Quick Response Follows Wilson's Request For Support of Congress

IN MEXICAN PLANS

TEXT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL WAR MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

House Adopts Resolution By Vote of 337 to 37. But Senate Changes wording, Objecting to Individualizing Huerta—Thrilling Scenes at National Capital.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Washington.—Quick response has followed President Wilson's request for the support of Congress in his latest Mexican plans. At 9 o'clock the President read his Mexican message to the House and Senate, sitting jointly, and shortly after 9 o'clock the House by a vote of 337 to 37 passed the following resolution, which was reported from the Committee on Foreign Affairs by Chairman Flood.

Joint resolution justifying the employment by the President of the United States in enforcing certain demands made upon Victoriano Huerta.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, That the President is justified in the employment of armed forces to enforce certain demands upon Victoriano Huerta for unbecomingly amends to the government of the United States for affronts and indignities committed against the government by Gen. Huerta and his representatives.

This resolution, said to have been drafted personally by the President, was rushed over to the Senate, which was called in night session for the purpose of receiving it and having it referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, of which Senator Shively, of Indiana, is Acting Chairman.

It was the expectation of senators before dinner, when the news was taken until 9 o'clock, that after the resolution had been referred to the committee there would be an adjournment. But Senator Shively had a conference with the president in the meantime, and Mr. Wilson urged him to join the resolution through this precipitate a controversy in the senate which was entirely unexpected, and developed latent sentiments among senators which otherwise would not have been revealed.

After a resolution had been reported to the committee, Senator Lippert, Republican of Rhode Island, blocked progress by objecting to the request of Senator Shively for unanimous consent to proceed with its immediate consideration. As a result of this objection the senate recessed until noon Tuesday under agreement to take it up then. Senator Lodge, Republican of Massachusetts, previously offered a substitute to the preamble of the resolution as reported by the committee.

Senators objected to the individualizing of Huerta.

Justice, said Resolution, that the use of armed forces is justified in view of the facts presented to congress by the president.

CHESTER WAS READY To Fire on Tampico When Marines Were Released, Writes Ensign.

Springfield, O.—James Linn Rodgers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Rodgers, of this city, is an ensign on the Connecticut, the flagship of Adm. Mayo, at Tampico. In a letter received from Ensign Rodgers he spoke of the arrest of the crew of the Dolphin, when it landed at Tampico. He states that the men were not only marched through the streets, but were insulted and imprisoned. The gunboat Chester cleared her decks for action and was on the verge of opening fire on the city, when the marines were released and allowed to return to the Dolphin.

COUNCIL MEET

The City Council met in regular session April 6th, with Mayor Hicks, and all the Councilmen present.

After the regular routine of business was gone through with, among the more important matters taken up was the opening of bids for the telephone franchise. J. H. Mobley was the only bidder, offering $100 for the privilege. Motion was made by Mr. Christian to accept the bid, and a vote showed: yea, Wallace, Christian, No. Hammons, McCleese, Simms, Duval. So the bid was rejected and the privilege not sold.

Motion was made, and Clerk Henderson and Judge Counts appointed, to check up the public account of former Marshal John Crawford.

The same committee was named to prepare plans, specifications and a cost estimate of the proposed Court House, to be presented at next regular meeting. Chief Carpenter was appointed health officer for 30 days. Employment of City Attorney was tabled till regular meeting in May.

GOVERNOR NAMES THE COMMISSION

WILL HAVE LETTING OF BIG FIVE-YEAR TEXT BOOK CONTRACT.

DISCREPANCIES IN THE LAW

The Books For the Term of the Commission Will Cost Over $1,500,000—Good Selection Made.

(Special Frankfort Correspondence) Frankfort.—The State Text Book Commission, which will let the common school text books to be used in Kentucky for four years. They in the cities of the first, second, third and fourth classes, has been appointed by Gov. McCreary. The books for the term of the commission will cost a total of about $1,500,000. The members of the commission from the state at large are: President, Henry S. Baker, of the State University; Prof. E. R. Johnson, of the Eastern Normal School, Richmond; and Prof. A. C. Benton, of the Western Normal school, Bowling Green.

The members from the appellate districts are: L. E. Foster, District No. 1, First Appellate District; A. H. Hill, Franklin, Second Appellate District; L. G. Sledge, Third Appellate District; Felix H. Kerrick, Lyndon, Fourth Appellate District; L. D. Stueker, Frankfort, Fifth Appellate District; C. Collins, Columbia, Sixth Appellate District; and J. E. Lantow, Winchester, Seventh Appellate District. Gov. McCreary is ex-officio chairman of the board and Superintendent of Public Instruction Hammett is ex-officio secretary.

More Assessments Raised.

Farm land assessments in Martin, Madison and Leslie counties have been raised 10 per cent by the state board of equalization. In Leslie county the total assessed value of land dropped from $1,804,042 in 1913 to $1,828,639 this year, while town lots were assessed at $67,820, an increase of 33.100. In Martin county land assessments decreased from $1,141,110 to $987,311 and town lots increased from $48,185 to $54,450. In Madison county the farm land assessments fell from $979,765 to $904,705. Town lots were assessed at $70,995, an increase of 17.025.

Interest Stock Raisers.

Prizes of $100 each will be offered at the State Fair this year for the best fat pig, any breed, under 1 year, and the best fat beef, any breed, under 18 months old. The streak must belong to and be fattened by a boy over 10 and under 18 years old. The purpose of the prizes is to start the organization of big clubs and baby beef clubs for boys. In connection with this exhibition will be twenty pens, ten of which are corn fed, and ten scientifically fed. The fair company has made arrangements to take the best of the hands of the exhibitors.

Gets $4000 For Injuries in Collision.

Car No. 13, in charge of motorman No. 13, on Friday, June 13, 1913, was a unfortunate combination of cabalistic figures and numbers in serious injury to John Wilson and a $4000 verdict for damages against the Kentucky Traction and Terminal Co. in the Franklin circuit court. This car struck the wagon in which Wilson was riding near J. B. Station, killed his horse, injured his wagon and seriously injured Wilson.

Pardon is Urged.

An application for a pardon for Richard Allen, serving a term in the penitentiary for the murder of Charles Tucker, Sr., has been filed with Gov. McCreary by citizens of Casey county. Allen being convicted Allen escaped from jail and was at large for over 20 years. He was but recently returned to the penitentiary through the efforts of Charles Tucker, of this city, son of the murdered man.

Board Boosts Three Counties.

Farm land assessments in Martin, Madison and Leslie counties were raised 10 per cent by the state board of equalization. In Leslie county the total assessment of land dropped from $1,804,042 in 1913 to $1,828,639 this year. While town lots were assessed at $67,820, an increase of 33.100. In Madison county land assessments decreased from $979,765 to $904,705. In Leslie county land assessments decreased from $1,141,519 to $987,311 and town lots increased.

Assessments Raised.

The state board of equalization has raised the assessments in three counties, raising Breathitt 15 per cent on lands, Union 5 per cent on lands and Montgomery 6 per cent on lands.

HUERTA WANTS WAR.

Pittsburg, Penn.—That war with Mexico is inevitable is the opinion of Agorin Carrino, who was aid-de-camp to Gen. Villa, of the Mexican Constitutionalists, for several months, and who is in Pittsburg on a business trip connected with local financial interests. Carrino says he knows Huerta well, and that the Mexican dictator is proud and wily, and that he will force this country into declaring war. He says that it will better his position.

D. A. R. Offers to Care For Flags.

Susanna Hart Chapter, D. A. R., which occupies quarters in the old Capitol, has offered to take charge of and preserve the Ku Klux Klan flag now stored in the new Capitol basement. The chapter also proposed to the making land commission that it should allow to hang the photograph of George Washington, the property of the D. A. R., in its rooms. The commission appointed Secretary of State Coakley and State Treasurer Thomas S. Rhea a committee to take up the matter with the chapter.

The Kentucky Blackberry.

Commissioner Neffman, of the state department of agriculture, labor and industries, recently made the prediction that Kentucky would some day be famous as a producer of blackberries. "No place in the world," he said, "produces blackberries like Kentucky. The blackberry is indigenous to Kentucky soil. Probably there is no place where it grows in greater profusion. The plants spring up in unexpected places and they multiply rapidly. The native blackberry grows anywhere and is marvellously prolific."

Switches Are Made.

The following appointments were made by the state board of control as the result of the resignation of Dr. W. E. Gardner as superintendent of the Lakeland State Hospital: Dr. Peditcord, now assistant, to be superintendent; Dr. W. E. Rensler, second assistant at the Eastern State Hospital, to succeed him; Dr. D. A. Campbell, first assistant at Hopkinsville, is transferred to head the institution at Leitchfield; Dr. H. C. Sanders, of Campbellsville, senator from the Fifteenth district, made first assistant at Hopkinsville.

Another Letter

By S. T. Mannin

To the many readers of this paper:—After having been asked by so many of my friends and acquaintances to give a history in full of my trip over the west and south-west, I consider it too much of a task for me to undertake this in full, but as I have told a few that I would give them a write-up of some of the views of the States and mention a few of the cities I visited while gone from dear old Kentucky, I shall keep my promise.

The first state I was in after I left my Kentucky Ohio, and in passing through the valleys of it I saw some fine soil, and on thru some rough country to take up for the good. Next was Indiana and in passing through it I found conditions the same, but over in Illinois I found more level land than in the other two states, but some swamp land that seemed apt to overflow, and also some rough and thin land. Passing into Missouri I found some of as fine lands I ever saw, and, too, some very thin land. Next was the state of Kansas; one of the best wheat states in the Union, and there I found plenty of good land and some bad. I also found crops very poor on account of the drought and hot winds, which occur frequently in those Western states.

I met many friends in Kansas and like there fine. From Kansas I went into Oklahoma and found as fine country in the valleys of the Washita River as has ever been my pleasure to visit, but I also saw some of the rough mountains of Oklahoma yet inhabited by the wild beast of the forest: such as the bear, panther, mountain lion, wolf, coyote, wild hog, deer and many other smaller animals.

There is quite a lot of timber in Oklahoma and a good deal of prairie. I visited the border of Arkansas and found some good and some rough land there, yet the soil is good on the Arkansas river. Passing on through Texas I found some fine and plenty of rough land, and on into New Mexico I rambled and looking over the landscape I saw plenty of both rough and level land and seemed to be almost destitute of water; so dry and sandy looking. Passing on over New Mexico into Arizona I find it very much the same way, and in Yuma, the city full of Indian women, with all kinds of fancy beak work for sale, and on into California I went, and was over quite a good deal of that state. I saw some fine land after it had been irrigated and cultivated, and some ar rough land as I ever saw anywhere; and I do believe California's sure looking after your dollar. I was also in Nevada and passed almost square through that state and found she had plenty of both good and rough land, and that most all the farms had fine large orchards and in fine condition; plenty of cattle, horses and sheep.

I was in Utah and saw some level land and fine orchards of all kinds of fruits and vegetable farms and people seemed to be prosperous. I visited the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City; a nice looking place; the cleanest looking city I was in on my trip. I passed over some fine country in Colorado and some as rough as I ever saw in life. Please note that each state has good and bad land, and while I met with the kindest hospitality among them

THEME: EXHALTATION OF HUMILITY.

BY THE REV. JOHN STAPLETON.
Text: Luke xviii:14. "He that humbled himself shall be exalted."

With these words before us let us again acknowledge Jesus, our Master, Teacher, Crucified in utterance, paradoxical in meaning. He is vital ever, giving a lesson which man needs, Jesus' method of imparting it was unique. He started and challenged the attention of His hearers, aroused their interrogations, and through the mental doorway thus opened of their own hands, marshaled the truth and the great God-fact was theirs.

At a glance this seems to be a careless and imprudent way of imparting life-lessons. To wrap up a care-thought in such language that from the speech-busk nothing can at first be determined as to its content would seemingly endanger the reception of the content, but to any who would thus impugn Jesus' pedagogy, answer can be made that His class in the Kingdom of publishing the truth with honors. He found them children and left them men, and when He gave them His benediction it was to masters of the world. He gave it to masters to whom He entrusted the teaching of the world to all nations. The humble had become exalted.

In His Kingdom mourners are blessed, children are oftentimes wiser than sages, two mites, making a farthing, are more than millions. He told them that as God looked on life one lost sheep was more valuable than ninety and nine saved ones; that a despised Samaritan woman was as precious as the whole Semite hierarchy; that the seven-worded prayer of repentance from a Publican, outweighed all Pharisaical eloquence, and that the one inspiration which alone could furnish a new theme commensurate in majesty and power and sweetness for the music of heaven, or produce a new thrill of joy in the hearts of the angels of heaven, was the trembling, broken prayer for forgiveness from a child who had lost the home-way.

He changed their viewpoint one to the other. He told them to rejoice when they were persecuted, to be glad when they were reviled. He told them to pick out their worst enemy and love Him the most, to choose the poorest beggar and invite him to be the dinner guest, to give any and all things to any and all people who asked, to save by serving, to get by giving, to be greatest by being least.

He promised them by prophecy of His own death. He was to die, yet live, be crucified yet crowned and the third Gogatha cross of His agony and shame was in the ages to come the first step on the great world stairs leading up to His throne, from whence, glorious and omnipotent, He should draw all men unto Himself. These were dark sayings and difficult for the understanding.

In the light of history, however, we find these paradoxical sayings startlingly true. Jesus becomes the revealer of God's way of working not alone in the future by way of prophecy, but also in the past by way of interpretation. How else explain David the singer as triumphing over black-brooding Saul, the slyer? Paraphrasing the words of the prophet and Hameuse the monarch: Daniel the slave and Belshazzar the prince—who is the most truly exalted? How do you account for the luminous brightness of Peter's name and Paul's new name as contrasted with the bloody tarnish of a Grecian world-conqueror's record or a Roman emperor's tabor; and this after nineteen centuries? Which is the most coveted name, Christ or Pilate, Paul or Festus, John or Herod? No fantasies—these wonderful thoughts attests to their truth. "He hath put down princes from their thrones; and hath exalted them of low degree. The hungry hath He filled with good things and the rich hath He sent empty away. He hath revealed unto babes His glory and in the darkness of their ignorance hath He kept the wise and prudent."

In spite of the seeming complexity of these truth-transformations there is a key by which they may be understood. Truth is simple because it is elemental, and all these sayings find their common denominator in one principle. This principle is given to both our text and subject. Granting it as a premise and all other teaching of Jesus becomes sequential. It is that in God's Kingdom does the humble self-denying, the most helpful to His work and spirit is in the most direct line of promotion by the King. Whether Christ is "driving the rocks away" or washing the feet of the disciples in the upper room, this sermon is being preached throughout it all. To be something in God's eyes, you must be nothing in your own. He that is humble is exalted.

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill. I wish every suffering woman would give a trial. I still use Cardui when I feel a little bad, and it always does me good."

Headache, backache, side-ache, nervousness, tired, worn-out feelings, etc., are sure signs of womanly trouble. Signs that you need Cardui, the woman's tonic. You cannot make a mistake in trying Cardui for your trouble. It has been helping weak, ailing women for more than fifty years.

TEMPERATURE FOR INCUBATION

Tests Prove Leghorn Eggs Hatch Earlier Than Plymouth Rocks.

A number of incubator hatching tests have demonstrated that Leghorn eggs will make a good hatch on a lower temperature than is required to hatch Plymouth Rock or Brahma eggs. My tests proved this beyond expectations which were founded on the nature of the fowls and the difference in the size of eggs, also from little points gathered by observation the results in making hatches with mixed eggs, says a writer in Field and Farm.

The test was made with six 100-egg incubators. They were made exactly alike and run in the same room and under exactly the same conditions. Before starting, I tested the thermometers to make sure there were no fractions in differences.

I set three machines with Brown Leghorn eggs and three with Barred Plymouth Rock eggs. I set each machine three times. The test was made in the months of May, June and July. I ran the temperature on the Leghorn eggs in one machine between 101 and 103, on another at 102 to 104 and on the other 103 to 105 and duplicated the plan on the three machines filled with Plymouth Rock eggs. The lowest temperature produced the best hatch on Leghorn eggs, while the highest temperature made the best hatch on Plymouth Rock eggs. For the second test I reversed the machines, that is, I took the one that had been run at the higher temperature and put it on the lower temperature, making this reverse with both sets of incubators.

The results came out as before. The higher temperature made the best hatch on Plymouth Rock eggs while the lower temperature made the best hatch on Leghorn eggs. With the Plymouth Rocks there was only a small per cent in favor of the higher temperature over the middle temperature, but with the Leghorn eggs the lower temperature made greater gain over the middle temperature. The third trial emphasized the results and thoroughly convinced me that there is a fully one degree difference between the right temperature for Leghorn eggs and for Plymouth Rock or Brahma eggs. My convictions are that two degrees difference between Leghorn eggs and Brahma eggs is about correct. It is the experience of all incubator operators that Leghorn eggs hatch a day earlier than Plymouth Rocks in the same incubator.

turns about ten or twelve times. Small chicks can be treated in the same way. At first they act a little dazed, but soon recover. -Indiana Farmer.

Get Rid of the Lice.

The only way to keep down the lice is to wear a comb during warfare. If you incubate with hens keep the coop lice out of the nests. The big gray lice are horrid, but they are not the ones that kill chicks. The ones that kill are the kind that hide themselves in the woodwork in the daytime and then swarm out by the billion at night.

Sitting hens are often killed by them because a hen will die like a martyr at the stake, and utter never a word, so that the presence of the lice is not suspected. These mites will crawl all around moth balls, even over them. Paint the nests, being careful to fill up the cracks with some good kerosene or dip them in hot coal oil emulsion. -Ranch and Range.

The Patch of Kale.

Did you get around to planting that patch of kale? If not, get at it yet. The writer has repeatedly told of how the California people all raise kale, of how pretty it always looks, and of what grand chicken feed it always makes.

Like any of the cabbage family, if it has not been planted early it may be planted later, the chickens must be kept away from it, however, until it has made a good start, for they are very fond of it and they will not let it grow.

No poultry plant, however, is complete without a yard or two even if be the only one-breed farmers' plant, so put the kale in a yard, but let it be close to the front, as it is always in the growth. -Field and Farm.

COMFORT FOR THE TRAVELER.

Useful Work-Box That Can Be Made to Contain All Conventions.

It is not always convenient at holiday times to take away a work-box, especially when space is limited, and if only on this account, our readers may, perhaps, be glad to make for themselves some such useful hold-all as the one shown in our sketch.

This compact little case really contains everything that is needed for repairs, or for odd jobs of needlework.

It can be made out of any small piece of satin or brocade, and lined with silk in some contrasting color, or blue might be used. Long ribbons, made in the same silk as the lining, are arranged on the upper and lower flaps for holding tapes and darning wools, while a strip of stretched ribbon on either side, and there are other pockets to hold hooks and eyes and safety-pins, as well as ordinary pins, needles and the very necessary buttons. The sides fold over and the case is held secure by ribbons which tie the whole thing compactly together.

MILWAUKEE'S PATRONESS.

A Woman Whose Word Carries Weight in Municipal Affairs.

In Milwaukee there is a woman who has had so much to do with the city's affairs, with the appearance of its streets and show places and with the upkeep of its largest philanthropic institutions that according to the Bookkeeper she may be called the municipal patroness. She is Miss Elizabeth Plankinton, daughter of the late John Plankinton.

Her father in the early days supplied the growing town with buildings, notably the famous old Plankinton Hotel; he built business blocks and founded one of the great banks of the State, which failed only after his death. To the daughter has fallen the self-appointed task of beautifying and embellishing the streets and public buildings.

In every enterprise that has as its object the betterment of Milwaukee Miss Plankinton makes herself felt either by approval or disapproval according to her view. Her opinion is respected, for by years of experience city officials and a great part of her fellow citizens have learned that she speaks only after having fully investigated each new problem.

As manager of her fortune she has shown great mastery of business, while her study of law has enabled her to attend to the legal intricacies of the great estate her father left her. On the occasional vacations she allows herself she is no less energetic and forceful. She is a traveler, and it might almost be said an explorer; for her pleasure is found not on the grand tour but on forays into out of the way corners of Europe and Asia Minor where few American women have ever been.

Woman's Supreme Gift.

If a woman is blessed with tact, she has the supreme gift. It will bring her all the things she needs. To her it is a much more valuable asset than beauty, or even genius. Tact is certainly the greatest of all gifts to a woman.

The girl's school in some far distant Utopia is going to include a course in tact to correlate with its curriculum from the primary grades on through the college course. For, when the day of enlightenment does come, the sensible mother and the astute father will realize that a working knowledge of how to get along with people is more to be desired than much wisdom in so-called higher branches. Tact is more important than trigonometry. It stands a girl in place of beauty; it takes her further than talent; it brings the world to her feet to do her homage.

Tact—Speed the day when we shall appreciate the importance of this unconsidered trifle! Help us to realize that with it woman can wheedle the world out of anything it has to give; that, with her feeble strength, she can't wrestle with it and get anything!

To Soften Real Lines.

All real lines after having been washed (it is reasonable to suppose that almost an excess of care has been bestowed upon them in the process) should be dipped in satin starch. It softens the color and restores to it the thread the necessary oil. Bluing should never be used in rinsing real or imitation lines.

all, yet I can imagine the people in each state are like the lands. I visited a great many cities, and all as a rule are about on the same basis, so far as I could tell. I was also over in Old Mexico and I found a rough looking set of people among the greasers, and a rough city where I was, and now back to old Kentucky, I find some as fine land as I ever saw, and some rough, and the people to match, but I think it depends largely on how you treat others how you are treated.

street corner and immediately hear the voice of the officer of the law sternly bidding you to move on. I have been in the west and the wild west, where the howl of the wolf and the scream of the panther remind us of the day when our forefathers fought the Indians for their land. I've been in the north, where the cool breezes from the lakes, and the lapping of the waves upon the rocks seemed to waft you into eternal pleasure. I have visited the dear old south; have visited beautiful cemeteries, where rest brave men, who died fighting for what they thought was right. But nowhere dear friends in all my life have I traveled or visited a place where I had rather rest when my soul and body go to the great beyond, than beneath the beautiful soil of old Kentucky, in Carter county, on the green hillside by one that's gone.

Yes I've named over mountains; I have crossed over fountains; I've traversed the wave rolling strand; Though the fields were as green And the moon shone as bright, Yet it was not my own native land.

The right hand of fellowship; how it have grasped; And bright eyes have smiled and looked bland; Yet happier by far were the hours that I passed.

In Kentucky, my own native land. Then hail dear old Kentucky, the land that we love;

Where flourish liberty free; 'Tis the birth place of freedom— Our own native home: It is our own dear land of the free.
