:

ROMANCE

The moon,
A Kiss,
The man,
And I,
These were the elements all
Which changed our earth to "Paradise."
We heard love's ardent call
The sun,
A sigh,
The man,
And I,
Have forgotten our sacred vow,
We're wishing yet we'd never met!

For romance has vanished now

Hundreds Attend

Plans Being
The Hamm homecoming at Wallingford, May 31, was perhaps the most delightful of all of these annual gatherings. Loyal friends from three states were present to show their interest and appreciation.

While the exact number present is not known, it was well up in the hundreds and while there might, at some future time, be a larger attendance; it is safe to say there never will be a happier people meeting.

Erail Word of Morehead College was chairman and his personality helped cement the ties of friendship and goodwill and made everyone present feel they were really welcome.

Quartettes from Wallingford, Muses Mills and Waltz were present with special numbers; while the Hamm Trio and the Hamilton sisters delighted the audience with well chosen selections.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon session was the reading by Mrs. Kahlo of a beautiful poem entitled, "My Old K in tucky Home." It was composed by Mrs. Nannie Hamm Carter of Indianapolis, Neb., a former resident of Rowan county.

The address of Rev. Kahlo of Wallingford showed careful preparation and gave the listeners food for sober and serious thought.

The audience was surprised when one was introduced who has endeavored herself to the people of this section, Mrs. Ethel Ellingboe of Morehead. Her splendid address was interspersed with compliments, poetry, wit, humor, sublimity of thought and beauty of expression.

Late in the afternoon the Peerless Quartet of Flemingsburg arrived, and by request, sang three special numbers to the delight of the entire audience. The demonstration of pleasure that followed was unusual.

After deciding to meet again, the fourth Sunday in June, 1937, the benediction was pronounced and the orderly happy crowd returned home with the grand old song echoing in their hearts:

"Precious memories how they linger,
How they ever flood my soul,
In the darkness of the midnight,
Precious, sacred scenes unfold."
