THE GRAND JURY DOES A GOOD JOB

In the Rowan county grand jury, which is now in session, amply demonstrated that it is a working group—in fact the present grand jury has examined more witnesses and completed more actual work than any similar body we can think of.

After court is adjourned every day, the grand jury has been sitting in a 10-hour or better day. They worked on Saturday.

But the most commendable feature of their work has been the fact that they have neither spared nor abused their power. They have returned true bills in large numbers—but those indictments have not been brought into open court without due deliberation by the jurors. This was proved by the large amount of evidence in the Wilburn case. The grand jury did not return this indictment or many others without first finding out much of the testimony in them.

It is safe to assume that the final report of the grand jury will be conservative, to the point and rendered with the purpose of helping existing conditions in Rowan county.

YOUR PERSONAL LIBERTY

How much personal liberty has an individual of this United States of America? What are your standards of living?

These questions are answered in the third of a series of articles issued by the Lee Clay Products Company to their employees to better formulate an understanding between labor and capital.

The bulletin headed, "Measure Our Own Standards of Living with Three Yardsicks," reads, in its entirety:

"On all sides, one hears references to standards of living. Some speak of high standards, and some speak of low standards.

"What is really meant is the kind of life that each individual lives. Of course, it is impossible to think about this by taking as an example the richest or the poorest man in a country. We must strike some average, and we must have a yardstick to measure that average.

"Now, when I speak of yardsticks, we want one that will apply to all countries, to the United States, France, Germany, China, Japan, Ethiopia—anywhere. We want to be able to compare standards of living in any all countries, and to do so we take three yardsticks.

"1. The Yardstick of the Use of Consumption Goods.

"This yardstick finds out how much food, how much meat, how much vegetables, how much sugar, the average man in each country consumes. It measures how much clothes he buys each year. How much furniture? How much cosmetics and other luxuries? Whether he owns a car and how good it is. Does he have an electrical refrigerator or an ice-box or nothing at all. This yardstick measures things and how much of these things the average man in each country has each year.

"When you use this yardstick, the United States stands at the top of the list. It affords the average man the highest standard of living known to the human race.

"2. The Second Yardstick Is That of Leisure. "A man has 168 hours a week to spend. How much of that time must he use to earn the type of living that he gets by yardstick No. 1.

"You can measure that for most countries, although for some there are no figures. Anyhow, in the United States, men at work average around 48 hours a week. So they have 120 hours for sleep and rest and leisure each week.

"The United States is among the most advanced countries according to yardstick No. 2.

"3. Then we turn to the third yardstick—How Much Personal Liberty Does the Individual Retain to get the Advantages of Yardsticks 1 and 2.

"Here the United States stands at the very top, for the Constitution and the Supreme Court protect the individual against dictatorship of any kind. He gives up no personal liberty, no human right to be sacrificed by yardstick No. 1 and 2.

"The next time you hear anyone talk about standards of living and he tells you how much higher they are in some other country, make him prove it by these yardsticks."

A feller says it's all right to pay as we go in the depression. "Nother feller wanted to know if we're goin' anywhere."

THE FARMER—OUR HARD- LUCK CITIZEN

The farmer has the hardest luck of perhaps any individual on earth. He fertilizes and plows his ground, sows his seed and tends the soil. But there may come a flood and wash all his labors away, the insects and bugs may destroy it, it may be so wet he is unable to harvest it, and there may be a drought and ruin it.

This year we have such a drought. If there is any yield at all it will be only part of normal. One cannot help but sympathize with the farmer. If he does not hit a bumper crop year the prices are so low his products do not bring much. When prices are high he generally has nothing to sell.

The coming winter will not grow enough to subsist on. They will have little or nothing for market. Their credit has already been stretched to the limit. What is he going to do? He can't borrow money and he has no food. The money will have to be coming from somewhere. Whether a benevolent government will loan him is doubtful. The relief set-up has gained so much criticism and sustained so many adventures that it seems eventually it must give out.

LOWER TRANSPORTATION RATES HELP WORKING INDIVIDUAL

The decreased transportation cost is helping many a working individual on his vacation this year. Hundreds of Americans who could not afford to travel in the past, will be able to make that much-desired trip this year.

Transportation charges, both by bus and train were never lower in this part of the country. A recent reduction of more than 40 per cent in rail passenger fares brought a drop also in bus charges. The result may be seen every day. Buses traveling through Morehead are loaded heavier, while trains are actually carrying passengers in numbers that were never lower in this part of the country.

The George Washington, crack train of the Chesapeake and Ohio lines, has been running so heavy that it has become necessary in the past few days to carry two locomotives.

An official hangman in Europe tried to hang himself. Probably figured it was time to have one on the loose.

A lot of people wouldn't believe their own eyes even if they could see themselves as others see them.

One Year Ago This Week

Eight were sentenced by Circuit Judge D. B. Caudill to the state reformatory following the June circuit court. The sentences were from one to three years.

Vilhjalmar Stefanson, noted arctic explorer, appeared in a lecture-demonstration at the Morehead State Teachers College.

Miss Hilda Franklin, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franklin died from burns she received when a can of kerosene exploded in her hand. The home and all of its contents was destroyed.

D. C. Caudill, Morehead banker, filed for State Senator from the 31st district.

Trouble flared anew at the Lee Clay Products Company as snipers fired an estimated 100 shots at three deputy sheriffs. Cleaveland was in darkness for two nights as union employees refused to fire the boiler plant of the electric supply house.

A jury deadlocked in the trial of Mrs. Bessie Day for murder, in Rowan Circuit Court.

A. H. Points resigned as cashier of the Citizens Bank and was replaced by Dr. H. Van Antwerp of Farmers.

Forty-nine bids were received by the Morehead State Teachers College on a heat, light and water plant.

An investigation of the relief set-up in Rowan county was asked by the grand jury.

Morehead defeated Paris 4-1 and 4-3 in a Kentucky State League twin bill.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

Why Newspapers Lead

Newspapers continued as "tops" in advertising media in 1935, and here is why, according to Prof. Thomas F. Barnhart of the University of Minnesota:

1—Newspaper reading is a universal habit. Newspaper advertising, therefore, reaches virtually all who read and buy.

2—A newspaper advertisement, as part of the complete paper goes into the home as a welcome guest.

3—The newspaper advertisement, can have as much reader interest and news value as the news item.

4—The amount of text used in newspaper advertisements is dependent only upon the size of space.

5—Newspaper advertising is flexible.

6—Newspaper advertising is quickly controlled.

7—Newspaper advertising may be adjusted to different conditions.

8—Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers and dealers to state where their products may be bought.

9—Newspaper advertising is inexpensive. Merchants have learned that it covers more families for less money than any other form of advertising.

10—Newspaper advertising results may be checked.

11—Newspaper circulation is known and is comparatively unaffected by daily change.

12—Newspaper advertising reduces selling costs because it entails no waste of circulation. This helps reduce costs for the consumer.

"Newspaper advertising," says Professor Barnhart, "builds confidence and good will, attracts new customers, increases sales, and stabilizes merchandise methods and prices."—Clinton Tenn. Courier.

Half of U. S. Farms In Hands Of Tenants

Resettlement Representative Gives Figures Showing Tenancy Gains

The trend from individual ownership of farm tenancy was described as one of the major problems of the United States by Clarence W. Cobb of Morehead, Ky., rehabilitation supervisor of the Resettlement Administration for Rowan, Carter and Elliott Counties. Mr. Cobb quoted figures compiled by the Resettlement Administration showing that a nearly half of all farms in the United States are now tenants.

"Every agricultural section of the country," he said, "has some tenancy." It ranges from around eight per cent in the New England states to better than forty-five per cent in parts of the corn belt and a high of more than seventy five per cent of all farms in some parts of the cotton belt.

The figures of the 1935 census of agriculture indicate that farm tenancy is still increasing in all major sections of the country. Tenancy in the states of this region is as follows:

North Carolina, 142,138 tenants, gain of 3 per cent since 1930; Virginia, 58,386 tenants, gain of 16 per cent since 1930; Kentucky, 103,215 tenants, gain of 16 per cent since 1930; Tennessee, 126,607 tenants, gain of 11 per cent since 1930; West Virginia, 27,021 tenants, gain of 16 per cent since 1930.

In Rowan, Carter and Elliott Counties we have 104 Farm and Home Management Plans approved and to date, Mrs. Emma F. Conkright, Home Management Supervisor will take part in supervising and helping these clients to

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor of The Independent: I have your note of June 15th concerning my announcement as a candidate for Congress and I beg to advise that I filed on June 15th. With kindest of personal regards and best wishes,

FRED M. VINSON

Editor of The Independent: The Republican party of Rowan county will deem it an especial favor if you can find room for your publication to publish the following letter.

Miss Edwina Allen, Miss Lottie Powers, Hon. Charles Adams.

I take this opportunity of advising you and your club of the big young Republican District Rally to be held at Ashland, on Saturday, June 27th, at 2 p. m. At that rally there will be elected a district chairman and district chairwoman for the eighth Congressional district. Such persons will serve on the Board of Governors of the Young Republican Clubs of Kentucky for the next two years.

I have also understood that there will be a banquet and dance in the evening for those who desire to stay over. No doubt you will hear from the Ashland club within a few days as to the details of the rally.

Now we have a standard to rally around and since the nomination of Landon and Knox, I know that you have noticed in your community and in the press a decided trend away from Roosevelt. The young people have come to the front in the national picture, with young Hamilton at the head of the party, and the young Republicans in Kentucky must not miss this opportunity to advance their interests in this state.

I am sending to your club president under separate cover 100 pledge cards—to be signed by old members and the new members that you can secure from 18 to 40 years of age. You will note that the stub is to be torn off and given to the member and the pledge card retained in the book. When the book has been signed up, it must be returned to me for filing with National Headquarters. Thus Washington will have a record of the young folks who are pledged and the worker who secures the pledge will be given credit for it. Additional cards will be furnished upon request.

I suggest that you get as many signers as possible before the Ashland rally so that the new members can attend the rally.

You can send as many delegates to Ashland as will go, and all of them will be given an opportunity to vote. The only restriction as to voting is that the Ashland club will not have a greater voting strength at the meeting than the most numerous visiting club. Also, Mr. Allen, as publicity agent for the club, please put a notice of the rally in your local newspaper.

Let's get busy and put the Ashland meeting over with a bang, and I am going to expect to see you and several from your club at Ashland on June 27th at 2 p. m. Sincerely yours,

JOHN M. ROSSION, Jr. Young Republican Clubs of Ky.

Church To Sponsor Passion Play Here

A production of peculiar interest to all Christian people is "The Passion Play," which will be presented in moving pictures at the First Christian church on Wednesday night, July 1. This picture is synchronized with singing, music and sound. The sacred songs are sung by the Roxie Choir assisted by Emil Velancko at the organ. It is spoken of as the greatest moving picture ever produced and will live forever in the hearts of mankind.

This moving picture presents the life of Christ from the cradle to the grave and the resurrection. It is the old, old story of the Saviour told in a simple and sincere manner. Mr. Stewart, who presents the picture has the rights for this section of the country, and carries with him all the elaborate equipment for the presentation of the picture. The church is sponsoring the picture and receives a part of the proceeds.

Imports of American cotton into Germany in the first quarter of the current year were about 46,000,000 pounds in excess of the corresponding period of 1935. Motion picture theaters in China must have a minimum of 60 per cent Chinese productions in their programs effective July 1.

Repairs are more Costly than Paint

Don't neglect your property any longer. Kurfees 80% Lead and 20% Zinc Paint will cover your property with a protecting film that is waterproof, hides the surface, seals the pores, keeps out dampness and as it slowly wears away, keeps the surface in fine shape for repainting.

Socalled cheap paints, on the other hand, contain cheap materials as clay, chalk, adulterated oils and water. These paints crack, peel, blister and flake off and leave the surface in had condition for repainting. They do not protect your property.

Before you buy paint check the formula—that's the safe way. Watch for water and other cheap stuff.

Be safe and save your money—paint your house to stay painted with Kurfees 80 and 20.

SAN FRANCISCO

Adapted by LARRY MITCHELL
From the "San Francisco" Novel by JACK LONDON

Synopsis—Blackie Norton, owner of the Paradise dance hall and gambling joint in the Barbary Coast of the San Francisco of 1905, has befriended Mary Blake, stranded singer. His Coast friends want to run him for alderman. Burley, Frisco's big shot in society and politics, visits Blackie's establishment to warn him not to run, hears Mary sing, and is interested in her beauty and her voice. He and Signor Baldini, proprietor of the Tivoli Opera House, offer her an audition with the possibility of an engagement. But Blackie interposes his own two-year contract with Mary and sends her to sing at Father Mullin's Mission.

THE SINGER AND THE PRIEST

Chapter Four

Of the three men who watched Mary Blake as she left the box to go to St. Anne's Mission, Signor Baldini was the only disinterested one, and the only one who understood her quickly disappointed hope and her loyalty to the man who had given her a job. Blackie and Burley were interested in Mary as she affected themselves. As they sat down again, Blackie made no attempt to hide the sarcasm in his voice.

"So, you don't want me to run for alderman, Burley?"

"You know as well as I, Norton, that it isn't practical to rebuild the Coast. People come here slumming because it is picturesque. They don't want to feel they are in a spotless town."

"That isn't your reason," interposed Blackie. "Oh, one of 'em, don't want to spend your dough to make your property down here safe."

"If I did what you want it would be a calamity for the Coast. The Burley estate has to get a certain interest on its investment. I'd have to raise rent. If you boys couldn't live. You'd be forced to charge ten cents a glass for beer."

"I don't quite get it now, Baldini," Blackie half seriously, half mockingly. "He tosses a fortune every year into the Tivoli Opera House."

Baldini shrugged smilingly, but Burley responded, "That's not business. That's Frisco."

"The Coast is Frisco, too."

"That's why I wouldn't change it."

"Well, Burley," Blackie spoke coolly, dispassionately, "these lit-was nice of you, Miss Blake, to leave your work to come to our rescue."

"It made me feel good—being here, Father Mullin."

"You're not the girl whose father was greaser?" he asked.

"Why yes. How did you know?"

"Blackie Norton told me. Come into the entry with me—I'd like to talk to you." To her fear of being late at the Paradise, he said, "That's all right. I'll be right with Blackie." The office into which he conducted her was neat and attractive. On a small iron stove of tawakette was boiling. He gave her a chair and began to brew some coffee, talking to her during his preparation of the beverage.

"How are you making out at the Paradise?"

She replied evasively, not wishing to reveal her dislike for the job. "Why—I've only just started."

"How do you like Blackie?"

"He could answer that frankly. I'm afraid of him."

She looked at him sharply when he said, "And he's someone to be afraid of. He's a unscrupulous with women as he is ruthless with men."

"I don't understand him, Father Mullin. Why did he send me here?"

The priest smiled. "You probably understand him better than you see. I don't believe Blackie ever knew your kind of woman before. But you needn't be afraid of him unless you're afraid of yourself. Are you?"

It was a new idea, and Mary thought it over a moment. "No I guess I'm just a little bit dazed. You see, I've been in San Francisco for six weeks and nothing has happened at all. Then, in the past twenty-four hours, the whole world went topsy-turvy. I feel like running home."

"If you are afraid, you'd better run home. There was friendly encouragement in his twinkling eyes. "How about it?"

"I'm going to stay," she said with a determined smile.

"That's right!" he approved. "You're probably in the wickedest, most corrupt, most Godless city in America. Sometimes it frightens me, and I wonder what the end is going to be. But nothing can harm you if you don't allow it to. Because nothing in the world—no one in the world—is all bad. Do you know who gave the chapel the new organ we've been dedicating tonight?"

"The most Godless and scoffing and unbelieved soul in all San Francisco—Blackie Norton." He went to a cupboard to get cups, and she stared at him, astonished at the information. "Blackie heard one night that I was saving for an organ. The very next morning some men arrived here to plan the installation. It cost him four thousand dollars! If he'd saved his money for two weeks, he'd be a rich man." He turned, facing her, fixed look at him. "He's a treacherous force, Blackie. If he'd only be a force for good instead of evil! I've tried to do something with him for years, but I've never had any luck. Maybe I'm not the right one." The look he still bent upon her was questioning, appealing.

"You've known him a long time haven't you?"

"Sure, Blackie and I were kids together. He studied at his remembrance of Blackie as a boy and youth. "We were born and brought up on the Coast. We used to sell newspapers in the joints along Pacific street. He was the leader of all the kids in the neighborhood. And I was his pal. The priest, still in his ecclesiastical robes, gave an affectionate chuckle. "Our families used to go to make us go to Sunday School. We generally ducked. But the time came when I wanted to go. And Blackie thought I was crazy. When I made up my mind I was going to study for the priesthood, he tried to get me to understand it, to feel a little as I felt. But he said 'Good luck, sucker!' and that was all." He sighed, pored the coffee and passed her a cup. "We've never been able to have that talk. I came back from Santa Clara College and found Blackie deeper than ever in the life of the Coast. And he's gone right on. But he has a sort of code—he's always had it from the time he was a kid. He never lied, he never cheated, and he never took an underhand advantage of anyone."

Mary listened in silence and some astonishment to these revelations about the character of the man who had befriended her. Father Mullin picked up a small framed photograph from the desk by the wall. "Here are—the two of us when we were kids." She took the picture, looked at the cherubic faces of two small boys, then looked up quickly at Father Mullin's chuckling laugh. "Don't let him know I told you about the organ. Blackie's that way—ashamed of his good deeds as other people are of their sins. But no one will ever convince me that there's not a whole lot more of good than there is bad in Blackie Norton."

With the new ideas of Blackie that Father Mullin had given her simmering in her mind, Mary went with the "Professor" to attend a political rally by Blackie's supporters in Schutzen Park. Blackie had barely started his speech, promising to keep up his fight until he got some decent fire lines for the Coast, when a heckler yelled, "What construction company is paying you for tryin' to build the Coast?" Go on, tell us!"

Blackie jumped down from the platform and made for the speaker. "Here's an answer you can take to your boss—Jack Burley!" Blackie landed a brutal sock on the man's chin that sent him reeling to the ground amid a burst of laughter from the Coast contingent.

Mary Blake stood up with the others. A thrill went over her; her eyes shone as she took in the straight, slim, cocky figure of Blackie Norton. No man had ever given her that thrill before.

Morehead ROWAN COUNTY KENTUCKY
A greater Morehead is assured! There has never been so great a demand for homes in Morehead, and absolutely no vacant homes.

Within the past 13 years the State of Kentucky expended over three million dollars in substantial brick and stone buildings (not equaled anywhere) for this Teachers College, built a modern water plant, and two fine buildings are now under construction, the Science Building which calls for a total expenditure of $250,000.00 and a Dormitory at an expenditure of $181,000.00. The city has splendid graded high schools and the college makes the very best educational advantages to be found anywhere. Several new, model roads have recently been constructed leading to this thriving city. Morehead has the following industries in and near the city: Lee Clay Products Co., which employs over 200 men, The Kentucky Fire Brick Co., General Refractories Co., which manufactures fire brick, Wholesale (modern) Bakery, known as the Midland Baking Co., Ice Plant, and two Wholesale Groceries. Morehead has all modern conveniences — Electricity, New Water Plant that supplies fine water, and an ample supply of Natural Gas, is available, and will soon furnish gas to the city. There are two strong Banks and two wide-awake County Papers, a splendid Modern Hotel and four good Churches. The Home Sites and Baby Farms are located in a fertile valley, in full view of this wonderful College and many of the lots and Baby Farms have healthy, seven-year-old apple and peach trees on them. The surroundings are very desirable.

Robert Fitch Bound Over Under Bond

Banks Testifies
Willie Banks, of Morehead, a waiter at the Driscoll House, was the second Commonwealth witness. He said he was on the porch of the roadhouse when he heard the shot and rushed inside. He quoted Fitch as saying, "Joe's killed herself."

Effie Collins, a waitress, was next called. She said she was sitting in a booth adjoining the kitchen, where the girl met her death when the gun fired. "I raised up and saw Fitch standing in the doorway of the kitchen," she said.

"Did he have anything in his hand?" she was asked.
"No, I didn't see anything," Miss Collins replied.

Lawrence Gossett, a meat salesman of Huntington, W. Va., was next called. She said she was sitting at the testimony of the other witnesses.

Fitch admitted the death gun was his when he was arrested. Following the testimony of the four Commonwealth witnesses, defense counsel asked that Fitch be released for insufficient evidence. This was refused by Judge Ramey. The defense then asked for bond which was granted.

Held Autopsy

An autopsy of the body of Miss Myers, was conducted at her home in Farmers, 7 miles west of here Saturday afternoon, by Dr. A. W. Adkins, Morehead and Dr. Dan Fortune, Carter County, at the request and under the supervision of Carter County coroner Henderson. The girls parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers were also in favor of the autopsy, but had previously requested it be held after the funeral was conducted.

Dr. Adkins said that he felt at liberty to make the statement that in his opinion the girl could have been either a suicide or a homicide and that she met her death by a bullet wound through the forehead.

The funeral services were conducted at Farmers Saturday afternoon.

Beckham Files For U. S. Senate

J. C. W. Beckham, who served three times as Governor of the State and represented the State in the United States Senate from 1915 to 1921, entered the race for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator last week.

Mr. Beckham resigned as chairman of the Public Service Commission half an hour before he filed his declaration papers with the Secretary of State. Gov. A. B. Chandler, who appointed Mr. Beckham to the State body last December, and only this week named him as Commissioner of Business Regulation, accepted the resignation.

Mr. Beckham became the fifth entry in the Democratic Senate contest. The others who have filed are Senator M. M. Logan, the incumbent; former Congressman John Young Brown; Mont Walker, Ashland attorney, and Dr. K. N. Salzer, Jeff, former County Judge of Perry County. Former Gov. A. O. Stanley, who announced his candidacy, has not filed and is not expected to file.

Mr. Beckham made no formal statement. He wrote Governor Chandler a letter appraising him of his decision to seek the Senate seat. The letter told the Governor that Mr. Beckham would continue his service as chairman of the Governor's Reorganization Commission if the Governor desired. Membership on the Reorganization Commission is unofficial and non-salaried.

M. J. Meagher, a lifelong political and personal friend, and E. Boone Hamilton, County Judge of Franklin, signed Mr. Beckham's papers. Ben Marshall, head of the Division of Taxation of the Department of Revenue, notarized the declaration papers, and pledged Mr. Beckham his support.

Thirty-six years ago Mr. Beckham was Governor of the State. He had succeeded to the office on February 3, 1900, on the death of William Goebel, who had been seated in a legislative contest shortly after he was shot on January 31.

Mr. Beckham had served as

Things to Come' Appears On Screen

H. G. Wells' amazing forecast of the future, "Things to Come," will come to the College Theatre Friday night. The widely-discussed film, which was produced by Alexander Korda, predicts the staggering developments in our world in the next century and its magnitude challenges anyone who ever attempted in Hollywood.

Opening in the year 1940, "Things to Come" describes the breakdown of our present civilization through the next war, and a return to primitive living. Out of this hopeless state grows a marvelous new subterranean world—a sane, practical and very livable Utopia.

According to Mr. Wells, the life of the 21st Century will be lived underground almost entirely. The cities will be built in the sides of mountains, lighted by artificial sunlight and ventilated by conditioned air. The houses will be glass, but windowless, furnishings and clothing will reach a high point of beauty and simplicity, the two-hour day will in a fact and humans will be propelled to the moon from a giant space gun.

Raymond Massey, Ralph Richardson, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Pearl Argyle, Margaretta Scott, and Patricia Hilliard head a cast of 20,000 in this truly stupendous production, which the noted William Cameron Menzies directed. "Things to Come" is a London film, released through United Artists. The remarkable photography was obtained by Georges Perinal, the trick photography is by Harry Zech and the special effects were achieved by Ned Mann. Vincent Korda designed the sets, with the aid of Frank Wells, son of the author and Arthur Bliss is responsible for the musical background.

Exports of automotive products from the United States in April were the largest recorded for the corresponding month since April, 1930.

R A Funds Ready For Co-Operative Loans

Farmer co-operative enterprises now may be organized in Rowan, Carter and Elliott Counties with the aid of funds loaned to such organizations by the Resettlement Administration, Clarence W. Cobb, Carter and Elliott Counties with the aid of funds loaned to such organizations by the Resettlement Administration, Clarence W. Cobb, county rural rehabilitation supervisor announced today.

Funds have been made available Mr. Cobb said, for loans to community and co-operative associations and to farm families for participation in such associations as well as in existing co-operatives. This is one of the means by which the federal government is helping farmers to gain new economic security, he said.

"Loans will be made to co-operatives that submit sound plans on a basis of a real community need for the service," Mr. Cobb said. "There must be assurance that such an enterprise will be able to operate on a self-sustaining basis."

Mr. Cobb said he will be glad to receive the suggestions of the Rowan, Carter and Elliott County farmers at his office in Morehead.

HOT COMPETITION FROM BRITISH 'BABY' CARS

Sales of American automobiles in British Malaya have been markedly curtailed in recent years as a result of the increasing popularity of British "baby" cars, says a report to the Louisville District office of the Commerce Department. Of approximately 25,000 passenger cars registered in the country in 1928, American makes accounted for 65 per cent. At the end of 1935, the American proportion of the total number of passenger cars in operation had been reduced to 29 per cent, while the British had increased their share to 70 per cent.

CAN'T FIND OIL IN BRAZIL. The efforts of the Brazilian Government and private interests to locate oil deposits in Brazil important enough to justify exploration have been entirely fruitless, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. But countries bordering Brazil, have proven petroleum deposits. During the last 15 years the Federal Government has drilled 50 wells in its southern states but commercially all were failures.

Should Use Care in Taking Soil Samples During the course of a year.

many soil samples are sent to the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington for analysis. Without sufficient information being given about how the samples were taken, the results are of little value.

Unless a sample is properly taken, points of Prof. George Roberts, it may not fairly represent the land. The results may be better or poorer than the land it is intended to represent.

No sample should be sent without first obtaining from the Experiment Station directions for taking samples. These directions are given in Extension Circular 272.

Analyses are not particularly helpful in making recommendations for fertilizing tobacco, according to Professor Roberts. It is better to tell how the land has been managed for the last five years, including cropping and the use of manure, lime and fertilizers, and give an estimate of the productivity in terms of how much corn it will produce in an average season.

The chief value of the test is to show the need of the soil for lime and phosphorus, to be used as a basis for improving the soil through the proper use of manures, grasses, and farm manure.

Extension Circular 272 gives a discussion of these practices.

Turning an acre into an attractive bedroom doesn't require Aladdin's lamp; it just takes a little thought and energy, reports Mrs. Dan Sheuse of Union county.

She re-plastered and painted walls, cleaned and waxed the floor, refinished chairs and hung pictures at only small cost.

Poultry profits have rewarded Mrs. J. D. Fields of Melaine county for careful management. Starting with 500 chicks, she sold 257 cockerels 10 weeks old and weighing an average of 4 1/2 pounds.

The Jersey herd of seven cows owned by Leona Whaley and Washington county test herds in average butterfat production last month at the proper use of manures, grasses, and farm manure.

Strawberries shipped cooperatively to the Cincinnati Produce Growers' Association by Fleming county farmers, received $1.40 per first and $1.65 for second grade.

Noel Sandeys is in charge of the receiving station and sales, and expects the local market first.

When the cows thought to be best turn out to be the worst butterfat producers in the county, they were sold for $1.40 per cow.

With four homemakers in charge, plans for the county makers circulating library have been completed in Oldham county.

Books on home economics, religion, art, travel and history will be bought first, followed by regular purchases of material on hobbies, books of fiction, etc.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Gardeners casting about for something out of the ordinary to include in their "second" gardens, might well consider broccoli. The fact that it is somewhat unusual need not determine them, for it is quite as easy to grow as cabbage.

In flavor it resembles cauliflower, but excels it in food value, for broccoli is a green vegetable.

For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with this vegetable, broccoli plants grow upright, with leaves well spreading, after the manner of collards. Resemblance between the two ends there, however, for at each leaf axil, broccoli produces clusters of tender blossom buds; these are the harvested parts. As the plants increase in stature, new but-clusters form, to produce an almost amazing amount of food.

Broccoli is usually grown as an early crop with the coming of hot summer weather, plant-growth tends to stop, but if insects are kept at bay, growth may start again in fall, and production resume. Broccoli may be started in mid-summer, to come into prime bearing in winter.

The nippy frosts arrive and continue until the "black" frosts cut it down.

Seedling time is in late June. "Slips" may be raised in a seedling bed, and set in the garden when the plants are 4 or 5 inches high, or the seed may be sown in groups of 3 or 4, spaced 24 inches in the row, and the seedlings thinned to one a place.

In this way, the need for waiting for a setting "season," or for having to transplant, is obviated.

Primarily a foliage crop, broccoli needs extremely rich land. A heavy dressing of well-rotted manure, or one of composted tree-leaves, lawn trimmings, and the like, is recommended. If the latter is used in conjunction. The manuring or application of other organic material serves, too, in giving the soil "condition," enabling it to catch the moisture from any shower that may fall in common with so many of the vegetables, broccoli consists largely of water.

When the fall rains come, it is of benefit to side-dress the plants with "quick" nitrogen, as in nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, to hasten the formation of bud-clusters and to increase their size.

Broccoli is subject to the same pests that attack all members of the cabbage family. The green worm may be particularly troublesome, and so may grass-hoppers. Both of these are easily stopped by dusting with arsenical, until the time buds have begun to form. Once bud-setting starts, switch should be made to a dust containing one per cent of rotenone, the insecticide non-poisonous to humans.

Cabbage lice may also appear, but they are adequately controlled by spraying with nicotine sulphate, tobacco extract. Added killing-power is given tobacco sprays by including a small amount of soap, and by spraying in bright sunlight, or when the temperature stands above 80 degrees.

It should not need saying that in all other respects the best care should be given, so that healthy plants are produced, quite ready for bud forming when the cool nights of the autumn begin.

merce Department. Official statistics show the number of fur farms in Canada in 1934 as 7,019, of which 8,083 were fox farms and 824 mink farms. Other fur-bearing animals such as raccoon and muskrat are also extensively raised. Pelts sold during 1934 were valued at $2,966,010. Fur-bearing animals on Canadian farms at the end of 1934 were valued at $8,427,567, of which 92 per cent represented silver fox. The value of land and buildings was $8,209,788, making a total value for the industry of $14,637,355.

CIGARETTE TAX PROVIDES PERU'S NEEDS $6 MILLION

The "popular restaurants" which are being opened by Peru to aid the needy are proving a notable success. They are financed by an additional tax levied on cigarettes. Each seat 600 persons and modern American refrigerators provide proper conservation of food.

A radio with loud-speakers has been installed. Showers, toilets, swimming pool and the athletic department have modern and most sanitary apparatus.

The standard price for a four-course meal, consisting of a soup, a meat and vegetable stew, a fish plate, with bread and tea or coffee is approximately eight cents.

JAPANESE INVENT 25-CENT RAIN COATS

Raincoats made of paper which has been impregnated with tung oil and designed for sale by baseball games, golf courses, racetracks and at other outdoor events are now being manufactured in Japan.

These coats are made to retail at about 25 cents each and can be folded into small packets without developing cracks. Tung, or China wood oil, has been employed for centuries throughout the Orient as waterproofing for paper, silk and other fabrics, from which a wide variety of articles such as umbrellas, lanterns, waterproof bags and other items are made, and from all indications its use for similar purposes is growing in the United States.

Fur-bearing animals on Canadian farms at the end of 1934 were valued at $8,427,567, of which 92 per cent represented silver fox.

The value of land and buildings was $8,209,788, making a total value for the industry of $14,637,355.

CIGARETTE TAX PROVIDES PERU'S NEEDS $6 MILLION

The "popular restaurants" which are being opened by Peru to aid the needy are proving a notable success.

They are financed by an additional tax levied on cigarettes. Each seat 600 persons and modern American refrigerators provide proper conservation of food.

A radio with loud-speakers has been installed. Showers, toilets, swimming pool and the athletic department have modern and most sanitary apparatus.

The standard price for a four-course meal, consisting of a soup, a meat and vegetable stew, a fish plate, with bread and tea or coffee is approximately eight cents.

DON'T REMEMBER

Don't remember if remembering
Makes your heart grow sad within,
Just forget, and let forgetting
Help you bear a merry grin

For forgetting is a blessing
That comes to help us bear
Every little bit of sadness,
And of sorrow, and despair

For the dullness spreads upon us,
And it clouds our weary brain,
So we do not know the anguish,
And we do not feel the pain.

Don't remember if it hurts you.

MEMORIAL

In memory of our little daughter, Imogene Scott, who departed this life April 25, 1936.

Two months have passed since you went away. Some may think the wound has healed.

But they little know the sorrow Deep within our hearts concealed. We mourn for you in silence. No eyes can see us weep. But many a silent tear is shed. While others are asleep.

We often sit and think of you. And speak of how you died. And of your awful sufferings. Before you crossed the tide.

We are lonely here without you. But our memory lingers still. To the loving smiles you gave us. And our eyes with tears are filled.

Prepared and waiting, glad to go Yet with an aching heart, We know that from your loved ones You did not wish to part.

The moon and stars are shining Upon a lonely grave. Where sleeps our dear little Imogene. Whom we loved but could not save.

Our thoughts so often wander To your grave not far away. Where we laid our dear little daughter. On that showery, April day.

You've paid the price of Jesus Christ. You have gone home to stay. And we all hope to meet you On that bright and glorious day.

Sadly missed by her parents, MR. AND MRS. TOM SCOTT.
